SCOUT LEADERS WILL MEET IN TALLASSEE FRI.

Several Local Citizens Are Slated To Attend Annal Scout Meeting

Clanton Scout leaders will go to Tallassee this Friday to attend Annual Meeting of the Central Alabama Area Council Boy Scouts under leadership of local chairman C. E. Stapp. The meeting starts promptly at 1:30 p.m. and is to be a dinner meeting in the basement rooms of the Methodist Church opposite the Tallassee High School.

The local scout men have received invitations for the meeting from President I. J. Dorsey of Opelika and Chairman C. B. Smith of the Tallassee District.

Those slated to attend the scout meeting Friday are C. E. Stapp, John Hollis, Grady Reynolds, L. C. Warr, W. M. Wyatt, Dr. A. Johnson, Earl Thomas, Billy Smith, Dr. Ezell, Sam Powers, Grady Heflin, and J. G. Newton as well as our scout executive John J. Sigwald. Others are invited and urged to advise the local chairman that they will attend. The meeting will be over at four o'clock.

Among the many items on the program are included: an address by Deputy Regional Executive J. V. Dabbs from Memphis, reports of the Scout Executive, president and chairmen of the various committees, a short scout play by Troop 9 and an opportunity for discussion groups.

Next week this paper will give the high lights of the meeting. Clanton District scouting has been making steady progress and our scouts are really getting the scout program of Character Development and Citizenship Training.

Taylor Buys Produce Business Of Messer

Announcement was made this week stating that P. A. Taylor has purchased the produce business of Mc D. Messer, in Clanton. This place of business is located near the railroad on the west side.

Mr. Taylor, who is well known in this and other sections as Parker, took charge of the business last week and will continue with the same line of produce that was handled by Mr. Messer, who has established the business well in this section. Mr. Taylor comes to Clanton from Roanoke, Ala.

Mr. Messer goes to Birmingham, where he will continue in the produce business on Morris Avenue.

SEED AND PLANT COMPANY MOVES TO NEW LOCATION

In this issue of the News there appears an ad from the Southern Seed & Plant Company, of which Evan Parrish is operator, announcing their removal to large quarters.

This company has moved into the building next door to the Alabama Power Company office on main street. There they have more space, and will be more able to serve their customers. Mr. Parrish stated that since they have a large building they will carry a more complete line of seed and plants. They invite the public to visit them.

Two Fire Alarms Call Volunteers

The volunteer firemen of Clanton were called out on two fires during the past week. The first was the house occupied by Rufus White and family, located on the Selma highway, near the Presbyterian church. The house, belonging to Ben Sims, was in flames when the firemen reached the scene, but damage to further homes nearby was averted. This fire occurred just after midnight last Saturday. All furniture in the home was a total loss. It was stated that no one was at home at the time.

Last Tuesday morning about seven-thirty o'clock the truck answered a call just north of Clanton, when a tar heating apparatus used by the highway maintenance crew, caught fire, endangering property nearby. Chemicals were used in extinguishing this blaze.

C. J. Patterson and T. F. Patterson, prominent residents of near Verbena, were in Clanton on business last Monday. While in town the former Mr. Patterson called at the News office.

JEMISON RESIDENTS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT RECENTLY

Mrs. W. C. Erwin and three children, of Jemison, were painfully injured last Sunday when the car in which they were riding was struck by another car, in Thorsby, according to reports.

Information states that the driver of the car which struck the Erwin car, left the scene immediately. His car as well as the Erwin car was badly damaged. Reports from the Sheriff's office state that the driver who left the scene has been found and a charge of reckless driving placed against him. Mrs. Erwin was more seriously injured than her children. She is the wife of W. C. Erwin, well known railroad man, at Jemison.

COUNTY WIDE MEETING WILL BE HELD SOON

County Agent Calls Meeting For Discussion Of The 1932 Outlook

On Friday, January 15th, at 2 P. M., at the Courthouse, Clanton, Alabama, County Agent Stapp will hold a meeting to discuss the outlook for crops and livestock in 1932.

Economists from Washington will be present to present charts showing general conditions and what we may look for this year.

This should prove to be about the most important meeting of the year.

Mr. Stapp attended a three-days meeting in Auburn the 21, 22 and 23rd of December, at which the outlook for 1932 was discussed. He states that a summary of information given out at Auburn will be presented at the county-wide meeting here on the 15th, and will prove valuable for farmers, merchants, bankers and all people in the county who are dependent upon farming operations.

At a similar meeting held last January, the crowd could not get into the courthouse.

Mr. Stapp states that the meeting will begin at two P. M. and in order that you may get a seat it will be advisable to be a little early.

Everyone is asking "What shall I do in 1932?" Attend the meeting and we are sure you will get some information that will help you answer the question.

Sheriff's Office Has Few Arrests Docketed

One of the quietest weeks in several months for the officers in the Sheriff's office here was reported last Tuesday, and undoubtedly people are rather behaving themselves for awhile now.

Only three arrests were given out as docketed by the county officers during the past few days up to Tuesday at noon. These arrests included one for assault with intent to murder and is only a re-arrest on a former charge. One for reckless driving and one for using property without owner's permission.

SIMS-CARBINE MARRIAGE SOLEMNIZED JANUARY 1ST

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sims spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sims, of Jemison, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Payne of Maplesville. Mr. and Mrs. Sims were quietly married January 1 at the home of the bride, Miss Thelma Carbine, of Birmingham. Their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Parrish and little daughter, of Mitchell Dam, were visitors to Clanton last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tyus and daughter Bettie Ruth, Messrs. J. T. Tyus and E. D. Fungreen, all of Birmingham, were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Tyus, near Clanton.

REVIVAL HERE DRAWING RECORD CROWDS WITH INTEREST GROWING

Evangelist Elmer C. Miller Delivering Forceful And Easily Understood Sermons; Programs For Several Days Outlined In This Issue Of News

The Great State-Wide Revival is on in Alabama and Evangelist Elmer C. Miller of South Bend, Indiana, arrived in Clanton Saturday to conduct the meetings scheduled for Chilton County, to be held in the Clanton Court House for the two weeks from January 3rd to January 17th, inclusive.

A packed house greeted the evangelist at seven o'clock Sunday evening when he made his first public appearance and much enthusiasm was in evidence. Percy Pitts was selected to lead the music in the campaign and he immediately launched into a spirited musical program and the audience backed him up splendidly and everyone enjoyed the feast of good music. The evangelist was much pleased with the music and said while he practically always has his own, highly trained musical director in his revivals and his own pianist, he believes we are to have as good of not better music under the leadership of Mr. Pitts.

He was introduced by Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the M. E. Church who read the scripture lesson and Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church lead in the prayer.

Dr. Miller then took charge and said this was his first campaign in Alabama and that he was much delighted with the spirit of the good people here and was sure we are to have a wonderful revival. He felt certain God was in the movement and when He starts such a movement no Power in the Universe can frustrate it. This is a part of the state-wide revival inauguarted by Evangelist Bob Jones last summer and thirty evangelists are now in the state in as many County Seat towns, all beginning Sunday. This is the first of its kind ever held in the United States and many evangelists and pastors believe this to be the beginning of a nation-wide revival that will become historic in its great uplifting and soul winning power.

Dr. Miller came here direct from Memphis, Tenn., where he was the Director of the Great National Convention of Evangelists and Christian workers held there in the Ellis Auditorium from December 27th to January 3rd, where most of the nation's greatest evangelists were assembled including Bob Jones, Billy Sunday, Burke Culpepper, Paul Rader and many others of wide reputation and all believe another mighty revival is the only power that will pull this country out of the material and spiritual depression that has overwhelmed us.

On Sunday afternoon Dr. Miller met a Committee of local workers where the plans for the campaign were carefully gone over and the program outlined. Committees to have direct charge

Hit-And-Run Driver Strikes Verbena Man

A hit-and-run driver picked for his victim last Monday afternoon late, L. F. Hurtt, of Verbena, according to reports received by the News. The information stated that Mr. Hurtt was found in a semi-conscious condition on the ground near the paved road, near his home in Verbena.

A Spigener ambulance from Clanton was called and the injured man brought to Clanton to the hospital, where his head was found to be badly bruised and cut, it was stated. Reports Tuesday afternoon stated he was still in a semi-conscious condition at the hospital. Mr. Hurtt is the man who operates the small lunch stand on the south edge of Verbena. No arrests had been made Wednesday morning.

ELDERLY LADIES ENTERTAINED ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

One of the feature affairs in the social life of Clanton took place New Year's Day, last Friday, when the young belles of Clanton of fifty years ago, were entertained at a New Year's Party at the home of Mrs. Mallie White, with Mrs. H. T. Pipes, and Mrs. P. T. Hinkle, as joint hostesses.

This was an all-day affair for these members of the popular young social set of Clanton of fifty years ago, and the day was spent in exchanging amusing stories of by-gone days. At the noon hour a delicious dinner was served to the guests, all of whom have reached their seventieth year, and have lived the greater part of their lives as residents of Clanton.

The guests included Mrs. Glennie Phillips, Mrs. Laura White, Mrs. C. V. Heath, Mrs. Josephine Askins, Mrs. Hugh Foshee, Miss Molly Hannon, Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer, and Mrs. Mollie Mullins.

Judge Lloyd Tate Takes Smoot's Place

Judge F. Lloyd Tate, of Wetumpka was appointed Tuesday by Governor Miller to fill the unexpired term of Judge George F. Smoot, who died recently, as judge of the 19th judicial circuit, composed of the counties of Chilton, Autauga and Elmore.

Judge Tate is well known throughout this section of the state, and has been practicing law in Wetumpka for sometime. He was at one time attorney general of Alabama.

J. B. ATKINSON POSSIBLE CANDIDATE FOR JUDGESHIP

Rumors and comments from various sources bring out the name of Hon. J. B. Atkinson, attorney of Clanton, as a possible candidate for the place as Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, comprising the counties of Chilton, Elmore, and Autauga in the coming election.

Whether Mr. Atkinson will seek the office is not known as he has not stated his opinion on the matter, while friends have asked him to consider it.

SUNBEAMS TO MEET AT BAPTIST CHURCH FRIDAY

The Sunbeams of Clanton are requested to meet on Friday afternoon, of this week, at the Baptist church, at three o'clock. Those who are between the ages of three years and nine years, who wish to become members of the Sunbeams are invited to come also, according to Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, who is leader.

CHAS. E. WILSON MARRIES MISS CARRIE JEROME TODD

"Who Plugged The Lock On The Fire House Door" Is Song Rendered By Vol. Firemen

To the tune of "Who Broke the lock on the hen house door", the volunteer firemen of Clanton are probably saying, "Who Plugged the lock on the fire house door?"

The large red siren atop the Walker Building in Clanton lets go its chilling scream in the dead of night. Off in the distance several blocks can be seen smoke and flames leaping skyward. The volunteer firemen jump from bed, pull on trousers, shirts, unionalls or what have you, and dash to the warehouse where the ever-ready "big-boy" truck awaits their touch to answer the alarm. Someone grabs the lock on the door, tries to insert a key. Then a few words unheard of in books of some kinds. The lock is plugged with small bits of wood and has to be broken off.

That is something about like what has occurred in Clanton twice, according to information from firemen, and much delay in reaching the scenes of fires, is caused the firemen. That in time, it is understood, causes criticism. It was also understood that at a recent fire the lock contained bits of wood in the key-hole.

It is stated that possibly children, playing around the firehouse, and curious about the truck, with its bright colors, push the small sticks into the lock. That causes several minutes delay, and citizens are asked to watch this item as a matter of aiding the firemen to give of their best service.

FIREMEN ENTERTAINED AT BANQUET NEW YEAR'S EVE

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department of Clanton were entertained on New Year's Eve night at a supper, given at Matt's Lunch Shoppe. Funds from fighting a fire on Christmas Day were used to pay for this entertainment, the result of a tie between two groups of the firemen in an attendance contest on practice nights.

Following the supper at the lunch shop, the firemen with several guests, were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Ware, where they enjoyed themselves, until after the old year went out and the new year arrived.

DEMOCRATIC POSSIBILITIES BOTHER G. O. P.

National Affairs Cause Question Of Hoover's Victory Chance

Press reports from Washington and other places during the past few days in regard to affairs at the nation's capital, present and future, apparently show that the Democratic majority is making headway. Following are excerpts from various press statements from over the country.

A Washington press report stated that Gov. Pinchot, Pennsylvania, whose name is linked with speculation on Republican presidential possibilities, denounced the Hoover relief program as being "vicious." The Senate voted Monday to take 40,000,000 bushels of wheat from the Farm Board's bulging bins and distribute them to the needy, an idea apparently firmly opposed by the President.

Mr. Pinchot, the Republican governor, is reported as saying, in regard to the Hoover relief plan, "It is vicious. It takes money from the little fellow. It does not take it from the big fellow. It is an attempt to get by without raising taxes and making the big fellow come in and share the load."

Another press statement of January 4 stated that the Democratic majority in the House slashed the President's budgets approximately $13,443,900. This budget included items such as funds for remodeling buildings, federal aid

Fiddlers Convention At Thomas Jr. High

Announcement was made this week to the effect that there will be a fiddlers convention at the Thomas Junior High School on Friday night, January 15th.

In connection with the contest between fiddlers who will be present, and the valuable prizes to be awarded, there will be other attractions. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents singles, man and wife 25c, a young lady with an escort, 25c. Everybody is invited to attend, and especially are fiddlers urged to be present.

LUCY ELLEN MIMS DIED AT HOME LAST MONDAY

Miss Lucy Ellen Mims, age 41, died at her home, southeast of Coopers last Monday. Funeral services were held on the following Tuesday, at Corinth, with the Rev. J. D. Hughes conducting the rites. Interment followed in the Corinth cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge. She is survived by her father, four brothers, three sisters and other relatives.

HALEYVILLE EDITOR IS RECENT VISITOR HERE

Among the out-of-town visitors to Clanton during the past several days was E. P. Lakeman, of Haleyville, Ala. Mr. Lakeman is editor of The Advertiser-Journal, at Haleyville, one of the best weekly newspapers in the state, and whose editorial comments are frequently reproduced by other newspapers.

Mr. Lakeman was visiting his brother who resides at Lay Dam.

MISS EDNA BRYAN OF RHINE, GA., NOW RESIDING HERE

Miss Edna Bryan, of Rhine, Ga., in Dodge County, arrived in Clanton recently, where she will make her home for sometime. Miss Bryan is a niece of T. W. Bryan, and will be employed in his office while in Clanton.

FIDDLERS HAVE A BIG TIME AT CONVENTION

Sponsored By American Legion Last Thurs. Night At Courthouse

The American Legion fiddlers convention at the courthouse last Thursday night was a grand success from every standpoint. There was a capacity attendance, a full list of fiddlers and musicians, and everybody had a mighty good time. The entertainment was delightful.

The following prizes were awarded to musicians in the order named:

1. I. H. Howell, $5 in cash.
2. W. H. Dennison, $2.50 in cash.
3. R. A. Johnson, a sack of flour.

J. C. PAGE RECOVERS STOLEN CAR AND JEWELRY IN MONTG.

During the absence from their home, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page were victims of burglars last week, who took a Ford car, valuable rings and other jewelry from the Page home in Clanton.

However, the burglars were not long in falling into the hands of the law, when they were apprehended in Montgomery and the jewelry and car were recovered. Along with the loot taken from Clanton by the three youths, none past twenty years of age, was other valuables they had stolen from other places, it was stated. One of the youths gave considerable trouble before he was finally placed in the Montgomery jail.

Berry Growers To Meet Here Friday

A meeting of the members of the Mulberry Valley Truck Growers Association, headquarters at Maplesville, has been called for tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock by County Agent Stapp, according to an announcement made Tuesday.

The meeting will be held at the County Agent's office, and those attending will visit several nearby strawberry patches to discuss the setting and fertilizing of the berry crops. It is expected that sixty or more farmers of the Maplesville district will attend this meeting.

"UNCLE DOCK" HENLEY DIED SATURDAY AT HIS HOME

One of Chilton County's old timers passed away at the home of his grandson in the Mt. Nebo community last Saturday morning. This was Joshua West Henley, well known here as "Uncle Dock," and a Confederate veteran. He was 84 years old.

Funeral services were held last Sunday morning at Pleasant Grove, conducted by the Rev. F. A. Gibson, assisted by Rev. Edwards and Rev. W. S. Cox. Interment followed in that cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

Culpepper-Edwards Marriage Solemnized

A marriage uniting two popular young people of Clanton took place last Thursday, New Year's Eve, when Miss Eunice Edwards became the bride of Mr. Luther Culpepper. The marriage came as somewhat of a surprise to the many friends of the couple and was quietly solemnized at the home of the Rev. J. W. Jones, in Thorsby.

Mrs. Culpepper is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren Edwards, who reside north of Clanton. She has attended the Chilton County High School, where she was classed as a popular member of her classes.

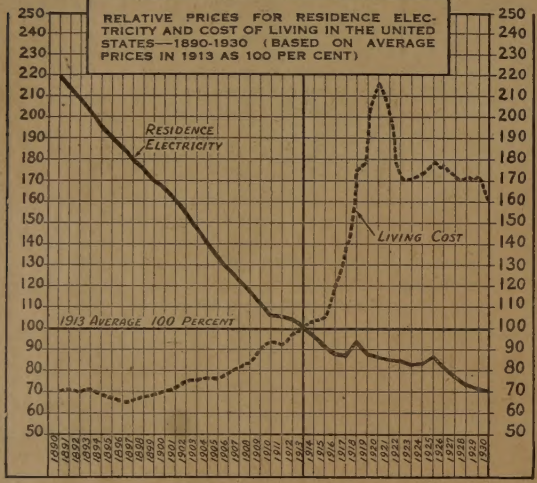
Mr. Culpepper, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Culpepper of Clanton, is one of the best liked young men in Clanton. He is a graduate of the local high school, and has held a position with Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers for sometime. After a short wedding trip, the young couple returned to Clanton where they will make their home, and where Mr. Culpepper will remain connected with Clanton Motors. The News joins the many friends of this couple in wishing them happiness in the years to come.

Commodity Prices Are Lower!

"Why Not Cheaper Electricity?"

A Fair Question — A Fair Answer

THAT the average rates for residence electricity have steadily declined has not occurred to the average citizen. The following interesting chart compares average living costs with the average rates for domestic electricity throughout the nation during the 40 year period ending 1930.



Taking the year 1913 as 100% and following the dotted (Living Cost) line, beginning in the year 1890 at 70%, there was a continued advance up to 218% followed by a decline to 160% for the year 1930. Living costs have RISEN 60% above 1913.

To trace out the average cost of residential electric service along the solid line one finds a striking contrast. Electricity costs have declined from 218% in 1890 to 70% for the year 1930. Electricity costs in the home have FALLEN 30% under 1913.

In the territory served directly with electricity by this Company, the average rate for residential service has declined 37.1% during the past 5 years. Living costs for the nation have declined approximately 10% during the same period.

A FAMOUS BATTLE FLAG

One of the South's most famous battle flags is now in the Confederate museum in Richmond, to which it was presented by the family of the late Colonel Charles T. Loehr, historian of the First Virginia regiment, to which the flag belonged.

The women of Richmond made the flag out of strips of silk cut from their dresses, and it had its baptism of fire at Bull Run. It led the First Virginia in many battles, and saw its last service on the field at Gettysburg, where the regiment formed a part of Pickett's division in its ill-fated charge, one of the most desperate in military history, whose failure lost the battle and perhaps the war.

Of the regiment's plight at the close of the battle Colonel Loehr wrote: "The color guard is dead and the color sergeant has lost his arm: our colonel lies dying on the field, and the regiment lost 120 men out of about 160 who went into the charge."

It is fitting that the famous flag should be added to other priceless relics in the Confederate museum, which are viewed with reverence by many thousands of visitors from North and South alike.

CHEVROLET OCCUPIES PLACE OF HONOR AT AUTO SHOW

When the doors open Saturday to the National Automobile Show in Grand Central Palace, New York, Chevrolet will occupy the position of honor on the show floor for the fifth consecutive year.

Each year the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce awards first place at the national shows to the member company which has done the largest dollar volume of business in the previous 12 months.

The award is much coveted in the industry, because in addition to the distinction it conveys it also carries with it the right to first choice of exhibition space at the national shows in New York and Chicago.

Chevrolet first achieved the position of honor in 1928. Since then the company has consistently maintained its leadership.

Letters To The Editor

JACKSON REPLIES

Dear Editor Chilton County News:

Will you again be so kind as to give me space to come before the readers of your good paper with the same text? When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice, but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn.

It was well said in The Union-Banner last week: That the principal thing that was the matter with European nations today is Uncle Sam is unable to lend 'em any more money. Is it not a fact that our nation has loaned to sixteen foreign nations many billions of dollars which were collected from the people of this country in taxes and revenue? And now these nations say they are not able to pay this money back to our government, and some of our rulers are in favor of cancelling these loans.

Will righteous rulers collect billions of dollars in taxes and revenue from the people of our country and give it to foreign nations and thus cause a deficit in our treasury of billions of dollars, and then put more billions of taxes and revenue on a nation that is now burdened down with taxes and revenue? Let the reader answer.

Well, just a word to Mr. Charles Cooper. I think you took a bark at the moon before your chain was pulled, in your front page double column box car letter head lines in The Union-Banner of last week, in which you criticized Mr. Roper and myself. I think if you will read my letter again, which was in both The Union-Banner and Chilton County News, and read with a better understanding you will find that it had no reference to our county officials as being rulers. I think we have some good county officials, but do not think they could have much to do with the present depression.

But I do think some of them are responsible for our county's high taxes, and are guilty of inefficiency and wicked service. Have you ever read in our county papers where some of our officials were accused of discriminating against the little school children in favor of the large children in transporting large ones to and from school, and letting the little ones walk? Have you ever read in former articles of our county papers where our Representative was asked whether or not he voted to pay themselves about twenty thousand dollars for nine days they did not serve, and the question was never answered.

Mr. Cooper, have you noticed how some of our officials have been kicking through our county papers against high taxes? Now who is responsible for our high taxes? The State or our County? The State gets 65c tax out of every one hundred dollars of taxable property, and our county gets $1.35 out of the same amount of property. Will not the appropriations which the State makes to Chilton County amount to about as much as the State tax does which Chilton county tax payers pay to the state. Now, isn't it a fact that Chilton County and Chilton County officials are getting the benefit of the tax payer's money of Chilton County? It was nice indeed for our commissioners to exempt all who were subject to pay road tax last year and this year. But we old fellows who are too old to pay road tax have to pay the special road tax. Tell me how can our commissioners do such business without discriminating. Weren't we old fellows just as much entitled to an exemption on the special road tax as was the younger fellow his road tax?

Mr. Cooper, unless you are getting pretty good pay for doing the other fellow's barking, you had better let him do his own barking. I think there will be some mighty hard barking done before this year is out.

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

FROM J. C. EDWARDS

Editor, Chilton County News:

"See I have set before thee, this day life and good, and death and evil."—(Deut. 30:15). The Israelites by the terms of their covenant were promised life if they would obey God's law, and were told that death would follow a deliberate violation thereof. The only way creatures can possess and hold eternal life is to know and obey God. By departing from their covenant the Israelites were destroying their opportunity for life. The name and word of God were involved, and for their good, God would keep before them that He is the only true God and giver of life. His action in bringing evil upon the Israelites was not selfish, but was because of his love for them and for the upholding of His word and name. He would have them know that they could not follow or worship the Devil and receive that which they so much desired, namely, life and happiness.

So we should be glad that Christ in due time died for the ungodly (Rom. 5:6) and that Jesus is the light and in Him was life and the life was the light of men (John 1:4). God sent His beloved son into this world of darkness and He was the light of the world. His lifeblood was poured out that men might see the light and live and that His Father's name might be glorified. He was raised from the dead and brought life and immortality to light. God gave His word that His beloved son would again come in power and glory, set up His kingdom, and afford all men the opportunity to see the light and to be restored and to live on the earth, that then the name and word of God should be vindicated. That time is at hand. Christ is placed upon His throne, and he then comes to His temple in the brightness of His glory. His shining shall never be denied. In due time the light shall illuminate all the living and the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of Jehovah's glory as the waters cover the sea.

I enjoy reading the News.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel loungers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Although Peter was furiously angry, highly humiliated, and blaming Rowena for everything, he was kind at heart and could not resist the plaintive pathos in her voice, usually so crisp and cool.

"Good night, Rowena," he said more pleasantly than she had any right to expect. "Don't worry. Everything'll be all right."

After a sleepless night Peter was down in the lobby at an unbelievably early hour. But early as it was, he did not precede the interested smiles and stares of the day staff which had replaced the night workers—clerks, telephone operators and elevator boys.

Even at that unreasonable hour there were loungers in the lobby. And each and every one of them, and even the head waitress smiling in the door of the dining-room, knew all about the young New Yorkers married the day before in Denver who demanded rooms on separate floors. Confusion stung his face with burning red.

He went up-stairs, walked up to Rowena's room and knocked sharply.

"Yes—who?" called Rowena in a bright voice that had obviously been schooled to register good nature in the face of adversity.

"Me," he answered surlily. "Chuck your things into your bag and let's get out of here."

"How about breakfast?"

"The hell with breakfast."

"O. K. by me," called Rowena, in the maddening voice of one who has stoutly enjoined one's inner soul to smiles and sweetness. And indeed even in her sleep Rowena had been reminding herself that she must be very patient with Peter for a few days, as he was apt to be just the least bit in the world cross about the state of affairs.

Within an hour they were hurling the dust of Cheyenne from the wheels of the roadster and as soon as the last outpost of the city lay buried in the past Peter pulled off to the side of the road and drew up to a grinding stop. Then he turned to Rowena and his was not the look of a newly married man.

"Well, you see what fools we made of ourselves," he began. "I hope you're satisfied."

"I'm terribly sorry," said Rowena humbly. "I feel just wretchedly about everything. But I couldn't possibly foresee such awful complications, now could I, Peter? What experience have I had with husbands and hotel registers and such monstrosities?"

"We'll just have to make the best of a suite or adjoining rooms hereafter," said Peter more kindly. "It's this demanding separate floors that makes them give us the razzberry."

"But we can't have connecting rooms, Peter," protested Rowena unhappily. "We just can't. We have to be terribly careful about things like that or we can't get it annulled. Don't you see, Peter, if we stay in adjoining rooms clear across the country, nobody in the world is going to believe we—we really did—stay in adjoining rooms."

"Then we'll have to get a divorce instead of an annulment. I am not going to make a fool of myself like that again."

"But we can't get a divorce in New York," protested Rowena. "I wrote a story about that once—I know how the laws are. One of us would have to go to Reno or Paris to get it and it would take every cent of money we can save on the whole trip to pay for the divorce. And what good would that be to anybody?"

"I'll give you grounds to get it right in New York," said Peter grimly. "I'm desperate."

"That's like you. Peter," said Rowena impatiently. "Thinking only of yourself as usual.—Well, don't you think for a minute that I'm going to get a divorce in New York. I'm not going to be made a fool of there before all my friends."

"What do you mean—made a fool of?" Peter demanded.

"Why, having everybody think I'm so no-good I can't hang on to a husband for two months!—No, if it comes to that, I'll give you grounds."

"You'll what?"

"Give you grounds for a divorce."

"What grounds?"

"The same ground you so magnanimously offered me."

"Rowena, are you crazy? A woman can't do a thing like that. Why, it—it would ruin you. You're crazy!"

"Oh, am I? Well, let me tell you one thing, Mr. Peter Blande! I'd rather have my friends think I stepped out on you two months after our marriage than that I couldn't keep you from stepping out on me. It's much more flattering, I assure you"

"You would, Rowena, I honestly believe you would. You're just that dumb," said Peter. "However, let's not fight over getting the divorce today. The thing to agree on now is that we've got to put up with rooms adjoining or ensuite and say no more about separate floors."

"If you're too proud to ask for separate floors, I'll do it," said Rowena. "I'd rather be embarrassed before a strange hotel clerk than be the laughing stock of my own friends."

"Yes, that would do me a lot of good, wouldn't it?" demanded Peter. "That would certainly save my face! To have my wife sail up to the desk and register for me and ask for rooms on separate floors. Oh, yes, that would make everything fine and dandy."

"I'm not your wife," stormed owena.

"No, thank God."

"I'm—I just happen to be married to you—by accident. A—a sort of detour.

"Worse luck," growled Peter.

Rowena opened the door and sprang out.

"What are you going to do? Walk to Yellowstone?"

"I am going," said Rowena coldly, "to retire in peace to my rumble seat."

"Rowena, I ask you, don't be any more ridiculous than usual," he pleaded. "How's it going to look—only two of us in a roadster and you riding in the rumble seat in this boiling hot sun?"

"I'm above worrying about how things look," said Rowena. "I'd rather be bounced and bruised and blistered in the rumble seat than insulted in—in the lap of luxury."

She raised the umbrella with a vicious little cleck of the snap, adjusted the cushions about her slender body, and rode the rumble in solemn grandeur, leaving Peter to fume futilely alone in front.

It was about the hour of sunset when a sudden shadow blackened the west, a sudden cool breeze touched their faces.

"They must be having showers in the mountains," said Peter.

But Rowena, deep in a painful sleep of complete exhaustion, did not answer.

It was more than showers they were having in the mountains—it was cloudbursts, one after the other in torrential downpour, and in less time than it took for the cooling breeze to sweep down the plain with refreshment for their tired faces, every dry creek bed and parched arroyo that led from the hot mountains to the burning plains was flooded with rushing water from the heights.

He guided the little roadster along the yellow mesa road toward another of the narrow rocky gorges through which they had been passing at intervals all day long. The roar in his ears grew louder, closer. Suddenly it sounded ominous and threatening. Peter looked to the west and was amazed to see a solid wall of water nearly as high as the car sweeping down the little canyon.

Instinctively his foot pressed the accelerator. The roaring wall of water was close but the arroyo itself was closer—a scant few feet away—and in a few minutes the onrushing river would render it impassable for cars. The car leaped forward down the steep slope into the arroyo. But the hungry water, as if jealous of this boldness, roared down upon them. The car swung powerless beneath his hand, slip away from the road and the river tossed it lightly down-stream and drove it securely into a crevice among the rocks.

Rowena, suddenly aroused from her exhausted sleep, had started up in terror at sight and sound of the torrential river bearing down upon them. Prompted by an innate impulse she struggled quickly up to the seat of the rumble, intending to jump, but the car was flung violently from beneath her and cheated of her insecure foothold she fell headlong, face downward, in the icy water.

Peter, stunned by the unexpected onslaught of water, was startled to action at sight of Rowena whipped helpless against the rocks by the irresistible flood.

"You little fool—what did you jump for?" he shouted, but even as he spoke he was out of the car and in less than a moment had her firmly in his arm. Slowly he drew her back until they had the support of the car behind them against the cold pressure of the water.

"I—I didn't!" she shouted as soon as she recovered her breath. "Fell!"

"Sorry!" roared Peter regretfully. "My fault! Shouldn't have tried it!—No good racing a river!"

"Cheerio!" comforted Rowena loudly. "You nearly made it!"

Others cars pulled up beside the newborn river, and the occupants lent their willing assistance in getting Peter and Rowena safely up on shore. And Peter, against the advice of the tourists and the frightened orders of Rowena, went immediately back to the car for their bags.

"All the clothes we've got," he explained cheerfully. "They're important."

Fortunately the bags were not yet soaked through and except for a few articles on top the contents were dry. Rowena and Peter, soaking wet. hurriedly got out dry clothes and then paused abruptly, regarding both the crowd and each other with timorous hesitancy.

"I'll have my tent up in a jiffy," said a big red-faced Kansas farmer with loud kindliness. "River'll be down by morning, but we'll all have to pitch camp here to-night. Give a hand there, youngster."

And before he had finished announcing his kind intentions he had raised a diminutive tent and extended its hospitality to the dripping pair.

"Key to the city, lady and gent," he said with a great laugh.

Peter made a hasty motion to Rowena who slipped quickly inside and dropped the flap.

"Your wife, I take it," said the red-faced Kansas with a puzzled air.

"Yes," said Peter. "But—the tent isn't so very big—and we're both so terribly wet—and besides—I want to have another look at the car. I don't want it carried off down the canyon."

"Don't you worry about that car, brother. That there car is put for keeps. At least till the rive goes down."

Other cars pulled up and their occupants joined the enforced camp on the river bank. They put up tents and staked out claims here and there. Children were set to gathering stones and sticks for a fireplace.

All together they ate impromptu supper on the plains, sitting in a cluster of friendly groups about the fire, and afterwards as the darkness fell and the stars lit the black sky over the black prairie, they gathered closer and talked. Some sang, and the men smoked. And presently by twos or by families they crept away to their separate camps for the night.

"Here's an old mattress you can use," said the Kansas farmer, tossing it across to Peter. "We've got another one. It's not very big but you're not a very big family."

Fairview News

This community was saddened Saturday morning by the death of J. W. Henley, familiarly known as "Uncle Dock" an old Confederate veteran. He was liked by all who knew him. He was sick only a few hours—taken about five o'clock Friday afternoon and died at one o'clock Saturday morning.

Funeral was held at Pleasant Grove church Sunday at evelen o'clock. Rev. F. A. Gibson conducted, assisted by Rev. G. W. Stewart and Rev. W. S. Cox, with Martin in charge. The American Legion Post No. 6 acted as pallbearers. They were Messrs. J. E. Gore, A. L. Robinson, E. W. Clinner, G. T. Tippett, V. C. McKee, J. W. Cox, and a number of others whom we failed to get their names.

Uncle Dock will be missed by his many friends for he was indeed a loyal friend and father and grandfather. His place can not be filled, but the Lord's will be done. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh, blessed be the name of the Lord.

A FRIEND.

The many friends of Mrs. G. M. Durbin will be glad to know that she is up again.

Mr. Ulysses Foshee came home Saturday night from Ft. Baray, N. C. to visit his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Foshee. He is with the U. S. army.

Miss Margaret Owen was the guest of Miss Myrtle Henley last week.

Miss Gracie Culp spent the night with Miss Jewel Foshee Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Keen and children of the Shiloh community attended the funeral of Uncle Dock Henley Sunday.

Miss Myra Moore went back to school Sunday after spending the holidays with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Moore.

Mrs. J. N. McKee was the guest of Mrs. V. C. and little Martha Evelyn McKee.

The surprise party at Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Cox's last Thursday night was enjoyed by a large crowd: Misses Pauline and Edna Durbin, Louise, Ruth, Willie B., June and Sallie Joe Cox, Myrtle Henley, Margaret Owen, Inez McKee, Myree Buzbee, Marietta Foshee, Willie Nell Owen, Myra Moore, Messrs. Comer, Woodrow and Marvin Durbin, Woodrow, Elbert H. and H. L. Mims, Allen and Clyde Foshee, Cecil McKee, Reedie Scott, Carlos Owen, Odene DeLoach, J. D. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Hannon Owen and little daughter, Evelyn.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends who rendered us aid and assistance during illness and death of our father and grandfather, J. W. Henley. May God's richest blessings be your reward for courtesy shown us during this sad hour.

—S. A. Henley and Family, W. L. Henley and Family.

A Fair Question --- A Fair Answer

The question is "Commodity Prices Are Lower, Why Not Cheaper Electricity?" An ad appearing in this issue of this newspaper tends to give the answer to that question, from the Alabama Power Company.

If the information given in this advertisement is correct, and it has no reason not to be, then it is a fair answer, and electricity rates are considerably lower than ever before. The chart given in this advertisement shows a continuous decline in residence electricity rates, showing while living costs have risen sixty percent. above the year 1913, electricity costs in the home have fallen thirty percent. under 1913.

Read All of This or None

It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

In France, the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely; in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which, happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events.

Of our troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously to despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

Good friends—let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrowed their homes may be; who have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God, to rely upon; and whoever shows himself truly a God-fearing man now, by helping wherever and however he can, will be as blessed and beloved as a great light in darkness.

Now comes the remarkable fact. What you have just read was not written yesterday, about the condition of today—but is a verbatim reprint of an editorial which appeared in Harper's Weekly on October 10, 1857.

July of that year was normal. September marked the beginning of depression. This editorial appeared in October. Seventeen months later, in March of 1859, business was back at normal again.

"Of our own troubles no man can see the end." They said it in 1857, and it has been said many times, before and since. Depressions have occurred in American business since the Revolutionary war, and every one has looked black, and seemed unending. Every one has been followed by recovery—and prosperity.

Let's not take things too seriously this year. Of course we folks here in this county cannot do much with the fellows in the government seats right now, but we can see to it that our county walks the straight line as well as possible under conditions. And then when the time comes according to law, that gives us an opportunity to do something with the government fellows, we can voice our sentiments at the polls.

If you don't like what's going on now, just remember that the law gives each citizen who is a qualified voter, the right to vote as he wishes.

o-o-o-o

But while you are thinking about those things, it might do well to think about the coming farming season. Think back over the past year and see if you made any mistakes. Then try to avoid the same mistakes this year. Just because you made some failures last year is no reason why you shouldn't try it again this year. By making mistakes is one way of learning things.

Every individual has the opportunity to better his or her own condition, regardless of what others may or may not do.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"I sang a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For, who hath the power of sight so strong,
That one can follow the flight of a song?"
—Apologies to Longfellow for not quoting accurately.

And in years after, according to the poet, the song was found "From beginning to end in the heart of a friend." It is not given that we know the depth of our influence. With editors, we never know from what source our songs will be echoed. A short time ago this newspaper published a story of one of our citizens, and within a very short time it was gratifying to behold the story reproduced in the columns of a sales bulletin in the far East.

Whereupon, we conclude that, since this paper reaches and is read in a large territory, one could not over estimate the returns that might accrue from wise advertising. It pays to advertise.

Now it looks like Mr. Hoover's problem is to find some man who can do something to save the country, and not steal the show and get the credit for doing it.

A certain medical report states that insanity in the country is decreasing. Now, I don't doubt that, because now perhaps, many people who were considered crazy several years ago, can smile and say, "I told you so,"

That reminds me of that experience when a certain young man started an affair with a certain small brunette, down state, on the Ridge, and was warned it was dangerous. Now it is "I told you so." Whatta life.

Then there are a lot of people who bought stocks and securities last year and the year before that, wondering now if they understand the English language when it is in print, etc.

Those fellows who bought stock in certain grapes seemed to have forgotten at the time that grapes will sour if a person is not careful.

Now that they think they have found the mummy of the assassin of President Lincoln, I wonder if that will necessitate an investigation by the government, with a trial and sentence.

I've found it is the hardest thing in the world to give the people what they want. That is due to two reasons—I don't know what they want and they don't know what they want.

And now the latest thing in jewelry for the women is to have a necklace made of their wedding rings.

This is Leap Year. However, that doesn't mean anything in this life we are living now. Every year seems to be Leap Year so far as the members of the fairer and warmer sex are concerned. Nope, I'm not speaking from experience, just merely from the experience of several young men round town.

Just heard the other day, some comments on the comments on dancing that once appeared in this column. And to those persons who made those comments, I'll just ease their minds by saying that I'm still not sold on the idea.

However, my opinions and all the fuss I made, don't seem to have had any effect, because now there is going to be a dancing school conducted in Clanton, for grown-ups and kids. Not only that but one can get private lessons. Now that might interest me, but won't know until I've seen the instructor, I've heard it was a lady.

Did you ever stop to compare the things that happen on the night of New Year's Eve now, with those nights of ten years ago. Nowadays merchants can go to bed on that one night of the year, feeling perfectly safe about their signs, gates, and garbage cans, etc.

Ole pal, ole pal, ole boy. By gum, Luke, you really pulled one over me when you took and got yourself a wife the other day. I've been betting and watching others, but you were one who I thought was safe from such dangers. Then you go and just get all pulled in. Well, anyway, you saved the young lady the trouble of waiting until Leap Year, and that was considerate of you. Anyway, here's wishing you a lot of good luck and happiness during the years to come. Congratulations to you both.

And here comes Dooker Pooker, the International Authority on the subject of wimmin, with a criticism on the judgment of the ed about an article in C. G. N. The following appeared in The Coal Bin, in Birmingham News the other night. I hope to be able to throw some light on the matter for Dooker right away:

AN ULTIMATUM TO JANE ANNE

"Chief: All of us have been amusingly amused at the innocuous ignorance of that corn-fed monstrosity which sleepeth with her head, if any, in Winston and her corns in Walker County, in the treatment of subjects which she has discussed in The Bin. But I believe that she is qualified to enlighten us about a matter that is troubling us.

"Now, Chief, one of our customers is in great danger. Recently the editor of The Chilton County News (C. G. N.) reported a party which was gave by a mommer in celebration of her daughter's birthday, which said editor said was her 14th. While he may, or may not, have been safe in this case, I'll betcha that if, 10 years from now, the gal is gave another birthday party and said editor announces it her 24th birthdy, he will have his head bit off, or maybe his eyeball snatched out, or something.

"Now, Chief, what we must learn, pro the bono of said editor, is: What age does a gal attain when she becomes ashamed of it and starts applyin' a discount, said discount incresing with increased age? And is there any way in the world of determinin' just how old a gal, say 14 years old on Jan. 15, 1931, will be on Jan. 15, 1951?

"I'm afraid said editor may have overlooked that in reporting a daughter's age; he enables the public to closely approximate the mommer's age, and when he does that he begins treadin' on dynamite.

"Now, Chief, I've tried always to be nice to the wimmin, and now I want them to reciprocate and send in their confessions, outlinin' their system of age computation. And I want Jane Anne to lead the way. In fact, I so order.—DOOKER POOKER."

Letters To The Editor

THANKS, MR. WHITE

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 1, 1932.

Editor, Chilton County News:

I am handing to you here attached check for $1.00 to protect my paper for 1932. I am taking advantage of your special offer that I noticed in your paper.

Thanking you kindly, and I trust that 1932 will be the banner year for the News. With the financial conditions as they are it's wonderful that you can get out such a paper, and we should all feel very proud of same.

Yours very truly,
M. L. WHITE.

JUDGE GEO. F. SMOOT

Editor, Chilton County News:

The sincere bereavement over the passing of Hon. George F. Smoot, Circuit Judge, is certainly evident. We cannot escape the realization that the death of a man of such caliber makes us poorer indeed. And to us this loss seems most immediate.

Everyone who came within the province of his Judicial Domain was impressed by his official ability and integrity. All who enjoyed his personal acquaintance and friendship were influenced by his sterling qualities as a genuine gentleman. All the language of praise ever written in eulogy of human character might aptly be restated among these lines. Is there a man who did not respect and admire him?

I am not content with the mere utterance of a passing word of praise. My admiration of such men prompts me to give a more vivid and lasting expression. Whatever is said here cannot adequately and permanently write him as great as he was. His unimpeachable character and ability entitles him to live forever in our memory, so that we might better emulate his unique attributes. On many occasions I have stated the thought and substance of what has been said here. And now such words must necessarily be convincing.

Revival Here Is Drawing Record Crowds With Interest

of the activities in connection with the evangelist are as follows:

Music: Percy Pitts, Evan Parrish, Mrs. Barney Roberts and Miss Mary Ellis. Ushers: J. B. Atkinson, H. T. Pipes, and W. H. Sartor. Delegations: B. Lawrence, Miss Madge Scarborough and C. E. Stapp. Young People: Miss Emma Sue Morris, Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, Mrs. C. D. Thomas and Miss Madelyn Orr.

Treasurer: E. C. Evans. Mothers Day Committee: W. H. Sartor, and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch. Preaching Trip Evangelist Miller, Dr. Haskew and Dr. Ezell. Schools: Prof Warr.

Evangelist Miller took for his subject on Sunday evening "The Price of Power." He said in part, "The greatest need of the church today is Power. There have been times in the past when with far less numbers the church had far greater power in attracting a lost world.. And this is because so many are worshiping Idols just as they did in the days of Belshazzar. People are worshiping the Automobile, the Movie and the Radio and turning their back on the church.

"No nation had ever survived a turning away from God and never will. Present day archeologists are digging up buried cities which for many centuries have been hidden under the dust, of Nations once just as powerful and prosperous as this United States."

On Monday morning at eight o'clock Evangelist Miller spoke to the Clanton High School on the invitation of Prof. Warr, and a very enthusiastic service was held. The students greeted him with cheers and spirited singing of the high school songs, after which Dr. Miller gave them a much appreciated message. It was arranged that they will come to the revival on Thursday evening in delegation. The Court room will be decorated in high school colors and seats reserved for them as the special guests of honor. A great time is expected. The evangelist will preach a special sermon for them.

On Monday afternoon Dr. Miller visited many of the business men of the city and was much pleased with his cordial reception. In his early life he was a business man himself, having been purchasing agent for the Studebaker Co., of South Bend, Ind. He felt the call to preach the Gospel and cut loose and has won great success in the field of evangelism.

On Monday night another large audience was present and Mr. Pitts with his choir delighted everybody with another fine Community singing.

Dr. Miller took for his subject "Christ Crowded Out" from the story of Bethlehem and drew many striking comparisons and gave many very impressive illustrations of how people are crowding Jesus out of hotels, politics, business, society, homes, education and pleasures.

He said in part, "The Hotel landlord at Bethlehem had no room for Jesus in His first night on earth because he did not recognize who it was seeking admittance. The world at large is crowding Him out now for the same reason. The greatest advertisement for the best hotel in America would be to have the honor of entertaining Jesus as a guest in that hotel. People from all quarters of the earth would flock to any hotel that had entertained the Christ of Gallilee. You never heard of Bethlehem before Jesus was there and then it became the most famous place in the whole world. The most famous place in Alabama now is where Jesus is passing by. There is nothing that ever came to Clanton that will advertise your town as favorably and be as valuable to your business interests and your real estate values as a great soul winning revival where Jesus is meeting and saving a host of people. Let it be known that you are entertaining Jesus of Nazareth in your town and the fame of your city wil lsweep the whole country.

"Our Nation became the most powerful Nation on earth only because our forefather solemnized the marriage of Religion and Liberty and founded it on the Eternal word of God and we will only prosper as a Nation so long as we give Christ the proper place in our National policies. Crowd Jesus out of politics and we are doomed.

"The greatest asset in any man's business is a partnership with Christ.

"The modern social set with its froth, sham, Jazz and gambling parties don't have much room for Jesus, but they are not happy. After you have gone the limit in the devil's program of so-called pleasure your heart is just as empty as ever. It's like the apples of Sodom, ful lof ashes and bitterness. Jesus wants everyone happy and Christian people are always the happiest people. Any pleasure that crowds Jesus out is a ghastly fiction. One day in pleasure as a Christian is worth more than a lifetime of chasing the rainbows of worldly and sinful pleasure.

"If I had a dozen children I would never send one of them to a college or university where Jesus is crowded off the faculty. I thank God for your public school system in Alabama, where the Bible is read and the voice of prayer is heard. Many states are not so fortunate or do not have that much good sense. You have wonderfully fine teachers."

On Tuesday morning Prof. Warr and Evangelist Miller visited the schools of Thorsby and Jemison where they addressed both the High School students and the grade school children and fine meetings were held in each case and the faculty delighted with the talks.

On Tuesday night, which was a very stormy night, a good attendance again came to hear the evangelist who spoke on the subject, "What Does the World Owe You?" taking his text from the story of Nehemiah, rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem.

He said in part, "All the world owes any man is an opportunity to do a great service for humanity and that debt will be paid to every man.

"Don't worry, Christian people, when there is opposition to a revival meeting. It is always the best evidence that the Holy Spirit is in the community for business and the devil is mad.

"The great obstacle to the progress of the church is not the booze gang, or the gamblers, but the indifferent, cold, croaking, chalk and vinegar church members who say 'it can't be done.'

"A man of determination who goes ahead in a good cause in spite of all opposition is the greatest man in this community and worth his weight in diamonds.

"The only right the church has to exist is to win the lost of this community and it is the business of the church as much as it is the business of your mills to make cloth."

Thorsby Institute News

Friday at chapel at Thorsby Institute Katheryn Foss, who was graduated in June and is now a Freshman at Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., sang three numbers. It seemed good to hear her sing once more.

Byron Bean, also a graduate in June and a Freshman at Piedmont, gave a short talk on his impressions of Piedmont. He is enjoying his life there very much, but still has a warm place in his heart for Thorsby Institute.

January 16 at seven-thirty the Helen Keller Literary Society of Thorsby Institute will give a Mexican and Indian Program. Part of it will be in costume. Readings, Spanish and Indian Music will be sung, and a "Cycle of Indian Life" in pantomine will be given. Everyone is invited. Admission 10 cents.

January 23 the first music recital this school year will be given. No admission will be charged. Everyone is invited.

Last Saturday night the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church held a measuring party at the Dining Hall. The height of each one who came was measured and he or she paid a cent for each foot of his or her height. After the measuring group games were played. Satsuma oranges were the refreshments. After these "Now the Day Is Over" was sung, followed by prayer by Rev. Joseph Each.

Mexico was the Missionary topic of Christian Endeavor Sunday night. Camilla Mae McCallum was the leader. Various talks were given on the geography and history, customs, etc., of Mexico. Pictures were passed around of various buildings, sculptures, street scenes, etc. These had been loaned by Mrs. F. P. Ensminger, Spanish teacher at Piedmont College. Mrs. Ensminger was not many months ago in Mexico where she acted as interpreter for an important conference held there by representative Americans to help America and Mexico understand each other better.

Dr. Miller, an evangelist, who is holding revival meetings in Clanton, spoke in chapel at the Thorsby Institute Tuesday morning.

Miss Ophelia Hayes returned to her home near Clanton last week end after spending several days with relatives in Birmingham.

Mt. Nebo League

Our Epworth League society gave a social Wednesday night, December 30, which proved to be a real success. Our society has been organized only a short time, but much interest is being shown by the members. We have been planning for sometime how we could raise enough money to put over the social. We decided we had worked long enough. So we took a small amount of money and bought eats necessary to supply the crowd, and most of our fun after all came under commands of the social leader, Miss Myrtle Durbin.

As for all the stunts that were pulled I cannot reveal them all, but "Trottie Pool" and Bernice Vance above all had a little contest seeing which could take tie, coat and vest off, and put them back on the quickest. Probably "Trottie" would have got the prize but his tie rolled from behind his collar.

Speaking for all excepting our "President," the fruit salad that was served was fine, but as I said our president, Mr. Delos Culp, I can't speak for him, because he couldn't find a place at the table!

On January 3, 1932 the singing society met here. The singing was not so fine as we hope to have in the future. The books are new and some of the singers did not have a book, but, the people of this place are enthusiastic and aim to prove their faith by their works.

Visitors were from several different communities. We appreciate your presence and help and cordially invite you all back again, every first Sunday.

Our hearts reach out in sympathy for Mr. Henley, our president, who was unable to take part in the singing on account of the recent death of his father. We pray that God will comfort the bereaved ones and that they will look forward to the happy day when there will be no more parting.

Dr. Williams was called upon to serve as president. He directed a song and prayer was led by Mr. G. W. Edwards. Directors for the afternoon were Dr. Williams, Mr. Cornelius Hand, Rev. L. A. Brown, Mr. Audrey Brown, Mr. Eugene Aldridge, Mr. Tom Wells and Mr. Reuben Devaughn. Organist was Miss Birdie Edwards. Dismissed in prayer by Mr. Jake Henley.

BIRDIE EDWARDS,
Secretary.

Hog Production Is Increasing

A marked increase in the production of hogs throughout the United States and in practically all the individual states, is shown by the Dec. 1 pig survey released by F. W. Gist, state and Federal agricultural statistician.

In Alabama, it is stated, the number of sows farrowed in the Fall of 1931 was 9.6 per cent more than in the Fall of 1930, and 28 per cent more than in the Spring of 1931, while the number of pigs saved in the Fall of 1931, in this State, was 12 per cent greater than in the Fall of the preceding year.

The average number of pigs saved per litter in the Fall of 1931 was 5.5, compared with 5.4 the previous Fall, and the same number in the Spring of this year. Increase in the size of the Fall pig crop of the United States was practically 20 per cent over that of 1930.

Sows bred or to be bred for spring farrowing in 1932 are 61 per cent greater than the number of sows farrowed in the spring of 1931, and this number represents 15 per cent of the total number of hogs over six months.

It is thought that this tendency toward expansion in hog production is the result of more plentiful feed as well as the desire to supplement low cash income with a production of home supplies of meat products.

ONLY HOT AIR

Those credulous and unsophisticated souls who take the speeches of their Senators and Congressmen seriously may have been rudely jarred if they read a statement once made by Senator Glass of Virginia, who said:

"In all my experience of 28 years in Congress, I have never known a speech to change a vote."

While this is a rather broad assertion, it is practically true. A large percentage of the speeches printed in the Congressional Record are just so much hot air. Many of them are never delivered at all, but are written out and for the purpose of impressing the voters with the great statesmanship of their authors.

Aside from a few notable exceptions, printed for distribution "back home" the sole aim in life of Senators and Congressmen is to get reelected. Every utterance and every vote is directed to that end.

Therefore, oratory of colleagues does not influence them very much. They are thinking always about what their constituents will say, and vote accordingly, regardless of anybody's speech.

We were very glad to have the visiting singers with us Sunday afternoon and with their help the singing was real good, and we invite you back again.

Our Sunday school put on a contest during the past quarter, between the males and females. The side that received the most new members during this time is counted as winning side and will be entertained by the other side. The femals won by the majority of two. A committee of three has been appointed to arrange for the treat and we expect to have a nice time.

This contest is for the purpose of getting those who do not attend Sunday school to come. This is the beginning of a new quarter and New Year and may we all strive to make our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor better.

The wedding of much interest to this community was that of Mr. Olin Williams and Miss Margaret Stanford. The wedding took place last Wednesday afternoon at the bride's home near Lawley, Ala. Rev. G. Two Alabama Youths Given Degree Of American Farmer

OLIVER MANNING

LLOYD EZELL

—Courtesy Montgomery Advertiser.

The degree of American Farmer, the highest degree possible to be awarded a young man in the Future Farmers of America organization, was bestowed on Lloyd Ezell, of Ozark, and Oliver Manning, of Chilton County, at the recent meeting of the National Congress of Future Farmers in Kansas City, Mo. This award came to them as a result of their outstanding supervised practice work both during the time they were taking vocational agriculture in high school and finishing school. Both took the regular vocational agriculture work during their high school course, which embraced field crops, animal husbandry, horticulture and farm management. Each of these subjects was studied intensively over a period of a year. Home project work was carried on in line with each subject under direction of the teacher of vocational agriculture. Since graduating from high school, they have continued their farm operations on a partnership basis with their fathers.

During his high school course, Lloyd Ezell served as an officer in the chapter of Future Farmers of America at Ozark, and also as reporter in the State organization.

Oliver Manning was president of the chapter at Isabella High School, in Chilton County, and during his senior year, served as secretary of the State organization. He is a sophomore in agricultural education at Alabama Polytechnic Institute this year. He spends his Summers working with his father on the home farm 10 miles west of Clanton.

Lloyd Ezell likewise maintains an active interest with his father in the operation of the home farm near Ozark. He is also secretary of the Dale County Farm Bureau, having held this position since his graduation from the Dale County High School at Ozark.

Lloyd Ezell took vocational agriculture under W. D. Thomason, who was teacher of this subject in the Dale County High School during the former's high school career. Oliver Manning studied under Earle Thomas, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Isabella High School.

Sunday School Lesson

for January 10
THE FIRST DISCIPLES
John 1:35-49
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Thirty years of developing life are omitted by John in his Gospel. Only Luke, in chapter 2:41-50, tells of the visit to the temple at Jerusalem when the Lad was twelve years old. It is profitable to meditate on the kind of life that Jesus lived in the Nazareth home. Here is the ideal son and the record has never been written concerning those developing years.

Meanwhile John the Baptist had attracted much attention through his wilderness preaching. Multitudes came to hear him in the Jordan valley. A group of faithful disciples was working with the Baptizer. One day Jesus came and sought baptism, though He had no sins to confess. God placed the seal upon this dedicatory act as the Holy Spirit descended in the form of a dove. The forty days of temptation in the wilderness followed, during which time Jesus Christ truly faced His redemptive ministry.

One day it was the sublime privilege of John the Baptist to say: "Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." Some of the disciples of John thereafter identified themselves with this greater Teacher. John's wonderful unselfishness is indicated in that he was ready to give up his closet friends that they might have still better associations.

Forthwith personal work began, and that is the one method that Jesus has approved for the growth of His Kingdom. Andrew at once sought out his own brother Peter and brought him to Jesus. John doubtless brings his brother James to Jesus. When they reach Galilee Philp is added to the group of learners and he, in turn, locates Nathanael and induces him to join this group of student-workers.

NEWS 200 YEARS AGO

In connection with the 200th anniversary of the Maryland Gazette, some early copies of that newspaper were exhibited.

The news and advertisements of early days were naturally quite different from what is found in current newspapers, as they reflected the customs and beliefs of their time.

One of the stories from Vienna told of the burning of several persons convicted of witchcraft, among them "a midwife who had baptized 2,000 children in the name of the devil." A local item related the experience of a negro slave who struck a white man in an argument over a dog fight. The negro was sentenced to have one of his ears cut off "pursuant to the law in such cases."

Among the advertisements was one announcing the arrival of a cargo of "about 200 choice slaves, which will be exposed for sale on Thursday the 22d of this instant."

In its issue of October 21, 1762, the Maryland Gazette published the news of the birth of a son to the British king and queen, which had occurred on August 12. The story bore the headlines: "Great Joy to the Nation! A Prince of Wales is Born. God save the King." This was the dissolute and notorious character who afterwards became George IV.

The Maryland Gazette was frequently suspended for varying periods, but is credited by the Librarian of Congress with being "the dean of present-day American newspapers."

OLD ADVICE STILL GOOD

"The best forage plants are alfalfa and vetch. Alfalfa may be placed in the front rank of such plants; for once sown it lasts 10 years, fattens lean cattle and is good for the sick."

Thus in substance, did the leading agriculturist of his day advise his fellow farmer. The quotation is from the writings of Lucius Columella, author of the most complete ancient treatise on agriculture, who lived in the first century of our era, about 1,900 years ago.

Similar advice is contained in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. It is declared that "an abundance of home-grown legume hay is the basis for an economical ration for dairy cows." Such hay is not only more palatable, but furnishes more milk-making nutriment at less cost than other feeds.

Although the superiority of legumes has been taught by experts from Columella's time to the present, about 40 per cent of the hay grown in the United States is legume hay, and in the dairying states, where feeding it would be the most advantageous, the percentage is even less.

Both for nutriment and soil building, legume hay should have a prominent place in every farmer's program. Columella's advice is as good today as it was 19 centuries ago.

NOTICE OF FILING BILL OF COMPLAINT

Notice of Filing of Bill of Complaint by State of Alabama, Complainant, vs. One Ford Sedan 1928 Model, Respondent.

State of Alabama, Complainant. vs. One Ford Sedan, 1928 Model, Respondent.

In the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, In Equity.

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Ford sedan, 1928 Model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 4th day of December, 1931, one John F. Poole did transport in One Ford Sedan, 1928 Model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point to another in the State of Alabama, and that said automobile was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and decreed that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 10 day of Jan., 1931, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand, this the 16th day of December, 1931.

MAKING CHRISTMAS LONGER

Christmas was a drawn-out holiday for thousands of investors in certain Chicago-issued bonds, who not so many months ago feared loss of all they had spent for their securities. Early in January they received their first dividend checks under a new arrangement that promises to return them practically all, if not everything they invested, with interest in the meantime.

These owners of Forman company bonds who exchanged them for bonds of the George M. Forman Realty Trust have given a fine example of cooperation toward solving a difficult real estate situation. As one result, holders of more than $11,300,000 of Trust bonds were sent interest checks on December 31.

Real estate propositions are in distress everywhere throughout the United States. The Forman Trust's methods for handling defaulted investments have aroused nationwide attention of real estate and financial leaders, and, of course, the gratitude of many small investors who cast their lot with the new management plan.

Women Promoting Cotton Products

Alabama women are helping solve the agricultural problems of the state and South by using more cotton garments, cotton household furnishings and other cotton products. They declare this to be one of the best ways women can assist in bringing prosperity to the nation.

A campaign for the "increased consumption of cotton'" is now being conducted by the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs. Parent Teachers' Association, Business and Professional Women's Clubs. American Legion Auxiliary, Women's Christian Temperance Union, League of Women Voters, County Home Demonstration Women, and the Council of Jewish Women. The campaign to use more cotton is southwide.

Merchants, Chambers of Commerce. Civic organizations, the press, radio stations, theaters, and others are cooperating in this work.

"If every woman in every cotton growing state will buy two cotton garments it will start the wheels of industry and give employment to thousands of men and women," declares Mrs. W. J. Adams, president of the Federation Women's Club, who is promoting the work among the state women and their organization.

In addition to the above reason Mrs. Adams advances the following reason women are in position to increase the use of cotton:

"Women own 40 per cent of the wealth of the United States and spend 65 per cent of the nation's income that goes into retail trade."

NOW IS GOOD TIME TO WORK TELEPHONE LINES

The Board of Directors of the Peoples Company calls the attention of all phoneholders to the necessity of rebuilding their lines. At this season of the year people are not busy at anything else much, and it is an ideal time to get their telephone lines in shape.

Phoneholders on all lines are urged to get together some day soon and all pitch in and have an old-time working on their line. The directors on each line get busy and call all your phoneholders together and make preparation for this working. If you haven't the money to pay your fee with, fix up your line anyway, so that you can talk to your neighbors and so that other people can call you when they want you. We know money is scarce, but anyone can spare a few hours, or even a few days work on your lines. You can't afford to be without your phone.—Jesse Baker, president; Jas. M. Robinson, J. P. Jackson, E. H. Mims, T. E. Wyatt, directors.

road projects, funds with which to furnish the new House Office Building. The committee feeling that under existing conditions, furniture could be had for less than estimated in the President's budget.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican, and former congresswoman-at-large, living in Rockford, Ill., declared in an editorial comment that Herbert Hoover is "not a popular leader" and asked "why Hoover should not be freely discussed."

The Democratic policy on tariff was laid down Monday in a four-point bill proposing a permanent international conference to stimulate friendly trade and commercial relations.

Approved by the Party's Senate-House policy committee, the measure was destined to occupy a preferred place on the House program. Democratic leaders are reported as expecting to have it passed and at the door of the Senate by the latter part of the week.

President Hoover was called "heroic figure of world" by Sen. Simeon D. Fess, republican, recently.

Senator Cordell Hull, Democrat, former national chairman, predicted Democratic victory this year.

Senator Norris, a progressive insurgent of Nebraska, denounced the nation's administration record in 1931.

WILL WORK TELEPHONE LINES ON LAY DAM ROAD

All who are interested in the lines of the Peoples Telephone Company that lead out from Clanton up the Lay Dam or Lock 12 road are asked to meet at Gore's bridge Friday morning, January 8th, for the purpose of repairing said lines. Bring tools to work with. If it is raining, come the next day.—H. V. Honeycutt, T. G. Wyatt, R. C. Hand, E. H. Headley, Carl Gore, Wm. A. Franklin, J. B. Farley.

"POOR FATHER" TO BE STAGED AT MINERAL SPRINGS SOON

The play "Poor Father" will be presented at Mineral Springs on next Saturday night, January 9th, according to an announcement given the News this week.

This entertainment is being put on by the Mineral Springs B. Y. P. U., and the proceeds will be divided between this church and the Baker School. Admission will be ten and twenty cents. The public is invited.

Jesus Is Calling

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

Jesus is calling for you and for me
To come out of bondage that we may be free.
His grace is sufficient to lift us above
The dark woe of sin into life, peace and love.
Oh, won't you accept Him and give Him your life?
He will save you from sin, degradation and strife.
He will give you sweet comfort which no man can take.
His own He will keep and never forsake
He is no respecter of persons. He loves one and all.
He shed His precious blood to save both great and small.
He died on the cross to save you and me;
He gave His dear life that we might be free.
Oh, grieve Him no longer, but come to Him now,
Give Him your heart, in contrition bow.
He will enfold his arms around you and keep you as His—
A sweet home in heaven to you he will give.
Oh, think what a smile will be on dear mother's face
When she sees her darling child, coming to such a heavenly place.
Perhaps dear old father is watching there too, or some loved companion
That is waiting for you.
Maybe some loving babe that has left dear mother's arms
Is watching for mother and father to come.
A dear loving sister or brother it may be
Is there watching and waiting for you and for me.
A bright shining crown is given to each one we are told.
The gates are of pearl and the streets are of gold.
And oh, with such music our God we will praise,
And give Him the glory for all he has saved,
Through Jesus who triumphed over death, hell and the grave.

There's a great future for some fellow who will invent a radio set which will automatically switch off all crooners, male quartettes and advertising ballyhoo.

FUNERAL FOR MRS. SULA FOSHEE HELD LAST SUNDAY

Mrs. Sula Foshee, age 40, wife of Rufus L. Foshee, of the Mt. Pleasant community, near Clanton, died at the hospital here last Saturday.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Martin's Funeral Parlors, conducted by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church. Interment followed in the city cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS
What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.
It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.
When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

WHITE WILL VIE WITH DARDEN TO KEEP HIS POST

Utilities Commission Chief Formally Declares Hopes For Reelection

Hugh White, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, will seek reelection to the post making his formal announcement, Sunday, and he will be opposed by Senator John A. Darden of Coosa, who has also formally announced.

Hugh White has been connected with the Commission as legal adviser, secretary and since 1927 as president. He was appointed by Gov. Bibb Graves to succeed A. G. Patterson, resigned. Following his appointment he was overwhelmingly elected to the post by the people. His first connection with the Commission was as commerce counsel in 1923.

Senator Darden has served his county three times in the Legislature which includes his senatorial terms. He is the present senator from Coosa and Clay Counties and is a prominent lawyer of his section of the State.

The campaign for president of the Alabama Public Service Commission promises to be an interesting one. There have been many hot campaigns in Alabama for this post. Usually, the office inspires a contest and inasmuch

Teachers Of County Get $14,000 Salary

School teachers in Chilton County made their appearance at the First National Bank in Clanton last Saturday, and received approximately $14,000 in salaries, according to B. Lawrence, superintendent of education.

This amount paid was for salaries for the past month of October, leaving teachers in this county due now for the months of November and December. Mr. Lawrence stated that they hope to be able to pay the teachers the salary for November sometime this month, and possibly within the next several days.

MILLER BRINGS OUTSTANDING SERMONS HERE

Court House Is Overflowing Each Night As Revival Is Well Underway

The great Community Revival in Clanton is sweeping onward with ever increasing power and interest. The Court House where it is being held, which is the largest public building in the city, is proving too small and is overflowing at almost every service now. Sunday night and Monday, numbers went home who could not gain admittance

Evangelist Elmer C. Miller, who is conducting the campaign, possesses to a high degree the characteristics essential to a great evangelist. He is a devoted Christian, a fine organizer, has a profound knowledge of human nature and a great preacher. The wide scope of his intellectual powers and versatality are amazing. At one time he is a fire brand, burning the consequences

HIGH SCHOOL RECEIVES GEO. WASHINGTON PICTURES REC'T'.

Eight large pictures of George Washington were received recently by the Chilton County High School, according to Prof. L. C. Warr, principal. These pictures are copies of a very valuable painting of General Washington that hangs in the White House.

Prof. Warr stated they would have the pictures framed and place one in each class room in the school. The pictures were secured through the efforts of Hon. Hugo Black. Several other beautiful pictures of different scenes have been purchased by the school.

Baptist Circles Met For A New Drawing

On January 4, a meeting of unusual interest was held at Clanton Baptist church. At this time the circle goals were checked, and those achieving success were honored. Circle 6, Mrs. A. C. Smith Chairman, scored 100, having met every goal. Circle 2, Mrs. Dewey Eubanks Chairman, and Circle 3, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch Chairman, were next in the number of goals met. The work of the whole society has been unusually good. Mrs. J. P. Hayes had the honor of being president of this A-1 Missionary Society.

At this same meeting circle members were drawn for the new year and the following chairmen elected: Circle 1, Mrs. Loren Smith; Circle 2, Mrs. Flem Higgins; Circle 3, Mrs. Lilla Belle Davis; Circle 4, Mrs. Eula Burdette; Circle 5, Mrs. Arthur Willis; Circle 6, Mrs. J. A. Hester.

These new officers have gone to work and much enthusiasm was in evidence at the separate circle meetings held last Monday. 1931 was a good year, but 1932 bids fair to be an even better one.

The general officers for the Missionary Society are as follows: President, Mrs. E. G. Hyman; vice president, Mrs. J. E. Gowan; secretary, Mrs. J. T. Ellis; mission treasurer, Mrs. J. P. Hayes; local aid treasurer, Mrs. H. G. Heflin.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT COUNTY LINE SCHOOL, 22ND

There will be a regular old-time fiddlers convention at the County Line Schoolhouse, eight miles west of Maplesville on Friday night, January 22, according to an announcement made this week.

Prizes are to be awarded to the fiddlers, and a cordial invitation is extended to all fiddlers to attend this get-together. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents. Proceeds go to the school.

Farm Meeting To Be Held At Courthouse Friday Afternoon

Economists From Washington Will Be Present At Meeting Of Farmers To Discuss The Outlook for 1932 Farming, Dairying, Etc

"What shall I do in 1932?" That is the question that is possibly confronting many farmers, livestock raisers, dairymen, poultry raisers, etc., in Chilton County at this time.

Tomorrow, Friday afternoon, at two o'clock, County Agent Stapp has called for a meeting of farmers, dairymen, etc., of Chilton County to be held at the courthouse in Clanton, at which time, it is hoped that those attending will get information that will enable them to solve the question stated above. This meeting should prove to be the most important farm meeting of the year, and all farmers interested in securing information to aid them in planning their work for the year, are urged and requested to attend this meeting.

It was stated that economists from Washington will be present to present charts showing general conditions and what we may look for this year.

This meeting is not only for farmers, but should prove beneficial to merchants, bankers and all people in the county who are dependent on farming operations. The meeting is called to begin at two o'clock Friday afternoon, January 15th, and Mr. Stapp states that in order to get a seat, he believes it would be advisable to get there early.

PROGRAM FOR YEAR FOR COUNTY AGENT IS PLANNED AT MEETING

Program Of Work As Outlined With Suggestions From Committee Is Believed To Be Best Planned Since County Agent's Time

A group of citizens of Chilton County met in the office of the Commissioners court at the courthouse last Friday morning at ten o'clock for the purpose of advising with County Agent C. E. Stapp on his plans for a program of work for this year, for himself and the vocational teachers of the county.

County Agent Stapp presented before the meeting, suggestions for a program of work in the county, and this was taken under consideration and discussed by those present. Numerous suggestions were made and accepted by the county agent, who stated that he believed the program, as outlined by the meeting, is the best he has had to work by since coming to this county, and looks forward eagerly to carrying out the plans in this county, aiding the farmers in their plans for the year's work.

Among those attending this meeting Friday were Judge L. H. Reynolds, A. P. Vinson, J. L. Burnett, J. I. Cobb, J. M. Mims, J. N. Dennis. H. R. Oden, J. D. Sutley, T. F. Patterson, J. L. Smith, Judson Strock, Erle Thomas, J. P. Montgomery, B. Lawrence, Miss Bertha Dennis and Miss Zora Guy.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY WILL FURNISH SCHOOL BUSSES HERE

It was stated at the office of the county superintendent of education here Monday that arrangements had been made with the Standard Oil Company, by which the drivers of school buses in this county will be able to secure gasoline and oils for thier buses, from this company, and pay for it when the drivers are paid.

This gasoline and oil will be charged to the county board of education, and deducted from the salaries of the drivers when the funds are available. Heretofore, these drivers have had trouble in securing gasoline and oils for their trucks.

Arthur Glover Will Enter Judgeship Race

The formal announcement of the candidacy of Hon. Arthur Glover, for the place of judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, composed of Chilton, Elmore and Autauga counties, is being made elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Glover is a prominent attorney of Wetumpka, served in the Alabama Legislature, and is well known in this section.

DANCING SCHOOL OPENS IN CLANTON RECENTLY

Residents in and around Clanton have been receiving through the mails, neat cards announcing the opening of a School of Dancing, in Clanton. This school is being instructed by Mrs. Marie Weightman, who has recently arrived in Clanton, and is making her headquarters at the New Wilson Hotel.

The school is being conducted at the Maddox Hall in Clanton. Mrs. Weightman stated she is giving lessons to children as well as grown-ups. For information, Mrs. Weightman stated anyone may call her at the New Wilson Hotel.

Clanton's New Traffic Signal Light As Seen And Explained By Doug

If you have not already seen it—there is a contraption hanging out over the street, where main street crosses the highway in Clanton, and it has three lights on it, one red, one yellow and one green. That is what is known as a traffic light. I've seen them in Birmingham and Montgomery, too, but never thought I'd find one in Clanton. In some places they have bells that ring when the light turns from one color to another, but they haven't got one here like that. I believe it would sound more like Montgomery if they had a bell on it.

I stood out on the corner several days just watching that thing change from the red, to yellow, then to green, then vice versa, or something. I got right tickled at people laughing when they walked across the street. Looked like they were being allowed a great privilege to walk across because the light showed green on their side of the street.

The way I got those things figured out is this—when the red light is on, facing you, that means don't go, stop. When it turns to the yellow light, that means run like h—before the red light turns on. But I found that I was wrong about that. The yellow light means

Announcement was made this week to the effect that there will be a fiddlers convention at the Thomas Junior High School on Friday night, January 15th.

In connection with the contest between fiddlers who will be present, and the valuable prizes to be awarded, there will be other attractions. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents singles, man and wife 25c, a young lady with an escort, 25c. Everybody is invited to attend, and especially are fiddlers urged to be present.

ROCKFORD MAN KILLS RELATIVES IN FAMILY ROW

Barney Wood Is Alleged To Have Slain Brother-In-Law At Home

Barney Wood was held in Rockford jail Thursday night, charged with the slaying of his brother-in-law and probable fatal wounding of his father-in-law at his home near Rockford Wednesday night during a family quarrel.

Benton Murchison, 36, brother-in-law of Wood, died at his home on Thursday morning from three bullet wounds in his head and Will Murchison, 78, Elmore County planter, died Saturday morning at St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery, from a bullet wound in the head.

The Murchisons went to the Wood home Wednesday evening to remonstrate with Wood for ill treatment of his wife and as the conference neared an end, Wood was said to have pulled a gun and started shooting.

The first bullet is reported to have struck the younger Murchison in the head and then Wood was said to have fired on the elder Murchison. They both fell to the floor and then Wood secured someone to bring him here to officers, where he surrendered. He was lodged in the county jail, but later removed elsewhere.

Funeral services were held at Lebanon Church, fifteen miles south of here, Sunday morning, with Rev. Jim Thomas, pastor Deatsville Baptist church conducting the services. The Masons had charge of service at the elder Murchison's grave.

The elder Murchison was 78 years of age and was born and reared in Coosa County where he lived until he moved to Elmore County fifteen years ago. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Lula

Poultry Car Will Be On L & N Soon

C. E. Stapp, county agent, states that he has arranged to have a cooperative poultry car over the L & N railroad on the following dates at the following places:

Tuesday, Jan. 19th, afternoon at Verbena; Wednesday, Jan. 20, All-day, at Clanton; Thursday, Jan. 21, morning at Jemison.

CIRCLE NUMBER TWO MET AT HOME OF MRS. ALRED

The newly drawn members of Circle No. Two of the Clanton Baptist church met last Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. C. Alred. A Missionary Program was rendered, with Mrs. Flem Higgins, chairman, in charge.

Those present were Mesdames Chas. Rasberry, Joe Robinson, Dewey Eubanks, A. S. Jones, Mattie Mims, A. L. Sewell, Horsley White, John T. Ellis, Flem Higgins and D. C. Alred.

Thorsby Hardware Co. Changed Hands Tues.

The Thorsby Hardware Company, one of the oldest established businesses in Thorsby, Ala., changed owners last Tuesday when Sam Pate and Dewey Rockett purchased it.

Mr. Rockett, who also owns the Clanton Building Supply Co., in Clanton, stated that the firm will continue to operate under the name of Thorsby Hardware, with Mr. Pate remaining in Thorsby as manager.

BOARD OF REGISTRARS WILL BE IN SESSION THIS MONTH

The notice from the Board of Registrars of Chilton County giving the date and place where they will be in session in this county this month, is being published in this issue of the News.

PEOPLE ASKED TO COOPERATE IN TRAFFIC LAW

City To Enforce Regulations Of New Traffic Light Starting Friday

The much talked-about traffic light for Clanton has been installed at the intersection of Second Avenue (main street) and the Birmingham-Montgomery highway. The installing of the light was done by T. L. Williams and his crew of the local Alabama Power Company office, and is the first to be used in Clanton.

The light has been in use for several days now, and so far is apparently proving of benefit, although traffic during many days is not heavy enough to warrant its use, however, during the late afternoon and night, and on Saturdays, it no doubt is very beneficial.

This traffic signal light was installed for the benefit of the people, those driving cars and those walking, according to C. H. Pipes, clerk of the town of Clanton, and was not placed there for the purpose of collecting fines from those persons who fail to obey the regulations. The cooperation of the public is asked in aiding the city officials to enforce the traffic regulations in Clan-

W. L. WILLIAMS HAS FIFTY CENT PIECE WITH DATE 1830

W. L. Williams, who resides at Maplesville, Route 2, was in Clanton recently, and visited the News office. Mr. Williams showed the force at the office a fifty cent piece bearing a date of 1830. This makes the coin over one hundred years old. Mr. Williams stated he had had the coin in his possession for about twenty-five years.

Farm Bureau Asks Cream Arrive Early

The Chilton County Farm Bureau asks that those who ship cream through the bureau do not wait too late to bring the cream to the station in Clanton on Saturdays.

If you intend bringing cream, you are requested to bring it on Saturday mornings, so as to give the testers time to test the cream and prepare it for shipment on the early afternoon train. It will not keep over at this time, and will probably be lost if the train is missed with the shipment.

TACKY PARTY AT COLLINS CHAPEL CHURCH SATURDAY

There will be a tacky party at the Collins Chapel church Saturday night, January 16th. The admission will be 10 cents if you are dressed tacky, and 25 cents if not. An interesting program is being arranged. It is hoped that the Clanton Quartette can be present. The proceeds are for the church piano.

HARMAN THINKS PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE OVER CRISIS

States Treasury Payments Have Abated Danger Of General Shut-Down

Payment by the State during the week of slightly more than 40 per cent of the $4,254,000 general education fund to the common schools for the current year and $75,975 as a fourth of the county high school fund, has forestalled the necessity of any general early closing of the schools, according to Dr. A. F. Harman, State superintendent of education.

"It now appears definitely certain that there will be no early general closing of schools," Dr. Harman said, "and if the schools receive the remainder of the general education fund within the next three months, they will certainly, without exception, run their usual terms."

Dr. Harman made the announcement during an interview following a joint group meeting of the County and City Superintendents of Education at the Jefferson Davis Hotel, which Dr. Harman attended by invitation.

The group, Dr. Harman said, "was

LEE DIED A "PRISONER"

It may not be generally known that General Robert E. Lee, the 125th anniversary of whose birth will be celebrated on January 19, was technically a prisoner of war at the time of his death in 1870, but such is the case, according to a writer in The Pathfinder.

After Lee's surrender to Grant at Appomattox on April 9, 1865, he was released on parole. President Johnson's amnesty proclamation issued the following month did not include Confederate officers above the rank of colonel, or any who had been educated at West Point or who had resigned from the United States army to join the Confederacy, so Lee was ineligible for amnesty on all three counts.

Johnson provided, however, that those in the excepted classes would have their applications for pardon considered, and Lee made application accordingly, but his request was entirely ignored by the President. The terms of Lee's parole were respected, however, and he was never molested, although he was never restored to citizenship.

As is well known, after the war General Lee accepted the presidency of Washington College at Lexington, Va., and remained in that office until he died, when the name of the institution was changed to Washington and Lee. But at the time of his death he was still a paroled prisoner of war, deprived of his civil rights.

The Mt. Pleasant Junior High School boys and girls basket ball teams journeyed down to Thomas Junior High last Friday afternoon where the two school teams met for the first time this season.

After the smoke of the battles had cleared away both the boys team and the girls team from Mt. Pleasant emerged on the long end of the score. The girls winning 10 to 2, while the boys had a tough struggle in setting back the Thomas team 12 to 8.

The game between the girls was highly interesting, even though the score appears one-sided. Both teams played hard, but the Mt. Pleasant girls held the edge on pass work. Ethel Traywick proved a bit too swift for the Thomas guards; she netted the ball for 8 points while her alternate team-mate, Dorothy Jones rung up the other two points with a beautiful spot shot several feet from the goal. Annie Chambers and Ilar Massey turned in a nice performance at the guard positions, not allowing their opponents a single field goal. Ertice Riggins and Myrtice Cost gave a nice exhibition of pass-work. They repeatedly broke up passes by their opponents and smoothly worked the ball back toward their goal.

This was the first match game for the Thomas girls to participate in, but they deserve special commendation for their loyal efforts in trying to win, and in their good sportsmanship. With a little more drilling and experience they will be plenty hard to win over.

The boys game was a thriller, but entirely too rough from the outset. Both teams were over-anxious to get the jump on the other, which caused unnecessary roughness and excessive fouling.

Fro Thomas, Dunlap with 3 points and T. Wilson 4 points were the high scorers, while G. Wilson made the other point. The Thomas boys shaded the Mt. Pleasant team in pass-work, but were unable to hold possession of the ball in their territory.

For the visiting team, Littlejohn and Burnett vied for scoring honors, each registering 5 points. Curtis Traywick, who was closely guarded, came thru with the other 2 points with a nice shot from the field. The Thomas boys took special care to keep him from shooting due to his being high-point man on the visiting team.

On Friday afternoon, January 22, both the boys and girls teams from Thomas will meet the Mt. Pleasant teams, in which should prove two more interesting games. All interested in seeing these clever players grapple again remember the date and be present at 2:15 P. M.

THE CUSTOMER'S AND OURS . . .

"I am no novice at housekeeping. I have lived to see and enjoy all kinds of services developed to lighten my labor. I have learned to study them carefully because 'quality work' and 'money savings' are as important to me as labor saving. I demand of laundries that they wash clean and white; iron smoothly; call and deliver promptly; and charge moderately. . . . I find that Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Co. satisfies me in every particular. This company does the laundry for my family of four for about $1.75 a week—or, if I do some of the ironing, for less than one dollar. And the washing is done much better than I could do it. If you are still exposing yourself to the many winter ills which lurk around the wash tub, I would suggest that you ask Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Co. to explain their 'complete services' . . . by which they mean, . . . laundry service at a price to fit every pocketbook."

Carload Shipping Of Poultry Begins

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 13.—Alabama farmers are expected to get a portion of the cash they need this spring from the shipment of poultry in carload lots to eastern markets.

The first shipments of the year were made this week as cars moved from Coffee, Houston, Crenshaw, and Pike counties. The movement will continue until summer.

J. B. Sylvest, manager of the produce department of the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association, who, in cooperation with county farm bureaus, is handling the sales of the birds, says that chickens will move from 57 counties. He is expecting to handle more than 100 carloads.

As in the past producers will deliver their chickens to the car doors in both small and large quantities and be paid for them in cash at that time.

Prices this year are some below those of last year but are well in line with prices of other commodities, he said.

Last year farmers of the State shipped in this way 105 carloads of chickens and received more than $260,000, a majority of the counties participating in the returns. Approximately 38,000 farmers participated in the sales.

Cooperative carload poultry marketing began in Alabama in 1928, since which time close to 100 carloads or more have been shipped annually.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Mims were the guests of Mrs. Mim's parents, near Pates Chapel, during the holidays.

Miss Olene Mims visited friends in Thorsby last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Littlejohn of near Thorsby were the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zack L. Lowery, during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Littlejohn and daughter, Miss Lena, were entertained at dinner New Years Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ward visited Mr. and Mrs. Alphus Littlejohn, near Thorsby, during Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Littlejohn entertained at a spend-the-day party at their home on December 30th, in honor of their son, J. L. Littlejhon, and nephew, Earl Lowery, on their birthday, which occurred on the same date, J. L. being 13 years old and Earl fifteen. At the noon hour a most delicious and well prepared dinner was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Lowery, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Littlejohn, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Cooper and little daughter, Mattie Gene, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Duke, Mesdames B. H. Vickers and G. L. Foshee, Messrs. Marvin Lowery, Earl, Zane and William Lowery, and J. L. Littlejohn. Misses Margurette Lowery and Sibyl Littlejohn, together with the host and hostess.

After dinner the men and boys engaged themselves in sport and games. The ladies retired to the spacious living room where they enjoyed visiting with each other. The day ended all too quickly, for it was time to go home before we realized, for each one had enjoyed the occassion immensely.

Next Saturday and Sunday will be regular preaching days here by our pastor, S. J. Holland, of East Tallassee. The public is invited to hear him.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Not long since I heard a man saying that the prohibition laws were a failure. He claimed that there was more drinking and more roudyism today than ever before. During Christmas week we made a trip down through central Florida, to St. Petersburg, then across the state to Daytona Beach and up the coast through Jacksonville. Our journey carried us over 1925 miles of travel. During that trip we met thousands of cars, and saw thousands of people, but not one person did we see who showed signs of drinking. Suppose that there had been open saloons along that journey, it is hard to tell what would have happened. The man who tells you that the prohibition laws are worthless does not know what he is talking about. There is no greater boone to American life today than our prohibition laws in this machine age, and we must keep them. Any man who clamors for the modification of our prohibition laws should be forced to run his car on the highway where drunkards twist and turn and curve and dash and die.

When the children arose on Christmas morning to look upon a stocking full of candies and fruits and to see many toys stacked near, there was a shout of delight, and the days play was on with a smile. Skates, wheels and waggons rolled all day, and there was much joy. Wonder why we can not begin every day in that spirit. God is the great Santa Claus of every living man and woman, and every morning we open our eyes to see a day that is full of good things for us. Mark Twain said that he never did a lick of work in his life. That does not mean that the great author was idle. It meant that he had a set of habits, and a rule of life that fitted him, and that all of his work was play. Have you ever seen an ox team being driven toward the log cart? There is no animation and no hurry. During this new year, do not allow your work to wear you. If we will begin each day, and go to each task, in the spirit of the child who arose to spend Christmas, we will be happy and our work will be play.

Riding along the street in Jacksonville we came to a street where we wanted to turn, but there was a big sign there that said—"A one way street East!" In our big cities they have certain streets designated as "One way streets!" All the cars in those streets are going one way. I would like to call your attention to another "One way street," and this is that one that leads toward God and heaven. There is but one way of right thinking, right living and right serving. All the people who are traveling on God's highway, are going in the same direction.

Just before the first pinch of winter I saw a great drove of birds going South. These birds had spent the summer up north, but now winter was coming on, and they were making their way back to the land of sunshine and flowers. Far up north a migratory bird was taken from it's nest when it was quite young, and placed in a cage. It grew to be full grown, and knew nothing of the great outside, or the ways of it's own kin. The owner of that bird noted that when the time came for that species of birds to go south, that his bird in the cage perched itself on it's roost and for hours and days it beat it's wings into the air as if flying. This bird had a migratory instinct, and it imagined that it was going South to sunshine and flowers. Man is a migratory creature. He knows that there is another land for him. In this world he is beating the wings of his soul into the atmosphere of the Spirit, and all the time he is looking for a City which hath foundation, whose builder and maker is God. Some day the time of his migration will come, and then he will lift himself and sail away to that land of sunshine and flowers, to that place of peace and plenty, and be forever at home with God.

One morning I was approaching the Hathaway bridge that spans the West arm of St. Andrews bay. A thick fog was settling all about the highway, and when I came to the curve in the road where I should be able to see the bridge that stretched across the mile of water, I looked and no bridge could be seen. The fog hid the links of steel and strength, but I knew that the bridge was there. On through the fog my car found its way, and the bridge was crossed in safety. Too many people grow panicky because they can not see the bridge that spans the troubles of life. The fog of poverty, of depression, of unemployment and many other forms and kinds of fogs, gather before us, and the bridge is hid. If we trust in God and advance in faith, the bridge will be there. The one who travels by faith, the one who places his trust in God and goes on, that one will find the fog lifting, and the bridge looming, and a way of safety appearing. "Behind the dim unkonwn, Standeth God, keeping watch over his own."

Years ago I knew a wealthy family. The father in that home was a good business man and he made a large fortune. While I was a boy, the parents in that home died and left the money to the children. The children inheriting that money stepped into the ways of the Prodigal son and spent their inheritance in revelry and sin. Today, the third generation in that family are in poverty and want. The general rule of wealth is that the first generation makes it, the second spends it and the third staggers about on the road of life as drifters. It does not take God very long to let us know that he can get along without us, when we forget him.

AIR PROGRESS IN 1931

Many new records were set and numerous improved safety devices were developed to mark the progress of aeronautics during 1931. The completion and successful operation of the American-built Akron, world's largest airship, with a gas capacity of 6,500,000 cubic feet, was the outstanding aircraft engineering triumph of the year.

The greatest altitude ever attained by man was reached by two Frenchmen, Picard and Kipfer, who rose 51,775 feet in an improved balloon. France also won the airplane distance record without refueling, 6,445 miles, made by LeBrix and Doret, flying in a closed circuit and returning to their starting point. But the longest airline non-stop flight, 5,012 miles, from Brooklyn to Istanbul, Turkey, was made by two Americans, Boardman and Polando.

The longest duration flight without refueling, 84 hours and 32 minutes, returning to the point of departure, was also made by two Americans, Lees and Brossy.

Among the new records for women made during the year were the following:

Mme. Maryse Bastie of France, longest time in the air without refueling, 37 hours and 55 minutes. Misses Bobby Trout and Edna Cooper, Americans, made a record refueling flight of 123 hours. Three world records were made by Miss Ruth Nichols of Rye, N. Y., an altitude record of 28,743 feet; a speed record of 211 miles an hour, and an airline distance record of 1,978 miles.

Facts Presented On Strawberries

Auburn, Ala., Alabama farmers are asking this question: "Shall I plant strawberries this winter and spring for commercial production?" To answer this question a summary of the strawberry situation outlook as prepared by agricultural workers at Auburn, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Federal Farm Board was used.

"The commercial strawberry acreage picked in 1931 was the smallest since 1926," it said. The estimated total of 186,860 acres for harvest in 1932 was 33,600 acres larger than the 1931 harvested acreage, and exceeds that of 1930 by about 10,700 acres. The severe drouth in 1930 very materially reduced the yield per acre that year; and, by causing so many plants to die, greatly reduced the bearing acreage in 1931.

"In the early shipping states, including Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, the indicated acreage for harvest in 1932 is 46,140 acres, or an increase of about eight per cent over the previous record year of 1930. Strawberry acreage in these states has been increasing gradually, decreases from previous years occurring only twice since 1919.

"Although the acreage price to strawberry growers in the early states in 1931 was sixteen per cent less than the average price for the five-year period preceding, the average yield per acre was forty per cent larger. Consequently, the large 1931 crop of 76,448,000 quarts brought the growers $14,650,000, which was about twenty-one per cent greater than the previous high returns of 1928.

"Alabama farmers should not be misled by the 1931 returns. Florida, our big competitor, preceding us to the markets, had a very light shipping season due to excessive rainfall preceding and during the harvest season. Plantings in that state have been reduced this year due to the drouth, but with increased plantings in Alabama and the other early shipping states, indications are that we will be facing overproduction in 1933, when recent plantings come into bearing. For these reasons growers, particularly those in counties not experienced in the commercial production of this crop, are warned against additional plantings."

How about the Smiths?

Every neighborhood has a family like the Smiths—the type of moderate means who live comfortably but not extravagantly. And prominent among the modern aids to comfort and convenience in such a typical household is telephone service.

When friends are to be invited for an informal evening—whenever something or someone is wanted—the Smiths make a comfortable voice-trip by telephone. They know it is the quick, convenient and inexpensive way to reach their friends and firms with whom they trade.

The Smiths use their telephone to talk with friends and relatives in other cities, too. Not carelessly, of course, but wisely. They use Station-to-Station service at night, when the rates are lower, as explained to them by the "Long Distance" operator.

There are millions of people like the Smiths, who find that the advantages of a telephone in the home so far outweigh the small cost that it doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Ban Married Women

The subject of aiding the unemployed in Clanton and Chilton County has been discussed time after time at various meetings, with suggestions made as to how this could be done. One suggestion that sounds plausible is to ban married women from employment in cases where their husbands are earning a living wage for the family.

The Season Of Fires

Last week Clanton had the misfortune of having three rather damaging fires, two homes and a place of business. And the past three or four weeks brought more than that.

Fortunately these fires were extinguished by the good work of the volunteer firemen, before they could do damage to other buildings in their vicinity, and the flames were confined to their place of origin. However, had these homes been located close enough to other homes, there is no doubt that considerable damage would have been done. With cooler weather upon us and every home using hearth or heater fires, it would be wise acting for the people to be more careful.

Of course we know that everyone is careful and would do anything to prevent the destroying of their property by fire, but one can hardly be over-cautious when it comes to preventing fires. A home or other building burning at night may be a good show, but somebody is paying dearly for that show.

The Fable of The Farmer And His Horse

Once upon a time a farmer named Jones had two big Norman horses, Jack and Jill.

Jack developed a habit of kicking and one day he kicked Farmer Jones on the leg. It wasn't a serious injury, but enough to make the farmer hate the horse ever after. But he never thought of trying to break the horse of kicking.

On any occasion without the slightest provocation Farmer Jones would beat his horse and one day when he became very mad he hit him on the side of the head with a two-by-four scantling, causing a poll-evil.

Gradually Jack became a dull horse and lagged behind Jill. Going up hill one day with a heavy load, Jack lagged so far behind that Farmer Jones got out and hit him on a hind leg with a large club. That made the horse lame and though the farmer continued to work him, he never was much good after that and the big part of the burden fell on Jill.

Moral—A lame horse never carried a heavy load.

The Railroad Situation

The following is from an adv. in this issue of the News:

The railroad situation as President Hoover views it in his message to Congress:

This very clear statement by President Hoover of the problems which confront the management of American Railroads so closely parallels the statements by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and other great trunk line systems that it is here reproduced for public consideration. This statement made to Congress by President Hoover deserves the careful consideration, not only of Congress, but of every American citizen.

Railways

"The railways present one of our immediate and pressing problems. They are and must remain the backbone of our transportation system. Their prosperity is interrelated with the prosperity of all industries. Their fundamental service in transportation, the volume of their employment, their buying power for supplies from other industries, the enormous investment in their securities, particularly their bonds, by insurance companies, savings banks, benevolent and other trusts, all reflect their partnership in the whole economic fabric. Through these institutions the railway bonds are in a large sense the investment of every family. The well-maintained and successful operation and the stability of railway finances are of primary importance to economic recovery. They should have more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs."

And since you dear readers of this column have brought it upon yourselves to have me confused with another person, I shall refrain from telling you more about the above quotation and myself. Yes, there is a connection, if you will pardon my saying so.

Now last week, this Dooker Pooker, the International Authority on the subject of wimmin, stated he would like to have some lady elucidate on the subject of what system women use in calculating their ages. Whether they use a discount system, and the discount increases with the increase in years, is not yet known by the International Authority. I have seen some women who, I know actually prevaricate about their age, then again, there are those who look real young and are really ten years older than they look. The latter will tell you their real age, to see you marvel at their young appearance.

Dook, I won't be able to tell you much from this end of the rope about the above, until I have more time to delve into the subject.

Clanton's new traffic light. (Yes, you knew I'd have something to say about that.) In the first place, I haven't yet determined whether the city means for an autoist to get out of his car, or sit on the floor to see the light. I've tried it both ways, and found neither very satisfactory, because before I have put myself back in driving position the blamed thing has changed and I have to do it all over again.

One of the richest things I've seen yet in regard to the new traffic light was the fellow there the other day who got interested in watching the light change, and forgot to keep moving. Then there is the lady who became confused on which light was which and walked across the street on the red. Then there is the lady who didn't even see the light, and made an angle from one corner to the other. Oh, well, we'll learn.

Now that I've said something about the traffic light, I'll say something about the streets in town—not the paved streets. I notice that the dirt streets in town are in bad condition and need a little rubbing down, or up, as the street foreman sees fit to do. We've had considerable rain, that's true, and in my opinion the streets are in fine shape to scrape now. I hope they scrape them because the hundreds of visitors to Clanton daily don't like to ride on nice, bumpy streets when they are seeing the town.

Miller Brings Outstanding Sermons In Revival Here

of sin into the souls of men and women, at other times he is as refreshing as an April shower, bringing messages of wonderful tenderness and love, at times he reaches great heights of oratorical power, lifting his listeners to the highest realms of thought and spirit. Back of the preacher is a winning personality, a genial nature, a likeable man.

On last Thursday night the Clanton High School attended in the huge delegation, practically 100 per cent, and filled the entire center section. They were accompanied by most of the faculty and Prof. Warr was on hand to greet them. They gave several lusty yells and their High School song which were much appreciated by the large audience. The evangelist delivered a forceful sermon on the theme, "What Is Life," using for his text, "He that findeth his life shall lose it and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

On Friday night a number of other schools of the county attended in delegations, including Verbena High, Thorsby Institute, Jemison High, Maplesville and Isabella. The Thorsby Institute, led by Miss Jenkins, their principal, sang their Alma Mater song, which was splendidly rendered and much appreciated.

Saturday forenoon at 10 there was a great meeting for the grade children when the evangelist gave an illustrated talk which many said was the best of its kind they had ever heard. Many teachers and parents attended. The Verbena "Kiddy Band" attended in a body, and led by Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, a teacher in the Verbena School, rendered a fine special number. Mrs. J. B. Atkinson of the Baptist church, Clanton, had her "Sunbeam" class present and gave a special musical number and Miss Emma Sue Morris, music teacher of the Clanton Grammar School, had her school give their school song, "The Grammar School." All were very well rendered and added much to the musical part of the service. The evangelist gave prizes to the winners of the musical features and first prize went to the Verbena "Kiddy Band," second prize to the Clanton Sunbeams.

On Saturday afternoon a mass meeting was held for everybody and a large audience was present. The evangelist spoke on the subject, "Who Cares," and dwelt on the great importance of all Christian people now taking special interest in the salvation of their neighbors and members of the family who are not saved. He said, "Many people in Chilton County think no one cares about their souls because no one has ever personally invited them to become a Christian."

Sunday P. M. there was a great mass meeting for men only and the Court room was practically full of men and was a powerful service. Evangelist Miller spoke on the subject, "The Dual Man" and said in part, "Man has two natures; one is inclined to evil and the other to do good and this conflict has been waged from the days of Adam. God has given you free choice which side to cultivate and develop."

"Profanity is one of the most despicable, lowest down sins a man can be guilty of. Profanity is the retreat of a coward, it is first cousin to a liar, it is the vehicle of incompetent brains. That young fellow who thinks it's smart to belch out a rotten stream of profanity is the worst enemy of society and will crush your daughters' virtue like an egg shell. A profane man will pollute a whole community and fill the atmosphere with the poison of hell. No man can be a good citizen and swear. No man can be a good father and swear. Anything can cuss, even a parrot."

On Sunday night a record crowd assembled and all seats were filled before the opening hour had arrived. Mr. Pitts, the genial and capable choir director, was on hand and after leading the great Congregation in several spirited songs the male quartette composed of Messrs. Jesse Jones, Renfro Jones, Akins Collins and Duff Devaughn, gave one of their inspiring numbers. This quartette is always a special attraction in Chilton County, and evangelist Miller said they were the best he had heard in a long time. They will sing again on Tuesday and Thursday evening. Dr. Miller used for his subject, "Is There A Hell, What Is It, And How Long." The great audience was spellbound as he pictured the blighting and destructive effects of sin and its final consequences and the place of eternal punishment. The subject was handled in a logical, convincing manner and all doubts removed about the fact of Hell. It was a sermon every person in Chilton County should have heard and those who were present will never forget it.

Monday evening was Young peoples night with the various Young Peoples societies of the churches of the county attending in groups. Among those represented were the following: Verbena Epworth League, Verbena B. Y. P. U., Cooper B. Y. P. U., Thorsby Christian Endeavor, Thorsby B. Y. P. U., Jemison B. Y. P. U., Salem B. Y. P. U., Collins Chapel B. Y. P. U., Concord B. Y. P. U., Providence B. Y. P. U., Oak Grove B. Y. P. U., Walnut Creek Christian Endeavor, Sardis B. Y. P. U., Mineral Springs B. Y. P. U., Maple Springs B. Y. P. U., Clanton Sunbeams, Clanton Jr. B. Y. P. U., R. A.'s and G. A.'s Clanton Intermediate B. Y. P. U., Clanton Senior B. Y. P. U., Y. W. A.'s, Clanton Epworth League, Junior League, Hi League, Senior League, Four Square Gospel Crusaders.

Special musical numbers were delivered to the audience by the Collins Chapel delegation and the Walnut Creek Christian Endeavor and the Four Square Crusaders, all of which were greatly enjoyed. The evangelist was greatly pleased with this fine representation of young people of the churches and gave great credit to Miss Madge Scarborough, Elementary Supervisor of the Chilton County schools, who is directing the work of delegations and had much to do with arranging for this special night for the young people. He asked her to stand and she received a thunderous applause. Dr. Miller said in his experience as an evangelist of many years she was the most efficient worker in this line he had met. Mr. Pitts rendered a very effective solo.

Dr. Miller took for his subject, "Discovering Men," stating that because of the large number of young Christian people present he wished to make the message especially applicable to them. He took for his text the narative recorded in the life of Christ in Mat. 26-39-39, in which he depicted the separation by Christ of the Disciples on the eventful night of His betrayal, based on their fitness and capacity for service. He said in part, "There was a division of these first leaders of the church that is full of the deepest meaning. Jesus asked eight of his disciples to sit just inside the garden gate, because they were the group that had failed to measure up fully to the great opportunity He had given for work in establishing His Kingdom and now that the time of testing was at hand, He selected the disciples who had shown their capacity for responsibility and sympathy."

At the close of this service a very impressive scene took place as the evangelist asked all the young Christian people who were willing to come forward and say if God wanted them to become Missionaries or enter the Christian ministry, and would so indicate to them clearly, they were ready to respond. More than thirty fine young men and women walked to the front and took their stand. Many others came to accept Christ as Saviour. The evangelist then asked the parents of these young people who were volunteering for life service, if they were willing to give them to Christ and His work if He called them and bravely a number of fathers and mothers stood to their feet as tears flowed. The evangelist said he had no doubt in future years some of these would be in foreign lands teaching the heathen, but this would be a great honor to the parents and to the community sending them.

On Tuesday P. M. at 2:30 a very beautiful service was held in honor of Mothers. It was especially for those who do not ordinarily get out at night and conveyances were provided for the shut ins and older ones. Mrs. Upchurch and her Committee of ladies decorated the platform with plants and flowers and made it very attractive. There was a reception committee to greet all who came composed of Mrs. Haskew, Mrs. Ezell and Mrs. Upchurch and a group of lady ushers. Mr. Sartor and Mr. Atkinson had charge of the transportation.

A bouquet of carnations furnished by Mr. Arnold, florist at Thorsby, was given to the oldest mother, Mrs. Glennie Phillips, and the youngest mother, Mrs. Gene Wyatt.

Dr. Miller spoke on the subject, "Mother," and there were many features such as singing the old time songs the older mothers sang when they were children. Also testimonies giving tributes to Mother.

Friday, Jan. 15th, 9:30 Cottage Prayer Meetings. 7 P. M. Military night when all ex-service men of the county will attend. Sermon, subject: "A Question God Cannot Answer."

Saturday P. M., 2:30 Mass Meeting for everybody. 7:00 P. M. Evangelist Miller will speak at the Walnut Creek Methodist Protestant Church.

Sunday, Jan. 17th, Great Closing Day. 2:30 P. M. Mass meeting for everybody. Sermon, subject: "The Second Coming of Christ and Some of Present Day Evidences That It May Be Near at Hand."

7:00 P. M. Closing sermon. Subject: "What Is The Unpardonable Sin."

Mrs. Kicker is doing splendid work as director of Prayer meetings and each morning six or more meetings are being held with a large group at each one. These prayer meetings are a source of great power and Dr. Miller is much interested that they may continue to increase in attendance and also wishes them to continue after the meetings close, at least once each week, indefinitely.

The Standardized Elementary School

Jemison And Clanton Classified Last Year As "B" Schools

The plan for the classification of elementary schools in Alabama is the outcome of a co-operative effort on the part of the State Department of Education and the Alabama Education Association. It represents the composite thought of many teachers, supervisors, and administrators as to how elementary schools may be improved.

The plan of standardization divides the standard schools into 4 groups according to merits of the schools scored: Class A, B, C, D. In every school system where an attempt is made toward standardization of the elementary schools, a committee is appointed according to the regulations which guide in such a program throughout the state. Such committee has been appointed in this county school system. The principals, P.-T. A.'s, and others interested, have already begun to seek the advice of the committee in reference to requirements for standardization of their respective schools. The state bulletin 1932, No. 2 reads as follows: The county or city school superintendent appoints a committee on elementary school standardization in his school system. Preferably, this committee is composed of a high school principal, an elementary school principal, an elementary school teacher, an elementary school supervisor, and the superintendent himself. After this committee familiarizes itself with the whole Alabama plan of elementary school standardization, its members visit, inspect, and advise when requested to do so by local school officials. Within the month of March each school applying for classification is visited, checked and scored by this committee on standardization. This final check and score determines a school's rating until March of the following year."

Letters To The Editor

MORE THANKS NEEDED

o

Verbena, Ala., Jan. 12, 1932.

Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you please give space in your paper for the following words:

Do we often enough give thanks for the multitude of good people in the world? Paul's letters are full of expressions of joy in his Christian friends. Many of them he saw very seldom, but he rejoiced to know they were there. The same with us in this time of great need. How thankful we should be for the revival that is being held in our county, and the good men who are making it possible. Those of us who can not attend can think of it and pray for it and feel the fire. I know for I am already feeling it.

JESUS AND NICODEMUS
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Make much use of the incidents in the other Gospels as you proceed thru the life of Christ. John, however, has no less than 92% peculiarities and records only 8% of what is stated in the Synoptics-Matthew, Mark and Luke. We are especially thankful about the Nicodemus conference, which is given by John only.

Last week special attention was called to the 'Win One" plan of campaign and here we have an example of the way it works as Jesus had this very personal conference with Nicodemus the Pharisee at night. He went then, but not because he was afraid to go during the day. He was bold enough in pleading for Jesus before the Sanhedrin, Luke 7:45-52.

Nicodemus accorded the title of Rabbi to Jesus, thereby acknowledging that He was a Teacher worth seeking out. The question at stake was the problem that is still vital in the life of everyone. How can personal salvation be obtained? Jesus lifted the query out of all material relationship and declared that there must be a spiritual incarnation as He, the Saviour, entered vitally into the very heart life of each individual. Though it might not be understood mechanically it could be experienced spiritually. It is a miracle and an illustration is given from Israel's history as that incident is made a prophecy of His own crucifixion wherein atonement was effected. As the serpent was lifted up in the wilderness for the cure of those who would look to live, even so must Christ be impaled on the cross at Calvary. The fuller explanation is given in the comprehensive miniature Gospel, John 3:16.

CHILTON WINS 3RD AND 4TH STRAIGHT

The Chilton County High quintet won its third straight victory Friday when they met and defeated the strong Isabella five in a close game, 20 to 19. The visitors never had a lead during the game, but rallied in the last minute when Littlejohn, the only lettered man to return, had been hurt and removed and Arnold also removed for personals. Arnold was high scorer, getting eight points in the first half.

On Tuesday night the Chilton quintet met and defeated the fast Maplesville five by a score of 15 to 8. Clanton was not behind in the entire game. Popwell, a newcomer, seemed to be the high scorer, getting six points. Tucker was the high man for Maplesvilie.

AN ORDINANCE

An Ordinance to prohibit any person or persons driving or operating any automobile, motor truck, motor vehicle, wagon, buggy or other vehicle and to prohibit any pedestrian walking along, across or over any street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, or at any intersection of a street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, wherever an automatic traffic signal is located, suspended or installed, and against the red light of said signal, whenever the red light of said automatic traffic signal is lighted or burning; and to prohibit any automobile, motor truck, motor vehicle, wagon, buggy or other vehicle to make a complete or "U" Turn at or on any street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama or at any intersection of a street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, wherever a sign or signal is posted or located by the proper authorities of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, prohibiting said complete or "U" Turn; and to prescribe and fix a penalty for failing to comply with the provisions of this Ordinance:

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF CLANTON, ALABAMA, AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to drive or operate any automobile, motor truck, motor vehicle, wagon, buggy or other vehicle or for any pedestrian to walk along, across or over any street or avenue or at any intersection of a street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, wherever an automatic traffic signal is located, suspended or installed against the red light of said signal whenever the red light of said automatic traffic signal is lighted or burning; provided further that the provisions of this Section shall not apply whenever said automatic signal is not being operated, or is not in operation.

Section 2: That it shall be unlawful for any automobile, motor truck, motor vehicle, wagon, buggy or other vehicle to make a complete or "U" Turn at or on any street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, or at any intersection of a street or avenue in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, wherever any sign or signal is posted or located by the proper authorities of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, prohibiting said complete or "U" Turn.

Section 3: That any person or persons who shall violate the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $1.00 nor more than $100.00 or be sentenced to hard labor for the Town of Clanton for a period not exceeding six months, one or both, or a suspension of license to drive a motor vehicle for a period of not more than six months at the discretion of the officer trying the said offense.

Read, adopted and approved this the 13th day of January, 1932.

J. LEE SMITH, Mayor.

"His Satanic Majesty, The Devil" Is Title Of Book Written By Pastor Of Methodist Church

The title, "His Satanic Majesty, The Devil," runs true to name throughout the booklet, written by Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church. This book is just off the press with neat cover, containing twenty-seven pages.

In this book Dr. Haskew has pictured the devil, not as a visionary force in the world, and not as a frightful devil, but as a fascinating personality. In his dealing with the subject, Dr. Haskew brings the words "His Satanic Majesty, The Devil" out clearly, showing his subject from its origin.

Copies of this book are on sale at the Southern Seed & Plant Co., of which Evan Parrish is manager, at ten cents per copy. It is not difficult to read and is interesting throughout. In this book, Dr. Haskew does not adhere to his denomination, but deals entirely with what is commonly known as right and wrong, and the temptations, manners, etc., used by the evils.

NEW DRESSES FROM OLD AT SMALL COST

Auburn, Ala., Many old dresses and coats have found their ways into the wardrobes of today in numerous attractive guises. The ingenuity of their owners enabled them to utilize old garments in making new ones at very little cost.

Through demonstrations by home demonstration agents and Miss Dorothy Dean, extension clothing specialist, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, farm women are learning practical methods of remodeling and renovating old garments, making them look like new.

At a leader training meeting in Coffee County a child's coat was made from a pair of trousers, another coat from an out-of-date coat. Ten women of Etowah County reported a saving of $73.24 by remodeling clothing. In Dallas County every old hat found was brought out, cleaned, made over into latest models and reblocked. Mrs. Annette Breeden, home demonstration agent, sponsored the hat-making project which saved club members approximately $200.

Proper methods of dry cleaning have been demonstrated at club meetings, Miss Dean says, which resulted in giving new life to many old garments. Women from three counties report a saving of $134.20 on articles dry cleaned at home.

By proper cleaning methods, variation in style, new trimmings or remaking into garments for other members of the family, every woman can have an up-to-date wardrobe at very little cost.

Miss Dean suggests that in remodeling clothes the following points should be considered:

Can the garment be adapted to present styles? For which member of the family can it be used? Is the material good enough to justify new trimmings? Is the garment needed?

FEAR IS OUR WORST FOE

When the economic crash came in the fall of 1929 there were logical reasons for it to a certain extent, but not to the extent which panic-stricken speculators and others imagined. It is true that values had been inflated beyond reason, there had been over-production and over-buying, but calmness and sound judgment might have prevented the disaster which followed in the wake of a paralyzing fear which suddenly seized business and industry.

Now, with everything thoroughly deflated, production drastically curtailed, and millions in need of commodities which they can not earn the money to buy, fear still keeps capital hoarded away instead of being used to start the wheels of industry going again.

The unemployed can not buy; the employed will buy only necessaries, because of fear of losing their jobs, the manufacturer fears to borrow to resume operations because of the lack of a market; the banker probably would not lend anyway, through fear that the manufacturer would fail. Thus operates the vicious circle.

Yet, with an ever increasing population, the material needs of the country are greater than ever; intrinsic values have not been wiped out; forest, field and mine are ready to yield nature's gifts; factory and market place are prepared to function as before—but fear keeps timid though abundant capital from putting willing hands to work.

That such a situation should continue to exist simply doesn't make sense. Its continuance is a grave indictment against the thing we call civilization.

Brief News Notes

The iron ore mined in the United States in 1931, exclusive of ore that contained 5 per cent or more of manganese in the natural state, is estimated by the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce, at 31,068,000 gross tons, a decrease of 47 per cent as compared with that mined in 1930.

A news item from Amsterdam (Holland) says that the bulb industry of that country is confronting a gloomy situation. Disturbances of the financial and money systems of the different countries—especially European nations—is their main cause of the bulb troubles.

Next Saturday, January 16th, the 12th birthday of prohibition, will be celebrated by the drys all over the country.

The Anti-Saloon League of America will hold its 25th Convention at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington from the 15th to the 19th inclusive. Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of Birmingham will be one of the two keynote speakers having for his theme "The Position of the Southern Democrats in 1932."

Other delegates from Alabama are Rev. J. R. Hobbs, President of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League, J. Bibb Mills, Superintendent of the Alabama League, Hon. F. M. Jackson, Rev. L. E. Barton, Secretary of the Baptist State Mission Board, Rev. Eugene L. Crawford, Hon. Watt T. Brown, Hon. Ira Champion, Rev. M. E. Lazenby and Rev. L. L. Gwaltney.

The Alabama Anti-Saloon League at its recent Annual meeting held in Birmingham reviewed the work of the past year and outlined a more aggressive and intensive plan of organization for the coming year. They passed strong resolutions stating the position of the League on the question of a Referendum on prohibition which is being advocated by Mr. Rackob and other leaders of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and also that it would be the policy of the League to support only those candidates for public office who are known to be opposed to the repeal, modification or a referendum of the prohibition laws.

YANKEES IN THE SOUTH

What the people of the North and South really thought of each other during the years following the Civil War has been the subject of much discussion. An unusual story in this connection is told by Ed Howe of Kansas in his Monthly:

About the year 1880 the general land agent of the Illinois Central railroad visited Vicksburg for the purpose of putting through a land deal which was considered to be desirable for that city, as well as for the railroad. Naturally he expected to be cordially received.

He was accompanied by his wife and a party of friends in his private car. Strolling about the streets at night they were approached by a man who said he was the chief of police; that he desired to warn them that the people were opposed to their visit and he advised them to retire to their hotel and keep out of sight, which they did.

Later the same man called upon the land agent and further advised him to take his party to their car and leave town by the first train. He also suggested that they leave the hotel by the rear, so as not to be observed. Frightened by these warnings, the party did as they were told. On the way out they passed through the dark dining room, where movements of feet added to their fear.

Then the dining room was suddenly lighted up, revealing many ladies and gentlemen of Vicksburg seated at a banquet table. The guests were invited to join in the banquet, which had been arranged in their honor.

The warning had been a joke. Southern hospitality had been again vindicated.

The chapter held its regular meeting in the Agriculture Building Wednesday, Jan. 6. Sydney Griffin gave a talk on the value of electricity on the farm. This is a splendid subject because we know that in the near future most farms will be served by electricity. James Calfee gave us some important reasons why we should protect the forests. Both of these parts were rendered well. To inspire public leadership is one of the great aims of the F. F. A. and we feel that we are doing much along this line.

A good sum had been taken out of the treasury by social activities, but part of this has been replaced by the disposal of the corn and cotton which was grown on the project plot.

We have initiated several new members this year and we hope to soon have the Agriculture classes one hundred per cent. F. F. A.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor, Chilton County News:

We are asking for space in your paper to express our thanks to friends at Mitchell Dam, surrounding community and elsewhere, who were so kind as to lend us their assistance during the recent sickness and death of our darling baby boy. Without the help of our many friends, our bereavement would have been much greater to bear. We thank everyone for what you did, whether it was much or little.

PNEUMONIA IS CONTAGIOUS

By Dr. Christmas Seal

Pneumonia is catching! It is quite as contagious as typhoid fever. When a case of pneumonia appears there are two reasons why the patient should be isolated in the best room of the house. One is that he will get well more quickly if away from the disturbing influence of family matters, the other that he is less likely to give the disease to others, allowing it to "run through the family."

The "crisis" of pneumonia is a very important event. Usually it occurs from the seventh to the tenth day of illness, but may be delayed if complications occur. The crisis may end the disease in a single day, perhaps a single hour, taking away all pain and fever and leaving the patient to begin his convalescense. The Alabama Tuberculosis Association wishes to warn you that the wise patient convalesces very slowly. He realizes that he has had a hard fight directed against his heart and lungs, and that if he is ever to be "as well as ever" he must take several weeks (yes, weeks) to build up.

TEN MILES FROM BROADWAY

If a recent newspaper correspondent is to be believed, one of the most primitive settlements in America is only 10 miles from Broadway. It is on what is known as Sour Island, in the Hackensack Meadows of New Jersey.

This stellement, it is said, consists of 32 families, who have up to the present time lived without schools, churches, telephones, movies, running water, sidewalks or any modern conveniences.

All the inhabitants know of New York City, only 10 miles away, is the nightly glare of the electric lights in the sky. Once in a while some of them visit the nearby village of Secaucus to make a few purchases, but otherwise they are as remote from civilization as if they lived on an island in the South Seas.

Possibly they are as happy as the average New Yorker at that.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

When you read this church notice, I want you to ask yourself this question—"If the church is worth having, why should not I give to it my best?" There is not a man in Clanton who would be willing to burn our churches, and forsake the Christ whom we worship. Yes, you want prosperous churches, but you want the other fellow to produce them. Why not put yourself into the church and make the church what you want it to be?

We have Sunday School at 9:45 and preaching at 11:00 a.m. The night service will be at the Court House. Clanton would become a new City if the people here would take their church life seriously. One thousand years from now, you would give a billion dollars to have again your present opportunity. Come next Sunday and hear the message—"The peril and the privilege of opportunity!"

Suing a bath establishment in Cleveland for $15,000, Peter R. Fahey said the alarm clock didn't go off on time when he was taking an ultra-violet ray treatment.

During her marriage ceremony Judge Hanson of Mc Cook, Neb., asked Ethel Hayes if she would promise to support her husband and before he could correct his error the bride had consented.

For Circuit Judge

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the Office of Judge of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit of Alabama, composed of the Counties of Chilton, Autauga, and Elmore (to fill the unexpired term).

Subject to the action of the Democratic Primary of May 3 and June 14, 1932.

Your vote and influence in my behalf will be greatly appreciated.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

THE RAILROAD SITUATION AS PRESIDENT HOOVER VIEWS IT IN HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

This very clear statement by President Hoover of the problems which confront the management of American Railroads so closely parallels the statements by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and other great trunk line systems that it is here reproduced for public consideration. This statement made to Congress by President Hoover deserves the careful consideration, not only of Congress, but of every American citizen.

Railways

"The railways present one of our immediate and pressing problems. They are and must remain the backbone of our transportation system. Their prosperity is interrelated with the prosperity of all industries. Their fundamental service in transportation, the volume of their employment, their buying power for supplies from other industries, the enormous investment in their securities, particularly their bonds, by insurance companies, savings banks, benevolent and other trusts, all reflect their partnership in the whole economic fabric. Through these institutions the railway bonds are in a large sense the investment of every family. The well-maintained and successful operation and the stability of railway finances are of primary importance to economic recovery. They should have more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs."

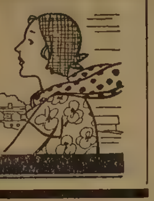
Rowena Rides the Rumble



By Ethel Hueston

SEVENTH INSTALMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rawena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter by eating to economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel loungers.

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, that'll fix us up just fine," said Peter gratefully. "Thanks very much. Here you are, Rowena, a la Biltmore."

"It will do for you both with a little squeezing," said the farmer's wife pleasantly. "Jim and I camp on one the same size."

"So-so it will," said Rowena. "Lots of room."

"Make your bed close to the fire," said Farmer Jim. "Turns cold up here nights."

"And don't get nervous if you hear things wriggling around," called some one else. "Sometimes the rattlers go crawling around nights like this."

"Peter," whispered Rowena, "perhaps—perhaps after all—you had better—sleep on the edge of the mattress—the farthest edge. After all, I suppose we're as good as married. And—I should'nt like to have you bitten by a rattler."

Peter laughed at her.

When all the others had said good night and gone away to their beds, he spread one of the blankets on the mattress, and rolled up his coat to make a pillow for her.

"I'll just lie here on the grass beside you," he whispered, "and they'll never know the difference."

"Good thing it's dark!"

"Are you comfortable, Rowena?"

"Oh, it's perfectly wonderful.—You take your coat, Peter. You will be cold on the ground with just that one thin rug."

"Nonsense. Why, I'm snug as a bug. Snugger, for that matter. Isn't this great? Isn't it just corking?"

"B-better than last night, isn't it?"

"Well, rather.—Better than almost any night I ever saw."

Slowly the full night settled over the mesa and a crescent moon rode high. Little night sounds echoed loudly in the great silence. Owls hooted. A coyote whined. Now and then a wolf barked in the distance. Little footed creatures scurried past them in the grass. Suddenly Peter felt a little shiver in the blanket roll on the mattress beside him. He touched it gently with his hand. Rowena was noiselesly sobbing in the darkness. He put his arm over her and pulled himself up until his lips were close to her ear—so close that a little bronze perfumed curl touched his face.

"Don't be afraid," he whispered softly.

"I'm not afraid."

"Please don't cry."

"I'm not crying. I just feel sorry."

"Because I smashed the car?"

"No. Because you are so nice, Peter, and it is so awful to hate a nice person so very, very much."

Peter laughed. "If that's all, cheer up. It should comfort you to know that at least there's no love lost between us." He patted the blanket kindly.

"And I really do admire you, Peter, for ever so many things. Nobody else in the world could ever make me half as mad as you do. Really, you're just wonderful."

One slender hand wriggled out from under the blanket and felt about until it found his, which closed over it warmly. It was hours later when she fell asleep.

Although Peter awakened very early the next morning, almost before the dawn of pale gray light, he found the big farmer standing near and looking down upon them with a quizzical, friendly grin.

Peter got up rather shamefacedly, dropping his blanket on Rowena's mattress, and the two men strolled down for a look at the river.

"Don't begin wrong, youngster," said the farmer kindly. Don't make life too easy for 'em right at first. Let 'em have their share of the hard knocks. Does 'em good."

"Sh-she's not very well," said Peter, floundering desperately for a suitable excuse. I—want her to be—careful."

"Oh, is that the lay of the land, eh?" The man was cordially interested. "Golly, I hope that wetting didn't hurt her. She's got spunk, that one. You should 'a'told my wife. She'd 'a' give you a hot-water bottle and a nip of whiskey."

"I think she'll be all right," said Peter uncomfortably.

"You better take these rough roads a bit easier, youngster. You passed us yesterday like a streak o' greased lightening. Bumps is the worst thing for 'em. We lost one that way."

"Uh—that so? Too bad," stammered Peter awkwardly.

The flood had subsided over night and barely a foot of water now trickled over the rocks where the torrential flood had rushed. Camp on the mesa was quickly broken. Breakfast was hurriedly prepared and hurriedly eaten. Cars were loaded, children and dogs collected, for all were anxious to take to the road at the earliest possible moment. But the big farmer, although himself as eager as the next to be off, put a peremptory veto on the suggestion that it would be sufficient for them to send a trouble car back for Peter and Rowena, leaving them a supply of food for emergency.

"We can't leave them kids up here alone in the fix the're in," said the farmer firmly. "It's his wife,"—with a broad wink.—"Wouldn't be fair noway."

So the men fell to with right good will. Half of them down in the river pried and tugged and pulled at the car while the others up on shore worked with pulleys and ropes and chains, and at last a great cheer went up as the Rackruff rose slowly, groaning, over the rocks and was drawn inch by inch up the side of the arroyo.

Both Peter and Rowena were profuse in their gratitude.

"You're just wonderful," said Rowena. "I never knew that people could be so kind." And there were tears in her lovely blue eyes, and something of a quiver stirred the pleasant voice, just because she was so glad to learn that the people of earth were so very good.

And they smiled at her and told her to take good care of herself and not get "run down," and with many such friendly farewells and admonitions the caravan forded the dwindling creek and wound off over the mesa behind the hills. But before the Kansas farmer and his wife had gone far they turned back and pulled up beside the dripping roadster. The woman got out and went close to Rowena.

"You mustn't catch cold, child," she said in a confidential voice. "Your clothes are pretty short and pretty thin. It gets awful cold evenings up here in this high altitude and you're not dressed for it. Now you take this little wool blanket and soon as you feel the cold coming on, you bundle yourself all up snug in it. It's old, but it's all wool and warm as toast. You mind now. Catching cold is the very worst thing you can do."

Rowena thanked her and promised to be very careful and not catch cold whatever she did, and then stood high on a boulder waving the blanket after the farmer's car until it rounded the hill and disappeared. Then she turned to Peter with a puzzled air.

"Aren't they all queer?" she asked wonderingly. I don't look sickly or anything, do I? They seem to have a complex on catching colds out here. And what difference does it make if I do get tired? Everybody gets tired, don't they?"

Peter was working very hard on the car at that moment and mumbled something quite indistinguishable about not knowing what it was all about.

"Well, of course, they meant well," declared Rowena. "And I'll be careful to please them. But I do hope I'm not beginning to look anemic or anything."

A day of ecstatic, heavenly calm followed. Peter worked on the car. Finally they got under way again.

At last in the early evening when they approached the town where they had agreed to spend the night, Rowena put her hand on his arm in tender appeal.

"Peter," she said gently, "I do realize how very embarrassing it is though I dare say you don't believe it. How would it do for us to go in separately and register each for himself? I could go in first and ask for a single room and go right on up, and they wouldn't even know we came together."

Peter turned it over reflectively. On the whole it seemed the best way out. Certainly anything was beter than their first experience. So when they pulled up to the hotel Rowena stepped quickly out with her bag and hurried up to the desk. She asked for a single room, registered 'Miss Rowena Rostand, New York City," and was taken up-stairs. Peter, meanwhile, put the car in the garage and then sat on the veranda half an hour with a cigarette and a paper. When at last he ventured in to the desk his request for a single room aroused no undue interest, and he was handed a key and a telegram. The telegram was from Messrs. Rack and Ruff, written by the former but signed by both to make it more official. He read it and then inquired if a Miss Rostand had registered at the hotel. Upon being told that she had and was in her room, he called her on the telephone and asked her to come down to the lobby.

"I have a wire from the Company," he explained, "and I think you had better see it."

"Did you get a room O.K.?" she whispered.

"Yes. Everything's jake—but this."

Rowena read the telegram.

"The red-headed persecution," it said, "just came in to announce that all is forgiven. Says the chaperon left you at Denver and is on her way back to New York. What do you mean by continuing alone? Entirely against our orders and our wishes. If facts are as stated, please consider contract canceled. Send Miss Rostand to New York by first train and you bring car back immediately."

Peter looked quite worried about it all, but Rowena laughed gaily.

"Tish, tosh, and even tush," she said brightly. 'It's nothing. They don't know we're married. Come on—let's give them the low-down on it."

So they went to the telegraph desk and with a great deal of laughter and many foolish suggestions and much scratching out of words they finally worked out an announcement to their satisfaction.

"Everything's jake with us. We were married in Denver. Who wants a chaperon on a honeymoon? Cody tomorrow night. Love and kisses from Peter and Rowena Blande."

This dispatched, and pretty well pleased with themselves on the whole, they got into the elevator and went up to their rooms.

Their tour of the park was uneventfully delightful, auspiciously free from embarrassing complications.

"Isn't everything turning out just gorgeously?" demanded Rowena.

But Peter and Rowena had not yet come into the fulness of their emotional experience. They left the park by the northern route. They went to Butte and Helena, and all was well. They started for Spokane. A succession of untroubled days had given them new confidence and they were sure their worries lay all in the past. They pulled up to the hotel in Spokane without inner qualm or morbid presentiment.

Peter asked for two singles and signed the register. The clerk looked at the names and smiled broadly.

"Oh, how do you do?" he exclaimed cheerfully. "Just a moment, please."

EQUALITY of taxation was one of the fundamental principles of the American government. The levying of special taxes is a serious departure from that principle.

Special taxes paid by fire insurance companies amount to more than 5 per cent of the premiums paid by policyholders.

Less than a million dollars of the 30 million dollars in special taxes is used by the states for the supervision of fire insurance.

ton. The light was placed at the most dangerous crossing in Clanton, and is not only an aid to elderly persons, but children may feel safe in crossing the street, provided they watch this light and follow the instructions.

To those who are not familiar with the use of the traffic lights, the city officials have asked the News to point out the meaning of the three colored lights. When the red light is showing on the side of the street you are on, then you are to stop before entering the crossing and wait until the green light shows in your direction. The yellow light is merely to warn you that the light is going to change, and shines each time the light changes from red to green, or green to red. In other words, don't cross the street unless the green light is facing you. If you are driving a car and wish to make either a right or left hand turn at the crossing, then you must wait for the green light also. Autoists will not be allowed to make a complete turn at the crossing where this light has been installed. You will note the little sign under the lights, which reads "No U Turn."

This light not only is placed there to regulate vehicle traffic, but also regulates pedestrians.

Beginning next Friday, according to Chief of Police J. R. Hardy and Officer W. B. Foshee, they have been instructed to enforce the rules of traffic in accordance with the new traffic signal light, and those violating these regulations will be brought before city court, it was stated. The ordinance in regard to this is being published in this issue of the News.

Thorsby Institute News

Friday morning at chapel Mrs. Maddox, Commercial teacher at Thorsby Institute, gave an interesting talk on the history of Shorthand. After this she dictated at the board to Ella Howard who wrote in Shorthand and to Mary Ruth Nix who wrote in longhand at the same time. This showed how much longer it takes to write a letter in Longhand than in Shorthand.

Friday night a group of pupils and teachers from Thorsby Institute attended the Revival meeting held in the Court House at Clanton under the direction of Dr. Miller, evangelist. The pupils and teachers sang the "Alma Mater" as a special number.

Next Saturday night, January 16, the Helen Keller Literary Society of Thorsby Institute will have an open meeting to which the public is invited. The program will consist of Mexican and Indian legends, Mexican and Indian music, a Spanish folk dance and an Indian Pantomine. Everyone is invited. Admission ten cents.

Clanton's New Traffic Light As Seen By Doug

that it's going to change to the red, or green or vice versa, or something. And when the green light shows on your side of the street, that means you can go across.

But I can't get used to that thing to save my life, because sometimes it looks like a car is going to keep right on coming when the light is on red, and I almost have a conniption fit, trying to get out of the way. But I know the car is supposed to stop—and can't make up my mind whether the car knows that or not.

I hear that starting Friday the cops are going to make folks do as the new light says do, and won't take any excuses that "I didn't see it" or "I thought it was on the green." No, I've got it figured out so you won't have to be bothered with the light. Just go a couple, or three blocks around and you'll miss the crossing where the light is. Here's another tip—when you approach the crossing, and have to stop, drive as far to the right as you can, then you won't have any trouble seeing the light from your car. Here's luck to you. It's all right to violate the law, but the idea is, don't get caught.—DOUG.

as it comes in an off political year, it is usually the warmest fight of the off-year in Alabama politics. Both Mr. White and Senator Darden are good campaign speakers. It is expected that Mr. White will make his race on his record with the Commission. On the other hand it is expected that Senator Darden will insist on reduction of certain rates and charges of public utilities.

Roosevelt Boom Gaining

Announcements continue to be made for the places of delegates at large to the next Democratic national convention that will be held in Chicago on June 27. An array of distinguished Alabamians have already announced and in every instance they have expressed themselves as preferring Franklin D. Roosevelt for president. Already W.W. Brandon, Judge Norville Leigh, A. H. Carmichael, William C. Fitts, L. J. Bugg and T. D. Samford have announced for delegate at large. There are eight of these places to fill with six already having announced.

Political interest continues to be fixed on the attitude of Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery, towards the place of Democratic national committeeman from Alabama. Judge McCord has announced his candidacy and let it go at that. In the meantime Borden Burr and Charles McDowell are actively in the race while the name of Watt Brown, incumbent committeeman continues to be mentioned. This race promises to be an interesting one before the voters go to the polls in May to decide their preference.

District Races Lagging

There have been few announcements so far for the places of delegates from the congressional districts. Forty of these are to be chosen, each with a half vote. There will be four delegates chosen from each of the 10 congressional districts in Alabama. It is expected that interest in these places will become greater now that the Democrats have selected Chicago as the place of meeting. Had the Democrats gone to San Francisco or some far Western city, interest in the honor would have been at a low ebb since most people find it impossible to take the time from their business to make such a long trip at such a great expense. But Chicago is only one day and night away from Alabama and the railroad fare to Chicago is not prohibitive for a great many people as it would have been had San Francisco been selected. A great deal of approval has been given the selection of Chicago by Alabama Democrats.

While Alabama will select a United States senator this year to succeed Senator Hugo Black, the only man who has been nominated for the place is Senator Black himself. He will ask the voters for the customary second term and his friends do not believe he will have opposition.

An array of offices will be filed in the 67 counties in Alabama and news coming to Montgomery indicates that there will be plenty of candidates in the various counties. Holding public office during the depression seems to appeal to a large number of people who would ordinarily not be interested in political preferment. —Atticus Mullin, in The Montgomery Advertiser.

unanimous in expressing its appreciation of the action of Gov. Miller in releasing the money, which enabled virtually all of the counties to meet a payroll for the teachers.

The meeting was called for a discussion of numerous school problems, it was said, with particular reference to the maintenance of the current budgets.

The obligations of the counties that have pledged warrants against the $900,000 equalization fund of the last school year, which are still outstanding and unpaid by the State were discussed at the meeting, and it was brought out that while other kindred funds in the special education trust fund of last year have been paid that no word had issued from the Capitol as to when it is likely that the equalization fund would be paid.

BETTER SPIRIT IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY LOCALLY

P. D. Wilson Elected Chairman Executive Committee At Meeting Tuesday

Optimism and harmony reigned supreme at the meeting of members of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee held in Clanton Tuesday morning, with several attending who were not members of the committee.

Several present arose and spoke in no uncertain terms of the high standard being maintained in the Democratic ranks, and the entire gathering agreed with Part Seven of the State Resolution as was adopted by the local executive committee. The fact that Democratic principles are gaining favor and the majority of power in the country is rapidly falling toward the Democratic ranks was brought out more than once, with a pull-together spirit showing up plainly among Democrats in this county.

Resolutions adopted by the State Democratic Executive Committee were read, and adopted by the meeting. The Democratic Primary is ordered to be held throughout the state on Tuesday, May 3, 1932. Several other matters were discussed and attended to.

Part Seven of the Resolutions reads as follows:

"7. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that, whereas, the Republican Party in control of the Government has signally demonstrated its unfitness to govern by enacting the highest tariff and by making the unenviable record of producing the highest number of unemployed, the highest treasury deficit, the highest number of bank failures, the highest number of business failures, the highest cost of government, the highest loss in government revenues and the highest wage loss to labor in the history of our nation;

"THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that we cordially invite and earnestly appeal to all Democrats and to all citi-

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE IS PLANNED HERE

Junior High School Tournament Will Be Held In Near Future

The committee appointed by the Jr. High School principals to arrange the schedule for Basket Ball games during this season met last Wednesday afternoon and completed the following schedule for the remaining half year.

The committee again urges that all games be met as per schedule to avoid disappointment and conflict of games. This schedule has been arranged to include all teams in the County League in equal match games and yet not inflict a direct burden on any one team. The committee requests that all goals be securely fastened to the backs, and that they be provided with nets.

The Junior High School Basket Ball Tournament for Chilton County will be held on Saturday, March 19th, at the Chilton County High School. Elimination will begin promptly at 9:00 A. M. The final game will be played at 8:00 P. M. that night.

EVENING SCHOOL MEETINGS ARE HELD AT PROVIDENCE

Prof. J. P. Montgomery, of Jemison, gives some good reports on evening schools held at Providence, Jemison, last week on the outlook work for the year. The outlook on cotton, strawberries, hogs, poultry, and dairy cattle was analyzed in detail at the three meetings held. The reports show that undoubtedly the farmers are planning a real Live-At-Home program first.

LOCAL THEATRE TO BRING A BIG PICTURE HERE

"King of Jazz" With Paul Whiteman Booked For Clanton, 22, 23

A cast of the greatest comedy stars from both the stage and screen appear in the hilarious comedy sketches of "King of Jazz," the Universal super-extravaganza starring Paul Whiteman and his band which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre, at Clanton on Friday and Saturday, January 22 and 23.

With Whiteman, Laura La Plante, Jeanette Loff, Glenn Tryon, Merna Kennedy, Kathryn Crawford, "Slim" Summerville and others from the screen, and Billy Kent, Grace Hayes, Frank Leslie, Charles Irwin, the Sisters G, George Chills, Jeanie Lang and other musical comedy and vaudeville stars from the stage, the clever sketches provide laughs between the spectacle numbers of the picture.

There are six of these sketches in the revue, all photographed in Technicolor and recorded in all-Movietone just as are the colorful song specialties and the musical spectacle numbers. Thus spec-

MISS ELIZABETH GRIFFIN WEDS MR. JAMES THOMAS IN B'HAM

Miss Elizabeth Griffin became the bride of Mr. James Thomas, of Birmingham, last Saturday afternoon when they were married in Birmingham at the home of Brother Bryan, at four o'clock.

The bride is well known in Clanton where she has been employed for sometime at Matt's Lunch Shoppe, as one of the most popular employees of this popular dining place. She is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Greene Griffin, a prominent family residing in the Enterprise community, south of Clanton.

Mr. Thomas is a promising young business man of Birmingham and is connected with one of the well known music concerns of that city, and has visited Clanton frequently. This young couple will make their home in Birmingham, where they are receiving congratulations from their many friends.

FREE TELEPHONE SERVICE ENDS AFTER FEBRUARY 1ST

The Board of Directors of the Peoples Telephone Company has set Monday, February 1st, as the last day on which telephone service will be given those who have not paid their fees. After that day, do not call central for admission through if you have not paid your fee.

The Board realizes that cash is short this year, but the central office cannot be run without some money. Many people have waited as long as possible about paying, which has made it hard to get along. So, everybody strain an extra point and pay your central fee. The office is going to operate regardless, but the more who pay, the better service can be given to everybody.—Jesse Baker, president; T. E. Wyatt, secretary; E. H. Mims, J. P. Jackson, and Jas. M. Robinson, Board of Directors.

WELCOME, OAK GROVE AND CONCORD

This week, the News extends its warm grip of welcome to the Oak Grove and Concord Correspondents. Thees two fine communities are represented in this issue of the News with a well written group of items of news. The News welcomes these correspondents into its fine family.

Register and Pay Poll Tax

The limit of time in which a person may register and pay poll tax, to become a qualified voter, is decreasing as each day passes. This is what is known as election year and all white persons who are of age owe it to themselves and their country to become voters.

Poll tax can be paid from now until February 1, 1932, only nine more days. The Board of Registrars of Chilton County will soon be in session at the courthouse in Clanton. See the notice in this issue of the News. If there is a question in your mind in regard to becoming a qualified voter, then get busy and see about it, as the time is drawing to a close.

Jemison Growers Elect Officers, Annual Meet

At a recent annual meeting of the Jemison Strawberry Growers Association, the following officers were elected: J. D. Sutley, president; W. I. Leslie, vice president; C. C. Cofer, L. G. Posey, J. T. Childress, directors; S. P. Shaw, Manare; J. P. Montgomery, recording secretary.

The association showed an increase of forty-nine members in the past twelve months and is looking forward to a continued growth and development in the future.

CLANTON RESIDENTS VIEW "OLD IRONSIDES" IN MOBILE

The famous old ship, "Old Ironsides" has been in dock for several days last week, and thousands of people went to the city to see the distinguished ship. Among those from Clanton who motored to Mobile to see "Old Ironsides" were Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Joe Hall Johnson and Leroy Baker.

Farmers Meeting To Be Held, Prattville

A farmers mass meeting is scheduled to be held in Prattville, Autauga County, on Friday, January 29th, according to an announcement received by the News this week.

This meeting is for the purpose of discussing the outlook for farming for 1932, and will be similar to the meeting held in Clanton last Friday. The meeting opens at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, January 29. Dinner is to be served for all white farmers by Prattville merchants. A feature of the day will be the blasting of forty stumps at one shot.

Other features are practical demonstrations of various farming jobs, and farmers are invited to attend this meeting.

JOSEPH LITTLETON DIED AT HIS HOME NEAR JEMISON

Joseph Littleton, age 72, one of the oldest residents in the Jemison section, died at his home last Thursday. Funeral services were held on the following Saturday at Union Grove, Spigener of Clanton in charge. The deceased is survived by his widow and several children.

Funeral services were held on the following Sunday afternoon at the home. Interment took place in the Pine Hill cemetery, with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. He is survived by his widow and several children.

Fifteen Arrests Are Reported By Sheriff

There are fifteen persons docketed on the books of the sheriff of this county, who were arrested during the past few days, according to information from the office of the sheriff.

These arrests include two for vagrancy, four for violating the prohibition law, two for disturbing public assembly, one for burglary and grand larceny, three for public drunkenness, one for driving a car without license, one for assault and battery and one for desertion and non-support.

C. L. WILKINS HAS OATS RIPENING IN FIELD NOW

As more evidence that the weather that has been prevailing lately is bringing forth blossoms and buds, is the fact that oats are ripening in the field of C. L. Wilkins, who resides on Verbena, Route One, in the Enterprise Community. This is very rare for this time of year. Mr. Wilkins was in town Monday.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT COUNTY LINE SCHOOL, 22ND

There will be a regular old-time fiddlers convention at the County Line Schoolhouse, eight miles west of Maplesville on Friday night, January 22, according to an announcement made this week.

Prizes are to be awarded to the fiddlers, and a cordial invitation is extended to all fiddlers to attend this get-to-gether. Admission will be ten cents. Proceeds go to the school.

LITTLE BETTY CALDWELL DIED IN JEMISON MONDAY

Betty, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caldwell, died at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Conway, in Jemison last Monday. The Caldwell's home is in Cordova, Ala.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, with Rev. W. P. Lowery, officiating. Interment took place in the Union Grove cemetery. She is survived by a small sister, and her parents.

Who Has The Oldest Piece Of Silver Or Gold Money In Chilton County?

A week or so ago, someone showed the News some old coins in United States money, a story was published about it, and then someone else shows up with a perfectly good piece of silver money still older. Now comes Horsley White, of the Nehi Bottling Co., of Clanton with a fifty-cent coin, dated 1812, making the coin 120 years old.

Week before last, Loren Smith, at Upchurch Drug Company, had possession of four old fifty-cent pieces with the ages ranging in the nineties. Last week W. L. Williams, of Maplesville, Ala., Route Two, brought a half dollar to the News office bearing a date of 1830, making the coin 102 years old.

So far Horsley White of Clanton has the record, and will no doubt get the diamond studded mustache cup, or whatever the prize may be for the oldest coin of United States of America monies. Look through those old coins you have been saving, and see what you have in the way of old dates.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT MARBURY HIGH SCHOOL 29TH

Announcement was made this week stating that there will be a regular old time fiddlers convention held at the Marbury High School Auditorium on Friday night, January 29th.

All fiddlers and other musicians and those who are not musicians are cordially invited to attend this convention. Prizes are to be awarded to those fiddlers who are adjudged the best. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents.

SEVERAL ARE INJURED OVER CO. RECENTLY

Two Sent To Local Hospital With Broken Limbs, Other Injuries Reported

Several persons were injured over the county during the past several days, some seriously and others receiving only minor hurts.

Rother Culp, of Coopers, was rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital last Monday, suffering with a badly broken arm, and fractured skull, cuts and bruises.

Willie Bavar, who resides on Clanton Route Three, was brought to the local hospital with a badly cut hand last Tuesday. Ocie Williams, of near Billingsley, is in the hospital in Clanton with a broken left leg.

Culp was injured when the mule he was driving to a wagon, became frightened at an automobile, and ran away, damaging the wgon and putting Culp in a serious condition. Reports, from the hospital yesterday morning stated that he was resting as well as could be expected in his condition.

Bavar received his cut hand while cutting wood at his home. Williams' leg was broken when a mule kicked him last Saturday. Dr. W. L. Parrish, veterinarian of Clanton, was also kicked by a mule recently, and received a broken arm.

Mrs. O. D. Walker of Thorsby was rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital in a Martin's ambulance Monday, for an immediate minor operation. Latham Wilson, of near Clanton was also in the hospital here, having undergone an appendicitis operation.

Several other minor accidents, causing slight injuries were reported in the county over the week end.

AMON JONES SAYS YOU HAD BETTER COME AND GET IT

Amon Jones, one of the members of the Farmers Hardware Company, of Clanton, says someone left a box in the hardware store sometime ago, and said they would call for it later.

So far, no one has called for the box which contained some wearing apparel, and Amon says if they don't come and get it, he will just fall heir to the contents. The owner can have the box and contents by seeing Mr. Jones at the hardware store.

TATE ENTERS RACE AGAINST ARTHUR GLOVER

Atkinson Will Not Enter; Expresses Appreciation For Confidence

The place of Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit is now being sought by two candidates who have already made their formal announcements, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held in May. Arthur Glover, attorney of Wetumpka, Ala., made his formal announcement as a candidate last week.

Elsewhere in this issue appears the formal announcement of Judge Loyd Tate, as a candidate for the office of judge of the 19th judicial circuit, composed of the counties of Chilton, Elmore and Autauga.

Mr. Tate was in Clanton the early part of the week, shaking hands with his friends, and his statements appear fair and clear. He served as solicitor of this circuit for twelve years, and served as attorney general, being appointed to that office by Gov. Henderson. He was also supernumerary judge in the state. Judge Tate has practiced law in Wetumpka for something like seventeen years. At present; Judge Tate is serving as judge of this circuit, filling the place of Judge George F. Smoot, who died recently.

In a statement made public Tuesday, Hon. J. B. Atkinson, attorney, of Clanton, said that he would not be a candidate for the office of circuit judge, although friends have been seeking to get him to enter the race.

Mr. Atkinson stated that he deeply appreciated the confidence in him expressed by his friends over the counties comprising the 19th judicial circuit, and wished to thank them for their kind statements and remarks in trying to get him to announce as a candidate at this time. As soon as the news of the death of Judge Smoot was heard, Mr. Atkinson's name became linked with the first possible successors to the office.

COUNTY-WIDE REVIVAL ENDS HERE SUNDAY

Approximately 300 Decisions Attributed To Splendid Work Of Preacher

The revival which has been going on in Clanton for the past two weeks, known as one of the Bob Jones Revivals, and conducted on a county-wide basis, closed last Sunday night.

Since the beginning of this great revival of all denominations, the number attending each service took more than a gradual increase each night, and the third night of the revival brought forth a record crowd which continued to increase each night thereafter.

At the closing meeting last Sunday night, the courthouse auditorium was overflowing long before the hour set for the service to begin, and even the evangelist, Elmer C. Miller, had trouble making his way to the pulpit, due to the people trying to get seats. Many were turned away, and stood outside the building during the service.

Approximately three hundred decisions were received during the course of the revival, both new and renewals. Evangelist Miller brought to the people of this section some of the most outstanding sermons heard here in many years, and the crowds he drew to each service, bore evidence of his splendid manner of delivering his messages in a clear, easily understood manner.

The good done through the work of Evangelist Miller, who comes from South Bend, Ind., and his sermons will never be known, as the scope he covered throughout the county is so vast and covering. Truly, this revival just closed, was all that it could have been.

Letters To The Editor

H. B. OLIVER WRITES ON SCHOOL SITUATION

Editor, Chilton County News:

The teachers and bus drivers of the county were called to Clanton some time ago and were asked to say whether or not they were willing to teach the remainder of the school year without a definite pay day. The vote was practically unanimous to continue. That was fine; showed that our teachers—the majority needing the pay for their work—were willing to make the sacrifice.

But, Mr. Editor, has anyone heard of a call by Dr. Harman to all officials and employees in the Educational Department to meet in his office in the city of Montgomery and decide as to whether this meeting would be as loyal and self-sacrificing as those attending the first meeting, and leave their pay in the treasury until such time as all could share in the pay-roll?

Another thing, why don't the factions of a political party in this county settle their differences so that the common people may have what they are justly entitled to?

H. B. OLIVER.

Verbena, Ala., Jan. 19, 1932.

FROM J. C. EDWARDS

Editor, Chilton County News:

We see that it is recorded in God's Word that Noah lived in the world that was destroyed by water, and then in this world a few years and died. Noah's Ark was a type of Christ. Noah was saved from drowning by being in the ark and he was one of the faithful ones spoken of in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. God has caused to be recorded in his word a brief history of a certain class of loyal and faithful men who lived and died before the coming of Christ Jesus in the flesh. The record begins with Abel and runs thru the list, including all the faithful prophets, of which John the Baptist was the last, before Jesus (Heb. 11:1-32). Those men, although faithful unto death can not be members of the kingdom or government, because they all died before the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ must be first and have preeminence over all. Such is the will of God expressed (Col. 1:18). The value of His perfect sacrifice must first be presented in heaven as a sin-offering before any man could be invited into the covenant for the kingdom. Jesus said concerning John the Baptist, among them that are born of woman there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist, notwithstanding he that is least in the gingdom of heaven is greater than he (Matt. 11:11)

These words are proof that John the Baptist is not of the royal government, the kingdom of heaven. John occupied the great and distinguished position of being the forerunner of Christ, and if he should have a place as a member of the kingdom, then manifestly he would not be the least. All those faithful heroes had faith that God in his due time would establish a kingdom or government of righteousness. Having such faith some of them even left their own country and went into a strange land to be witnesses for God. This they did voluntarily. They could have returned to their own land and placed themselves under the government of the world had they so desired. Their desire was for a better country, or government, for God prepared for them a city Heb. 11:15-16.

God promised Abraham that through his seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed. The seed of Abraham according to the promise is the anointed. The Christ, the kingdom or government of God composed of Jesus and his body members. All the faithful before Christ will have a better resurrection than the world, for the world will only have the opportunity to accept or reject the blessings of restitution that is spoken of by all the Holy prophets. (Acts 3 chap.) So we see that the Bible speaks of three worlds, three glories and a third heaven. We see in the world to come that the Devil will not be allowed to deceive, for he will be bound for a thousand years. Those who seek meekness and righteousness may be hid in the day of the Lord's anger and be carried over and live in two worlds as Noah did. This evil one awhile and in the other forever, if obedient.

PITTS WRITES TO EX-SERVICE MEN

To the Ex-Service Men of Chilton County:

Much has been said in the daily papers of late regarding the punishment given an Ex-Service man by the name of Kirby, who violated the rules and regulations of the Convict Department, while a prisoner serving a sentence for larceny. Also much discussion has been had relative proposed "World War Veterans—Voters Union," that is being attempted to organize over the country, and which is seeking membership by letters sent out to all Ex Service men, which most of us have been receiving of late.

In my judgment, these two propositions deserve serious consideration by all Ex-Service men, and I am delighted to find from those of the county, including members of the American Legion local Post, whom I have discussed the matter with that the great majority of them are not in sympathy with either of the two propositions.

Kirby's criminal record demonstrates the fact that, not only has he violated the Criminal Statutes in this State, but show that he has served a previous sentence or two in the State Penitentiary in the State of New Jersey.

My American Legion Official Membership card, as all others I have seen, has the preamble to the Constitution printed on the back of same, which in part is as follows:

"We associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold the constitution of the United States of America; to maintain Law and Order, etc. . . "

Judging from the criminal record of Kirby he certainly has not been living up to that part of the constitution, and I personally can not see any reason why he with his criminal record should be placed upon a pedestal merely by reason of the fact that he happened to be an Ex Service man, who served his country during the World War, which was his only duty. Should the Ex Service men and the Legionairres be reasonable in their future requests and endeavor to keep out of petty politics in the State and Nation, our people will have the same degree of respect for us as they have had in the past. Just such publicity as a chosen few have caused in recent weeks will cause the state and nation in a large measure to lose a large part of the respect and admiration that has been ccorded the World War veteran.

Let each one of us inculcate a sense of individual obligation to our community, state and nation; maintain Law and Order, concentrate and sanctify our Comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

Let each one of us refrain from forming or joining the World War Veterans—Voters League, or any other political organization of similar character. Also let us refrain from making any unjust or unusual demands upon our State or National Government, by reason of any little service we may have rendered during the World War, which was our duty to render.

As long as we do this, I feel that we will be accorded the same respect and esteem by our people, that was accorded us when the Armistice was signed on Nov. 11th, 1918.

Respectfully yours,
PERCY M. PITTS.

WANTS HOOVER ENDORSER

Dear Editor Chilton County News:

When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn.

Dear reader, if we believe the Bible, we must acknowledge that the wicked are ruling. Let us take a glance at what The American Freeman, a weekly newspaper published at Girard, Kansas, has to say about our President, Mr. Hoover:

In 1904 Herbert Hoover was a slave dealer. For twenty years he was a thief on the highways of capitalist finance, using mining stocks and bonds as his dishonestly manipulated weapons. Exactly twenty-four years after his big deal in slave trading, Hoover was elected President of the United States. In 1932 this slave trader, financial swindler and stock juggling racketeer will ask the American people to re-elect him president of the United States.

Now, dear reader, is it not a fact that if the above statement was not true the editor who made the statement would be in prison? In this same paper Hoover is accused of being guilty of robbery. Robbery by lies; robbery by false promises; robbery by every trick a scoundrel could invent.

Let me ask have the common poor people become slaves under his administration as president of the United States. It seems to me that the only difference between us slaves today and the colored slaves before the Civil War is: The colored slave had a guardian who was responsible for him, and we slaves of today are slaves on our own responsibility.

I notice some of our politicians are calling for another Hoover administration. My fellow voters, what are you going to do? Are we going to let the little local cotton tail politician line us up and make us believe that the present administration is good enough for us and have us again elect Mr. Hoover President of the United States? NOT ME. Hoover will never get another vote of mine.

I believe we have some good righteous congressmen and senators, but not enough of them to have the millions and millions of bushels of wheat and bales of cotton that is stored away turned loose to feed and clothe the millions who are destitute of bread and clothes.

My fellow voters, can we, as Christians, and lovers of humanity, afford to let the little cotton tail politician influence us to support and continue the present administration? I say if we do slavery is all we deserve.

When the people demand justice and a righteous rule, they will get it, and not before.

I would be glad to hear from the person who endorses, and wants a continuation of the present administration of affairs.

Yours for a change,
A. A. JACKSON.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertisement stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companioate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel lougers. They wire the company they have been married.

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register.

He retired to an inner office and came back immediately with the manager of the house. The manager beamed upon them. He held out his hand, held out both hands, and his smile set his rosy face aglow. Rowena and Peter had their own opinions of hotel managers and accepted his friendly overtures with watchful coldness.

"Meeker's my name", said the manager genially. "And I'm proud to meet you."

They all shook hands, and Rowena nudged Peter to be very careful and not commit himself.

"Come right along with me," said Mr. Meeker. "We had a wire from the company not two hours ago saying you would be in today without fail. But I must say it is a relief to have you right here on the spot."

They all got into the elevator. The boy at the control smiled at them—a friendly smile. They got out on the fourth floor. A couple of maids were loitering in the corridor. Their faces lighted up with interest and attention.

"Everything ready?" asked the manager anxiously. "Everything all right, I hope."

"Oh, yes, sir," added the other. But they looked at Rowena and Peter.

The manager led the way down the corridor.

"Here you are folks," he announced in a voice of happy triumph as he threw open the door, "Our bridal suite!"

"Oh, look, Rowena! Isn't that nice?" said Peter fatuously.

"How lovely!" said Rowena faintly.

The bridal suite was a bower of roses. There was a heap of congratulory letters and telegrams piled high on the table and several conspicuous packages, wrapped in tissue and tied with ribbons, with gift cards prominently displayed.

"Congratulations, folks," said the manager, beaming rosily from one to the other. "Best wishes of Spokane, Washington.—Not bad, eh? Pretty fair!—Well, the Company wired us to spare no expense and send them the bill, and I guess we filled the order. We tried to, anyhow. Cigars, cigarettes, candy—and what-not. And"—this with a truly impressive double-jointed bow which included them both—"a little souvenir from the hotel, at our own expense, for we are honored to have you stop with us."

The little present, which he selected from the group on the table and handed to Rowena, who opened it with trembling fingers and an air of owlish gravity, proved to be an immense silver cocktail shaker, suitably engraved.

"Out here we're dry," said Mr. Meeker, with a sly wink. "But oh, you New Yorkers!—Compliments of the hotel, and congratulations," he added happily.

He and Peter shook hands, Peter very solemn, Mr. Meeker perspiring and jovial.

"Guess there's no harm in kissing the bride, eh?" said the manager, with a playful dig of a sharp elbow into Peter's ribs. "It's a custom I don't think much of, as a usual thing, but brides don't often come as pretty as this one."

Rowena obligingly lifted her lovely lips, and Mr. Meeker kissed her with resounding relish.

"Now, I'll tell you what the program is," he said cheerfully. "The local Rackruff dealer is going to give a big dinner dance in our ballroom tonight—especially in your honor— swell affair. They've invited all the Rackruff dealers and salesmen in the state, and they say a couple flew in from Oregon this morning on purpose to attend. It's to be a formal, full-dress affair, with souvenirs for the ladies and what-not. And this afternoon at four o'clock they're giving an open reception to the city in their public salesrooms, with afternoon tea and a band, and they've got a car all decorted up like a wedding for you two to sit in and receive the guests. And they're going to present the bride with orange blossoms sent up by aeroplane from California this morning, and a cigarette lighter for you, Mr. Blande, with a picture of the Rackruff roadster set on it in pearls. I've seen it myself and it's a beauty, but it wasn't working the day it came and they had to send it back to the factory."

"How extremely kind," said Peter.

"How perfectly sweet," said Rowena.

"Of course, you both being famous characters, authors and artists, all of our best people will turn out for it, and I understand most of our good clubs plan to be there en masse. The Rackruff dealers are all in a sweat over it and say it's the best break they've had since the war when the Army used a lot of their machines in France. They're coming for you at three-thirty.—Look. This little floral offering here came from them. Pretty nice, eh? We're going to borrow it tonight if you don't mind, to put down behind the orchestra in the ballroom. Pretty nifty!"

The little floral offering was an immense ring of yellow roses, with the words "Peter and Rowena" spelled out on the inner side in scarlet rosebuds.

"How marvelous," said Rowena soberly.

"How unusual!" added Peter.

"And now I'm going to leave you folks to rest and clean up for the big doings," said Mr. Meeker. "If there's anything you want, you just ask for it. And it won't cost you a cent. Well, guess I'll just kiss the bride," and be on my way."

"You did kiss the bride," Peter reminded him.

"Well, I'm partial to brides and I give good measure. It's a rule of the house," he said jovially.

And once more Rowena tilted her owlishly solemn face to be kissed.

When he had gone, and the door was closed and locked behind him, Peter looked at Rowena. Rowena looked at Peter. Both gazed in solemn stuperfaction around the flower-laden room.

"Of all the damn impositions—" he began.

But to his surprise, a sudden ripple of smiles drove the owlish gravity from Rowena's face. Laughter gurgled in her throat and burst from her lips in delighted peals.

"Peter, Peter!" she cried. "Isn't it priceless? Isn't it perfect? Darling, though I die tomorrow, I can say I had my moment!—Peter, look at the wedding-ring in yellow roses!—"Peter and Rowena."—Look at the little Cupids kissing on the candy box!—Oh, here are sarcastic telegrams from all my ex-boy-friends.—And Buddy, too," she added uneasily. "I suppose I should have warned him. How do you suppose they all found out?"

"Oh, I suppose those idiots put it in the papers," growled Peter. "Naturally they would try to sell cars at the expense of our feelings. We might have known they'd commercialize us to the last ditch."

"Oh, Peter. isn't it the corkingest day of your life? When Mr. Meeker, God rest his soul, stood here pointing things out, I kept telling myself, "Don't die, don't you dare die of ecstasy until you see this thing through!"

"You're an odd sort," said Peter moodily. "I thought you would be wild."

"Wild? Certainly not! Except with sheer delight.—Why, Peter, this is just an accident. Accidents never make me mad.—Oh, look, here's a present from Racky and Ruffy—a great big one.—Cut the string, Peter—break it—I can't wait!"

Ptetr broke the string. The present from Messrs. Rack and Ruff, and doubtless charged against dividends, was a complete service of solid silver for the well-laid table. Rowena was a little awed at its completeness and its obvious expensiveness.

"Gosh, Peter, whatever will we do with it?"

"Give it back," he said stiffly.

"Can't. It isn't good form. Even in a divorce it's bad manners to return your weddings presents.—I tell you! We'll divide it. After all, real silver always comes in handy and we can make use of it. We deserve some compensation for all the agony we've gone through, though as far as I am concerned, this hour has compensated for everything a hundred times over."

"You can have the silver," said Peter. "I don't want it."

But Rowena would not under any circumstances accept more than her proper half. She immediately set about dividing it, piece by piece, one for her and one for Peter.

"I suppose we could sell it for old silver," he said.

"Oh, you'll put it to good use some day," said Rowena. 'When you are rich and famous and have a studio apartment of your own—first thing you know you'll be giving those fast supper parties that artists are noted for—one for you, and one for me—"

"Why not keep it together in the box until the trip is over?" he asked. "We won't be giving any fast suppers on the trip, at any rate."

"You can have the box," she said. "I'd rather divide it if you don't mind. Then each of us will be responsible for his own share and if it is lost or stolen neither of us can blame the other.—One for you and one for me."

As a matter of fact, Rowena was already planning to pawn her share of it right there in Spokane. She had no more than glanced inside the fat letter from Buddy, but that glance sufficed to tell her that she needed money. She hoped to get enough for her share of the silver to take care of the distant demands and buy herself a new suit as well. She was really getting shabby. Daily motoring was hard on old clothes. silver fox packed away in mothballs way back on Third Avenue!

"This really puts us in a frightful jam," said Peter. "I suppose we can bluff through the reception and ball all right—we've had plenty of experience. But I don't see how we can dodge the bridal suite. And won't it jeopardize the annulment? Of course, I can lock myself into the sitting-room—but would anybody believe it?"

'Nobody in the world," said Rowena cheerfully "Well, after the ball is over, you'll have to go out alone for a little walk and get lost. Then you go to some other hotel and register—don't forget to have witnesses!—and stay there all night. You can meet me here again tomorrow morning. And be sure to get a receipt for your room.—Oh, Peter, don't you just adore those kissing Cupids? Have a kiss—I mean a candy."

"I think I'd rather have the kiss," said Peter boldly. "After all, a groom 'should be allowed to rush in, where a hotel manager dared to tread."

"I'm very particular," said Rowena firmly. And I'm developing a vast partiality for hotel managers."

His mind relieved as to how Rowena was going to take it. Peter saw some of humor in the situation and they made great sport of their predicament. They called the Rackruff salesrooms by long distance telephone to thank them for the lovely thought and Mr. Rack was so pleased that he had the charges for the call reversed. They tossed a coin for the cocktail shaker which Peter won, considerably to Rowena's regret, for she was sure she could have raised enough on it to make sure of the new suit which she needed for the reception that afternoon.

Rev. A. S. Bentley delivered two impressive sermons at the Baptist church here Sunday. Sunday morning using as his subject: "Work." In a helpful way in the beginning of the new year, he showed that "We are laborers together with God." At the evening service he used an illustrated sermon, "The Two Ways." Large crowds heard him attentively at both services.

Chestnut Creek Church

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are improving nicely. Last Sunday we had 89. The Sunday before we had 92. We are inviting our members who live farther away from church than some of us, to come back and see what is going on. We miss you and would be more than glad to have you come back. Some of us stay away on account of not having classy clothes to wear. Folks, God is testing our faith. He is seeing if we are willing to go to church and wear common clothes like our mothers and grandparents use to do. We've got it to do if we can go to church with clean hands, a pure heart and carry Jesus within our hearts then it does not matter what we wear when it comes to classy clothes.

Our B. Y. P. U. is doing fine. Sunday night we had at least 85 present. Wednesday night, January 20, at 6:30 the Sunday school officers and teachers meet. At seven o'clock the choir practice. We have been choir practicing for some time and can see that it is a great help.

Christians, take your religion off the shelf, dust it off good and come back to old Chestnut Creek. It is in the same old place.

Concord News

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. members are showing greater interest this quarter. Everyone come back next Sunday and bring someone with you. We had a few visitors Sunday. We are always glad to have visitors, come again.

First Sunday is our preaching day. We extend an invitation to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Devaughn visited Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Mims Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. McDowell visited Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Mims Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Easterling visited Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Taylor and Mrs. Leonard Mims spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wyatt.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Taylor motored to Montgomery Sunday.

Mr. Leonard Wyatt and Miss Annie Pearl Mims visited Miss Ola Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Maddox visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mims.

Rev. A. C. Nelson was called to Cedar Grove church Saturday to conduct the funeral of little Bill Lodge, age 10. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Lodge of Clanton. His body was laid to rest at Cedar Grove, by the side of his grandfather, Rev. A. C. Wells, who died about two years ago.

By the time that this goes to press the work of building a parsonage will be going forward here. The lumber is rapidly being laid down on the lot. We sure appreciate the fine spirit and cooperation of the community in helping us push the work.

Our pastor returned home Monday from Haleyville, Ala., where he filled his regular appointment there, and reports good services, well attended.

Rev. F. P. Ensminger of Demorest, Ga., preached an interesting sermon here Wednesday night of last week.

Several of the young people are planning to attend the fifth Sunday Rally at Mt. Olive church near Tallassee.

Mr. O. G. Price and family have moved into our community. We welcome them into our midst.

Mr. J. W. Coggins and family of Mt. Springs community visited Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lucille Lott was the Sunday dinner guest of Miss Maudie Ree Traywick.

The Christian Endeavor rendered a good program last Sunday night. Several talks were made on the subject.

The topic for next Sunday night is "What Leadership Should We Follow."

The Scripture text wil lbe Luke 5:1-11; Col. 2:18-19. Mrs. Lola Nelson is the leader for next Sunday night. We hope to have a good service, well attended, and you have a cordial invitation to attend and worship with us.

It is our desire to have our Lord's prayer, "That they all may be one," John 17:21, answered in our church.

If you find a welcome at Eastview tel lothers, if not tell us.

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. are progressing nicely. We invite everybody to come and be with us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dobbs and daughters, Lela and Essie, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dobbs.

Misses Etta Mullins and Idalou Hicks dined with Misses Mattie Lou and Louise Wilson Sunday.

Mrs. Katie Mims and Miss Maudie Dobbs spent Tuesday of last week with their sisters, Mrs. Odes and Zodie Baker.

Miss Truitt Mullins dined with her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Dobbs, Sunday.

Mrs. Lou Williams, Mrs. Dee Weathers and Mrs. Bomma Boomster of Billingsley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Deason.

Mrs. Minnie Mullins entertained her Sunday School class at the home of one of her member, Miss Essie Dobbs. Those who enjoyed this party were Misses Aileen, Myrtice and Annie Mullins, Gladys Poole, Addie Lee and Carson Ray, Jim, Erby and Herman Mullins, Jim and Raymond Traywick, Eloise and Warren Keen, Verla Mae Deavers, Ruby Lett, Elaine Deason, Marzelle Traywick, Mrs. Katie Mims, Mrs. Ida Deason and Mrs. Eliza Weldon. Games were played and at three o'clock a plate of cake of different kinds was served. Everyone reported a very good time.

CONCORD WINS DOUBLE-HEADER FROM COLLINS C.

The Collins Chapel Junior High school boys and the community boys came down last Friday afternoon and played a double-header with Concord Junior school boys and the community boys. The Junior High School boys ended the game with a score of 12 to 4 in favor of Concord. The community boys' game ended with a score of 26 to 5 in favor of Concord.

Even though the score appears one-sided both games were carried on with great enthusiasm and the defeated teams showed a fine losing spirit.

On Friday afternoon, January 22, we have a game scheduled with Union Point on our court.

We were well pleased with the number of parents who came out last Wednesday afternoon to organize a P.-T. A. Even with a late start in this organization we hope to accomplish some worth while tasks in the future. Our next meeting will be held Wednesday, January 27, at two-thirty o'clock. We are urging all who are interested in this work to meet with us.

That Spirit of Kiwanis

Members and ex-members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club met recently to discuss possibilities for the coming year. That meeting was a dandy and full of the spirit that makes things hum in the right way. Even some of the quietest members of the club were freely spoken about that spirit of Kiwanis.

A group of Selma Kiwanians were present, and the remarks they made showed real civic pride and spirit, enough to make a back-sliding Clanton Kiwanian feel right ashamed of himself. Now if Selma can show a group of fellows as represented here the other day, truly Clanton business men should feel ashamed, and justly so. Why, in reality Selma cannot hold a light to Clanton when it comes to a growing municipality, but that town west of Clanton has a fine group of interested, bred-in-the-bone Kiwanians.

The Farmer's Problem:
What To Plan This Year?

Between now and the planting season there will be much scratching of heads among farmers in puzzlement as to what sort of seed they will sow in their land this year. What to plant in the place of crops they have been growing year after year heretofore, but which most of them realize will be unprofitable if planted on the usual scale this year? That is the biggest farm problem at present in many states.

Certainly the acreage of several of the country's most important crops is going to be reduced substantially. Southern farmers are not going to plant as much cotton as they did last year. Farmers in the tobacco-growing sections will not plant as much tobacco. In the Northern and Western states, it is probable that the wheat acreage will be materially reduced. And even with some other crops of less importance it is probable that there will be reductions in acreage.

The land on which farmers have been accustomed to plant these crops will hardly be allowed to lie idle. Most of it, if not all, will be put into other crops. But what crops? That is what many a farmer would like to know.

The problem is a hard one. In solving it, the farmers have to reckon with a number of difficulties. Even after making a decision as to what to plant, the farmer is still confronted with a problem, because, in most cases, he will probably be attempting something that is new to him and in which his lack of experience may get him into difficulty. Again, there is the question of farm equipment. In the South, for example, farmers are equipped for growing cotton, in the main, or in some sections, tobacco. Employing the same equipment in growing other crops will be a difficult matter. The farmer, in making his decision, must give serious consideration to his equipment. In most cases, he will not be able to buy new equipment for cultivating a new crop, and even if he were able to do so, it would be a doubtful investment.

For substitute crops, therefore, the farmer must choose those to which he can adapt the equipment that he already has. This necessity imposes a limitation on his field of selection. Preferably, if possible, he should decide on a crop or crops with which he has had some experience. Failing that, it will be necessary for him to make an intense study of the new crop he decides to plant before he attempts it. And, of course, due consideration must be given to the adaptability of soil and climate.

In approaching this problem of substitute crops, farmers will do well to act cooperatively. All the farmers in a given community should discuss the problem among themselves, and make the most advantageous decision possible in the light of their common knowledge and experience.

In making their decision, farmers everywhere would do well to rely on the advice of their county agents and other agricultural experts. They should avail themselves of every possible bit of knowledge that they can gain from state and federal agricultural agencies, farm publications and other sources of information and advice.—Birmingham News.

Hoover Gone; Roosevelt Coming

It is rather early for presidential polls, but the passion for finding out what the public is thinking already has broken forth with interesting results.

Away out on the Pacific coast a straw vote has been taken by a Seattle newspaper to ascertain the views of its readers and here is the result for president in 1932:

Roosevelt 9,994; Smith, 3,393; Gov. Murray, (Oklahoma), 3,329; Norman Thomas (Socialist), 1,308; Borah, 1,241; Hoover 381; Scattered votes, 1,586.

This far-away poll is interesting for two reasons. First, it shows Governor Roosevelt far in the lead in a territory very remote from his native commonwealth, and, second, it shows Hoover as having attained the zero of popularity.

In the 1928 election Hoover received 13,830 votes and Smith 8,058 in the same territory polled by the Seattle newspaper. Thus his strength has reached the vanishing point.

The showing made by "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, of Oklahoma, probably will occasion considerable surprise. He ran only a few votes behind Smith and some 3,000 ahead of Hoover. His decisive methods evidently have made a powerful appeal in the far west.

However, the Roosevelt vote is the most significant, aside from that cast for Hoover. It indicates a commanding lead and helps to account for the confidence of his backers as the battle for delegates gets under way.—Tuscaloosa News.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

> "Stand with anybody that stands right. Stand with him while he is right and part with him when he goes wrong."—A. Lincoln.

And so the world wags, as Merle Thorpe would say if someone told him that someone had gypped him out of several thousand, nay, millions of dollars.

I've never seen so many smiles round town in a year as I've been seeing in the past several days. In fact, I've got to smiling along with everybody else, just from seeing everybody smile, and confound it, I've found that I feel better, my appetite is better, I can work better, and away I go singing in the rain, so to speak, as it were, or something.

Just found out the other day that I like somebody I used to think I didn't like. That was a great feeling. You see, I never like to dislike anybody, but sometimes I find that I just can't help it, and it ain't my fault—so I think. And then the other day I found that I disliked somebody, because that somebody don't do things just like I think they should do them, and then if everybody did things like I wanted—well, frankly, this world would be in a helluva shape, if you ask me.

I've heard of folks saving money for a long time, but this Horsley White, the Nehi man, undoubtedly has been hoarding money for a long time, because he was showing a piece of money the other day that was 120 years old. It was a half-dollar and bore the date of 1812. Now wait a minute—I don't mean that Horsley has been keeping that piece of money that long.

Wonder who has the oldest piece of money in this section. For the past several weeks, folks have been showing old pieces of money at the News office, so I see in the paper, and each time, one is a little older than the other. Who has a piece of money older than 120 years?

This John Temple Graves, Two Eye, who writes in the Birmingham Age-Herald every morning, has some of the blamedest ideas about things I ever read. But I like John. He's not at all like his pictures make him look. Really, he hadn't been eating sour grapes when that picture was made you see in his column in the Age-Herald, it looks that way because Julian Hall in Dothan, had kind of got John's goat, or something.

Was trying to talk to a fellow on the street the other day, and I noticed he appeared nervous and in a hurry, and kept holding something in his pocket as if he was afraid it was going to run away. After trying to get him to talk about everything from door-knobs to flannel underwear, I finally asked him what was wrong. He told me he had money enough to pay his poll taxes, and wanted to get up to the court house and pay them before he found somebody he owed looking at him, and that he wanted to have a hand in putting that Democratic president in the chair this time. Anyway John Page was standing close by, too.

There a fellow who came to Clanton not so long ago, and he whistles and smiles, too. That's H. L. Walker. You don't know him? Well, he's the fellow with that optimistic look on his face, and he paints automobiles, fixes radiators, tops, curtains, and other parts of an automobile. His place of business is located down in the business section of Clanton, near the Nehi Plant, Dief's Cafe, Dief's Service Station, and the News office.

I've been something of a miser myself, when it comes to hoarding money. I got hold of a couple of dollars the other day and kept it out of circulation for two weeks. Would have had it longer than that, but went and paid my poll tax with part of it, and the other fifty cents I spent to get a hair cut and shave. I'm saving the nickle for seed.

Did you ever hear of mule, horse and cow health insurance? Nope, neither did I, until Tom Kemp was displaying some checks made out to owners of mules, and other animals for their death, in these parts. Not a bad idea at that.

Notice in the papers that some fellow has discovered how to square a circle, and is getting a lotta publicity about it. That's nothing, I've been knowing how to square a circle a long time.

Heard the ed getting a good lecture the other day for his opinion expressed editorially about discharging married women from jobs, when their husbands are earning wages enough to support the family. I've been telling the ed that he better quit dabbling with the subjects that I'm supposed to handle, because I know how to handle such subjects pertaining to those necessary evils, the women.

There's something in the hollow, in politics, I believe, and it won't be long before I intend to get in on the inside of the matter, and see just who's who. I've an idea that some folks who claim to be one thing are kind of two-timing people. That refers me back to the quotation at the top of this column.

It may be all right to get in with "the gang" and ride high, wide and handsome for awhile, but boy, when that fall comes, it comes and there's no stopping. Take a look around you. How many fellows can you pick out, who at one time have been to the heights in the word, or I might say in this town—then down they went. Why?—Figure it out for yourself.

Been trying to get time to go fishing. Fellows have been telling me a lot of fish tales lately, and I think I'll just go see for myself. Anyway, the weather the past week end has been bothering me, and I feel like it's springtime again, or something, and I want to go flitting hither and yon, doing nothing.

One thing this country needs is better and larger waste baskets, according to many weekly newspaper editors. This decision was reached after many editors have been receiving worlds and worlds of free advertising propaganda from manufacturers of different and other products. It's "in the wastebasket for you," when some of this stuff hits the desks of editors of many newspapers, while others have the type set and run it in their paper, because it makes the paper look larger.

Planning for Victory

Montana Standard (Butte): The Democratic party is girding itself for aggressive action in the campaign of 1932. It will don not merely the defensive armor of previous campaigns, but it will carry into the contest the weapons of attack and victory. For months the national party organization has been laying its plans. The Victory campaign is already under way. Democratic minute men who will bear the brunt of these preliminary plans are being organized into battle formation in every State.

In Montana the national organization has commissioned John E. Dawson of Cascade County to form an active aggressive State committee to lay the plans and provide the sinews of battle here for the campaign of 1932. Mr. Dawson is a veteran worker within the Democratic ranks. He is a devoted citizen of the Treasure State and he will labor indefatigably for a sweeping Democratic victory next autumn, not from sordid, selfish political motive, but that the material interests of the State and nation may be properly advanced.

The stage is set and the stars are propitious for a victory which the Democrats hope will bring them a clear and forceful mandate to carry on the government.

Democratic Economy.—The first deficiency bill for the 1932 fiscal year, introduced in the House by Chairman Byrns of the Appropriations Committee, slashed $13,443,900 from the budget estimates recommended by President Hoover. There was no increase for any department or other purpose.

The committee cut down the amount requested for furnishings for the new House Office Building by $150,000, cut $10,000,000 from the Federal highway system for 1932, slashed the national park service $45,000 for emergency construction and fire fighting, and lopped off $3,000,000 in the appropriation for the office of supervising architect.

The Department of Justice's estimate for printing and binding was reduced from $80,000 to $60,000. A similar savings was made in the Federal Trade Commission appropriation for general expenses.

The committee also cut $177,000 from the Bi-Centennial Commission estimate.

Lession of the New Hampshire Election.—The lesson of the election is clear. In New England, as in the Middle Atlantic States and in the Middle West, disappointed hopes, deepening resentments, economic and financial disasters have transmuted Republican into Democratic votes. It is not "sub-zero weather" that makes George Moses look so blue.—New York Times.

Ruth Hanna McCormick Takes Responsibility for Editorial Suggesting Shelving Hoover

Washington, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, in a statement to the press, takes full responsibility for an editorial in the Rockford (Ill.) Register-Republic suggesting that President Hoover, who "is not at present a popular leader," be not renominated, and that the party should look around for the "best man."

As a warning to the Republican party Mrs. McCormick's paper cites the 1912 convention, which "hitched its precedent to a steam roller and forced the nomination of a man whom a majority of Republicans did not want to see renominated."

A. D. 1932, the A. D. meaning Annus Democraticus, a Democratic year—With acknowledgments to the New York Times.

Democratic Tariff Plan Devised To Revive World Trade and Protect Consuming Public

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Democrats in control of the House of Representatives introduced as their first major legislation a bill to amend the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act. This bill provides for a reform of the procedure of the Tariff Commission in dealing with the flexible provision of the act.

The power to change rates under the flexible clause is taken from the President and restored to Congress. The Tariff Commission, however, also reports to the President as well as to Congress, and the President can then make recommendations.

The bill creates the office of the Consumers' Counsel of the United States Tariff Commission, who is authorized to act with the Commission or independent thereof in investigations and determining changes of rates. He is the representative of the consuming public. This provision was placed in the Hawley-Smoot bill by an amendment offered by Senator George (Dem.) of Georgia, but eliminated by the Republican House.

The President is authorized to initiate a movement for a permanent International economic conference and to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries under a policy of mutual concessions.

Arguments in favor of the bill are that it frees the Tariff Commission from Executive domination, gives the consuming public representation, restores the policy of reciprocity and paves the way for an international agreement to revive world trade.

Federal Expenditures increased $793,000,000 for the first six months of the fiscal year 1932, and receipts fell off $615,000,000 according to a Treasury statement. Since December 31, 1930, the public debt increased $1,799,000,000.

Senator George H. Moses supported the Republican candidate in the First New Hampshire District who lost by 3,000 with an overturn of 11,000 votes. Senator Moses comes up for re-election next November. O tempora, O mores, O Moses.

A considerable amount of G. O. P. political depression still "hoovers" over New Hampshire.

GREAT JURIST RESIGNS

It is a source of genuine regret to his countrymen that Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court has been obliged to resign from the bench which he has adorned for nearly 30 years. He will be 91 years old on March 8, and in his letter of resignation he said: "The time has come when I must bow to the inevitable."

Justice Holmes was born in Boston, the son of the great poet and essayist whose name he bears. He entered the Union Army after his graduation from Harvard in 1861 and attained the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was thrice wounded in action—in the breast, in the neck and in the foot.

After the war he practiced law and became a professor in Harvard law school, later serving as justice and chief justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court for more than 20 years, until his elevation to the United States Supreme Court in 1902. He has written much and has delivered many lectures on legal subjects.

In spite of his age, Justice Holmes's fine intellect is unimpaired, but physical infirmities have made it necessary for him to retire. Thus passes from the active stage a great man, a great jurist, and a great American. May he enjoy his well-earned rest in comfort and serenity.

When Leslie Makin and Elsie Marshall of St. Louis were arraigned for fighting on the street the court sentenced them to get married at once.

THE TIPPING CUSTOM

While many attempts have been made to eradicate it, even by the passage of laws, the tipping habit persists, through lack of courage on the part of the public to resist it.

Originally, no doubt, the custom of giving tips to servants was inspired by kindly motives, but it has grown to be a nuisance—simply a species of petty graft. Many employers of low class help pay miserably small wages, with the knowledge that tips from customers will supply the deficiency. Employees accept the small wages, or often no wages, with the same understanding. Consequently the public pays in the aggregate vast sums for which no service whatever is rendered.

The effect of the tipping custom is wholly bad, because those who accept the gratuities must lose somewhat in self respect, while those who pay them do so simply because it is expected and they do not wish to appear stingy.

One restaurant recently displayed a sign which read: "We pay our waiters living wages and do not permit them to accept tips." That sign inevitably caused patrons to hold a higher opinion of the proprietor and his waiters.

Ralph Carrigan of St. Louis testified that he respected his mother-in-law deeply because she supported him.

Mrs. Robert Gorhan of Los Angeles has confessed that she lied in court to convict her husband so she could marry another man.

Arrested for shoplifting, Miss Clara Frelich of Chicago pleaded that she stole to enable her to go to school.

Wood Murder Charge Gets Preliminary

ROCKFORD, ALA. January 19th.—Approximately 500 people listened attentively Friday afternoon as the story of the slaying of her father and brother allegedly by her husband, was related by Mrs. Barney Wood in a preliminary hearing of Wood, charged with slaying the two as the climax of a family quarrel on the night of Jan. 6.

Mrs. Wood said when the car drove up to the house that night her oldest little boy went out and invited them in. She said Beno Murchison came in first and shook hands with her husband. He was followed by her father, Will Murchison and brother, Benton. Mrs. Wood said her father asked Wood what all this trouble was about and Wood replied that he didn't know. Mrs. Wood said her father asked her husband if he was a Christian and he replied he was, to which her father replied it didn't seem much like it.

Mrs. Wood said Benton said when he went down to his fathers once before and told him about some trouble between her and Wood, they made him out a lie so this time he just went and brought him to see for himself.

Murchison told Wood that he was going to have him arrested, Mrs. Wood said, and Wood told him to go ahead. She said he also told him that if that didn't do any good he was gonna stomp him in the floor or else he would stomp him in the floor.

She said her father said he didn't have but one time to die and Wood replied he didn't either, then the shooting began.

Mrs. Wood said as she saw her husband reach for his gun she screamed and started to run but the first shot hit Benton before she got out of the room. She said she didn't remember hearing any more shots or anything.

Wood was bound over to the Grand Jury on $5,000.00 bond at the close of the hearing, during which no testimony was offered by the defense.

Felix L. Smith and Garrett Hagan, of Sylacauga, were Wood's attorneys while the county solicitor, circuit solicitor, and Clyde Casey, of Birmingham were attorney for the state.

The preliminary hearing was before S. A. Thomas, Justice of Peace of Nixburg, and lasted for several hours.

BAPTIST "CATCH UP DAY"

Dr. L. E. Barton, Secretary of the Executive Board of the Baptist State Convention, has announced, on authority of the Board, Sunday, February 7, as Baptist Catch Up Day. It is the plan to have 100,000 Baptists in the state to contribute fifty cents apiece on that day, making a total of $50,000.00, for the purpose of paying off certain bonds on their institutions which will soon fall due.

Both Dr. Barton and Dr. F. M. Barnes, President of the State Convention, are visiting certain strategic centers in behalf of the plan and they report much interest is being shown. It is hoped by them that all the Baptist pastors will call attention to the day—Sunday, February 7—and present the matter to their people.

KILLINGS IN 1931

All of the 12 large cities showing the highest rates for 1931 are in the South, Memphis holding the unenviable record of standing at the head of the list, as it has for several years. Omitting decimals, the number of killings per 100,000 of population for the year in these high ranking cities was as follows:

Memphis, 58; Atlanta, 52; Lexington, Ky., 52; Birmingham, 49; Shreveport, La., 41; Augusta, Ga., 41; Nashville, 37; Miami, 36; Savanah, 36; Jacksonville, 34; Macon, Ga., 31; Mobile, 30.

In contrast with these figures, New York had only 7 murders per 100,000 of population, and Chicago, in spite of its reputation, only a fraction over 14. Of the large cities Boston had the most commendable record, with slightly less than 2.

It is hard to account for the fact that Memphis consistently has a homicide rate 25 times as great as that of Boston and more than eight times as great as that of New York. But even Boston's rate is higher than that of England or Canada, and the murder record of the United States as a whole is the worst among the countries of the world.

Mrs. Jane Elvash of Chicago has been arrested for swindling a score of men after promising to marry them.

BOWELS

need watching

Let Dr. Caldwell help whenever your child is feverish or upset; or has caught cold.

His simple prescription will make that bilious, headachy, cross boy or girl comfortable, happy, well in just a few hours. It soon restores the bowels to healthy regularity. It helps "break-up" a cold by keeping the bowels free from all that sickening mucus waste.

You have a famous doctor's word for this laxative. Dr. Caldwell's record of having attended over 3500 births without the loss of one mother or baby is believed unique in American medical history.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your drugstore and have it ready. Then you won't have to worry when any member of your family is headachy, bilious, gassy or constipated. Syrup Pepsin is good for all ages. It sweetens the bowels; increases appetite —makes digestion more complete.

ROSSE'S MAGIC IS SHOWN IN "KING OF JAZZ"

Georgeous Costumes and Sets for Paul Whiteman's Picture Debut Designed by Famous Authority

No less an authority than Herman Rosse, one of Europe's most famous designers, has created for Universal's spectacular musical extravaganza "King of Jazz," coming to the Wadesonian theatre a kaleidoscope of beauty in both costumes and settings.

Rosse, who was born in Denmark and became one of the most celebrated fashion and theatrical designers in Europe before he went to New York, was invited to Universal City by Carl Laemmle, Jr., especially to design the thousands of gorgeous costumes and the elaborate atmospheric settings of the all-Technicolor revue starring Paul Whiteman and his band.

The designer brought with him all of the art and experience which he had acquired in Paris, London, Berlin, and other European centers of fashion and theatrical splendor. He brought them first to New York where for six years he conceived the costumes and settings of the famous "Greenwich Village Follies" and other nationally known musical shows, and then he brought them to Universal for the picture.

While designing for "King of Jazz" Rosse took full advantage not only of his theatrical experience, but also of the tremendously broadened scope afforded him by the screen. The natural space restrictions of the stage were removed in his new medium and, because of the lavishness of the production, his brilliant imagination for beauty was given full play for the first time in his career.

The result of this imagination is apparent in the beautiful costumes and settings which he conceived for "King of Jazz." Given also the advantage of all-Technicolor photography, he was enabled to blend the color combination he visualized into actual production.

As each of the eight spectacular musical numbers of "King of Jazz" followed each other in the making, Rosse seized the opportunities offered him to the full. Each of the numbers called for an entirely different setting with sometimes as many as eight complete changes of costume in a single number. All concievable motifs were utilized with every conceivable color and every conceivable lighting effect.

ALABAMA FARMERS ARE FINDING USEFUL CLAYS

Farmers in 66 of the 67 Alabama counties have found clays on their farms which they believe will bring them money during future years.

Prof. T. N. McVay, of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, is testing clays free of charge. Preliminary reports are being mailed to farmers without cost as fast as tests are completed.

Those desiring to have clays tested must submit samples before March 1. Inquiries as to how clay samples should be submitted should be sent to the Alabama Industrial Development Board, Birmingham, Ala., which reports over 1,000 requests received during the past 30 days for sacks in which to mail clay sample.

The survey is being made to determine the commercial clay resources of Alabama.

Thorsby Institute News

Friday morning at chapel Miss Klingelhoefer's Bible class gave a most interesting program, two playlets, scenes from the life of Saul entitled "The Awakening of Saul" and "The Witch of Endor." The parts were given in costume and some of it was very dramatic. It was very much enjoyed.

A Mexican and Indian program was given at Thorsby Institute last Saturday night by the Helen Keller Literary Society. Part of the program was a contest between the two clubs, the Pushmataha and Philomathic. The Pushmatahas represented by Jane Billingsley who gave a reading in costume as Pocahontas and Phares Raybon who told an Indian Legend, "Origin of the Pine Tree," Nelle Tracy who gave a reading on "The Mexican National Anthem" and Helen Albert whose essay was entitled "Indians, Past and Present" won the contested points on the program. The Philomathics won the point for attendance. Only one member of the entire society was absent and he is a Pushmataha.

The Glee Club sang the Mexican National Anthem after Nelle Tracy's reading which told of its origin. The Glee Club also sang the Indian song, "By the Waters of Minnetonka." The Glee club, under the direction of Miss Thoroman is quite an addition to the musical life of Thorsby Institute.

Lois Thompson in a Mexican costume sang a Mexican folk song, "O Ask of the Stars." The Spanish folk dances were given by a few of the girls of the Health Class.

The closing number was a pantomine depicting the life of an Indian boy named Redhill's Son. Pauline Poole was the reader. At the close the Doxology was sung in the Dakota Indian language. Miss Leech, who was at one time connected with an Indian school in Santee, Neb., was very helpful in drilling for the pantomine. Mrs. Maddox kindly helped with it too.

Next Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in the auditorium of Thorsby Institute, Miss Jennie May Thoroman will present her music pupils in a recital. Everyone is invited. No admission charged.

Tuesday morning in chapel the girls choruses sang two number, "Hedge Roses," and "Hark, Hark, the Lark," by Schubert. The trio sang "Elfin Dance" by Grieg. Miss Thoroman was in charge. The Tuesday morning chapel brings us many good musical numbers which we always enjoy.

The Library has received a number of books within the last few weeks, some of which will interest borrowers outside of school. Mrs. A. K. Horn donated three sets of ten books each and the others came from the First Congregational Church of Ann Arbor, Mich. Among them are Harland's "The Cardinal's Snuff Box," Roe's "Barriers Burned Away," Kildare's, "My Mamie Rose," Eliot's "Middle March," Well's "Men Like Gods," Tolstoi's "Master and Man," Lyall's "We Two," Henty's "Cornet of Horse," Galsworthy's "The Little Man," Stephen's "Captain Raven Shaw," Masefield's "The Dauber."

JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

John 4:9-26

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

To help establish the reality of this incident let the writer refer to his visit in the Samaritan Colony, where just a remnant of only a few score now remain of those who were so despised by the Jews in that day. The very ancient Samaritan Pentetuch was shown me with marked pride. Their history dates back to the destruction of the Northern Kingdom of Israel in 722 B. C. The Passover is still observed each year on Mt. Gerizim according to their own ancient rites. Often the Jews would go far out of their way so as to avoid this region in proceeding to Galilee, but this time "He must needs pass through Samaria."

The complete humanity of Jesus is evidenced in the lesson setting as the tired man sits at the side of Jacob's well. As the woman comes to draw water Jesus enters upon the personal work in accord with His own "Win One" method of procedure. Let any teacher or preacher who is distressed by reason of an audience of one or even a few only note how Jesus acted. Seeking a favor is often a helpful approach to open the opportunity to render real service in turn. "Give me a drink" is commonplace, but it led to genuine salvation that day.

Just as soon as the woman sensed the divinely spiritual relationship of this passing Jew she was canny in seeking His answer to the vexatious problem which kept Jews and Samaritans apart. "Where is the place to worship," she queried. Place is only an incident, for the vital fact is the Person Who is worshipped and how the approach is rightly made. She was informed that "God is a Spirit," and approach to His throne of mercy can be made from anywhere. Observe that the woman gave answering belief and proclaimed the truth.

ARE YOUR EYES RIGHT?

Can you depend upon what they tell you? Very often an examination will reveal defects which, if treated in time, will eliminate the possibility of future serious eye trouble. I will be in CLANTON at the Exchange Hotel on the last Monday in the month and will give thorough examination of your eyes and fit you with glasses if necessary.

Mount Pleasant School News

By The Junior Three Class

A lovely time was had by all members of the Junior 2 and Junior 3 Classes last Saturday night when the faculty and Junior 2 Class honored the Junior 3 Class with a reception given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Mastin. The winners of the contests were: No. 1, Curtis Traywick and Miss Lera Bean; No. 2, Leonard Burnett and Miss Annie Chambers; No. 3, John Wm. Jones and Kathleen Smith. Refreshments were fruit salad and cake.

We are proud to receive back into our midst again Miss Merlene Powell. She re-entered school last Monday. She is a popular member of the girls basket ball team, playing the guard position.

The Liberty Hill singers met for practice last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams.

This week finds all the students of Mt. Pleasant school engaged in taking mid-term examinations.

Misses Ola Mae and Margy Robinson were the guests of Miss Rose Mary Bruce last Sunday.

The school is glad to have back in school Miss Gertie Lee Lowery, who was detained from her school work several days due to illness of her mother. We are also glad to know of her mother's improvement.

John Wm. Jones made a trip to Birmingham last week to see his siter. Upon his arrival he found her ill with typhoid fever. The school sends best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson entertained a number of the Mt. Pleasant puipls last Saturday night.

Our principal, Mr. R. B. Johnson, spent a pleasant day down at Mitchell Dam last Sunday as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parrish.

Miss Myrtice Cost and Ertice Riggins spent Sunday with Misses Louise and Lucile Jones.

We regret the death of Mrs. Alfred Collins, who has been very ill for several weeks.

Miss Gertice Riggins and Gladys Turner were pleasant callers on Miss Jewel Cost last Sunday.

The Mt. Pleasant boys basket ball team won over the Baker Junior High team last Friday by the one-sided score of 42 to 6. Curtis Traywick again led his mates in shooting, looping the ball for 26 points. The substitute players, Culp, Jones, Collins and Childress, all gave a nice performance of play together during the last half. Their pass work was a bit difficult for the Baker boys to match skill with. The Baker players are far better than the score indicates. Their coach, Vernon Baker, is certainly producing a clever little team, from a lot of raw and inexperienced material.

Mr. Johnson has the boys and girls busy practicing for the double-header game with Thomas Junior High next Friday afternoon on the Mt. Pleasant court.

The teams thank the many visitors who attend the games and extend to them a cordial invitation to see all future games. We want you all to be present next Friday, for this is the girls' first game on their home court.

Mr. Ellie and Miss Flora Shirley have gone on a visit to Georgia.

Mr. Willie Snyder of Jackson's Chapel was a visitor to Mt. Pleasant last Friday afternoon.

Miss Lucile Price spent last Saturday night with her classmate, Miss Mabel Gillespie. They attended the class party together.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Billingsley and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Melton last Sunday.

Another interesting debate was staged by four members of the Junior 3 Class last Wednesday. The subject was 'Resolved that no native born American should vote who can not read intelligently."

The affirmative side, supported by Annie Chambers and Lucile Price won over Mazie Logan and Ilar Massey, who upheld the negative side of the question.

Don't forget the double-header ball game next Friday evening at Mt. Pleasant. The Thomas school presents two fairly strong teams and the games should be interesting to all who attend. The girls' game will be called at 2:15. The boys' at 3:00 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley visited Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Zuber Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Allen Waldrop is still very ill; don't seem to improve very much.

L. Lance Franklin is on the puny list again.

Erastus Cleckley, Miss Grace and Mattie Wells visited Lance Franklin Sunday afternoon.

Miss Emmarene Dawson took a trip to Maplesville Saturday afternoon to the dentist, Dr. Nix.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Zuber is moving today to Mr. Newt Childress's place.

Miss Edith Champion was sick Friday, due to this fact, she was absent from school.

Mr. Paul Dawson was reported to have pneumonia, but is better now.

As It Was Still It Is

Dear friends, as we look all around us we see many that are perishing and dying simply because they won't look up to Christ, their helper. Christ has lifted and gill give abundantly unto those who will put their trust and faith in Him. For a picture turn to Numbers 21:8-9. Here it is that God had Moses to raise up the brass serpent and of all that had been bitten by those fiery serpents which God had sent upon them for disobedience, might live. So it is today. We are suffering from disobedience and God has a much greater way to give us life, but we have all turned away from God, only to have to pay for it ourselves. Now, as we will note that those who would not look upon this serpent must have been unbelievers and they died. So it is today.

As it was in those days, people are dying by not looking up to our Lord, king and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Now, let us ask Jesus to bless a lost and dying world, for His glory and honor's sake and nothing less.

Memory Verses

Let us be careful: "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." Matt. 7:12.

A way: "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Matt. 7:7.

A comfort: "Teaching then to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen. Matt. 28:28.

Church Of Christ, Clanton, Invites Attention To The Fine Sermons Being Heard Here

"It has been several months since anything has appeared through the columns of your paper about the Church of Christ of Clanton. It might appear as a result of such that some might think the church is not alive. Not so. We wish to say that there are services every Lord's Day, and that the number attending from time to time is steadily increasing.

"Each Sunday at 10:00 o'clock Bible study begins, and it is with much interest that it is noted that the study is growing more interesting each successive Sunday. Following the study each Sunday we are now permitted to hear some very forceful and instructive Bible sermons.

"Attending the regular services each Sunday are two brethren who preach for the congregation. First of these who does service preaching is the elder brother Tom Daniel. This man is very generally known in Chilton County, but no one knows him in his best light unless you have been permitted to hear him in his simple, clear and appealing way speak of his life long study of the Scriptures. This man has already preached his greatest sermon—namely, his long and devoted life of real Christian living. Having his sermons prefaced with the life that he has makes his sermons very inspiring. Next to do service is a younger man who has had Bible training in one of the Best Bible schools of the South. This young man, whose name is Bratton, comes to us two Lord's Days in each month with some of as good lessons as the congregation has been permitted to hear. His work as a preacher of real gospel truths is unsurpassed by any man of his age anywhere.

"Now, it is not the intention of these remarks to try to impress anyone that the services at the Church of Christ at Clanton is intended to be anything akin to show. It is not. We only try to teach and study the scriptures and understand them as they are.

"It is the intention primarily of this article to invite anyone not attending services elsewhere to come and worship with us. Those attending the services will find a hearty welcome at any and all times.

"Our creed: Speak where the Bible speaks; be silent where the Bible is silent."

The Church of Christ at Clanton,
By The Elders.

What The Negroes Are Doing

News From County Training School

The N. F. A. met last Thursday for the first time in 1932. The feature of the afternoon was "Objectives for the year."

The plans for 1932 are as follows:

1. Beautification of school and home ground.
2. Prevention of forest fires.
3. One hundred per cent project completion.
4. Maintain a permanent treasury.
5. Be a 100 per cent representative at Tuskegee this summer.
6. Meet twice each month.

The club has ordered posters from the State Forestry Commission. If you should see posters on your land it is the work of the New Farmers of Alabama.

—Isaac Creig, President; John Bert Morgan, secretary.

Wins Over Elmore County

The Chilton County Training School won over the Elmore County Training School Friday, January 15, 1932. The girls made a nice showing for their first game of the season by winning a hard fought, 6 to 9 victory.

The fast Chilton Boys quintet was more than a match for the Elmore County boys and came away with a 26 to 18 victory.

All eyes are turned toward the game on Chilton County campus on Friday, January 29, when the Chambers County boys will journey to Clanton for a return game. There is much promise for some interesting games this sean for both the Chilton boys and girls.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

We were pleased over the attendance at Sunday school and church last Sunday. If the people of Clanton will catch the spirit of church loyalty, what a joy it will be.

Sunday school meets at 9:45. Preaching next Sunday by the pastor at 11 A. M. and at 7 P. M. At the conclusion of the morning service we are going to open our Missionary barrels. Let each one bring the barrel that you have and give your savings to the Kingdom.

We have added the name of Miss Edna Bryan to our church list. If there are others who wish to join our church you will have this opportunity next Sunday.

We have an interesting church program for the year, and we urge all to drop into line and keep step. We urge each member to keep number One in line and step.

zens of our nation and state that they lay aside any factional differences, controversial subjects, or minor disagreements and unite with the Democratic party to the end that we may be relieved of Republican misrule and that through a progressive, wise, firm and courageous Democratic administration, want and misery, business impoverishment and labor starvation may be banished from our land and prosperity return to our people. Let the people de mand an economic deliverance. Such deliverance can come only through Democratic rule. The Republican Party has been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

Committees from the Democratic ranks of the county were selected by the chairman to do special work in their respective beats, with a central committee operating in Clanton.

The members of the committees referred to above are:

Supervising Committee — Poll Tax and Registration: P. D. Wilson, Chairman, P. T. Hinkle, J. B. Atkinson, Guy Higgins.

Beat 16: J. Monroe Parrish.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson, chairman, who, at the same time, tendered his resignation of that office, which was accepted. In resigning, Dr. Johnson stated that he felt the office as chairman should be occupied by a man who could give more time to the work and wished to do that which would be of benefit to the Democratic party, and in the future, intended to lend his support.

The motion was made that P. D. Wilson tender his resignation as secretary of the executive committee, which was done and his name was placed before the meeting as a nominee for chairman. Mr. Wilson was elected to serve as chairman, and the place of secretary of the executive committee will be filled by Billy Smith, editor of the Chilton County News.

ialties are blended with spectacle, and comedy with both.

"King of Jazz" is Whiteman's debut on the screen, both as the world's most famous maestro of music and as a comedian in person. One of the sketches was especially written as a vehicle for his comedy talents.

Laura La Plante has long been one of the favorite comediennes of the picture world, and all the other screen stars in the comedy sketches are favorites. John Murray Anderson, the famous New York producer who came to Universal especially to direct "King of Jazz," took particular pains to provide material especially suitable to all the personalities which appear in the comedy scenes.

Billy Kent has long been famous on the musical comedy and vaudeville stages, featured comedian of many New York stage hits, including "Rose Marie" and others. Grace Hayes is one of the most popular "personality" singers in the country, and Jeanie Lang is known as "America's Sweetheart of the Air" because of her appealing numbers on national radio hookups.

ISABELLA YOUTH IS KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Son Of Prominent Educator Of Chilton Co. Buried At Marbury Monday

Death stalked along with two students of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, last Saturday, as they were walking along the highway, from Opelika to Auburn. One of these students was claimed by death when a passing automobile struck him. This was Whittle Griffin, son of Prof. and Mrs. J. D. Griffin, and a member of that prominent family of the Isabella Community, west of Clanton.

Whittle was rushed to a hospital in Opelika, where he died soon after arriving there. His companion was not seriously injured. Griffin was almost twenty years of age and a junior at Auburn, taking courses in agriculture.

In all his classes during the years he has attended the school, he made a place for himself at the head through his likable personality and his efforts to learn. He made exceptional grades in all his studies and was secretary of the Brock and Bridle Club, at the school, numbering his friends there by the number of his acquaintances. He was a member of the Baptist church, and as testified at the impressive funeral, by the pastor, he was a devoted worker in all religious activities he came in contact with.

The body was brought to Clanton by J. Mell Martin & Sons, funeral directors of Clanton early last Sunday morning, and prepared for burial. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Baptist church in Marbury, Ala., where hundreds gathered from two counties to pay their last respects to this youth. The services were conducted by the Rev. G. G. Williams, Rev. B. Lawrence, Rev. W. A. Goss of Marbury, and Dr. G. R. Edwards of Auburn. A solo was rendered by Rev. Theo H. Farr, of Gordo.

Pallbearers were composed of young men friends of the deceased youth, Buster Roebuck, Buster Sexton, Bernice Vance, Claude Conway, Allen Mize and Gwin Williams, all of the Isabella Community. Interment took place in the Marbury cemetery. Martin & Sons of Clanton were in charge.

The services were beautiful throughout, as each pastor spoke in terms of praise of the departed young man, and the place he had already made for himself in the hearts of his friends. The church at Marbury was overflowing, and the many and large beautiful floral offerings bore evidence of the love for the deceased and the esteem in which he was held. Among those attending the funeral were many students and professors from the institute at Auburn.

The deceased is survived by his parents, two sisters, Bonnie Clyde and Imogene of Clanton. Three brothers, Robert L., also a student at Auburn, Davis and John, of Isabella.

PONY TRICYCLE AWARDED AT UPCHURCH DRUG CO. FRIDAY

The beautiful toy pony tricycle which has been on display at Upchurch Drug Company for sometime was awarded to a fortunate young lady last Friday.

Miss Peggy Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Page of Clanton, was awarded the pony, and presents a pretty picture as she sits astride the toy.

THE FAIR STORE DROPS OFF PRICES IN NEWEST SALE

Sometime ago The Fair Store, of Clanton advertised a sixty-nine cent sale, and Mr. Sartor apparently liked the results. Now comes this store with another little sale, which is called a 59-Cent Sale. Elsewhere in this issue of the News will be found an ad from The Fair Store listing several items priced in this little sale for Friday and Saturday.

Miss Mary Louise Pack, a member of the Clanton Grammar School faculty, was called to her home in Sprott, Ala., on account of the death of her grandmother this week.

WELCOME ANTIOCH

The warm hand of welcome from the News is extended this week to the correspondent of the Antioch Community, who comes into our family of correspondents with a well written news letter this week.

We See In This Week's Issue

That there are numerous bargains being listed in advertisements from business places in Clanton. Soup to nuts, so to speak. Now that everyone who intends to buy anything is looking for savings it would pay you readers to look carefully through these ads to see if what you need is listed at a bargain.

The merchants of Clanton and elsewhere who advertise are not trying to shove something off on their customers, but are merely paying their good money to tell you what they have and that they are offering you real savings if you will come and get them. If you pass up the advertisements, then you are not looking for places and times in which to save money.

SINGING AT COURTHOUSE NEXT SUNDAY

All Singing Societies Are Invited To Attend Meeting Sunday Afternoon

Beginning at 1 o'clock, there will be singing next Sunday afternoon at the court house. The new books will be used. All the societies of the county are expected to join in this singing, if there are no arrangements to go elsewhere.

The above agreement and announcement was made at the meeting of the Central Singing Society at Friendship last Sunday afternoon. All singers are asked to bear this in mind and bring your 1932 books to the courthouse next Sunday afternoon. Singing will begin at one o'clock and continue for about three hours. Don't be late.

A good singing was held at Friendship last Sunday afternoon, despite the very disagreeable weather. The crowd might have been larger, but the singing could not have been improved on much.

The next regular meeting of the society will be at Coopers the first Sunday in February.

Dief Tells Us That Tire Prices Are Off

L. E. Diefenderfer says don't run any more Goodyear ads for him unless we put the new prices in these ads. The ad man of the News found that he couldn't blame Dief, of Dief's Service Station for making that statement, as prices on Goodyear tires have dropped some according to the Goodyear ad which appears in this issue.

Dief's Service Station has just ordered a new schedule of ads on Goodyear tires to run in the News, and during the next few months these ads will appear at regular intervals.

INCIDENTAL FEES FOR SECOND SEMESTER DUE

Prof. I. J. Quinn, principal of the Clanton Grammar School announced Tuesday that incidental fees for the second half of the school term are now due.

At the opening of school, it was thought that only one half term would be taught, so only half fees were collected. But now that a full term is assured the fees for the second half are due.

Prof. Quinn stated that all pupils who could not pay this amount now due, they would appreciate the pupils seeing the principal and explaining his or her case.

ALABAMA POTATOES ARE WORTH $6,000,000

Alabama farmers produced over six million dollars worth of potatoes last year. To be exact, F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician reports $6,014,000 worth of potatoes produced. Sweet potatoes accounted for $3,448,000 of this amount and Irish potatoes for $2,566,000.

Farmers are urged to grow sufficient potatoes for home consumption this year but are warned that potatoes grown for commercial purposes will go on the market next spring in competition with a heavy storage supply from the last year, which will have a tendency to hold the prices on a low level.

Poultry Car Well Loaded In County

The cooperative poultry car which was in Chilton County last week, was well loaded, according to County Agent Stapp. The car received 3,033 pounds at Verbena, 14,215 pounds at Clanton and 7,961 pounds at Jemison.

This makes a total of 25,209 pounds of poultry sold at the car by Chilton County farmers. Cash was paid at the car door for this poultry amounting to a total of $3,338.08 for the entire car.

School Teachers Are Paid For November

Only one more months salaries are due teachers in Chilton County, according to information from the office of the superintendent of education here, and that is for December. However, next week, the teachers will be due for their work during this month, it was stated.

Tuesday, checks were mailed to school teachers in the county for their November salaries, amounting to approximately $14,000.00.

Search To Determine Who Has Oldest United States Coin In Chilton County Grows In Interest With Queer Exhibits

Chilton County has misers, did you know that? Old coins that have been showing up lately, due to stories in the News, show that people do save old pieces of money.

The age of the United States coins, both gold and silver, that have been brought to the News office during the past few days have ranged in ages from eighty years on up to one hundred and twenty-nine years.

Last week, Horsey White of Clanton, had the championship with a fifty cent piece dated 1812, or 120 years old.

Then others begin to show up. Dr. V. J. Gragg, of Clanton had a fifty cent piece that was thought to have been the oldest in captivity at this time in Chilton County. It was dated 1811, making it 121 years old, giving Dr. Gragg first place at that time.

Along with the coin mentioned, Dr. Gragg also showed two old coins, tied on a string, which he stated were used for him to cut his teeth on when a baby.. Can't say that those coins were so old, in a case like that. We believe, however, that Dr. Gragg has the best collection of coins shown so far.

Then comes John Maples, cashier of the Bank of Maplesville, Ala., with a perfectly good and well preserved fifty cents piece bearing a date of 1803. That makes that coin 129 years old. Figuring on a basis of years, it was coined when Thomas Jefferson was president of the United States, being the third president. This coin is very odd in its appearance, however it carries full value at this time. It is somewhat larger than the half dollars used now.

Mr. Maples stated he came in possession of the coin while in business in Georgia something like twelve years ago.

Curry Thomas, of Clanton comes forth this week with a rather aged one-cent piece, dated 1805, making the coin one hundred and twenty-seven years old.

S. E. Bruce, (Ed) brought some odd United States coins to the News office. These were two and three cent pieces. The three cent piece was silver, and much smaller than a dime, bearing a date of 1852, while the two cent piece was almost as large as a quarter, bronze, and bore a date of 1864.

Fred Howard Comes Forth

For awhile, it was thought that John Maples had won the diamond-studded mustache cup, but in comes Fred Howard, well known fruit grower of Thorsby, with the largest collection of old coins we have ever seen.

Mr. Howard also showed the oldest coin, a one-cent piece, dated 1798, making it one hundred and thirty-four years old. This coin is a large bronze piece, even larger than a quarter. Among the coins exhibited by Mr. Howard, a half-cent piece of copper and very large, dated 1806. A silver coin of twenty cents, dated 1875, and practically the same size as the twenty-five cent piece we use now. Mr. Howard also showed a large number of half-dimes, queer in their design.

One coin in Mr. Howard's possession had the words "Am I Not A Woman and A Sister," and dated 1838. Another coin carried the words "Millions for Defense, Not One Cent for Tribute." A Confederate piece of paper money, a five hundred dollar bill, was also in Mr. Howard's possession, as well as the small ten cent denominations of paper, known as "shin-plasters." These are described in the story about money in George Washington's time, elsewhere in this issue.

So, it seems that Mr. Howard is going to get the diamond-studded mustache cup. However, Mr. Howard does not have a mustache, and if given the cup, will, no doubt, have to cultivate one. Who can beat Mr. Howard in showing the oldest coin in United States money?

STRAWBERRY ACREAGE IS SLIGHTLY LARGER

Strawberry acreage in Alabama is slightly larger this year than last, reports F. W. Gist, statistician for the Department of Agriculture, who released an estimate giving the acreage of the State this year at 4,100 acres against 3,850 of last year.

Mr. Gist also showed an increase in the states which produce the early strawberry crop. "The early acreage is estimated at 45,730 acres against a harvested acreage of 40,500 last year.

"Moral Echoes" To Appear Weekly

Due to numerous requests coming to the News office, that the column, "Moral Echoes," be published every week, Dr. D. W. Haskew, author of the column, has consented to write it and beginning this week, this column will appear weekly in the News.

"Moral Echoes" has continuously grown in popularity and it is with a great deal of satisfaction that the News announces its publication of this interesting and inspiring column each week in the future. Dr. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, not only gives one an inspiration in his column, but brings out those subjects he deals with in a most unusual manner.

KIWANIS CLUB INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS HERE

John Hollis Elected President Of Local Club; Other Officers Named

Officers for 1932 for the Clanton Kiwanis Club were officially installed at a recent meeting. These officers include the president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, district trustee, board of directors, and the naming of the members of various committees in the service club.

John L. Hollis, of Mitchell Dam, was elected to serve as president of the Kiwanis Club for the year 1932. Mr. Hollis succeeds J. Mell Martin who has worked untiringly during the years of the life of the club. John Hollis, with his never-say-die spirit has added much to the life and interest of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, showing that he is one who is a leader in civic activities.

John C. Page, of the First National Bank, was elected to serve as vice-president of the club, succeeding Mack Wyatt. John Page has shown by his steady interest and work in the activities of the club that he is becoming well fitted, if not already so, for the PILOT CLUB ENJOYS A FINE SPEAKER TUES.

Alabama College Professor Spoke on Interesting Topic At Meeting

The members of the Clanton Pilot Club enjoyed one of the finest lectures of the season when, at the regular social meeting this week, Miss Olivia Lawson addressed the club on the topic, "Woman's Peculiar Place in Society."

Miss Lawson is an outstanding woman in the educational realm of the state, a member of the Board of Directors of the State P. T A., and she came last night representing the American Association of University Women in which association she is educational chairman in the Alabama College branch at Montevallo. Miss Lawson is quoted as saying: "Women do have a peculiar place in society, a place which can be filled by no one else. It is not our business to try to push men out of their jobs but to work along with them—both will be the stronger by working side by side." A very distinct point running through the lecture was this: "Whatever you do, whatever your walk of life, if you are a teacher be the best teacher that you know how to be and if you 'raise strawberries and peaches' do the best of that. Your job may seem small to some people but it is a big job to you and it will grow in importance as you put more of your own personality into it."

Other numbers on the program were contributed by members of the club: Miss Nell Wells favored the assembly with two popular selections—one of which she gently dedicated to Alma Allen. Short talks were made by Mrs. Mamie Smith. Mrs. Mary Martin, Misses Alma Allen, Delilah Kelly, and Mrs. Agnes McNair. Mrs. Gertrude Calloway presented the attendance prize, a box of chocolates, to Mrs. Mamie Smith who guessed the lucky number.. Mrs. Smith, in turn, presented the prize to the honor guest, Miss Lawson.

MRS. LILLIAN BELL OPENS GROCERY STORE IN CLANTON

Clanton has another new place of business in the grocery line. This new store is located in the quarters formerly occupied by the Southern Seed & Plant Co., near Mullins & Moore on the highway.

Mrs. Lillian Bell, who comes to Clanton from Pell City, is operating this grocery store and invites the people here to visit her place of business. Mrs. Bell has with her, her son, Joseph.

FREE TELEPHONE SERVICE ENDS AFTER FEBRUARY 1ST

The Board of Directors of the Peoples Telephone Company has set Monday, February 1st, as the last day on which telephone service will be given those who have not paid their fees. After that day, do not call central for admission through if you have not paid your fee.

The Board realizes that cash is short this year, but the central office cannot be run without some money. Many people have waited as long as possible about paying, which has made it hard to get along. So, everybody strain an extra point and pay your central fee. The office is going to operate regardless, but the more who pay, the better service can be given to everybody.—Jesse Baker, president; T. E. Wyatt, secretary; E. H. Mims, J. P. Jackson, and Jas. M. LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE OF GOODYEAR CO. ATTENDS BIG DISTRICT SALES CONFERENCE ON TIRES AT MEMPHIS

D. W. Sanford, Southern Division Manager, P. W. Litchfield, President and R. S. Wilson, vice president and Sales Manager of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Inc., who conducted the Tire Sales Meeting.

Mr. Lawrence Teijelo, sales representative for The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company for Clanton and surrounding territory, has arrived in Memphis, Tenn., where he will attend one of the largest conferences of the year in the automobile tire industry.

The conference was held at the Peabody Hotel on January 27 and 28, and was signalized by the presence of President P. W. Litchfield, who in addition to being an outstanding figure in the rubber industry, is directing the construction of the ZRS-5, sister ship of the U. S. S. Akron, recently completed for the Navy.

Mr. Litchfield, who has been connected with the rubber industry since his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1896 and who joined Goodyear four years later as superintendent, is making firsthand study of dealers' problems and of car owners' interests.

The conference lasted two days and covered various phases of merchandising and distribution. R. S. Wilson, vice president in charge of sales; J. E. Mayl, manager of tire sales; D. W. Sanford, Division Manager; H. E. Blythe, assistant to the president, and other company executives attended the session.

An interesting figure is Litchfield one of the first technical men attracted to the rubber industry. He set up a small laboratory and designed the first Goodyear automobile tire. Going up the ranks as factory manager, vice president, and president since 1926, he has in that period directed the construction of nearly 200,000,000 tires, the largest number credited to any individual in the world: and from his experience as a production leader won the name in the industry of the tire master.

Within the last few years however he has come also into the title of the country's leading builder of lighter-than-air craft, some 1100 observation and training balloons and 110 airships having been built under his direction prior to the completion of the U. S. S. Akron. Mr. Litchfield's interest in aeronautics dates back to 1911 when the experiments of the Wright Brothers with airplanes and of Count Zeppelin with airships had gone far to convince a skeptical public opinion in Europe and America.

He set a little group of engineers to work, studying the subject, and in the following year began building balloons for the army and navy. In 1913 a Goodyear balloon team, Upson and Preston, won the James Gordon Bennett International balloon race, flying out of Paris.

The World War brought the building of a great hangar or airship dock at Wingfoot Lake, the construction there of aircraft and the training of 600 army and navy officers for the air service.

In 1926 Litchfield took over for his company the Zeppelin patents for North America, bringing to America Dr. Karl Arnstein, chief engineer of the Zeppelin plant at Friedrichshafen, along with 12 of his engineering experts, and set them to work on initial design of full size military and commercial airships.

The construction dock in which the Akron was assembled, was started in 1929, being the largest building in the world without interior supports. This huge building, 1200 feet long by 325 feet wide and 210 feet high, streamlined to reduce air disturbances, and having four great orange-peel doors, also streamlined and weighing 600 tons each, has been called almost as interesting an engineering feat as the building of the airship itself.

The conference which Mr. Litchfield attended is one of the series of eleven to be held over the country, outlining merchandising and advertising plans for the year.

One new product to be discussed is the Airwheel Tire, a great doughnut-shaped tire, introduced early last year for cars of the Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth class. The Airwheel Tire, originally designed by Goodyear in 1928 for airplanes and already having largely displaced the old high pressure tires for planes, has been adapted to automobiles, for car owners wanting maximum comfort or those having unusual road conditions to contend with.

It is a further extension of the balloon tire which has displaced the old high pressure tires for automobiles and is said to be the latest word in automobile comfort.

Mr. Litchfield is a great believer in newspaper advertising, a large share of the company's annual advertising appropriation since he became president being diverted to newspapers.

What God Is To Me

He gives His angels charge over me; He answers when I pray.
God is my all in all; beside him I have no other.
He is to orphans here on earth a father and a mother.
God is my sure defense; He is with me all the while.
Though the enemy encamp around, he cannot harm God's child.
God is the ruling power; He is with us as we go.
He gives us strength to fight and win the race. He conquers every foe.
God is the great I am. No one on earth but him
Can rescue us from death and hell and give us peace within.
God is a God of love. Today He is calling one and all.
Oh, won't you come to him dear friends obey His loving call.
God is a God of peace. Oh, how it grieves Him, friends,
To see His children go astray and wander off in sin.
God is the great Jehovah; no power can equal His.
He is the Lord of Heaven and earth; eternal life to us He gives.
God is the great physician; He doeth all things well.
The blessings He has in store for us, no human tongue can tell.
God is the God of all flesh; there is nothing too hard for him to do,
If we will do His will, He will carry us safely through.
God will keep us through His grace and power while we tarry here below.
When He see fit to call us away we will rest in heaven with Him and with loved ones gone before.
Oh, won't you come to Him today; obey His loving call.
He will fold you to His bosom, friends, He will save you, one and all.

ISABELLA F. F. A. HISTORY

I shall endeavor to give you a bit of history of our F.F.A. Chapter and some of the things it has accomplished since its origin. The many things the chapter has done would be numerous to mention and since I am not capable of getting these facts together, I will attempt to give you only a few of the outstanding accomplishments.

Four years ago the Agriculture boys of Isabella started their struggle for an active F.F.A. Chapter. The entire organization was new and only the boys of the advanced class became interested in its purpose and principles. A chapter was begun by electing officers and enrolling chapter members and our present chapter is the result of the work these few boys did. The chapter did not at first thrive in accordance with the spirit of our present work, but it was not capable of advancement under its system of leadership. The state did not hold a charter and nothing was obtained outside the local chapter. Under these handicaps the boys struggled along with their newborn organization, trying to arouse interest among the school boys and carry out the plans they had made. As time passed by the work became almost discouraging and when school closed, the F.F.A. work was forgotten.

Upon the opening of the following school term, F.F.A. was begun with a bang. The state had obtained a charter and for the first time the local chapters were in a position to succeed. Isabella was represented at the first state meeting and we were fortunate in having one of the state officers here in our chapter. The local boys elected officers and immediately drew up plans for educational programs and school improvement. Several new members were initiated and a charter was obtained for the chapter.

The school improvement program was begun by the installation of an electric water system in the building. Following F.F.A. plans the school obtained necessary material and soon the boys had the system in readiness with an electric pump in a neighboring well to supply water.

Next, the chapter turned its thoughts to the beautification of the school grounds. Level ground was known to be essential to a good campus and since the building is located on a slope it was necessary to employ some methods of grading down the slope so it would be suitable for a lawn. In order to support the embankment, the lattice in front on the building was replaced by a brick wall and excuvating was done until the ground immediately in front of the building was almost level. The next step was to plant grass and shrubbery on the lawn and around the building. Bermuda grass was transplanted on the lawn and grounds and with the help of the Farm Bureau, shrubbery was obtained at a reduced price. With the assistance of a landscape specialist from Auburn, shrubbery was set as a border around the main building and radiating out to the Agriculture building.

During this second year the chapter also sponsored a campaign for new members. Entertainments were given and the Agriculture boys were invited to attend. The value of the organization in education and social life was impressed on the boys and good were the results of these efforts.

At the close of the scond year it was evident that our F.F.A. chapter was on the road to success. A delegation was sent to the state Convention and again we were fortunate in being represented on the executive committee of the state.

The third year was probably the greatest in the chapter's history. The boys had taken a keen interest in the work and everything was in harmony with the F.F.A. spirit. A comittee of live wire officers were elected and plans for the year were drawn up. The boys decided that they must cooperate with the Home Economics Dept. and immediately entered into this work. One of the first problems solved for the Home Ec. Girls was the provision for unit kitchens. These unit kitchens were necessary to carry on the different lines of work. By use of pipe and pipe fittings the boys divided the department into separate units.

The Bermuda grass which had been planted the previous year had been seriously damaged by the drouth and some temporary substitute was needed until the Bermuda could obtain a new growth. It was decided to use Italian Rye Grass and when these seeds were sown and fertilized, we had a smooth, green lawn throughout the year.

The importance of cooperation between parents and children became evident and plans were discussed to show our parents the details of the work we were carrying on. It was decided to sponsor a Father and Son Banquet. Realizing the equal importance of parental approval to the Home Ec. Club Girls and since it would help the two organizations to work in harmony, it was decided to sponsor the banquet jointly with the Home Economics girls. Preparations were made and approximately one hundred and sixty persons attended. The program was outlined to give our parents a better understanding of our work and an evening of enjoyable entertainment.

This year the chapter's work has been centered on school improvement. A number of tables have been constructed for the primary Dept. and the study hall. A considerable sum was saved on this project. In the Primary Department alone, a total of ten tables were at an approximate cost of two dollars each, whereas, had they have been purchased from a manufacturer, they would have cost ten dollars each.

Our membership has grown until it stands with the state average and we hope to soon have the Agriculture Dept. one hundred per cent F.F.A. Most of our boys hold the Future Farmer's Degree of National Farmer.

Our work at present is handicapped by the depression but our hopes are running high and we are determined to make our chapter outstanding in its accomplishments.

What Will The Groundhog See?

Next Tuesday will be Candlemas Day. For some reason or other this ancient church holiday has long been associated with weather forecasts. A very old English folk rhyme runs thus:

> If Candlemas be overcast,
> Then the heft of winter's past.
> If Candlemas be clear and bright,
> Then winter'll take another flight.

Out of the belief that if the sun shines on Candlemas Day we are in for six weeks more of cold weather has arisen the American myth of the ground-hog which is supposed to come out of his hole on February 2nd and pop right back again if he sees his shadow.

These are, of course, purely northern myths, from the regions of ice and heavy snows. There is usually, about this time of the year, in the northern latitudes, what is called locally "the February thaw." Several deceptively mild days do often bring woodchucks and even bears out of their winter hibernation, and once in a long time mild weather continues right into spring. But so far as we can find out, nobody ever caught the ground-hog in the act of looking for his shadow, and nobody has ever proved that the condition of the skies on Candlemas Day determines how much longer we may expect cold weather.

There seem to be some indications that the financial and economic skies will seem a good deal brighter on Candlemas of this year than they did last year, and we only hope that people will stop being scared of their shadows about February 2nd and put themselves and their money back to the sort of honest, hard work which is the only road back to prosperity.

Friendly Fires Start Unfriendly Fires

America has encountered its usual seasonal problem this year—that of keeping warm without burning up.

Fires started by faulty heating systems spread rapidly and are extremely hazardous to property. The number of such fires increases with the coming of cold weather, according to The National Board of Fire Underwriters, which also reports that fires from all causes take an annual toll of 10,000 lives and almost a half billion dollars in property in America. In the average dwelling the soot which is permitted to accumulate in the chimney and heating plant not only impairs their efficiency but is an actual fire hazard. Chimneys may develop cracks, furnaces and stoves may need parts replaced, pipes may rust out and develop holes which would permit sparks to escape. These or similar problems are also found in other buildings, but on a larger scale. Other factors which would make for safety are placing ashes in metal containers instead of wood boxes or cartons, and keeping paper and rubbish away from stoves or furnaces.

Sometimes when houses are built, pipes are placed too close to burnable materials or the heating system is improperly installed. Specifications for correct installation of these plants and the building of chimneys may be obtained from local inspection bureaus or insurance agents. When the heating element is electricity, oil or gas, an entirely new series of problems is developed, and unless the appliances comply with the standard specifications of Underwriters' Laboratories and are maintained correctly, destructive fires may result.

If every property owner would become his own fire inspector, the fire loss could be permanently reduced overnight.

The "Power Issue" Farce

There really is no such thing as a "power issue."

The real issue goes far deeper than "power." It is this: Shall we throw overboard the American principle of individualism in business in favor of alien theories of government ownership?

The power companies are used as a blind to hide the real issue. If there are abuses in the make-up of electric companies or any other industries, they can be easily corrected by law and the courts. There is no need to use the financial power of government to destroy an industry which represents billions of dollars of private money invested by millions of individuals, employs thousands of workers, pays a gigantic sum in taxes and has been a leader in the development of the nation.

Everyone is directly interested in the real issue. Its final settlement, which ever way it goes, will affect all businesses, all workers. The hand of the bureaucrat never ceases to grasp for more power. The stultifying influence of politics is never localized. At present the electric utilities are the target for an attack which is socialistic in principle, no matter what other label the attackers travel under. The public will be the judge—and its findings will determine the future of the nation.

That's not a very good quotation this week, but is the best I could think of, being somewhat ill, and under the weather.

Now comes the Great Dooker Pooker of The Coal Bin in The Birmingham News, with another of his brilliant ideas, and pays C. G. N. a compliment, which is appreciated by me. Dooker has recently become somewhat interested (or enticed) in the Pilot Club of Clanton, and he unconsciously or consciously refers to them, now and then, either directly or indirectly.

Here's what he has to say in The Coal Bin recently:

Yeh, Dooker, But You Find More Hermits Outside Of Small Towns Than You Do Just Outside of Large Cities

"Chief: In order to keep properly informed on matters in general and the activities of the Wimmin's Pilot Club (which may at any time move to put a stop to wars) in particular, I read regular one of Alabama's leadin' *weeklies, which, by the way is edited (and ably so) by the youngest editor in the state. Recently I noticed in it a good article about life in the small town.

"Now, Chief, I have lived in cities of several million and several thousand. In the cities, the people interest themselves in things and seldom know families living right in the same apartment building with them. We lived for several years in a 24-flat building. One day a member of the family across the hall from us became suddenly ill. We met them when we called and offered our assistance and became good friends. Then one night the family in the apartment directly over us got to makin' lots of racket, so the International Authority rapped on the wall and they quieted down. We met them when they came down the next morning to apologize. But we didn't know who the others were who were living in our building—and frankly, we didn't give a darn. Many of our friends lived 15 miles across the city.

"There are many things to interest city folks, such as wonderful theaters, stores, parks, libraries, and many other things the like of which are not found in small towns. But there are lots of things in small towns that city folks never see. Lots of children in the city never saw a cow or a pig.

"But in the small town, the folks interest themselves in each other and are, therefore, happier than their city cousins. By their daily contact and association, they find fellowship with each other, and there naturally follows the basis of all happiness: brotherly love.—DOOKER POOKER.

"Vociferously biting fish." Boy, that's a new one on me. I might ask The Man On The Corner just what species of fish do that kind of biting, if so, when. I have never questioned the veracity of the writer of the column referred to above, but this time I am "stumpt" and admit it. Could I believe the marvelous tale of these "loud biting" little fish he wrote about last week, I might be inclined to have the same inclination about joining the boys. "Vociferously biting fish" are remarkable—in fact, marvelous and The Man On The Corner should not allow an opportunity like this to pass by without capitalizing on his find. But anyway, one is likely to find most anything here in Chilton County.

Speaking of fish tales, The Man On The Corner has capped the climax, and no one else should attempt to tell one superior.

Sauntering Around Town After Midnight And At Other Times

The gossip about town is not so enlightening or encouraging, and appears to be hit by the "depression." But I'll deal with some of it, which is not exactly gossip, and won't be until this is printed, if so.

I've been seeing a Dodge automobile going out west of Clanton quite a bit lately. Not that it means anything, but one never can tell the attractiveness of blonde hair and its effect on some "gentlemen". And that the heavy fog lately at night acted as a camouflage to a Buick sedan recently as well as the parties in the car. The dances held here are beginning to create gossip among the "gossip hounds" and something. That the small parties formed at intermissions are a little too open with their activities. The shortage of eligible young ladies in Clanton causes an increase in gasoline business here. And the blonde in the coupe with two men the other night, made a mistake. Was she regretting it? Somebody certainly drinks good liquor in Clanton judging from empty bottles found. I wonder where they get it, and how much it cost. That a change from a Ford coupe to a Chevrolet has caused some confusion in certain circles round town. A Buick sedan is being seen quite a bit parked in front of a certain house here lately. That same car is not being parked at night in front of house where it has been seen frequently. And the same car goes north quite often. Where to? Certain young men no doubt feel "let-down" since news of a certain marriage has been known. Barnum was right. Gossip about a certain business man doesn't sound good nor safe. That a party of two couples arrived home in the early hours of the morning with a lot of talking and laughing going on. Oh, well, so the world wags.

Important Year For Democrats

This year is an important year for the Democrats. This statement is being made throughout the United States and in all sincerity. The people are going to decide this year whether they are to have four more years of administration of President Hoover and his crowd. This year will present an opportunity to the people to have a change in national government and Chilton County shares in this opportunity.

Those who are of age have until the first of next month to pay their poll tax. This should be done and not allowed to run over as the time will come when you will want to cast your ballot on various questions arising. Don't become disfranchised because you failed to pay your poll tax.

Letters To The Editor

HARMAN REPLIES TO OLIVER

o

Editor, Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Sir:

My attention has been called to a letter in your valued issue of Thursday, January 21, 1932, from Mr. H. B. Oliver, Verbena, wherein Mr. Oliver asks the question "Has anyone heard of a call by Dr. Harman to all officials and employees in the Educational Department to meet in his office in the City of Montgomery and decide as to whether this meeting would be as loyal and self-sacrificing as those attending the first meeting, and leave their pay in the treasury until such time as all could share in the pay rolls."

The State Department of Education does not receive or pay out public moneys, the only exception being certain sums of money received from the foundations, as for instance, the General Education Board and the Rosenwald Fund.

On page 18 of the December issue of the Alabama School Journal appears a statement showing that of the funds available for the State Department of Education only six thousand dollars or less than 4 per cent of the whole amount available might under any circumstances, as the law now stands, be used to operate the public schools. That is, if Mr. Oliver's generous suggestion were observed, in the course of a year six thousand dollars now going to the State Department of Education might be available for the public school teachers of Alabama.

The officials and employees of the State Department of Education are paid in the same way as other officials and employees of the State government. Until such time as the State fails to pay its other officials and employees, I can see no equity or justice, even though it might be a fine demagogical gesture, to waive payment to the officials and employees of the Department of Education without benefit to the schools of the State.

My answer to Mr. Oliver's question, therefore, is that I have not called the officials and employees in the Educational Department into this office to decide as to whether they shall waive payment of their salaries and I am not going to. In view of the facts above stated I trust this matter to the sound and fair judgment of the people of the State.

Respectfully yours,
A. F. HARMAN,
State Superintendent of Education.

A HINT TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT

o

Editor, Chilton County News:

Where is the cause of our trouble? Who dares put all the blame on our president? He is just one. If he could manage every business man in the United States sufficiently to bring about such a panic it is not reasonable to suppose that he would do so. Is the present president the only one the people have hated? No. Remember that just such selfish hate resulted in murder—the killing of three good presidents—and that isn't all, how many hated President Wilson! He died a sacrifice to the people of the United States. His health was broken under the trial of trying to meet the demands of a nation. Many people loved him devotedly. Others hated him and murmured against him. Going farther back, even God's choice of a leader for his people was scorned by them. Begin in Exodus and read on through Exodus and see what was said about murmuring against Moses. Then keep on reading. In Numbers 14th chapter is recorded what happened to these same murmurers.

Seems it is going to take a long siege of hard times to humble people. If each one of us would examine himself, he would find the trouble. We are trying to feed our fat bodies while our lean souls are starving to death—eternal death. God loves us and wants to save these poor souls of ours, but do we let him? Think of the great preaching we have had in our county and yet we go on with our card parties, moving picture jazz, abusing the rulers of our people, filling our newspapers with reading matter that makes the heart of a Christian ache. Three hundred decisions for Christ in the revival was good but how many more should have decided. We must keep on praying, keep up the revival spirit and not let the evil one catch the good seed that were sown.

A READER.

MONEY IN WASHINGTON'S DAY

Most of us are so absorbed in collecting the coins of today that we take it for granted that money has always existed in the United States. Currency of various sorts did early supplant our first settlers' methods of barter, but what, for example, was the sort of money in circulation during George Washington's Presidency?

Many will be surprised to learn from the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission that the then new United States Government issued only what the people of that day called "hard money"—that is, currency in gold, silver, and copper.

They had good reason for this performance. The paper money issued by the Continental Congress during the Revolution had become deflated to the point where General Washington complained that it "took a wagon-load of money to purchase a wagon-load of provisions."

In the day of deliverance, when the country was free and the new Government of the United States was set up, the people wanted no more of paper money. Curiously enough, these early "shin-plasters" of the Colonies has now in the eyes of collectors a value unheard of in the days of its actual use. This modern value further grows from the fact that some of it came from the presses of Benjamin Franklin and Paul Revere, who had been commissioned by their respective colonies to strike off such money.

A typical specimen of this paper, issued by Connecticut during the Revolution, reads:— "ONE POUND. The possessor of this Bill shall be paid by the Treasurer of the Colony of Connecticut TWENTY SHILLINGS, Lawful Money, by the First Day of January, A. D. 1781. By Order of the Assembly, Hartford, June 7th, 1776."

In a word, it was a promissory note, and popular faith in the promise early waned, as probably none was ever redeemed in specie.

By 1780 this paper had been issued in denominations of dollars and cents, as well as in shillings and pounds. This early dollar, by the way, was the Spanish peso, the silver "piece of eight," made famous in pirate yarns.

Visitors to Washington during the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration will see in the Smithsonian Institution a full display of this early paper, along with the "hard money" of the Washington Administration. About three specimens are preserved from each of the Colonies, each specimen with its characteristic "vignette" from which developed the conventional designs on the paper money of today.

The mottoes on some of these decorations sometimes expressed refreshing political candor. One three dollar Continental bill carries the frank statement, "Exitus in dubio est." And so that the holder himself need be in no fog in the matter, an English translation was added: "This issue is in doubt." The holder was left in doubt, nevertheless, as to which issue was shaky, the War of Independence or the value of that particular bill.

As to the "hard money" that officially replaced this paper, Robert Morris was ordered by Congress in 1782 to report on the foreign coins circulating in the United States, with a plan for an American coinage. Through the efforts of Morris, Jefferson and Hamilton a mint was authorized, and in 1792 President Washington approved a bill establishing such a mint, the first in the United States, located in Philadelphia.

The smallest coin then issued was the copper half-cent, with the figure of Liberty on one side, a wreath on the other. Next came the cent, a silver half-dime, the dime, quarter, half, and dollar as we know them today. On the silver coins an eagle was placed within the wreath on the back. Indeed visitors will be struck by the fact that our metal coins of today have changed so little from these first designs.

The gold coins, by the way, the quarter-eagle, half-eagle, and eagle, took the name "eagle" from this first use of the national bird as a decoration or symbol.

14 Men Wait For Death At Kilby

More prisoners are at Kilby Prison now awaiting execution than have ever been on hand before at the same time in the history of that institution. The total of the condemned is 14, according to the official records of Warden Geo. P. Walls. Another is soon to be added increasing the total to 15, as soon as sentence is pronounced on Willie Peterson, negro, convicted last Saturday in Birmingham by a jury which recommended the death penalty, of criminal assault and murder of a young white woman, and the shooting to death of another woman.

Heading the list of condemned now at Kilby, all of whom are negroes, are the eight men convicted at Scottsboro of criminally assaulting two white girls. Others and the crimes for which they are under sentence of death, together with the name of the county where they were convicted follow: Charlie Williams, Mobile, murder; Lee Ferguson, Shelby County, murder; Dave Ballard, Butler County, murder of a deputy sheriff; Isaac Mims, Percy Irvin and Robert Strickland, Lowndes County, robbery. The eight negroes convicted at Scottsboro are Charlie Weems, Clarence Norris, Heywood Patterson, Olen Montgomery, Andy Wright, Eugene Williams, Willie Roberson and Ozie Powell.

All of the 14 men under sentence of death who are now confined at Kilby, have appeals pending in the Alabama Supreme Court except Charlie Williams, alias Frank Nettles, alias "Red," Williams who was convicted of the murder of Annice Gibson, negro woman, and sentenced to pay the extreme penalty, took an appeal to the Supreme Court, which affirmed judgment of the trial court and set Friday, Jan. 15 as the date for his execution. He was thereafter given a hearing before Gov. Miller and the State Board of Pardons in connection with his application for executive clemency. The Pardon Board unanimously declined to recommend commutation in the case and Gov. Miller declared that the law must take its course.

Harvey R. Young, Advertising Director of The Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, says:

That towns and cities are just what the citizens of the community see fit to make them. If the people residing there are sold on their town and its industries and retail stores, they will show it both by word and act.

It is unfortunate that so many people are laboring under the impression that it is necessary for them to make a large share of their purchases of commodities in larger cities than in their own. The retail merchants will gladly carry the complete stocks of everything the community wants if they are patronized so as to justify stocking of certain styles and character of merchandise.

Every dollar spent out of your city is a dollar lost and it effects one way or another every individual. It behooves you to subscribe and read your newspaper and furthermore to read and respond to the advertising that is carried in your newspaper.

Suppose there would be no newspapers for your city. What kind of a town would you have? The minute such a sensational announcement that the newspapers were going to cease publication in your city were to be made, the entire population would be up in arms, begging the publisher to continue—that "they must have a newspaper."

Through the advertising columns of your newspaper, you have all the up-to-date news of the stores. You can not only do your advance shopping and save time in the purchasing of wearing apparel, things for the home, but you can cut down your food and grocery bill by buying advertised products.

Newspaper advertising has long since ceased to be an experiment. When a single tobacco company will invest $10,000,000 in one year in newspaper advertising, it is evidence that both men and women read advertising. Last March in Brooklyn, N. Y., the May Specialty Shop sold 15,000 dresses in a single day from a single newspaper advertisement. The crowds were so congested and so large when this sale opened that 25 women were injured. Not only retailers but the manufacturers throughout the United States are showing their appreciation for advertising. One agency invested for its clients in 1930 $50,000,000 in advertising and a large share of this was placed in the newspapers.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

NINTH INSTALMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York The mornig after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel lougers. They wire the company they have been married.

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register. They find Rackruff Motors have arranged a public reception and dance for them. They are deluged with presents.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY..

When Peter went out for a look around town she hurried away with her share of the wedding presents in search of a pawn-shop, where she left them securely locked away from danger of theft or loss, and stopped for an express money order on her way home.

There wasn't enough money for the suit but she bought a new, frilly collar and cuff set to brighten up the old one which she extravagantly sent down to the hotel cleaners for pressing. She had a small electric iron and a folding board in her big suitcase, but she felt some hesitancy about resorting to such an economy with Peter in the sitting-room.

The reception was a huge success. The best people in their best clothes were properly impressed. Peter and Rowena in a mound of flowers in the Rackruff roadster were photographed for the local papers, interviewed by representatives of the press, and congratulated on every hand. Peter was given a pearl-studded cigarete lighter, which worked successfully, and Rowena a wrist-watch with the same design in chip diamonds. She accepted it with a glowing smile and inner regret that she had not had it earlier in the day to provide the coveted suit.

Mr. Meeker told her confidentially that the only reason he had not told her about the wrist watch was because they had evidently planned it as an after-thought and he hadn't heard of it.

When the reception was over they were driven triumphantly back to the hotel in a procession of Rackruff roadsters, so that a considerable crowd gathered in the streets to cheer them on.

"Peter, don't you love it?" demanded Rowena when they were again alone in the bridal suite—alone, but with the door noticeably ajar. "Don't you adore being a husband? Aren't you glad we got married? Why, if I had known it was such fun I'd have been married dozens of times before this."

Peter waited in the lobby downstairs while she dressed for the big affair of the day, and when she was ready he took possession of the bed-room and bath while she sat in the flower-filled sitting-room—the door into the corridor wide open, you may be sure—and wrote a long gay letter to Buddy, enclosing the money order. At seven o'clock Mr. Meeker called to escort them down in person. He brought a huge corsage of orchids and orange blossoms for Rowena and a gardenia for Peter's buttonhole.

"Guess we better let her stick it in for you," said Mr. Meeker. "Seems like it gives more of a bridal touch to things."

Rowena rose to the occasion. She kissed the gardenia prettily and then flicked it coquettishly on Peter's chin before she tucked it carefully into the lapel of his coat—all this to the beaming delight of Mr. Meeker and the confusion of Peter.

Flushing with rosy pride, Mr. Meeker led them down to the reception-room and introduced them once more to all the Rackruff dealers and their wives, and then to the gentlemen of the press—and editors and publishers among them, too, as well as mere reporters. The orchestra struck up the wedding march and Peter and Rowena, flanked by Mr. Meeker on one side and the head waiter on the other, led the procession into the ballroom for dinner. The seats designed for them were raised above the others in a royal mound of white roses. This, Mr. Meeker explained in a loud whisper, represented the solitaire diamond of an engagement ring, which was typified by the rest of the tables ranging the full extent of the hall in a great circle.

Never had Rowena been so beautiful. Her lovely lips quivered sensitively. Under the table she felt about with the toe of a silver slipper until she found Peter's foot to press when she wished to call his attention to anything particularly priceless that caught her eye or ear.

Peter stared and stared at her. Everyone else did, too, if it comes to that, but no one of all those present was so amazed and so bewildered by her beauty as Peter himself. Over and over again he had to remind himself that this radiant, exquisite creature, the cynosure of all eyes, whose sheer beauty fairly took away one's breath, was the very same crisp and curt Rowena who kept such a stubborn finger on the steering wheel of their trip.

When dinner was over and he danced with her for the first time he was startled and stirred to discover that she was a feather in his arms; that her gleaming hair was fragrant as flowers; her skin velvet to his touch—and that she seemed to melt into the music like music itself.

"Rowena," he whispered, "it's great isn't it?—Really, it's just corking!"

"It's gorgeous, Peter, it's glorious! And, oh, darling, think how they're going to feel in a couple of months when they read in the papers about the annulment and know it was all a farce! Won't they go down—plop!—like a flat tire?"

"I suppose so," he assented soberly. "Looking at it that way, it seems rather a low trick to play on them. They mean so well."

"But it was Rackruff got us into it —it isn't our fault," she protested.

They danced through the ball with a display of domestic devotion that was thoroughly convincing. At two o'clock when it was over they went, laughing, up-stairs to the bridal suite and while he changed quickly from formal to street dress, she lounged in full display in the sitting-room before the chaperonage of an open door.

When he went in to say good night he sat down on the arm of her big chair and cuddled her bright head, roughly, in his arm.

"Why put me out, Rowena?" he began in a wheedlesome voice. "After all, we are married. And I fancy we're going to have the devil's own time convincing any sane judge that there was nothing to it but the ceremony."

"My judge will believe it."

"If he does," said Peter moodily, "he's going to think what a damfool I am.— Anyhow, it's been a nice night and there's more of it. We've had a lot of fun and a little more wouldn't do us any harm," he argued persuasively.

She laughed good-naturedly. "I've had all the fun I can stand for one night. Run along, darling, and be sure to get a receipt that will confound the skeptics."

Thorsby Institute News

The first semester examinations begin Thursday and Friday of this week. The second semester begins Monday, February first.

A goodly crowd of Institute students and teachers went down to see the basketball game between Thorsby and Clanton, Friday night, January 23. Tho always on the short end, the Institute boys gave a good account of themselves and made the game more interestihg than the final score of 29-17 would indicate. The Institute team consisted of Carmel Snow, Ralph Pate, Oliver Lyon, Phares Raybon, Charles Cleckler, and Brady Billingsley. Littlejohn and Popwell, Chilton center and guard, were high scorers.

A recent letter from Dean J. C. Rogers of Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., where aside from former graduates of T. I. four of last year's graduating class are freshman, says, "For a number of years Thorsby Institute has been sending some wonderfully fine students and young people to Piedmont College. We hope that several members of the 1932 class will find their way to us. Miss Jenkins and the entire staff are to be congratulated on the excellent work that is being done."

The Christian Endeavor met last Sunday evening. The topic was "What Jesus Teaches About Truth." Many good points were brought out on this subject. Any time you find it convenient, drop in to give us a visit. We meet regularly at 6:30 P. M. each Sunday evening at the Congregational Church.

Getting Started With Kudzu Hay

More farmers than ever before are anxious to start a few acres of kudzu to help supply their hay needs and also to furnish grazing for livestock. Unfortunately kudzu crowns are very scarce thus seriously limiting not only the acreage that will be set in the spring of 1932 but also the acreage that will be set in the next few years.

To meet the situation it is recommended that small areas of good land or land highly fertilized with phosphate and manure be set with such crowns as may be available so that a dense growth can be secured in a short time. From this area crowns can be procured for for future plantings. An ideal place for such planting is on low land where soil has been washed in above a terrace or rock dam. A good stand can be secured much more easily if crowns are taken immediately after digging, and set in the field.

All available crowns where kudzu is being used as a porch vine should be procured. Crowns can sometimes be found along road banks or at old house sites.

1. When to plant. Planting February 15 to March 15 has been satisfactory.

2. What to plant. Set well-developed two year old or older crowns which have a bud or growing point. Kudzu seldom produces seed, therefore the crop must be propagated by means of crowns.

3. How to plant. Set crowns in open furrow; carefully pack the dirt around crowns leaving the bud just above the soil surface.

Digging holes about twelve inches deep with a post hole digger and setting the crowns in these holes is frequently practiced.

4. What spacing. Crowns are usually set ten feet apart each way, requiring 435 crowns to set an acre. A good start can be made in less time by spacing five feet apart each way. If home grown crowns are available the thicker spacing is advisable.

Very successful plantings have been made in furrows six feet apart and applying liberally phosphate and manure. A row of corn is planted between each row of the kudzu. Cultivating the corn thus cultivates the kudzu. In addition the corn will give some returns from the land.

Interplanting with soy beans will help protect the young kudzu plants from rabbits.

6. When to mow. Allow the kudzu to grow two years before mowing. If the soil is very poor allow it to grow three season before mowing.

7. Fuller information can be had by reading circular number 57, Kudzu in Alabama, published by the Alabama Experiment Station.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Those joining the Methodist church last Sunday on profession are Clinton Arnold, Frances Popwell, James Arnold, Eloise Burdett, Dorothy Arnold and Lamerle DeLoach. We were glad to welcome these into the fellowship of our church.

Next Sunday we have a full day and an interesting program. Sunday school at 9:45 and preaching at 11 A. M. by the pastor. Do not leave your place vacant. No one can fill it but you. At the Sunday school hour, Rev. E. C. Evans will give his last address before the Men's Bible Class. He has recently been promoted to the position as State manager of the Woodmen of the World in Kentucky. His going grieves us, but we rejoice in his promotion.

Sunday night at seven o'clock Dr. N. B. McLeod will preach for us, and after the service he will hold our first Quarterly Conference. We urge that the membership of the church see to it that the stewards have a good report.

Marbury F. F. A. News

The Marbury Chapter of the Future Farmers of America met Wednesday night, January 20th. Only ten members were present, the lowest attendance this year. Melvin Manley and Myron Manley made application for membership at this meeting.

The president called the chapter to order and a new type of program was presented. This program was, "A Mock Trial of a Soil Robber." The members participating were Gray Peek, Judge; Walter Peek, Sheriff; Herschel Dennis, Prosecuting Attorney; Dovard Tatum, Defense Attorney; Pierce Culver, Clerk of Court; B. L. Martin, Jack Price, Blan, Earl Peek and Jake Graves, Witnesses; Ralph Culver, Foreman of Jury. The play was well presented and caused much merriment.

The business discussed was plans for an old time "Possum Hunt," for the members and their friends. A committee was appointed to make the preparations. There beeing no further business, we adjourned.

IN MEMORIAM

The Methodist Protestant church of Shady Grove has again contributed to the throng of the white robed of "the church triumphant," in the death of one of our beloved sisters, Miss Ellen Mims.

In her quiet retiring life, she endeavored to follow the Master, and to walk in his footsteps. A faithful member of the church. Her cheery smile and voice are missed. She said that she was ready, and prayed a sweet prayer just before she passed on to her reward. Her going was not unexpected but at times we can scarcely realize she is no more with us. Her mother's death nineteen months ago left her so lonely, and in her loneliness she was drawn closer to her Savoiur, and learned to trust implicitly in him.

Her many friends sorrow today, not as those who have no hope, but believe if we are true to the same loving Savior, we shall one day meet her again among the redeemed who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the lamb.

bowel trouble

Constipation may very easily become chronic after forty. And any continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles and a host of other unpleasant disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. Whenever they need any help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, or when your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation

MT. PLEASANT DIVIDES DOUBLE HEADER WITH THOMAS JUNIOR

In two well played games last Friday afternoon the Mt. Pleasant boys won over the Thomas Jr. High boys, by the score of 26 to 13; while the Mt. Pleasant girls suffered their first loss of the season by the crafty playing of the Thomas girls, the count being 4 to 3. The girls' game was a hard fought contest, with the home girls taking an early lead, retaining it throughout the half, only to lose it in the closing minutes of the game. Velma Jones scored all 4 points for Thomas, while Annie Chambers with 2 points and Ethel Traywick with 1, completed the Mt. Pleasant score.

The boys' game was far more interesting than one would judge by reading the score. The Thomas boys made a great stand to ward off the Mt. Pleasant attack, but Curtis Traywick proved their undoing when he swept back and forth across the court making difficult shots seem easy in registering his 22 points for the game. This little lad made every shot count during the first half. He made 7 shots from the field, good for 14 points and then made good his three foul shots, giving him a total of 17 for the first half. His brother, Cecil, with 2 and Burnett with 2 rounded out their tallying for the afternoon.

Wilson was high point man for the visitors, getting 6 points to his credit. T. C. Wilson, with 3, came next, and Roland and G. Wells rung up 2 each, for their total of 13.

At the intermission the count was 21 to 5, which led the home team to relax in their playing. Several substitutes were run in and each gave a creditable account of themselves. The boys on both teams deserve commendation for the good sportsmanship qualities which they displayed throughout the game. About 300 witnessed the game.

Mt. Pleasant goes to Union Grove next Friday afternoon. A stiff battle can always be assured when these two teams meet.

Then, on the following day, Saturday, both teams from Mt. Pleasant go to Calera to meet the Calera boys and girls. These games will be at night. The girls being called at 7:00 P. M. and the boys at 8:00. A large crowd is planning on going, for these games should prove a battle of skill. The Calera Jr. high boys have sent several senior high teams down to defeat and in presenting a strong team both defensive and offensive, the Mt. Pleasant boys will find it no easy task to win over them.

Two trucks and several private cars will carry the Mt. Pleasant representatives. These games will be knockouts. Everyone interested should by all means see them.

Concord School News

Last Wednesday afternoon Concord Independents played Thomas Independents on the latter's court and carried back home a victory of 20 to 6. Chester Wyatt and Bice made highest points for Concord, Baker next highest, followed by Howard Wyatt. Easterling hasn't forgotten how to guard as was displayed in this game.

George Wilson was the leader of high points for Thomas, followed by Kelly. Lansford, Thornton and Wilson were always on the dot making the game more interesting.

Last Friday afternoon Union Grove school team and Independents came down and played a double-header with Concord school team and Independents, consecutively.

Union Grove school team ended the game with a score of 23 to 3 in their favor. The Concord boys did some splendid playing, and we are proud of them.

Concord "Independents" stepped in and ended the game with a score of 12 to 5 in their favor.

Both teams did some fine playing which made the games more interesting.

On next Friday afternoon, January 29, Concord plays Baker on the latter's court. Let's be loyal to our team and go see the game.

Wadesonian Announces Another Good Program For Clanton During Coming Week In Pictures

The management of the Wadesonian Theatre announces another good program of pictures for the coming week, according to their program as shown elsewhere in this issue of the News.

Crowds thronged the theatre to see the picture "The King of Jazz" last week, and now comes two other pictures of special mention to theatre goers. These pictures are "The Last Parade" and "Fanny Foley Herself."

"The Last Parade" with Jack Holt, Tom Moore, Constance Cummings, Gaylord Pendleton and Robert Ellis, will be shown at the Wadesonian on Monday and Tuesday, February 1st and 2nd. This picture is a story of gangsters, when two men love the same girl. Can they still remain friends? This picture will give you an insight into racketeer methods, with plenty of action, and a good love story going along with it.

"Fanny Foley Herself" might be said to be one of the best feature comedies shown here in many months. Edna May Oliver, the star of this picture, was the comedy hit in "Cimarron." She was the home town gossip in that picture and is said to be better in "Fanny Foley Herself" which will be shown at the Wadesonian next Wednesday, Thursday, February 3rd and 4th.

With Edna May Oliver, plays John Darrow, Helen Chandler, Hobart Bosworth and Rochelle Hudson. See this picture and you will get many laughs with tears in your eyes. It is a show with all the robust humor that men demand—plus a deep human understanding that strikes to the heart of women.

FIRE DAMAGES BUILDING IN THORSBY LAST FRIDAY

Fire, reported as of undertermined origin, damaged the building where the Thorsby Drug Co., is located, with the Masonic Hall in the second story, last Friday night early.

The blaze apparently was confined in the ceiling of the first floor, about the center of the building, on the left. Heavy smoke hampered those who were endeavoring to locate the flames. A call was sent to Clanton for the fire department, which arrived about the time the blaze had been extinguished. No serious damage was reported done by the fire.

SPECIAL SERVICE TO FORD OWNERS

Clanton Motors Announce Service In Ad In This Issue Of News

Owners of Ford automobiles have offered to them now, a special service in the care of their car, according to Mr. T. J. Littlejohn, manager of Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers. Clanton Motors announces in this issue of the News their special service in washing, polishing, and doping of automobiles brought to their place.

This service, however, does not only include the items named above, but totals nineteen different operations, and a complete check-over of the automobile by their trained workmen. In other words when you take your car to their place to be Alemited, washed, oil changed, etc., they give you these nineteen operations, and tell you if there is anything else needed for your car.

Included in the ad from Clanton Motors is a list of bargains in used cars, and the announcement that they have cut prices on all parts for Model T Fords, forty-per cent.

Clanton Motors is an authorized Ford agency, and Julius "Rip" Burnett of that concern, states that once you become acquainted with Ford Service, then you will readily begin to see your savings. See their ad in this issue of the News for further information in regard to these items.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An Evangelist came to town for a two weeks meeting. Along with him he brought two hundred new song books. They were just off the press, and were clean and new. When the meeting was over, and the books were gathered for shipment, many of them were literally ruined because of abuse and a free use of pencils. It seems that some people have a mania to handle anything rough that belongs to the public. The books mentioned were private property, and they should have been treated as such. Can you tell me why it is that some folks will abuse things that are handed out for use? Suppose that you make a visit to all the churches in your county and see how the song books are kept. They show signs of being rolled, and gnawed, of being torn and scribbled upon, of being used as foot mats and ball material. My heart bleeds when I see the disrespect that some people have for song books and public property in general. No one has any more right to go into a church and "Handle Rough" the books and property there, than they have to go into my library and destroy my books.

Many years ago a boy of ten years of age was coming from school and he became angry with his older brother, and he took his school books and threw them at his brother with all the force in his body. The report of that fit of anger came to the boy's father. The father was silent for a few moments and then he said, "Henry, I am not going to whip you for getting mad, but I am going to whip you for throwing your school books." I have thought of that occurence many, many times. Most any boy is likely to get mad. That is a part of a boy's life, but that father was wise enough to put the punishment where it belonged. The lad allowed his temper to so master him that he was willing to surrender to damage being done. He damaged his books, he tried to damage his brother, and there was where he should have been punished. That was a great lesson in self control. Just to be honest—the most of us get mad still. Have we mastered ourselves to the point where no damage comes from our fits of anger? Paul said, "Be angry and sin not."

There are only two kinds of people who talk too much. They are not white people and colored people. They are not rich people and poor people. They are not Christian people and wicked people. They are not educated people and uneducated people, they are not the people who live on First street and on the back street. They are males and females.

The housewife called the preacher from his study, and presented to him a large collection of flower pots. It was her honest opinion that the flowers needed to be repotted, and that the task was big enough for the man of the house. He "Shucked" his coat and rolled up his sleeves, and went to his task to live and learn. The ferns had turned yellow, and it was not surprising when the pots were emptied. Those ferns were pot bound. The roots were a mass of tangles and matted and crushed fibers. There was no life and could be none. The dead roots were cut away from the plants, and then there was a division of plants. These were placed in larger pots, and soon they were shooting out new sprigs of green. They were pot-bound, and there could be no growth. I know a lot of folks who stay at home so close on the Sabbath, that they are "Pot-Bound" in their religious life. Their experience has faded, and there is a general state of dry rot in the soul. It is high time that these "Stay at Home" people be stirred and placed into new soil. Friends go to your church and feed your soul on new soil and let it grow.

By the roadside I saw a large barrel of tar. The barrel was not to be admired because of its beauty, and there was no charm in that tar that it contained. It was an unsightly thing sitting there for the eyes of the travelling public. Doubtless some who passed by were amazed at its presence, and thought how worthless it was. But, in that barrel there were five thousand different colors of dyes. In it were all the perfumes that delight our smell. Besides all that, there was aspirin galore in that barrel. There was much Quinine in that tar. The man of science knew that the old rugged barrel of tar did not look so well, but it was charged full of useful things. You may see a host of people along the road of life who are as lacking in attraction as a tar barrel, but do not forget that in them there may be hid a thousand things that will help and bless the world. Some of the most unsightly tar barrels along the way of life, may contain some of the most beautiful things that man ever beheld.

The lady was busy talking to her pastor, and all the time she had her fingers running through the leaves of a new book. Often she would threaten to turn the leaves, but she never did. She had a new book and it was full of new leaves, but she never turned them. Many people do nothing but finger at new resolutions. They have in their minds to turn over a new leaf, but they never do it. You said that you were going to turn over a new leaf the first day of this year, but you know that you have not done it. Why delay to turn over the new leaf?

CLANTON BAR RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Resolutions On Death Of Judge Smoot And A. C. Smith Commended

Members of the Clanton Bar are being highly commended for their action in drawing up resolutions of respect on Judge George F. Smoot, of Wetumpka, former judge of the 19th judicial circuit, and Hon. A. C. Smith, attorney of Clanton, deceased.

These resolutions were drawn up and signed by the committee composed of Hon. Lawrence F. Gerald, Hon. J. B. Atkinson and Hon. Omar L. Reynolds, attorneys of Clanton, last Monday, and court here was adjourned in respect, by Judge Loyd Tate, present judge of this circuit.

Following are the resolutions of respect on the passing these two outstanding men of their profession:

Whereas, Judge George F. Smoot, has departed this life since the last term of this Court; and,

Whereas, for the past Twenty years he has resided in the Circuit, within which Chilton County is embraced and has been a Member of the Bar of said Circuit; and,

Whereas, for the past Nine years he has been Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, and the Judge of this Court as such, he served not only this Circuit, but the State of Alabama with great ability and fidelity, reflecting great credit upon this Court and the Administration of Justice, not only in this County and Circuit, but in the State at large; and,

Whereas, for his attainments in his profession and the sterling worth and lovable traits of his character, the Members of the Bar here held him in great respect and now revere his memory; and,

Therefore, be it resolved by the Members of the Bar of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, that this Community, this Bar and the State have suffered great loss in the passing of Judge Smoot, and that his memory will ever be a cherished possession of this Bar;

Be it further resolved that a page in the minutes of this Court be set apart to the memory of this distinguished citizen and Jurist, and that these resolutions be transcribed thereon and that a copy be presented to his family and given to the press.

LAWRENCE F. GERALD,
J. B. ATKINSON,
OMAR L. REYNOLDS,
Committee.

Whereas, A. C. Smith has in the past year departed this life; and,

Whereas, for nearly Forty years he has resided in Chilton County and has been a Member of the Bar; and,

Whereas, for his attainments in his profession and the lovable traits of his character, the Members of the Bar held him in great respect,

Therefore, be it resolved by the Members of the Bar of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, that this Community and this Bar have suffered a great loss in the passing of Mr. Smith.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Court and that a copy be presented to his family and given to the press.

MORE ABOUT PLOW LINES

Plow lines appear to be taking the day. In this issue of the News will be found an ad from Farmers Hardware Company, stating they are offering low prices on plow lines for next Saturday only.

Along with this offer from the above store is a bargain offer on plow points of a well known line. Lester Jones, of the Farmers Hardware Co., states these are real bargains and they are pleased to offer them to the farmers of this section.

COTTON IN DEMOCRATIC YEARS ON THE UP

The Opp Weekly News says that during the last 50 years a Democrat has occupied the White House 16 years and Republicans 34 years. The average price of cotton on the New York Exchange was $10.91 a bale more during the 16 years of Democratic administrations than the average during the 34 years of Republican administrations.

And most everyone will agree with that editor right now when he says "Goodness, wouldn't that $10.91 a bale come in mighty handy right now?" We'll bet that the present national administration will go down well in history and the next administration will make a lot of pleasant reading matter too.

"THE FLOOD" IS TO BE SHOWN AT THEATRE

Picture Portrays Desolation Wrought By Waters Of The Mississippi

When Sinclair Lewis published "Main Street," the novel was said by many to be an untrue picture of the life of a small town. However, the book was avidly ready by a large part of the American public and its defenders asserted that Lewis had faithfully portrayed the trial and tribulations of people in the hinterland of the United States.

Small towns unquestionably have as different and distinct personalities as individuals and doubtless both Lewis' followers and detractors have room for argument.

In Columbia's latest feature, "The Flood," which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, February 8th and 9th, a small town, Riverside, is realistically depicted. The town is on the banks of the Mississippi River and over it hangs the continual threat of the turbulent waters.

And as in the town in Lewis' novel, over its inhabitants hangs the continual threat of small town gossip. The heroine of "The Flood," Joan Marshall, a member of a proud old Southern family, is forced to leave her home because of the malicious wagging of tongues.

In addition to its portrayal of small town life "The Flood" graphically depicts the desolation wrought when the waters of the Mississippi overflow its banks.

Eleanor Boardman has the role of a heroine married to an engineer whose job is to hold back the onrush of "The Father of Waters." Monte Blue plays opposite. Other well known screen celebrities in the cast are Arthur Hoyt, Frank Sheridan and William V. Mong.

EX-SERVICE MEN CALLED TO MEET HERE

Meeting Of Importance To All Ex-Service Men On February 18th

The following announcement and information from officers of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion is of wide interest to all ex-service men. It is self-explanatory:

Notice To All World War Veterans In Chilton County:

A meeting of very great importance to every ex-service man in Chilton County will be held at the courthouse in Clanton on Thursday night, February 18, at 7:30 o'clock.

The purpose of the meeting is to give the Veterans all possible information about present laws and pending legislation in Congress relative to the interests of the Veterans.

A good speaker will be here to discuss these matters and answer any question that any man might wish to ask about his war business.

It is our earnest hope that every ex-service man in the county will attend this meeting. It makes no difference whether you are a member of the Legion or not. This is a meeting in the interest of all ex-soldiers, and we hope that all will be present.

BAPTISTS TO MAKE DRIVE FEBRUARY 7

"Catch-Up-Day" Will Raise Funds To Pay Off Indebtedness

"My, wouldn't you die of heart failure if you saw a hundred thousand half dollars?

"Do you know that a hundred thousand silver half dollars would make a wagon load for a big mule on ordinary roads? They weigh more than a ton. If you put them edge to edge they would make a silver ribbon nearly two miles long.

"Do you know that the Executive Board of the Alabama Baptist State Convention is asking a hundred thousand Baptists to give an average of a half dollar each in what they call a 'Catch Up Dy' on Sunday, February 7th? And that this is to meet an emergency in the Baptist work in Alabama?

"What is the money for?"

"It is to pay bank loans borrowed last year to make payments on bonds which the Convention signed years ago for the hospital and the schools, and to pay some hospital accounts incurred before the hospital was leased last February; and to meet other bond payments coming due March, May, and June. In other words to meet the whole deficit in Baptist work for the year 1932."

"Why don't they borrow this money

Conquest For Oldest United States Coin In County Brings In Coins From Many Places

No doubt about it. Somebody has been hoarding money other than United States money, judging from the many types of foreign coins that have been brought to the News office during the past few days by persons interested in the conquest to determine who has the oldest coin in United States money, in Chilton County.

At this writing. Fred Howard, prominent fruit grower of Thorsby, stands the best chance of receiving the diamond-studded mustache cup for showing the oldest United States coin in Chilton County, unless it is found that law prohibits the use of a mustache cup now.

Mr. Howard brought to the News office a one-cent piece dated 1798, making it 134 years old. According to history, this coin was made only six years after the first mint was established in the United States.

Mrs. Callie Dawson, of Thorsby sends to the News office, impressions of coins of queer design and wording. These coins in the possession of Mrs. Dawson are possibly foreign coins, but that could not be ascertained, as they are badly worn, and the letters are not easily discerned. One coin shows it is a half-penny; and although the date cannot be determined correctly, it is undoubtedly a very old piece of money. The News would like for Mrs. Dawson to send or bring these coins to the office for further inspection.

Over on Maplesville, Route 2, we hear from B. B. Motley, who shows an old dime dated 1820, and a half dime dated 1821, and several one cent pieces that are very old.

J. G. Gray, who resides just west of Clanton brought to the News office some half-dime pieces of silver dated 1832, and some foreign coins, one of which was dated 1792. The latter appear to be Spanish coins and are possibly the Spanish "piece of eight."

Clay Hayes of near Clanton brings in an old United States one cent piece with date appearing as 1821.

IS THERE A SUBSTITUTE FOR PLOW LINES?

If a shoe string breaks, you can get along with something in the place of that. But what can you use as a substitute for plow lines? We can't think of anything that can be used in the place of a plow line to steer the mule with.

How many readers of this newspaper need a set of plow lines. and would like to buy them at a very low price? That question is to be answered by the replies given an ad from the Clanton Building Supply Company in this issue. That store is offering a special one day plow line price for Saturday. The price on these plow lines is 11 cents. Find that add in this issue and read more about this special offer from Rockett.

L & N OFFICER INTERFERES WITH PLANS OF BURGLARS

A group of negroes received a surprise early Wednesday morning when they confronted L. B. Graves, Louisville & Nashville Railroad detective, while they had their arms loaded with groceries taken from the store of B. L. Jones here.

One of the negroes, George Murphy, alleged to have been in the gang of thieves, was captured, while the others made their get-away, however Graves says, the groceries suddenly became hot and the negroes dropped them.

Graves stated he saw the negroes while they were making their way toward the grocery store and when they attempted to leave the scene with the goods he stopped them. Several buckets of lard, syrup and other items were taken from the store. Entrance was gained by breaking a window. Other arrests are expected right away in connection with this robbery, it was stated, through the help of county and city officers. The incident occurred about three o'clock yesterday morning.

ROSENWALD'S GIFTS

Although they do not rival the stupendous benefactions of Carnegie or Rockefeller, the gifts of the late Julius Rosenwald to educaton and other worthy causes are deserving of the highest recognition.

Since 1910 Mr. Rosenwald gave away more than $70,000,000, an amount four times as great as that left to his heirs. His gifts were bestowed wthout regard to nationality or religion. Himself a Jew, his outstanding contribution to human welfare was made to the education and social welfare of negroes, for whom he assisted in establishing more than 4,000 rural schools in the South. and 20 Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings in 15 cities.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish institutions alike came within the scope of his even-handed philanthropy. His broad sympathies embraced all humanity, regardless of race, color or creed. His recent death at the age of 69 took from the world a great merchant prince, a great servant of mankind, a great soul, whose benefactions will serve generations yet unborn.

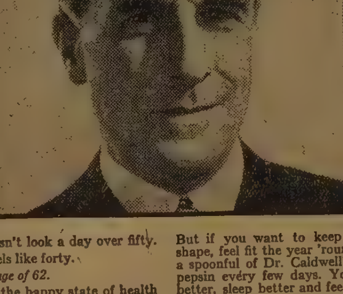
How Old?



He doesn't look a day over fifty.

And feels like forty.

At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and pep a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulant!

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation. But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better. You will never need another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

TENTH INSTALMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel lougers. They wire the company they have been married.

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register. They find Rackruff Motors have arranged a public reception and dance for them. They are deluged with presents.

When Peter had gone she sat on the edge of the bed and thought it all over. In a way, she decided, it was rather an awful thing they had done. But it had been so tremendously important for both of them—the trip had—the pictures and the stories. And the money—the money most of all! But it was too bad this sort of thing had to happen—and to a sweet thing like Peter who really rather deserved a better break —he was so old-fashioned at heart.

Rowena stood up and yawned and got into bed. She would do her level best to insure that annulment, in common fairness to Peter. Certainly it was for her to make sure of it. He was too careless, too sensitive to public opinion. He might get that receipt for his night's residence and he might not. She would make sure. She lifted the receiver of her telephone and asked them to send up the housekeeper.

When she came in, an efficient, large, Scotch woman, Rowena looked a little limp and wan.

"I don't feel so very well," she said childishly. "I wonder if you could get me something hot to drink? I don't want to be sick."

The housekeeper was surprised. It was three o'clock in the morning and the bridal suite, well lighted, showed itself guiltless of groom. His pillow had not been touched. But hotel housekeepers are schooled to surprises. She brought Rowena some hot strong tea with a little rum in it and gave her an aspirn tablet.

"If you don't feel better pretty soon have your husband call me— wh-when he comes in," she said.

Rowena's smile was a little forced. "I will," she promised.

At five o'clock she asked for her again.

"I feel worse," she said. But she did not want a doctor. 'I'm just nervous," she explained. "Would—would it be asking too much—for you just to sit with me a few minutes? I'm sure it's only excitement after the ball."

The housekeeper sat down beside the bed. Rowena looked very young, very flushed, altogether adorable in her soft night things. In the dim light the housekeeper could not see how old they were, and worn. The housekeeper had her own opinion about men anyhow, and her face grew grimmer and grimmer. The night housekeeper in a big hotel sees much.

When Rowena seemed to have dropped off to sleep, she leaned over her commiseratingly. "Poor child," she muttered, "a pretty young thing like that—Him out all night and them just married!—Thank God I found men out in time!"

Rowena smiled comfortably to herself when the housekeeper had turned out the light and tip-toed softly from the room. She had a witness to the virginal privacy of her night in the bridal suite.

Rowena was about half through breakfast the next morning when Peter came in. He sat down opposite her and the waitress almost ran up to get the order. But Peter said he already breakfasted, would take only coffee, very hot, please.

"She's entirely too good for him, the brute," said the waitress to the pastry cook. "She never said a word but 'Good morning.' Didn't even ask him where he'd been all night."

Peter was a little self-concious about it all and to the critical maids his constraint seemed that of a guilty conscience. Rowena was sweetly gentle, even friendly.

"I only wish the hotel had given them a pearl necklace instead of that cocktail shaker," said Mr. Meeker regretfully. "She'd get to wear the pearl necklace if he didn't pawn it, and it's plain to see who'll use the cocktail shaker."

Peter had the receipt for his night's lodging and Rowena folded it away triumphantly in the pocket of her portfolio, along with the other proofs of their complete segregation en route.

She was full of enthusiasm, entirely satisfied with their future prospects, as she was packing her bag before the witness of an open door.

'It's a great little burg," she said warmly. "When I am a thorough old maid I shall buy me a dog or something and come and live here. It's just the sort of town I like. And if I am rich and famous I will rent the bridal suite by the year and you can give me an autographed picture of the Rackruff to adorn my walls. And I'll invite Mr. Meeker to tea every Sunday and we'll discuss our past glories and remember-when."

"It's pretty plain what they think of me in these parts," said Peter regretfully. "It seems a dirty trick to play them—they were so kind about everything.

"One good thing about it," encouraged Rowena, "if for any reason my judge should hit a snag in getting us annulled, we won't need any other grounds after last night. We'll call on the hotel force for affidavits."

"What a cad they must think me!"

"Don't you care, darling. Next time we come here, you shall have the bridal suite and their sympathy and I'll step out for the night."

It was indeed very plain what they thought about Peter. The friendly, admiring smiles with which they said good-by to Rowena froze into cold disapproval in their curt nods to Peter. He felt quite cut up over it all.

"Don't you care," said Rowena. "When they find out how things really are, they'll be so mad at me for fooling them that they'll rebound your way and think you're quite the nuts."

"Well," said Peter, "there's one thing sure. Everything in the world has happened to us now. From desert sands to mountain mud, from separate floors to bridal suite, we've run the gamut of the unexpected. Nothing will surprise me after this."

"Me, either," agreed Rowena. "I've used up the very last of my surprise sensations. No matter what happens, I'm expecting it."

But they were both wrong. Incredible as it seemed at the moment, they were due for many more surprising denouncements and more sensational ones. Even climatic conditions conspired to add to their discomfiture.

The sky had been overcast for hours, and a heavy downpour of rain was followed by a steady, disheartening drizzle that showed no signs of diminution.

They smiled at each other after a terrible day and in friendly comradely quiet pulled slowly up to the hotel.

"Just ask for two singles," advised Rowena. "And if they give us adjoining ones we can't help it. We've got Spokane to fall back on."

They followed the boy with their bags into the hotel lobby. And the first thing they saw there was little brown Bobby Lowell sitting all hunched up in the biggest upholstered chair in sight.

"Bobby!" they cried. "You little duck you! Where did you come from? Where are you going? What in the world are you doing here?"

Bobby dimpled, wept and giggled, kissing them both again and again with complete unpartiality.

"You angels!" she said. "I've been so lonesome and I'm so glad to be back with you again. I feel like a poor little lonesome orphan that just found out it is a Smith!"

"Where's Carter? Is it your honeymoon?"

The small brown nose uptilted itself to a very haughty angle.

"Never mention his name to me again," she said thickly. "I never want to see him again as long as I live."

"Carter! You never want to see Carter? Oh, you can't mean Carter!" protested Rowena, who simply could not conceive of a Bobby with no Carter at the tip of her tongue. "It's just not possible!"

"It is possible—it's a fact. All is over between us for ever and ever. That's why I came to go on the rest of the trip with you."

"But see here," said Peter sternly, "you can't just be on and off with us like that. You left us in a terrible hole, running off the way you did—"

"I knew I had done wrong," said Bobby, "and so I said the best thing to do was to come straight back as fast as I could. That's why I didn't send back the money I borrowed, Peter. I needed it to come back on."

"Well, what happened?" demanded Rowena. "How in the world did you ever get off with Carter?"

"It was like this. At first he was simply overjoyed to have me back and then in about an hour we got to talking about it and he got madder and madder and said he really didn't know whether he wanted to ruin his future by marrying a woman who had no more sense than that. So naturally I broke the engagement and gave him back his ring. I put my things in my bag and called up Rackruff to find out where I could catch you, and here I am. Oh, darlings, I've been so unhappy and it is so good to see you again.

They were none too well pleased about it. Bobby was an expensive addition to the party, seemed doubly expensive now that they could dispense with her presence.

It did not clear the atmosphere when they found waiting a telegram from the company with peremptory orders to send her back at once.

It said it was better publicity for the roadster to have the bridal couple continue their honeymoon alone.

Bobby said it was none of their bussiness what she did, that she was responsible only to Carter. Was she going to let any ten-cent company give her orders? Certainly not! Her arrangement with Rowena had been for the entire tour and for the entire tour she would continue.

So Rowena retired to the rumble seat, although Peter insinuated strongly that he was not vitally interested in the details of the falling-out with Carter.

South to Portland proceeded the thoroughly chaperoned bridal party. It was in Portland that Bobby, who had been delighted into genuine hysterics over their gay account of the big doings in Spokane, demanded to see the wedding presents. Peter brought out the cocktail shaker and the cigarette lighter and Rowena showed her the watch and the candy box with the kissing Cupids.—It was the last time Rowena showed that watch for a good many weeks. She left it in extremely safe deposit—for a consideration--right there in Portland.

They gave Bobby a lurid account of the desperate strait in which she left them, and how Rowena conceived the bright idea of getting married as a sop to the requirements of society. Bobby said she always did think Rowena was just too clever for words.

"But aren't you just as married as if you really were married?" she asked interestedly.

"Not at all. We're just pretending that way. In fact we're the same old maids and bachelors we always were."

"Isn't it too bad you are both so disagreeable?" said Bobby sweetly. "If you were just a little nicer you could fall in love with each other now—you know, they write best sellers about men falling in love with their wives—and it would be too romantic for words!"

"Thank God we're not nice then," said Rowena. "With the example before us of you and Carter in love and all it leads to, Peter and I have entirely too much sense to be anything but enemies."

In San Francisco Peter found Rowena was starving herself to send money back East.

He had suspected that she was in debt. Evidently her creditors were pushing her hard. He went abruptly out to the little park where they were snapping the pictures.

"You must have enough," he said. "We're both dead tired. Let's lay off."

Rowena's smile was grateful. "I am tired," she confessed.

When they got in the roadster to return to the hotel he said in a voice so offhand and unconcerned that if she had not been so vitally interested in his words she must surely have suspected some hidden prompting.

"By the way, I got the expense money to-day. Of course, we're not supposed to have it till Monday but I cashed the check so you may as well have yours."

"P-Peter!" gasped Rowena. And pressed the back of her hand puickly to her lips. Peter hoped she was not going to give anything away, confide any embarrassing details, but he needn't have worried. Rowena shouldered her own worries.

"I'm hungry as the deuce," he said, "Let's see if we can find a good chop house and get a decent steak."

Rowena never said a word about soup. For himself Peter order the thickest, juiciest steak they could get their hands on, and plenty of "French frieds."

"That sounds good," said Rowena meekly. "Two.'

She hoped Peter could not tell from her voice how the very thought of it made her mouth water.

THE ELECTRIC REVENUE FROM 56,000 HOMES

Is Required to PAY OUR TAXES

THIS Company's taxes for 1930 amounted to more than $1,900,000, equivalent to more than 11 cents of each dollar of gross revenue.

The revenue received for electric service to the average home was approximately $35.00 for the year.

This means that to pay the steadily growing taxes assessed against this Company takes the entire electric revenue received from a full years service to 56,000 homes. Few people realize what a large part taxes are in the cost of electric service.

Yet—this fact stands out: Despite increases in taxes and other costs, the average kilowatt hour cost of electricity in the home using this company's service has steadily declined in the past five (5) years. In 1926 the average home electric rates were 37.1 per cent higher than for year ending October, 1931.

The decline in average rates paid by the users of domestic electricity when compared with the rise in this Company's tax payments per dollar of gross revenue affords a striking contrast, as this chart clearly shows.

Commends Warning Against Over-Confidence

Jouett Shouse voiced a timely warning when he told Illinois Democrats that the party had but one thing to fear this year—over-confidence. It is not to be doubted that the country is ready to restore Democracy to power, but, as we have often pointed out, elections do not win themselves. The battle must be waged, and it must be waged vigorously.

"For nearly three years the Democratic National Committee, through the generosity and remarkable common sense of John J. Raskob, National Chairman, has made a great and telling fight for party principles and party success. Mr. Shouse, as Executive Chairman, has taken a major part; he has proved himself to be Democracy's Iron Man of Service. Having been in almost every nook and corner of the land, he knows the situation—Democratic victory is assured if Democrats perform.

"Just now the Democracy is militant and hopeful. The activities of the National Committee have inspired State, County and municipal organizations to new effort. The will to win is pronounced. This condition must continue if the party is to be successful in November. There must be no letup—indeed, we must redouble our efforts. not merely holding the ground that has been gained, but advancing still farther along the road that leads to the Presidency. A landslide is ours if we work for it, but we must work."—Missouri Democrat.

More Days Than Dollars

Bill Rumpus says he isn't "annyways exsited about what Congress mite do fer us any time soon," but in the current issue of The Progressive Farmer-Ruralist he gives the following sound and characteristic advice on meeting the present "tuff situashun":—

"We're bogged down in a mighty muddy rode, as you mite say, an' we got t' ease out of it slow an' keerful. Main thing t' do is t' keep th' mules pullin' steddy an' easy, an' not let th' waggon slide off into th' ditch ef we kin help it. Don't git all exsited an' het up ef you kin keep frum it, an' ef you feel like you jest nachally got t' do sump'n rite this minnit, git out an' dig up sum of them old stumps that you been plowin' around fer th' last 20 years, 'r else fix up your pasture fence like you been aimin' t' do for 5 'r 6 years, an' allways been too bizzy t' git to it. I bet you got a plenty of time on your hands now. In fack, it wouldn't serprise me none ef you had more days than you got dollers."

Not So Complicated

Here is the principal railroad problem in a nutshell:

The railroads are an absolutely essential industry and are our greatest employer and purchaser of supplies. Yet we have allowed competing transport agencies, unregulated or half-regulated, and not paying proportionate taxes, to take away business that would otherwise have gone to the rails. In some instances, this competition has been made possible by government subsidies.

The issue is not so complicated: Are we to pass laws that will put all transport agencies under the same type of regulation, so that they may compete fairly, and equitably, or are we to allow the railroads to be ruined?

o-o-o-o

Time To Begin Spending

This is the time to begin putting money back into circulation. There is more money in bank, subject to the checks of individuals, than at any previous time in our national history. It is lying there because its owners have been waiting for the business situation to "touch bottom."

All the indications now are that it has touched bottom and has begun to rise. At the moment, retail prices of every sort of commodity are lower than they have been since the days before the war. A dollar will buy as much of almost everything today as a dollar and a half would buy two yers ago. The reduction in the price of raw materials is now being fully reffected in the price of manufactured goods to the consumer.

There may never be another opportunity, in the lifetime of most of us, to make a dollar go as far as it will go today. We would never advise anybody to go contrary to Benjamin Franklin's wise counsel, when he said: "Never buy anything you don't want merely because it is cheap." But we know that thousands of people in this community and vicinity have been putting off buying things which they really want, believing that they would go lower.

We feel justified in saying to those people that the time has come for them to buy. Business in general is beginning to pick up rapidly. We can't tell how far up it is going, and probably we shall not have another such "boom" as we had three and four years ago—at least not right way. But with business picking up even appreciably, money for wages and materials getting back into circulation, the number of buyers will increase and the law of supply and demand will attend to sending retail prices upward again.

If ever the advice to "buy now" was good, it is today.

Hooverite Republicans are reported to be looking for some kind of an issue that will aid their candidate in the election and to be hoping that one will evolve with the nomination of a Democratic Presidential candidate. There is one issue, however, that they cannot escape and that is the record of failures of the Hoover administration.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

> "Some people are so painfully good they had rather be right than pleasant."
> —L. B. Ball.

Whether the above has anything to do with me being pleasant, I can't say. But if the matter came up for real discussion, I'm inclined to believe that I might say I'd rather be right than pleasant.

And so Hance Alred is the sole owner of his name now. Well, that's something on a stick. Now when one speaks of Alred Drug Company, they can say that it is really Alred's, and Hance can say "I'm sole owner of my name." Here's wishing Hance all the luck possible with the drug store and with him as pilot.

I understand that Herbert Neighbors, the man who has been a part of Alred Drug Company for sometime, is going over to Coosa County where he has got a piece of land is going to raise things. He may raise cane, sand, or—well, what have you. "Coose" as he is known among his intimate friends originally came here from Coosa County and maybe that's why he was nicknamed "Coose." Anyway, Coosa County ain't so bad as people put it up to be. I've been over there, it's just across the river and they have most everything one could think of, and then some. In fact the folks say over there that if you took all the people out of Chilton who came from Coosa, then there wouldn't be much left of Chilton. Maybe they are right.

"I sang a song into the air, it fell to earth I knew not where." That rings true again because I sang a little song into the air a week or so ago, and later on I found where it had hit, and hit hard. Nope, I'm not sorry, because it was a nice little song and I sang it right here in this column, and it helped somebody, and I'm glad.

* * *

I'll bet the daily papers would be having a hard time right now getting something to write about, and make headlines, if it wasn't for the war that is going on over across the big waters. But maybe the big papers could create a scandal of some kind and make headlines.

Several fellows have asked me if I've got my gun oiled up ready for war. I tell 'em that there ain't gonna be no war unless it's a war on rats, and County Agent Stapp has already had that one nd seems to have won it.

Judge Loyd Tate has been up in this neck o' the woods a lot lately and I've heard him talk. Afterwards I wondered if he was the kind of man he appeared to be so I got my old Sherlock Holmes cap on and took my spy glass and went about to find out from other sources. Yep, he's an all right man and does what he says he will do. In fact I like him. He's running for the judge of this circuit, to succeed himself.

Arthur Glover has been round town a lot lately too. He's in the race for the judge of this county too. That is, I mean of this circuit. Both of these fellows hail from Wetumpka and both are attorneys.

* * *

I hear talk of another candidate entering the race, but as I'm writing this on Tuesday, he ain't said anything about being one definitely.

Plow lines. Now ain't that something. Dewey Rockett, at the Clanton Building Supply Co., here is putting on a special on this for next Saturday. He says he is selling these plow lines, good ones, too, at a price that is below cost. I say he can't make much money doing that, so he says, that's all right, he is giving the farmers something worthwhile for their money. He tells about this in an ad in this paper this week.

February 22nd is George Washington's washday, and the banks will be taking another holiday I suppose. I've been wanting to be a banker because they all look prosperous and are about the most pleasant people I know of right now. unless it is a newspaperman. February 22nd, not only means all that, but it is time for another annual rabbit hunt in this county.

Haven't heard much about the hunt, but I suppose it is coming, and the boys'll be getting their legs limbered up and their sticks ready to go walloping at rabbits, and miss them maybe. Anyway it is a lot of fun, and I hope to take in one this year. The reason I like this kind of hunting is because they don't use guns, and I'm gun-shy too.

Will Sartor, down at The Fair Store, was telling a fellow the other day about the bargains he was offering at his store, so that folks round in this neck 'o the woods could buy those things they wanted—or needed.

But who said the panic's on? I tried to see a show the other night and the theatre filled twice to overflowing before I could even get close enough to the ticket office to get a ticket, and before that I drove my car about fifteen blocks looking for a parking place. Yep, you are right times certainly are hard.

Heard a fellow, who proposes to be a Democrat, say the other day that if Al Smith was nominated to run for president of the United States, he would not support him. Well, that's the trouble with a lot of you hope-to-be Democrats, you haven't got guts enough to back up your own party. You want to start a fuss, just because somebody didn't do things to suit you, when maybe they are doing the right thing, and would prove it if you would help. That's putting it a little strong, maybe, but it won't hurt, and you might as well face the facts now, than wish later on you had.

Well, it looks like Fred Howard, up at Thorsby is going to get that diamond-studded mustache cup, I've been reading about in C. G. N., for showing the oldest coin in United States money. He has one that is 134 years old.

I'm glad to see that Dr. D. W. Haskew, of Clanton, is going to write the column "Moral Echoes" each week for the News. That column is interesting and is good reading. Sometimes it makes a better person of me, when I read it and it kind of hits me.

* * *

Members of the Pilot Club of Clanton went down to Prattville Tuesday night and were royally and otherwise entertained by the members of the Montgomery Pilot Club. Ah-m-m-nuf sed. And a good time was had by all, as it were, or something.

Democrat to Have Senator Watson's Seat, Says Indiana Paper, Asking Study of His Record

Washington, Feb. 1.—Declaring that some Democrat will have James E. Watson's seat in the Senate after March 4, 1933, the Goshen (Ind.) Democrat tells the Indiana voters they "must not lose sight of the fact that Senator Watson will stand for re-election this year, and should begin early to consider his record."

The Democrat calls attention to some phases of Senator Watson's record, as follows:

"Senator Watson is the statesman who as long as eight years ago remarked that 'the farmer would be satisfied with a bag of peanuts.'

"Senator Watson's crowning oratorical triumph came at the close of a speech in June, 1930, when, after a spirited defense of the Grundy tariff bill, he unloosed this prophetic gem: 'Within 30 days after this tariff bill becomes a law, the nation will have regained the peak of prosperity.'

"Senator Watson it was who before May, 1928, was denouncing Herbert Hoover as 'unfit' to be President, and whose acrobatic mind had so completely reversed itself within a month that he was shouting that only Herbert Hoover had the magic panacea needed to cure all of our real, fancied, or potential ills.

"Senator Watson it was whose sweat fell on the planks of a hundred political platforms in Indiana while he was bellowing the doctrine that we had all the golden elements of an independent Utopia within our own shores, and need not be concerned over the plight of a decaying outside world. . . . It was he who, in his campaign speeches of 1930, meekly told us that our almost imperceptible 'depression' was a combination of unfortunate and uncontrollable circumstances abroad."

The Democrat then declares: "The stock of political chicanery which has ever been Senator Watson's chief reliance has long since been invoiced, and fittingly deflated, by the people of Indiana."

Senator Watson is the Republican floor leader in the United States Senate.

Spain's New Tariff Shuts Out 14 U. S. Products Because of Hawley-Smoot Act

Washington, Feb. 1.—Spain's retaliatory tariff, which puts prohibitive duties on 14 American export products, is declared to be "a sequel to the passage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill" by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It says:

"Following the example of other countries which have enacted retaliatory tariff laws as a sequel to the passage of our Hawley-Smoot act, Spain has put prohibitive duties on 14 classes of imports, including automobiles, telephone equipment and other products heretofore purchased in the United States. Spain has been one of our good customers, spending $82,000,000 here in 1929 and $57,500,000 in 1930.

"We can make better automobiles and telephone equipment than the Spaniards, and they would like to have them, but they cannot do so if they are not permitted to pay for them, at least in part, in goods of their own make. In raising tariff walls to meet ours, our foreign customers are only engaging in self-preservation. When a country buys more elsewhere than it sells, the deficit must be paid in cash. It cannot continue to do that indefinitely without impoverishing itself.

"As Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover was accustomed to point proudly to our mounting foreign trade. As President, he signed a law whose effect is to kill or cripple that trade. That is a piece of acrobatics that defies rational analysis."

G. O. P. Raised Terra Cotta Tariff From 12 to 65 Per Cent While Manufacturers Were Under Indictment

Washington, Feb. 1.—In an analysis of various items in the tariff schedules, H. E. Miles, Chairman of the Fair Tariff League, writing in the Hoosier Farmer, thus comments on the terra cotta tariff:

"Terra cotta is used for farmers' drains, city sewers and hollow walls in buildings. When the tariff of 1922 was made the makers of these tiles were under indictment of Federal courts for criminal practices in making "arbitrary and excessive" prices to the public hurt. At the same time, the Tariff Commission showed that these tiles were made as cheaply here as any place in the world. Canada was our only competitor and she used American machinery and paid American wages.

"With this information before it, Congress cared not for facts or courts and raised the duties on terra cotta from 12 per cent to 65 per cent. Soon after, the indicted makers were convicted and sentenced to prison. The new duties, by shutting out all foreign competition, permitted (and still permit) these manufacturers to further increase their prices by another fourteen million dollars per year at a cost to consumers at retail of twenty-five millions."

Naval And Army Sham Battle In Pacific Criticized by G.O.P. Paper

Washington, Feb. 1.—Again the conduct of the Navy is under fire and this time from a staunch Republican paper, the Brooklyn Eagle. In an editorial with the caption, "A Curious Maneuver," the Eagle says:

"Secretary Adams has announced that all ships of the Navy not in reserve or under construction will immediately proceed to the Pacific, where extensive maneuvers will take place between February 6 and May 13. The first 'exercise' will be a joint Army and Navy sham battle off Hawaii.

"In view of the critical situation in the Far East, this movement of forces to the Pacific is puzzling. . . .

"If the Navy is going to the Pacific to be prepared for emergencies and to impress Japan, the method of advertising the exercises is not very subtle. If the movement is merely a matter of routine, it is positively naive. With Japan conducting exercises in Manchuria and the American fleet maneuvering in the Pacific, Europe should arrange similar demonstrations to coincide with the Disarmament Conference in February."

The Alabama Department, The American Legion is planning to hold simultaneous meetings of all posts in the state on February 18 at 8 P. M. according to D. Trotter Jones, Adjutant. This plan was tried out with great success last year. "These meetings are called for the purpose of discussing pending legislation or any kind of legislation that might affect the ex-service men," remarks Adjutant Jones. The plan is to have a visiting Legionnaire at each meeting to address the veterans. "Plan to make these meetings county-wide if there is more than one post in your county. See if you can arrange to have a joint meeting on this night and have every ex-service man in the county attend, and learn just what legislation has been secured for them, and the additional legislation the Legion is striving for this year." Agriculture Gets Solons Attention

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 3.—Farmers of America are getting attention in the efforts being made at Washington to rehabilitate the nation's economic system, observes E. L. Deal, executive secretary of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, in reviewing the legislative situation in relation to agriculture.

Tht first relief measure passed by both houses was the so-called Federal land bank bill, appropriating $125,000,000 for capital stock to the Federal land banks. This measure, which had Farm Bureau support, is expected to be of considerable help in a credit way to agriculture. An amendment to the bill sponsored by Senators Black and Bankhead sets aside $25,000,000 of the appropriation to be used at the discretion of the banks, for extension of loans of deliquent borrowers who because of bank failures and depression are unable to meet their obligations now.

Legislation of this nature was requested by the executive committee of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation in a resolution passed November 28.

Also of special interest to farmers is the fact that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, mightiest of the depression-cure measures, is empowered to make loans to agricultural and livestock credit corporations, and from its $500,000,000 capital there is set aside $50,000,000 to be used for loans to farmers in States where bank failures and depression have made the obtaining of production credit impossible, Deal said.

He added that the national farm organizations are busy at Washington sponsoring legislation on a number of important problems, including amendments to strengthen the Agricultural Marketing Act, stabilization of the unit of value, regulation of commodity exchanges to limit speculation, and fairer taxation.

o-o-o

While using money appropriated by Congress the Federal Farm Board at Washington was making an earnest effort to establish a better system of marketing to serve American farmers engaged in the production of different crops. This the board insists is its main objective.

Permits for importing birds into the United States for recent Christmas trade more than doubled any other corresponding period. From Nov. 15 to Dec. 23 the Biological Survey issued 125,700 permits, of which 1,860 were Hungarian partridges and 113,200 were canaries.

None can deny that there is an open door in Manchuria. And Japan beat the other nations to it.

It is said that most comedians labor under a great strain while they are on the stage. And so do their audiences.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Last week the Thorsby Public School had a contest between the boys and girls to see who could raise the greater amount of pickles, chickens, and money. The contest remained on for three or four days in which the girls and boys ran almost equal not varying more than fifty cents between the two. On the last day through the skill and ingenuity of collecting money and selling tickets the girls won over the boys by $8.68. It was exciting all the way thru and the pupils did a big piece of work in collecting materials for the chicken dinner. Every pupil and every patron did their part. The chicken dinner was held Saturday in the City Hall in which about one hundred and forty plates were served. When all the chickens and other produce are sold, the P.-T. A. will have around forty dollars.

Sometime in the near future the Thorsby Public School faculty and town talent will give a play. Watch for the announcement to be made.

Home Economics Luncheon

The advanced class in Home Economics under the supervision of Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin entertained the County Board of Education, the City Board of Trustees, and the High School faculty at a luncheon January 29.

The high school colors, blue and gold, formed the color scheme. The delightful centerpiece for the table was composed of jonquils and iris. The same color scheme was further carried out in the attractive place cards designed by the home economics girls.

A well appointed and well planned four-course luncheon was served. Between courses appropriate speeches were made by each member of the Board, and by the Trustees.

Much credit must be given to these girls who so efficiently prepared and served the luncheon and to Miss Griffin whose interest fostered the plan.

There have been many improvements made in the home economics department this year, and we feel some real constructive work is being done in this department.

High School Buys Radio

Chilton County High considers itself very fortunate in being the owner of a radio. The machine is a Majestic and a 1932 model. It has the very latest additions that can be put on any machine.

The purpose of the radio is to give all the school children an opportunity to listen to and to appreciate good wholesome music, and to enjoy other educational advantages that it affords.

The assembly program on Friday is given to a music appreciation program conducted by Walter Damrosch over the NBC network. Plans are being worked out to enable the pupils to receive the daily news review.

MT. PLEASANT JR. HIGH WINS OVER CALERA, 30TH

The Mt. Pleasant Jr. High School boys team added another victory to their list when they shaded the Calera Juniors last Saturday night by the count of 16 to 13, in a game replete with thrills from the outset.

It was a fast and furiously fought game. Curtis Traywick, star forward for the visitors, again led his mates in scoring honors, by sinking the ball for 10 points. He registered 4 field goals which the referee ruled out. This little player thrilled the large and vociferous crowd of supporters with a gaudy display of dribbling, passing and shooting. His team-mates, Parker and Cecil Traywick, succeeded in warding off many threats by the fast-breaking Calera quintet. These two playing the guard position sprang into the spotlight when they repeatedly repulsed the flashy pass-work of the Calera boys.

The Calera team succeeded in getting only one crip shot during the game. Six of their points came by three long shots from near center, and the remaining five points were by foul shots. Eddins and Pilgreen were the high scorers for Calera with 5 points each.

The Mt. Pleasant boys were off to a good start with Curtis Traywick looping the ball for 13 points, but due to having 4 of his field goals struck out, his team led the Calera players at the end of the quarter, 5 to 0. At the beginning of the second quarter the home team swept into action and pulled the count up at the half trailing by the narrow count of 6 to 5. They succeeded in tying the count in the third quarter, 8 all, and again the fourth quarter, 11 all, but the Mt. Pleasant lads, through tight defensive playing, never allowed them to take the lead. Burnett, for the visitors, sunk 3 points out of five free shots, and played a good defensive game, but unfortunately through the commitment of 4 personal fouls he was placed out of the game. Eddins, of Calera, was also barred from the game for like reasons, however, he caused the visiting team lots of worry by his deadly long shots from center.

It was an up-hill struggle for the Mt. Pleasant boys, with the Shelby County Champions of last year, rushing, driving and threatening all the way through the game.

The Calera girls won over the Mt. Pleasant girls 14 to 8, with both teams playing hard. A large number from Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison and Mt. Pleasant witnessed the games.

Collins Chapel comes to Mt. Pleasant next Friday afternoon.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

When I was a college boy I climbed three flights of steps in rapid strides to attend a Y. M. C. A. meeting. The service had already begun and knowing this I did my best to go up the stairway in double quick. Just as I took my place in the room the music ceased, and the leader called on me to lead in the prayer. I was all out of breath. I made an assault at praying, but I had no breath. My sentences were too long on account of bad breathing, and I puffed and blowed and hastened and said "Amen." It is mighty slow going when a man tries to pray when he is all out of breath. If you doubt it, try it. That is one reason why many of our church members do but little praying. They are chasing pleasure, bridge parties, popularity, business and the like with such zeal, until they are all out of breath in a religious sense, and they have no spirit for prayer. They bluster out a few stale expressions at night, and call that praying. John Wesley said, "I am all out of breath chasing lost souls." When you chase lost souls all day, you have spiritual lungs that will give you power in prayer, when the night hours come.

Years ago I visited a dog kennel in Bullock county. On the yard were to be seen all kinds of dogs. They were of all colors and sizes and brands. Some very fine dogs, and some that were common curs. I saw a man walking about over the yard with a long whip swinging to his belt, and I ventured to ask him, "What is your job on the yard?" With a smile he replied, "Why sir, my job is to keep the dogs from fighting." About that time two big hounds hitched up for a rough and tumble, and as quick as a flash this fellow was there, swinging his big whip, and dogs scattered like leaves before an autumn wind. That fellow seemed to be worth while among that bunch of dogs. His job was to break up the fights. Not many days ago I heard a church member giving a new definition to the word, "Pastor." The conversation was circling about the preacher of a certain church, and here is the definition that was given, "About all that pastor can do with his flock is to walk about among them and break up the fights." If a preacher can do no more with his people than to merely "Break up the fights" that spring up among them, he is worth while. His job is not only to keep down bad feeling, but to teach his flock how to love each other, then to feed them with the Bread of the Gospel. Friends, listen to me, a pastor in a community is worth more to that community than ten policemen.

While riding along the road I saw three men out in a swamp cutting the timber and piling the brush. That swamp land was rich in soil, and yet it was a wilderness of briars, brambles and trees. The three men had gone into that wilderness with their strength and with their working tools, and they were saving it from the mud and the waste in which it had been lost for centuries. They were saving it from being a hiding place of snakes and varmints and a generating place for mosquitoes and miasma. They were going to transform that wilderness into a place where grain would grow, and where cattle could feed. Had it ever occurred to you that saving men and women from the ways of sin, is like saving a swamp from its collection of brambles and briars? The person who is living in sin is not only going to waste himself, but he is sending out an influence that hurts and harms others. The greatest work on earth is to rescue the souls of men from the brambles of sin, and transform them into a field of production and life. O, for a thousand willing workers to enter this task.

The gardener dug up a briar root, and carried to to his flower yard. The unsightly root lamented, "What a mistake, I am just a briar, and what a mistake to plant me in this garden." The gardener came again with a keen knife and made a slit in the briar, and grafted a bud into its bleeding body. The briar cried again, "What a mistake to cut me with a knife and to make me bleed." Soon the wounded place healed, and a bud was growing. Summer came on and that briar had lovely roses blooming on its branches, and then it was filled with astonishment and admiration. The gardener came again, and this time he did the talking. Here is what he said to the briar, "Your beauty is not due to that which came out of you, but that which I decided to put into you." When Christ is grafted into us, then it is that we come into the possession of the beautiful elements of life. In the passing of the years, and in the growing of the soul, beautiful things bloom into our conduct. These beautiful things of human life do not come up from within us, but they come out of what has been grafted into us in Christ Jesus. The human soul can produce beautiful roses only when Jesus has been grafted within. The gardener did wonderful things with the common briar, but Jesus can do still more wonderful things for us when we allow him to be grafted into our being. Surrender your rugged self into the hands of the Master, and let Him grow beautiful roses in your character.

Jemison F.F.A. News

The F. F. A. boys believe the best way to learn is by doing. This past week their home project was to feed a milk cow and keep record of feed and of milk produced by each cow, and they tested the milk at school. They learned that many farmers were feeding an all-grain ration entirely and no hay. The first thing in winter feeding is to give the cow all the legume hay she will eat. Many farmers feed cotton seed to cows when they can trade it for cotton seed meal. One hundred pounds of cotton seed meal is equal to one hundred and seventy pounds of cotton seed. Therefore, the farmer is getting cheated out of seventy pounds of feed when he feeds cotton seed altogether.

The regular F. F. A. meeting was called to order at 10:30 a.m. by the president, Mr. Maurice Hodgens, and several important points were discussed, among them were some of the leading qualities of the F. F. A. boy to create a degree of leadership. Mr. Maurice Hodgens gave us an interesting speech on the duties of the F. F. A. and that we should thank Mr. J. P. Montgomery for his kindness toward us in paying our fees. Plans were made for our next two week's work.

UTOPIAN LITERARY SOCIETY OF ISABELLA H. S. MEETS

On Thursday morning, January 21, the members of the Literary Societies of Isabella High School met in the Home Economics room. After the meeting was called to order by the president of the Epecurean Society, Luther Mims, it was decided that the election of officers for the last term of the school year should take place instead of presenting the regular program.

The members of the Utopian Society assembled in the history room for the election of their officers. The following officers were elected: President, Marvin Durbin; vice president, R. C. Veazy; secretary-treasurer, Elizabeth Mims; reporter, Myrtle Durbin; sergeant-at-arms, J. P. Poole. The program committee consists of R. C. Veazey, chairman, Miss Williams, Myrtle Durbin, S. L. Broadhead and Odell Higgins.

It was decided by a majority vote that the name would be changed. A committee was appointed by the president. They are Pauline Durbin, Lorene Lecroy and A. D. Headley. At the next meeting this committee will present a number of names from which the society will choose one.

This is the beginning of a new year for the Literary Society and by the cooperation of the members with the officers and program committee this will be the best year ever for the society.

In a meeting of the program committee with the officers Friday, January 22, many difficulties were discussed and resolutions made to make the programs better.

The purpose of the society is to develop leadership. By putting different ones on program each time and by the annual debate we hope to develop leadership in younger students as well as in the advanced ones.

The Way of Life
By BRUCE BARTON

Where Business Is To Blame

I was lunching with a group of high executives, and the discussion turned to economic problems. Presently out came the usual line of comment.

"Congress is a bunch of idiots. How can we hope for any sensible program when our laws are made by such men?"

I was annoyed.

All my business life I have listened to that sort of talk. I have known a good many Senators and Congressmen. My judgment is that they are fairly representative of the nation, neither better nor worse than the rest of us. They do not originate very much in the matter of national policy and legislation. They merely record in laws the sentiment that grows up in the country around them. They respond to public opinion.

And what does Big Business do to create and guide an intelligent public opinion? Practically nothing.

Every young man who enters Big Business is told in effect: "Now you have taken the veil. From now on you must not express any opinion on a controversial subject. You are no longer merely an individual; you are the representative of a large body of stockholders who hold divergent views on almost everything. You must not offend either our stockholders or our customers. Your duty is to work, and keep your mouth shut."

Big bankers and corporation officials regard this a policy of "dignified silence." As a matter of fact, it is laziness and cowardice.

My father was a distinguished clergyman, the spokesman of a large congregation. He never hesitated to have views or to give them vigorous expression. Sometimes parishioners critized him. He said to me once: "If I do not know better than the members of my congregation what sort of preaching my people should have, then I am not entitled to be their pastor."

The president of a corporation with world-wide interests ought to know more than his stockholders or his customers.

He ought to know whether our present tariff policy is a help or a hindrance to our economic life, and have the courage to say so.

He ought to know whether our war debts should or should not be revised, and guide his stockholders in their thinking.

He ought to know what our policy should be toward Russia.

Ours is a democracy. For a generation or more we have been luring our best brains into business.

The time is coming when those best brains must render some more positive service in the formation of a sound public opinion.

It is not enough just to sit back and grumble about Congress.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Where are you going to spend the four Sundays in February? The door of the Methodist church will be open to you. We have Sunday school at 9:45 A. M. and preaching at eleven. Our night services are held at seven o'clock.

We held our first Quarterly Conference last Sunday night. Plans were made for the new year. J. B. Atkinson, Judge L. H. Reynolds and F. J. Callen were added to the official Board as stewards of the church.

There are two important messages in store for you next Sunday. These are trying times and it behooves us to get close to God. We need not look for better times until we seek for righteousness. A nation humbled before God, will bring relief quicker than any other plan instituted. Stay away from God and His church, and you can hold a "Depression," forever.

Chevrolet Announces New Truck Models

Featured by new low prices, new chassis and bodies, the most complete commercial line ever built by Chevrolet goes on display this week at Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc.

Price reduction averaging $25.00 are included in the 1932 price list, which extends from $355 for the half ton chassis to $1020 for the 1½ ton van panel.

Twenty-eight standard production production models, an increase of eight over last year, comprise the 1932 Chevrolet commercial line, which includes three wheelbases—109 inch truck, 131 inch truck and 157 inch truck.

"There are many important improvements in the 1932 line," said Mr. W. M. Polk of Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc. "Among the most notable are a special heavy duty truck engine with greater power, larger and heavier clutch, more rigid frame, stronger springs, stronger rear axle, new transmission, new wheels, and roomier, neater cab.

"Bodies by Chevrolet, too, have been greatly improved. Appearance has been particularly stressed. A choice of 12 colors is offered at no additional cost. Comfort, also, has been strongly emphasized. Cushions are larger, they are better constructed, and more seating space is provided. In addition, excess weight has been eliminated without sacrificing strength or durability.

"The half-ton truck has a strong channel steel frame braced with five heavy cross members on which large capacity bodies can be mounted. Stronger axles, smoother clutch, easier steering mechanism, and new wire wheels are among the features it offers. The engine is the same as used in the heavier duty trucks. The transmission is the new Syncro-Mesh type, permitting silent gear shifting. The radiator shell, fenders and related parts have the same sturdy appearance as the truck line.

"The 131 inch wheelbase truck, which has a 1½ ton capacity, is supplied with either single or dual wheel equipment. It has a frame six inches deep, a four-speed transmission, ten inch clutch, heavy duty front axle, a new heavier, more rugged rear axle, and a special truck engine. The truck has an allowable gross weight of 7,400 pounds when equipped with single wheels and 8,200 pounds when dual wheels are supplied.

"The 157 inch wheelbase, 1½ ton truck, has the same pay load capacity as the shorter truck, uses the same major units except the frame, which is much heavier and stronger, and is supplied with either single or dual equipment. This truck is intended to carry bulky loads which require more body space.

"The half-ton truck is offered in 11 standard production models. Six of these are new. They are: open cab pick-up with canopy top, closed cab pick-up with canopy top, special panel, de luxe panel, special canopy express with screen sides. The remaining five models are open cab pick-up, closed cab pick-up, standard panel, standard canopy express with screen sides. In addition a "Special chassis" has shock absorbers with chrome radiator shell, headlamps and tie bar, and with fender well tire carrier, is offered this year.

There are ten standard production models available on the 131 inch wheelbase. One of these, the standard stake express, is new. The remainder are panel, canopy express, canopy express with screen sides, open express, high and wide express, standard platform, standard stake, and van panel. "Seven standard production models are offered on the 157 inch wheelbase. Two of these, the stake express and combination farm body, are new, the remaining five are high and wide express, platform, stake, high rack, and van panel.

Letters To The Editor

FROM DISGUSTUS A. A. JACKSON

Dear Editor:

Just a word to that subscriber that eased up to you on the corner, and asked: "Who is this here Disgustus Jackson that is writing so much in the papers?"

Mr. Subscriber, did you get Disgustus at what I said about Mr. Hoover in a recent date of our county papers? It might be good that you and I could be like the good natured fellow was one time when he and two other companions were taking a stroll. They came upon a dead dog. They stopped and his two companions began burlesquing the poor old dead dog, and saying, "Isn't he ugly. My, doesn't he stink." The good natured fellow broke his silence by saying, "Hasn't he got pretty teeth." When Mr. Hoover comes to his political death next fall we might say, "Hasn't he been a great financier for himself."

And again, Mr. Subscriber, let us remember the negro church house that had only one door. And at a funeral at this church, after the parson delivered one of his best funeral sermons, and announced that the lid would be removed so that friends and loved ones might file by for a last look. Just as soon as the lid was lifted the corpse sat upright in the casket and a great excitement followed. It took only a few seconds for the frantic congregation to disperse through a single door.

Following the calm after the storm, one good sister said to another, "You know, Sister Liza, I didn't know our Parson cussed so." The other looked puzzled. "Do he cuss sho nuff?" she asked. "Do he? You should a heered him after dat cawpse riz up and he was tryin to git out in de open. I heered him plainly as he was trying to get out. He say, 'Whut de hell did they mean by ever building a church wid jus one door in it?' "

Mr. Subscriber, I am of the opinion that you believe in a political house that has only one door, and one doorkeeper. You will hear a lot of people say during this year. I do not like a political house with just one door and one doorkeeper, because it has become Disgustus.

Respectfully,
DISGUSTUS A. A. JACKSON.

Concord Jr. News

The game between Concord and Baker Friday on Baker's court, was the 'slickest' game of the season, due to rain. The game was interrupted several times because of rain. At the end of the first half the score was 4 to 5, but in the last half Baker rallied and ended the game with a score of 11 to 4 in her favor.

Baker returns the game next Friday afternoon, February 5. Remember the date, and see the game.

Those going from Concord to Baker last Friday were Flora Mae Mims, Rachel Lynch, Pauline Baker, and Louise Johnson.

Our Sunday school is just fine. We have ninety-six on roll and sixty-eight were present Sunday.

Our B. Y. P. U. is improving. We have fifty-five on roll and forty-one were present Sunday night.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day. Everyone has an invitation to come.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Maddox spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. John Maddox.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Moates spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Noah.

Mr. Rudolph Moates spent Sunday with Mr. Libbie Moates.

Mr. and Mrs. John Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Miner, Mr. Mack Bates and Miss Martha Jane Mims spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Taylor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Taylor.

Mr. Herman White spent Sunday with Mr. O. H. McDowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Taylor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. O. H. McDowell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wilson and children spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mims.

Don't forget to come out to church next Sunday. Be there for Sunday school at ten o'clock.

We have an enrollment of forty-one in our Parent-Teacher Association. A very delightful program was rendered by several of the members at the last meeting. The next meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon, two-thirty o'clock, February 24, 1932.

Hance Alred Is Now Owner Of Drug Co.

It was announced last week that J. Hance Alred had purchased the interest of T. H. Neighbors in the Alred Drug Company, of Clanton. In the future the business will be operated under the sole ownership and management of Mr. Alred.

Twenty-two years ago, Alred Drug Company opened for business in Clanton, and has been operated continuously at the same location, improving as the years passed by.

Mr. Alred stated that Dr. Neighbors voluntarily retired from the drug business because of other interests he wishes to give his attention to. Dr. Neighbors, it is understood, will go to Goodwater, in Coosa County, where he will be connected with his father in his farming interests.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS ARE ENTERTAINED BY CLASS

The Board of Education of Chilton County met last Friday and at the noon hour were entertained at a luncheon at the county high school by members of the home economics class of the school with Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin as instructor.

The table was tastefully arranged for this occasion, with the school colors of blue and gold in the decorations. The meal that was served was prepared by the girls of the home economics class and served by them.

Those present were B. Lawrence, C. C. Conway, W. J. Billingsley, S. M. Yates, S. J. M. Webb, and J. L. Sanders, members of the board of education. W. M. Wyatt and V. J. Elmore, members of the city board, Miss Madge Scarborough, elementary supervisor, Mrs. C. E. Stapp, attendance officer, Miss Griffin and members of the high school faculty.

Each guest spoke in complimentary terms of the class, and the spirit of the county teachers in their unselfish sacrifice that the schools of the county might continue was brought out.

Baptists To Make Drive For Funds February 9th

at the banks with the hope of paying it back in the fall when collections may be better?"

"Because they cannot borrow it from the banks. The banks won't lend them any more money. Religious bodies cannot borrow money now unless they have plenty of good physical collateral to put up for it."

"What will happen if the Baptists don't raise this money Sunday, February 7th, or some other Sunday in February?"

"Why, the Baptists will default on those bond payments March 1st and will be reported in the financial world as insolvent."

"Can the Baptists of Alabama raise this money?"

"Yes, without a bit of trouble if the pastors and all leaders will just make the people understand the need and the emergency and the danger Baptist work is in, and get the masses and multitudes of the people to help."

"Must anybody give more than fifty cents?"

"Many ought to give more than fifty cents to make up for some who cannot give at all. The churches ought to average fifty cents a member."

"How can this be done?"

"By distributing the collection envelopes that have already been sent to all the churches and presenting the matter with enthusiasm to the congregations, and then sending out enthusiastic committees to see every person who was absent when the offering was taken. If the Baptist people understand that their name and honor are at stake, that the cause of Christ will suffer, then surely they will do it. Sunday, February 7th, is the day set, but any Sunday in February that suits the church best will do. Take the offering, see every member, and hurry the funds to Montgomery as soon as the offering is completed, and specify in the remittance that it is money for 'Catch Up Day'."

We urge our pastors and people to co-operate in the above appeal from our State Secretary. It is the only hope of saving our Baptist work.

J. Z. MIMS,
Moderator Unity Association.

Date Nearing For Annual Rabbit Hunt

Conversation in this section will soon be turned to a certain extent to the big annual rabbit hunt which is conducted in this county. The date for this hunt is nearing, as February 22nd is only about a couple of weeks off now.

So far, not much has been said about the hunt this year, but it is a little early for preparations to be made. However, it is rumored that several are already looking forward to participating in this sport this year.

Judge Tate Holds First Court Here This Week

grand jury Monday, Judge Tate said in part:

"Now, gentlemen, when you go into your grand jury room, I want you to remember the oath that you took, and when you close the door behind you, you leave envy, hatred and malice behind. You leave affection, friendship and reward, and the hope of reward behind you, so that all men may stand equal before you, from the humblest negro to the richest white man in your country.

"As Grand-jurors, you have more power, while you sit, than any man or any officer in the State of Alabama; even the Governor himself is amenable to you. The Judge who charges you now, if he fails in his duty or so conducts himself as not to keep his oath of office, it is just as much your duty to present him, or prefer charges against him as it would be against the commonest thief in your county."

"The Declaration of Independence, which was written by the brainiest men of this country, right after they had secured their freedom and independence from England, has these words in it: "That all men are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; rights that they cannot surrender—rights which are inherent and which they cannot give away—and what are those rights—They are the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Now pursuit of happiness, includes the right to acquire property, and my translation of that means life, liberty and property. Unless your witness box is kept clean, unless the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth comes from that witness stand, gentlemen, no man in this country is safe, either in his life, his liberty or his property. But so long as the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth comes from that witness stand, all men in America will feel that they are free and safe in the possesison of those inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And the Court wants to say to you now that so long as he is your Judge, that he is going, to the utmost of his ability, and I know that you will do the same, to see that only the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, comes from that witness stand.

"I sometimes think that we take our oath too lightly. Now the Court expects to administer the oath to all jurors, and I have just instructed the Clerk that he shall swear all witnesses, and I told him I wanted him to state it to them, and weigh each word carefully, so that when he administers it to any witness in this Court House, that the witness will understand and know, and there will be no doubt about what he swears he is going to do.

"We call this the 'Temple of Justice'; all Court Houses are called that, and so long as I remain your Judge I am going to do my utmost to see that it remains in deed and in truth 'A Temple of Justice.' "

ANOTHER POULTRY CAR THRU THE COUNTY AT BILLINGSLEY

County Agent Stapp announces that he has arranged with the Farm Bureau to run another poultry car through the county. This next car will be over the M & O R. R. and will load at Maplesville Wednesday, February 3d and at Billingsley Thursday, February 4th.

Another car will be run over the L & N road about the middle of February. Some of the observers of the last car over the L & N which loaded 25,209 pounds of poultry, state that the prices paid were 5c per pound above local markets. At 5c per pound difference in prices, the car of 25,209 pounds loaded at Verbena, Clanton and Jemison netted the farmers of the county $1,260.45 more money than they could have gotten on the local markets. This is more than the amount our county receives from the county in one year.

Mr. Stapp states that he wants to give the best service this year that he has ever given. If we will all give him our support and cooperation we think his services will amount to many thousands of dollars to Chilton County this year.

32 TRUE BILLS ARE RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Fifty-Three Witnesses Are Examined; Sheriff Is Also Commended

Below is the report of the Grand Jury of Chilton County, which was organized Monday of last week, and entered in investigating matters coming before them on Tuesday, making their report to Judge Loyd Tate last Friday:

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

To Hon. F. Loyd Tate, as Judge of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Ala.:

We the grand jury empanelled for the January term of the Circuit Court after receiving your Honor's most able charge entered upon our investigations of the matters that came before us as grand jurors and herewith submit the following report.

During our investigations we have considered 41 cases and have examined 53 witnesses and are returning herewith 32 true bills.

We have investigated the offenses enumerated in your Honor's special charge and set out in section 8668 of the Code of 1923 in accordance with your Honor's instructions in so far as we had witnesses to give evidence con-

Home Ec Class Will Play Faculty Thurs.

The people of Clanton and Chilton County will be given a chance to see the greatest basketball game of the season Thursday night at 7:30, at the C. C. H. S. gymnasium. The C. C. H. S. Home Economic girls will play the faculty. If you want to see the teachers do something besides teach school come and see them play ball. The proceeds of this game will go to the Home Economics Class, so come and help the girls department, and also receive a big treat. The admission will be 10c and 15c. The faculty line-up is as follows: Forwards, Bernice Williams and Bonnie Clyde Griffin; guards, Mary Ellis, Josephine Martin; jumping center, Miss Kendrick; running center, Mrs. Green.

OTTO BURNETT PARDON IS RECOMMENDED, REPORT

A pardon for Otto Burnett of Chilton County, who has been serving a term in penitentiary, was recommended by an official in Montgomery, according to information.

Burnett was serving a four year term in Spiegener Pentitentiary for manslaughter of a man named Traywick, who died following injuries received during an election in Chilton County in 1928. Traywick is said to have been injured during the celebrating which took place at the courthouse in Clanton on the night the election closed.

SATURDAY WAS REALLY A PLOW LINE DAY IN CLANTON

Plow lines took the day in Clanton last Saturday, according to reports of sales from the Farmers Hardware Store and Clanton Building Supply Company, and too, Thorsby Hardware Company comes in on this.

These three stores advertised in last week's paper a special price on plow lines. It is estimated that approximately 1,500 pairs of plow lines were sold in the county on that one day alone.

Herman Harris was among the people of Clanton who went to New Orleans during the past week end to view the frigate "Old Ironsides" which has been in dock there for several days.

For Boys And Girls

There is something special in the News this week for the boys and girls. It is the column known as the "Junior Column" by Miriam. The author of this column lives right in Chilton County and is a very charming lady, who is deeply interested in the boys and girls of the county.

This feature for the juniors starts this week, and Miriam will meet you boys and girls each week in the News with something interesting and worth reading. This column is just for the young people, but you older folks may read it if you wish.

Miriam will be glad to hear from any young people in regard to her column, so if you wish to write to her, just address the letter to "Miriam" in care of this newspaper.

PERRY BODY SHOP IS BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

The Perry Body Shop, the only furniture manufacturing plant in Clanton, was very badly damaged on Wednesday night of last week by fire, which occurred about seven-thirty o'clock.

Volunteer firemen were soon on the scene and kept the flames confined within the building, although the interior with all contents was practically destroyed. This place belonged to Perry Littlejohn of Clanton.

CHILTON TEACHERS RECEIVE A PART OF JANUARY SALARY

Information from the office of the County Superintendent of Education here stated that school teachers of this county were paid twenty dollars on their salary for the past month of January. This amount was paid to the teachers last Saturday.

Bill Inzer, who was at one time connected with the A & P Store here, is now connected with the V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c & $1.00 Store in Clanton. He takes the place of Horace Jones who was recently made manager of the V. J. Elmore Store at Jasper.

Proven Police Methods Unravel Really Baffling Subway Murder Mystery Crime

Generally speaking it may be said that there are three kinds of detectives. One type, purely fictional, like the famous Sherlock Holmes, depends almost altogether upon deductive reasoning, and solves the most baffling mystery after a few moments of deep thought. Another type might be called that of the stupid cop who jumps at the obvious conclusion and sticks to it. The third type combines proven police methods and common sense.

Typical examples of these last two types of detectives are seen in "Subway Express," Columbia's all-talking mystery thriller, which comes to the Wadesonian theatre on Monday and Tuesday, February 16 and 16. A murder is committed in a jammed New York subway car and Kearney, a plain-clothes man takes charge of the situation. Soon he is joined by his superior officer, Inspector Killian. All passengers are forbidden to leave the car and the two officers attempt to solve what proves to be an almost baffling mystery.

In "Subway Express," Jack Holt plays the part of Inspector Killian and Aileen Pringle plays opposite in the role of the wife of the murdered man. An exceedingly large cast of well-known stage and screen actors support these two stars. Fred Newmeyer handled the production.

Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association Extends Activities

Oldest Organization Of Kind In Alabama Has Over 200 Active Members With Plans For A More Extensive Marketing Business In View

With the inevitable maturing of plans now underway and under consideration by the Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association, of Thorsby, Ala., members of the organization are to see much improvement made with activities covering a large field with better results in the future, according to information secured from recent meetings of the directors and other officers of the association.

It is planned by this group of organized fruit and truck growers to extend their field of products to include not only strawberries, but also dewberries and Irish potatoes at present. In the future, there is a possibility that such crops as corn, beans and turnips will be planted by this group for carload shipments, provided however, that suitable markets can be secured for such products, according to C. R. Foss, manager and treasurer.

In the past the Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association has been widely noted for its extensive activities in the growing and shipping of fine strawberries and peaches in large quantities, with their revenue from these products ranging yearly from $75,000 to $100,000, it was stated.

At present there are over two hundred members in this fine organization while its activities are confined to Thorsby and immediate surrounding communities. It is the oldest organization of its kind in the state, having been organized in 1902, with only a few, but very active and interested members.

Officers of this association are Carl C. Peterson, president; James Smith, vice president; C. R. Foss, manager and treasurer; W. A. Hayes, John Childress, E. E. Porter, directors. All these men reside in or near Thorsby and are among the foremost of progressive citizens in the county.

Mr. Foss has recently been engaged to act as manager of the association, and his interest and experience and with the splendid spirit of cooperation from each of the 200 or more members assures the association of large business in the future. Mr. Foss, before accepting this place, was cashier of the Peoples Bank at Jemison.

The Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association now maintains an office in Thorsby, which is open each day to take care of business of the association, furnishing its members with fertilizers, crates and other containers for their products. It is the intention of the organization to create a pay-roll twelve months in the year for its members by extending their list of products through the year and securing desirable markets.

"What About Betty" At Isabella School

"What About Betty" is the title of a comedy-drama to be presented at the Isabella High School on next Saturday night, February 13th. Curtain rises at seven-thirty o'clock.

This play is most interesting, and those seeing it will be interested to learn who stole the necklace, and about the mysterious pocketbook. Laughs will be created by the blunt remarks of Joshua and his awkward manners, and tears may be shed at Betty's misfortune. Remember the time, date and place.

KIWANIS OFFICERS ARE ENTERTAINED BY PRES.

Officers and directors of the Clanton Kiwanis Club were royally entertained on last Monday night by John L. Hollis, president of the club, at the club house at Mitchell Dam, at a well prepared dinner.

This entertainment, although interspersed with social actions, was for the purpose of outlining the program of activities of the club for the year.

Those present and enjoying the hospitality of John Hollis, were J. Mell Martin, immediate past president of the club, Sam Powers, district trustee; Cohen Stapp, secretary; Sam Ezell, Raymond Smith. Reedie Taylor, Earle Thomas and Leonard Williams, directors.

CARTER MOVES RADIO SHOP TO NEW LOCATION HERE

This week sees Marvin Carter in a new location with his radio shop, since he has moved to the building on the highway next to the Dixie Cafe.

This building has been repainted and remodeled inside, and made suitable for this business, which was considerably damaged by fire sometime ago, when it was located on main street, near the post office. Mr. Carter states that several days more will be required to put his new place in fine condition.

J. T. COX BRINGS IN A QUEER LOOKING POTATO

J. T. Cox, farmer, who resides in the Fairview Community, near Clanton, on Route Three, brought to the News office the other day a sweet potato, one side of which was the usual yellow color, while the other side was reddish.

Mr. Cox stated that it was his opinion this potato was a cross breed between two varieties.

Miss Kathryn Martin of Montevallo was a recent guest of Prof. and Mrs. L. C. Warr and Miss Josephine Martin here.

Mrs. J. J. Hammack and children of Childersburg were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds recently.

HOYT REYNOLDS OPENS IN WETUMPKA IN GAS BUSINESS

Wetumpka has recently received a new place of business. This is "Brownie's Place" and operated by Hoyt Reynolds of Clanton.

Hoyt opened a place of business under the same name just south of Clanton, and the new one in Wetumpka is of brick and very attractive, dispensing Bear Cat gasoline and oils.

Miss Mildred Mims and Mr. Ted Morrison of Birmingham spent the past week end with Miss Leora Mims.

Misses Frances Moore and Mary Foshee spent the past week end visiting friends in Birmingham.

That "Oldest Coin"

As a result of the search created through articles appearing in the News during the past several weeks about the oldest piece of United States money, indications are that Fred Howard of Thorsby, may get the diamond-studded mustache cup for showing the oldest coin to the News.

It is estimated that placing the number conservatively, there were approximately three hundred coins brought to the News office during the past month by persons trying for this place. These coins, included many foreign makes, with queer wordings and designs, and three cent pieces, half dimes and others out of date. D. B. Jones, a negro, living in West End is the most recent contestant with dime dated 1853.

LOCAL W.O.W. PLAN FOR BIG MEETING SOON

Program In Observance Of George Washington's 200th Birthday.

The local camp of the Woodmen of The World is planning for a real entertainment in Clanton in the very near future, according to information given the News this week. This affair has been set for Monday night, February 22, and the program is to include an observance of the 200th birthday of George Washington, with Hon. J. B. Atkinson of Clanton delivering a short address on this subject.

A large class of new members is to be initiated on that night, and Woodmen are invited to attend. The meeting is to be held at Maddox Hall in Clanton, unless other plans are made, it was stated.

Col. Ellington, prominent in Woodcraft over the State, will be present to conduct the program, and serve as commander. Refreshments are to be served also.

This class and meeting is also to acknowledge the splendid services rendered in woodcraft by Grover C. Harris and Evan C. Evans. It is believed that this meeting will be one of the best in entertainment for members of the W. O. W. ever held in this section.

A CALL FOR BOOKS FOR THE GRAMMAR SCHOOL LIBRARY

A call is being sent out by the Clanton Grammar School for books for its library. This drive will open in earnest on February 15th and continue through February 19th, according to Prof. I. J. Quinn, principal.

A prize will be given the class in the school that brings in the largest number of books suitable for this purpose. For each book brought in, the class room will be given a credit of fifty cents. Start now and look through your books, and see if you have any you can spare for this worthy purpose.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATION IS CUT TO 28

State Chairman Gives Out Correct Information In Regard to Delegates

Alabama's delegation to the national Democratic convention in Chicago which will be held in June has been sliced from 48 to 28, according to E. W. Pettus, chairman of the State Executive Committee.

According to Mr. Pettus's announcement the members of the committee had voted by mail to take this action to bring the delegation in line with suggestions which had been made from national headquarters that woul obviate the necessity of a meeting in Montgomery to take such action.

With this plan, each of the 10 congressional district will elect two delegates and two alternates and eight delegates with half a vote each are to be selected from the State-at large

Some had interpreted it to mean that the delegates from the State-at large had also been cut to half their former number, but this was in error.

Candidate from the districts must designate whether they are seeking positions as delegates or [illegible]

How Old?

He doesn't look a day over fifty.

And feels like forty.

At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and pep a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulant!

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation.

But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better. You will never need another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way.

The Washington Bicentennial

Two hundred years ago this month, on February 11, 1732, a son was born to Augustine Washington, a prosperous planter of Wakefield, Westmoreland County, Virginia. This year we are celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Because the calendar system of the English-speaking world was changed in 1756, by dropping eleven days, we now celebrate Washington's birthday on February 22nd instead of February 11th.

But this whole year will be given over to commemorating the Father of this country. Everybody who can possibly afford to do so ought to make a visit to the city of Washington, and the nearby home of George Washington, Mt. Vernon, as well as to his birthplace farhter down the Potomac River, at some time or other during the year. It is our feeling that no true American can really get the spirit of America without visiting our national capital and seeing the historic mementos of the great leader who made our nation possible.

The very clothes that Washington wore are on exhibition in the National Museum in Washington. In the great memorial building on Shooter's Hill in Alexandria erected by the Masonic Order as a memorial to Washington, may be seen the apron he wore and the gavel he wielded as Master of Friendship Lodge. In Alexandria still stands the school which he built and for which he left an endowment in his will, while the very streets of the city are a memorial, for he was the young surveyor who laid them out. St. John's Church, in which he was a vestryman, is open to visitors who are privileged to sit in the pew which Washington occupied, while back from Mt. Vernon is the little country church at Pohick which he attended in his earlier years. Mt. Vernon itself stands almost as Washington left it, with much of the furniture which he used.

Any time of the year is a good time to visit Washington. The city named for the great revolutionary leader grows more beautiful year by year and easier to get to from any part of the country. Even if you can spare no time or money for any other holiday in 1932, by all means we hope every one of our readers will find a way to pay at least a brief visit to Washington.

State Editors To Aid

At the meeting of the Alabama Press Association held in Montgomery last Saturday, the following resolution, presented by the editor of The Florence Herald, was unanimously passed:

> Be it resolved, That the Alabama Press Association endorse the report of the president's Muscle Shoals Commission, appointed by him and by the governors of Alabama and Tennesse, and that we respectfully request the Alabama senators and representatives in Congress to support a bill in line with the commission's recommendations.

It was also directed that the secretary of the association furnish copies of this resolution to the members of the Alabama delegation in Congress.

At same meeting former Gov. W. W. Brandon, at the invitation of President Pratt of the association, addressed the assembled editors on the Muscle Shoals question and urged them to actively support the commission's report, providing for private operation of the properties, through their newspapers.

It is gratifying that the editors did not hesitate to take a definite and unequivocal stand for private operation of Muscle Shoals, and that there was not a single voice raised in favor of the Norris plan.

The action by the Alabama Press Association should help to convince our legislators in Washington that the people of this state will expect them to support legislation embodying the principles set forth in the commission's report.—Florence Herald.

We're Coming Back Strong

The economic depression from which the United States is just emerging is the seventh major attack of "hard times" that this country has been through in less than a hundred years. The people who are scared almost to death for fear that America can't come back are not a bit worse scared than were the same type of timid-minded folk in each of these previous panics.

But, as we all know, America came back after every one of them, and came back stronger than ever.

The first great financial crisis was in 1837, when practically every bank in the United States suspended payment, half of the property of the entire nation was sold in bankruptcy proceedings and there was no work for anybody and nobody had any money. But we came back so strongly that in less than twenty years our national wealth had been multiplied by three.

We came back from the crisis of 1857, went through a terrific and devastating Civil War and again much more than doubled our national wealth in the course of sixteen years. Then we had the panic of 1873, and that was followed by another great revival that again doubled our ntional wealth, until the panic of 1893. We came back from that one richer than before, and we did the same thing after the crises of 1907 and of 1920. Everybody knows how rapidly our wealth increased between 1921 and 1929, how prosperous everybody was in those fat years.

There is only one way to foretell the future, and that is by studying the past. It is as certain as anything can be that we are coming out of the present crisis toward a greater and more widespread prosperity than we have ever known. And if we have any sense we will take greater precautions against another depression than we did against this one.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

o

"The darkest hour in any man's life is when he sits down to plan how to get money without earning it."

—Horace Greeley.

Even if I should attempt to have one of those dark hours as aforesaid, I wouldn't know what to do with it, because I'm just one of those fellows who hasn't sense enough to make money without earning it.

I haven't ripped this town up one side and down the other in a long time. Might try some of that this week, but it is very difficult to determine just where to start. I might start with the city officials. They are usually being jumped on, ripped up, ripped down, cussed, discussed or something. But for some reason I can't find anything to say about them that would be any gossip like most folks like to hear, and I must make this column interesting or I might become a member of the army of unemployed.

We'll start over at the corner of Farmers Hardware Store. There's Renfroe Jones and Lester Jones and Amon Jones and E. M. Jones. All Joneses, as it was and will be. Renfroe hasn't very many bad habits, except maybe he gets up too early in the mornings, and if anybodys says fish or hunt, he is all set. Lester, on the contrary. It's hard to tell about him. He don't talk enough for a person to talk about him. Maybe that's good policy though. And Amon, well, he's the youngest in the hardware store there, and we'll see and hear more from him when the others have retired and he takes the business. Mr. E. M. Jones—you'll find him at the Farmers Hardware too, or down at South Clanton.

Next we would stop at Broadhead's, but they have moved across the street. Then comes the A & P Store, with G. Cleve Armstrong, Mack Wyatt, Joe VanDerveer and Earl Gray. The last two just now and then. Mr. G. Cleve wouldn't look natural unless he was surrounded by groceries, and I bet he dreams about groceries at night in his sleep. Mack Wyatt used to be connected with gasoline, but now he has got to where he even looks in place in the A & P Store. Joe and Earl are there sometime. Joe has trouble with his P. A., and just can't help it. It's really no trouble to him, because he just looks that way and the young ladies notice it without any effort on his part. Earl, ole boy, it won't be long for you either, I don't suppose.

Next stop, Gray's Barber Shop. Well, in there we find a whole flock of nice looking fellows. There's Newt Gray, Jesse Jones, Carl Bean, Joe Mims and Claudy Wyatt, and the place is neat and clean enough to please the particular, saying nothing of the service one gets there. Oh yes, there's the shine boy too. He's part of the establishment, maybe a fixture.

All out for Evansville. Bob and Julian are welcoming us at their fruit and plant stand, where you see on the left an array of delicious fruits and attractive plants for the garden. You'll always find one of these Evans fellows on the job there, and maybe they ought to have them a sign painted with the words, "Hello"—"Good Morning — or Good Evening" so as to save them in speaking to so many people on the way to the post office.

Further on the left you see the United States Post Office of Clanton, owned by Uncle Sam, and operated by W. M. Bean, Jack Bean and Sutley. By the way, I don't know Sutley's first name, but that's all right, everybody knows these fellows anyway. If they don't they should. W. M. Bean, the postmaster, just is supposed to be there, and Jack and Sutley are becoming fixtures too. All these fellows know their business and give service in elite style.

Now I'm stumped. The next building is occupied by a Mr. Edgar. Well, I see right now I've got to go there and meet that man. Just never thought of it until now. Anyway, it is a nice sort of place with fruits and candies, drinks, etc., for sale. There's Mrs. Edgar there, too. Both these people are all right, and I'm going to get acquainted with them.

Upstairs in that same building, comes the offices of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company. My, that's a long name. Up there are several young ladies, only one married and she's the one who calls you up and tells you that you haven't paid your telephone bill—when you really haven't, sure enough. Then sometimes she's just "one of the girls" who so pleasantly say, "Number please." I like the tone of the voices from that office, and there's one who almost makes me forget what number I do want, when she says, "Number please."

Now, on the extreme left is the Louisville & Nashville depot, where we find a man who has been there, serving faithfully for years—one and only, Mr. Joseph A. Hester, the agent. Then another one, Mr. Mallie L. White, the man who talks over that long-armed telephone to other places and the fellow who now sends and receives telegrams for Clanton. Then there's Jim Rasberry, and some others I'm not exactly acquainted with. Unless we might add about Joe W. Franklin, the man who has hauled freight in Clanton since I was knee-high to a grasshopper, or something. All good obliging fellows, and substantial. And by jove, there's Henry T. Pipes standing out there with his pipe in his mouth. He's the fellow who has to get out and see about the tracks and other railroad property, regardless of weather. Mr. Pipes has been there for a long time, too, and the place wouldn't look just right without him. Curry Thomas was there, but he's down at Wetumpka now.

Now, I hope I haven't left anybody out. If I have I'm sorry, or something, and wish to be called on about it. Here I have filled this column about folks working on one side of one block in Clanton. Maybe I'll get around town in a short while. I see I must start watching you people a little more closely, so that I'll have something to write about you, when I get to your place of business.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was sitting in a gathering of Christian people, and reports were being made of what had been done during the year. One minister said, "I held a great meeting at blank town. The power of the Spirit came down upon the people, and seventy-three were received into the church." The presiding officer looked upon a record that was before him to see how the finances of that church came up, and seeing that there was a deficit, he charged that the conversion of that number amounted to nothing. He made the impression that nothing counts, but money. We do not want to be too hard on leaders in the church of today, but there is more stress being put on the finances of church life, than there is being placed on the salvation of lost sinners. I contend that if people are being saved in a church, there will be no trouble about church finances. When churches are set on fire with the power of the Spirit and sinners crowd the altars of the church, saved men and women will bring their offerings to Zion. If we would hear more about saving sinners and less about shearing the sheep, we would face more liberality.

I have an old hen in my back yard that is a spoiled bunch of feathers. When she came to the parsonage for the first night, she did not know where to roost. She bruised about for a few moments, then perched herself on a box. I took her up and gently placed her on the roost. The next night she bruised around and waited for me to lift her to her roost. Now, that old hen makes no effort to climb up to her roost, but quietly waits for me to come and lift her to her place and put her to bed. She likes to roost high, but she is too lazy to climb into her place. There are many "Birds" without feathers, who want to roost high in this world, but they want some kind hand to come along and lift them into a good place. It is not an unusual sight to see men and women wanting the highest place in the community, in the club and in the church, but they are not willing to climb into that position. If the strength must be used, if the ladder must be climbed, they prefer to roost low. Certainly, you would be pleased to roost high if some kind spirit will come along and lift you up the high places, but if you must fight your way up, you leave the elevations for others. Use your wings and reach the heights under your own power.

While attending a religious gathering in Montgomery on January 19th, I listened to a layman as he was advising with the laymen of his church. He had this to say to them, "Fellows, we are not giving our pastors the support that they should have. We are leaving the church to be run by the pastor and the good women. This should not be, and I have resolved that in 1932, I am going to give of my best to my church. I am a Sunday school superintendent, and I have a neighbor living next door, that man never goes to church, and I have never asked him to go with me. He has asked me to go fishing with him on Sunday, but I have never asked him to go to the Sunday school with me. I am going right home and walk over to that man's house and invite him to my church. I am going to see to it that the devil can not be more active than I am." If the churches in our county had more men like that, there would be a different day for the kingdom in our midst. It is nothing short of deplorable to see the actual amount of indifference on the part of our men for the church and for the welfare of the kingdom. Men, Awake, Awake, and from this good hour make first things first.

While riding over the Highway between Prattville junction and the big bridge over the Alabama river, you will notice at the top of a hill a big sign. In box-car letters this is what you will read, "Dancing here every Saturday night." This sign has brought back to the mind of travelers a thousand vulgar pictures and scenes of depravity. Many a man as he has read these words has thought of a revelry elsewhere in which he went the whole length of the rope of sin. Many a young lady has read these words and called to mind the place where she lost all that was worth living for in this world. On seeing this sign, men and women go on their way with their minds filled with the base things of human conduct. I thank God that there are some travelers who pass that way, who, when they read, breathe a prayer for those who are caught in the devil's trap. Mothers have shed tears as they have read those words, knowing that it was at just such a place that her son and her daughter, first lerned the ways of the world. I see that sign "Dancing here" in other places besides the one on the way to Montgomery. I never see a sign like that when I do not feel a chill of horror going over my soul, and I never fail to pray an earnest prayer that God will use His power in breaking up that place of unholy influence. In our own nation there were one hundred thousand young women who found their way into the primrose path last year by the door of the dance hall, and that does not number the thousands of young men who went the same road. It is dangerous to carry a bucket of gasoline into a room where there is a fire burning in an open grate, but no more dangerous than it is for people to carry their souls into a dance hall.

MERCHANTS FALL AGAIN BEFORE SCHEMING TRANSIENT GET-RICH QUICK IDEA

o

There comes to Clanton a man with a good flow of well arranged adjectives, nouns, and other words, telling the merchants his fine idea on publicity for their places of business. It is a regular trade building idea and with the cooperation of the merchants of Clanton, this man, with his assistants, is going to draw buying crowds to the town.

Each merchant, or place of business taking part in this scheme, will, of course, have to aid in the finances and to get in on the advertising which the man is "planning" to do. These merchants, weakening and falling before the flow of sentences on this get-rich-quick scheme, pay the transient schemer their part, for which the place of business is to receive advertising.

The next day sees the transient peddler of advertising, with his assistants, checking out of the hotel in which they have registered, and without paying the hotel keeper their room rent, they are many miles away from Clanton, with the money in their pockets, and perhaps giving those merchants who bit at their scheme the merry haw-haw. Just another instance where the merchants did not stop to consider to whom they were giving their money—and seeking advertising that is termed illegitimate.

Some of these days, merchants of Clanton, and other places will perhaps learn to use their money for advertising where it will get to the people they wish to reach. Advertising in the local newspaper is money well spent. Not only that, but the advertising is placed with a concern whose business is to get the message to the people —a concern, striving at all times to be of service to its people, and with a community interest and spirit that is unequalled. Maybe merchants will learn sometime.

o

D. W. Haskew, Pastor.

We wonder why everyone living in Clanton could not do like many people did last Sunday—go to church. Take up the habit, it is much better than some habits you have.

We are going to have a special subject for 11 A. M. next Sunday, "Mental Attitudes," and we urge that you come. Come and gain an insight into your own life. You have many things embedded in your brain that you do not know that you have. Your mental attitude determines to a large extent, what you are.

Sunday school at 9:45 A. M. There were 125 present last Sunday. We can make it 150 next Sunday. Pull a smile into your countenance and come on.

Preaching Sunday night by the pastor at 7 o'clock. You should never allow Sunday to pass without attending one service at least. Attend both if possible. You need it. We have a warm church and a warm welcome for you.

For Circuit Judge

o

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, composed of the Counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary of May 3rd, 1932.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated.—Thanks!

F. LOYD TATE.

A 20,000-Man-Size Job

Men must eat. Trainloads of butter, eggs and poultry move every week into New York and Chicago. Carloads move every week into hundreds of smaller cities. Shut off the supplies for a brief time and millions would go hungry.

Men must sell. Trainloads of produce move every week out of the farming centers. Stop buying for a little while and eggs would grow old, butterfat lose its value, poultry pass its prime. Hundreds of thousands of producers would lose money.

Regularity of supply can be assured only by widespread buying. Transportation costs must be kept low by shipping in carload lots. To obtain good prices from the men with the dinner tables, there must be efficient salesmen and accurate, hour-to-hour reports on demand everywhere.

A man-size job? More than that. Swift & Company makes this a 20,000-man-size job. That many, and more, of its employes devote all or part of their time to buying, processing, selling and distributing poultry, dairy products and eggs.

Over a hundred Swift produce plants pay cash for what the farmer produces. Leased wires 7,500 miles long keep experts informed where demand is greatest and supplies are shipped to these points. Branch houses and car routes serve 10,400 cities and towns.

The same salesmen who sell meat take orders for butter and eggs. One delivery suffices where two would be needed if produce and meat were distributed separately. Handling them together makes workers more efficient. Therefore, cost of distribution, both of meat and of produce, are lowered.

Swift & Company is a national marketing institution. It is also several hundred local institutions. Packing houses, branch houses, produce plants—more than 650 in all—employ local men whose pay checks help to keep their communities prosperous. A rounded line of foodstuffs enables these men to give a better and a less costly service to all classes of producers.

Charges are reasonable. Profits of Swift & Company from all sources, over a period of years, have averaged less than one-half cent per pound of product handled.

The program was as follows: 1. Life of Lanier, Jane Neighbors. 2. Story of the Chattahoochee. 3. Power of Prayer Easterling, Mary Armstrong, Julius Martin, Mary Joe Foshee. After the program, the president appointed Edith Parrish, Bill Hodges to serve on the program committee. The English Club meets every Friday, and all take an important interest in it.

The Forensic Club

The Forensic Debate Club was organized December 9, 1931. A committee was appointed to draw up the constitution. At the next meeting, December 16, the constitution was submitted by the committee, and adopted by the club. The club then proceeded to the business of electing its officers as follows: President, Sallye Mahan; vice president, John Ezell; secretary treasurer, Elizabeth Stanley; reporter, Louise Knox. The club meets on the first and third Thursdays of each month. The first regular meeting was held in the auditorium of the high school, January 7, 1932. The program was carried out as follows: President's address by Sallye Mahan. A speech by Margaret Jones, on Lincoln as a debator. Speech by John Ezell on Why I Am A Member of the Forensic Club. At the second meeting Elizabeth Stanley addressed the club on this subject: The Importance and Value of Debating. The third meeting was perhaps the most interesting of all. The constitution reads that all members must be elected by a trial speech before the club. Ruth Maddox, desiring to become a member of the club, gave a splendid address. The judges consisting of three members rendered the decision favorably, and said the candidate is now a full fledged member.

The purpose of the club is to promote interest in public speaking. This movement was instigated by Miss Nell Wells and under her guidance the club expects to exert all its initiative towards this purpose.

THE RAILROADS HAVE MADE WITHOUT INTEREST
A FIVE BILLION DOLLAR LOAN
IN IMPROVED SERVICE

L&N
LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.

IF YOU made a loan, even a small one, and received no interest on your money, you would certainly feel that you had been treated unfairly.

The railroads of the United States have loaned the public the use of over five billion dollars, for which they have not received one cent interest in the past two years. Incredible as this statement seems, it is true. Read the following figures.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has fixed 5¾% as a fair rate of return for railroads to earn on the value of their property.

In 1922 the railroads had a total of $21,200,000,000 invested in property devoted to transportation purposes and earned, that year, 3.59%. Eight years later, in 1930, their property investment had increased to $26,300,000,000 but only 4% was earned on the 1922 investment. By 1931 the rate of return on the 1922 investment had decreased to 2.57% and the average for the years 1930-1931 fell to less than 3.50%. Yet, in the eight year period, 1922 to 1930, the railroads spent $5,100,000,000 for improved equipment and service. They are now rendering better service at less cost to you than they were in 1922.

In other words, the railroads have, in effect, loaned the public the use of over five billion dollars for two years, without receiving one cent interest on this vast amount.

This alarming condition has been caused by the present economic depression and has been further intensified by unfair taxation and competition from other transportation agencies.

You are vitally interested in the earning power of the railroads because of large holdings of railroad securities by life insurance companies, charitable and financial institutions.

The railroads must earn a reasonable rate of interest on their tremendous investments devoted to public use, if YOUR investments are to be protected.

This can only be accomplished by legislative relief from unfair competition and by increased railroad patronage.

You can cooperate by traveling on the steam railroads and by shipping your freight by rail.

The Railroads Must Earn

Junior's Column

By Miriam

Dear Boys and Girls:

Mr. Smith has given us a little part of this week's "County News" for our own and we are going to have a story about—Well, I'll just let you guess a little. I wonder how many of you know what day tomorrow is?

"Friday." Yes, but—

"February 12th?" Yes, but there's some—

"Lincoln's Birthday!" Yes! That's what we are going to remember and observe tomorrow.

There are many interesting stories about Mr. Lincoln as a boy and as a man, but here is the one I'm going to tell you this week:

The Condemned Soldier

Back when our Great Grandfathers were young men and Mr. Lincoln was President of the United States, the Northern States and the Southern States had a war.

In the Northern or Union Army there was a young soldier whose name was William Scott. His home was in Vermont. He and his mother were poor people and his mother looked to him for support. The war came on though and before long William found himself in the Union Army—a soldier.

When the soldiers were not in battle they were often marching long distances to meet the other army in another battle. Once William Scott and his comrades had to make such a march. They had marched a long, long way and were all tired. Night came on and they stopped to camp and rest. William was chosen for picket duty—that is he was to stay awake and keep watch while the others slept. That was an important duty for the safety of the army and if a soldier on "picket duty" went to sleep he was sentenced to be shot, for, better to lose one soldier than the whole army. Alas for William, he went to sleep that night. . . .

William sat thinking of his mother whom he expected to see no more, for was he not to be shot? He thought of hundreds of happenings in his past life—but all the time he was listening for the footsteps of the soldiers who would come to execute him.

"Listen—footsteps—Oh, are they coming already? No—that's—Why that's Mr. Lincoln, the President!

Mr. Lincoln talked with him a long time. William told him about his mother and how he had wanted to be a good soldier, but now—

"Tell me how much you can pay me if I pardon you," asked Mr. Lincoln.

William's face brightened and then clouded. "We are very poor, Mr. Lincoln, but I think we could raise five hundred dollars by putting a mortgage on mother's farm."

"No, that won't do. My bill would be larger than that and there is just one that can pay it and that one is William Scott. If you promise that from this day you will do your duty by your country I will wipe away your sentence of death and shall feel fully repaid."

Of course William Scott was a very happy fellow, and I'm sure he was always grateful to Mr. Lincoln for saving him from that shameful death.

Mt. Pisgah News

Last Sunday, February 7, was our regular singing afternoon. After a song by Mr. Jake Henley and prayer by Mr. G. W. Edwards, directors for the afternoon were Mr. Henley, Rev. L. A. Brown, Mr. Eugene Aldridge, Mr. Tom Wells and Prof. Emmett Wilson. Organist for the afternoon was Miss Birdie Edwards. A special song was rendered by Rev. L.A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Aldridge. Mrs. Fannie Retherford and Birdie Edwards.

A duet was rendered by Prof. Wilson and Mr. Henley. We greatly appreciated the short talks made by Rev. Brown, Prof. Wilson, Mr. Edwards and Mr. Henley. Dismissed with prayer by Rev. Olile Hayes.

We were pleased to have the large crowd of willing, loyal helpers and attentive hearers. Our class is improving. There are many who make use of the talents God has given them. Unto these more shall be given. There are a few who have beautiful voices, who sit back and say, "I can't," and don't try. If you can sing, it is a great blessing God has given you; then why not use this blessing for His honor and glory wherever you are?

Life is short and we must use every opportunity for our Saviour, if we ever accomplish anything worthwhile. Satan and his forces are very active. The dance halls are increasing and the young people who are not Christians delight in learning the new steps. Parents, come and bring your children to the singings, get them interested in the new songs which is the praise service of the church, and encourage them to use their talents in church, Sunday school and wherever they are for Christ. Help them to be loyal and courageous in all things that are right and opposed to all things that lead wrong, that they may hear the Saviour say, "Well done, my good and faithful servant, enter into thy great reward."

There were visitors from several different communities. We thank you again for your help and encouragement. Hope you will come back every first Sunday and bring someone with you.

THE DIXIE CAFE

FORMER RESIDENT OF CLANTON IS HONORED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marshall Baker on East Lake Boulevard, in Birmingham, was the scene of a delightful entertainment on the evening of January twenty-eighth, when friends gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Baker's twentieth wedding anniversary. The house was attractively decorated with ferns and a snow-white marriage bell. An interesting program was carried out, followed by a delicious buffet course, and the cutting of the beautiful wedding cake bearing twenty candles. Mr. and Mrs. Baker received many beautiful pieces of china.

The guests were Rev. and Mrs. W. K. Blake and son, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Bellah, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Carter, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Glenn and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Carter and small daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lankford, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hartselle, Mrs. Nan Fitzgerald, Misses Hallie E. Corry, Velma Gentry, Mattie Maury, Velma Lancaster, Zeulah Bellah, and Mr. G. C. Walker, all of Birmingham.

Mrs. Baker was assisted in the serving by Misses Alameda and Louise Bellah.

Mr. Baker is a former resident of Clanton.

Scientific Kitchen Planning Includes Up-to-Date Cabinets

A survey among some of the more modern homes in this city discloses the interesting fact that kitchens are at last emerging from 'the dark ages." In fact, it is surprising to note how much really important progress has been made in kitchen development.

This apparently has resulted from a natural desire to cut down the amount of daily labor in the home and to transform the kitchen into a more attractive work room. It shows conclusively that many women of intelligence are beginning to think much more constructively about the enormous job of preparing three square meals a day for the thousands of families in this community.

An inquiry conducted by this newspaper revealed one clear thinking hostess who takes as much pride in her kitchen as she does in her living room. Not only is each piece of furniture and equipment well designed and immaculate in itself but there is a distinct note of harmony in all the interior arrangements. Each of the important work stations is correctly placed and the whole color scheme made up of grey and blue tones, is indicative of the finest taste.

Ages ago both art and science demonstrated the value of harmony in creative work. Now, this fine idea is being worked out in the modern kitchen along with the extremely practical advancement in home efficiency.

In actual saving of steps, the modern kitchen cabinet is now recognized as the most effective instrument of kitchen progress ever brought within reach of the home-minded woman. Many who are long experienced in housework declare this natural work center enables them to accomplish much more satisfactory results in about half the time formerly devoted to culinary work.

It is also significant to note that in the last year, sales of the better class kitchen cabinets have increased to a remarkable extent. This notable demand for kitchen cabinets and other labor saving equipment for the home is taken to mean that old fashioned methods in kitchen work are not adequate to maintain present day standards of living. Women have found that only by using modern tools can they meet the demand of this strenuous day.

cerning such offenses and have no special report to make as to this type of offense.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and on our examination of the sheriff's account with the state for feeding prisoners we find it being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education we find that his books, records and papers are being kept neatly and fully in accordance with the law in so far as we were able to ascertain.

We were furnished a statement by Mrs. Gertrude P. Calloway, Treasurer of Chilton County, showing the amount of money on hand as of February 1, 1932, to be $65,176.39 and we found that this money was in the two banks of Clanton on February 1, 1932 of which $25,000 was on deposit at 4% interest in The Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton, Alabama, as provided by order of the Commissioner's Court of said County. The remaining amount of said sum as of February 1, 1932, being in the First National Bank of Clanton, Alabama.

The Grand Jury inspected the jail which has recently been remodeled and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners and we find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort; we found that the remodeling of the jail has made it very modern with all facilities to handle prisoners without any danger to those in charge; the jail was clean and is being kept in a highly satisfactory manner and we feel the sheriff should be commended for the general appearance of the jail and the way it is being kept.

The Grand Jury inspected the Alms house and find that it is being well handled by those in charge and that the occupants get meals and attention in so far as the arrangements for taking care of the inmates will reasonably permit.

We wish to thank the Sheriff and his deputies for the prompt manner in which they secured witnesses that we needed to complete our labors and for the conveniences given us during our stay as Grand Jurors.

The Grand Jury wishes to especially thank your Honor for the very able charge given us when we were first empanelled. It has been most helpful to us throughout all our investigations.

The Grand Jury wishes to thank the bailiff Mr. M. F. Lett for the efficient and valuable service rendered us during the week.

Now having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge we respectfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us again convene.

This February 5th, 1932.

Democratic Delegation Is Cut To Twenty-Eight

In some cases several have announced themselves as candidates for delegates, but none have announced for alternates.

This announcement from Chairman Chairman Pettus will correct the action of the committee which adopted resolutions providing for 48 delegates, with half a vote each, but made no provisions for alternates.

Mr. Pettus was advised in a telegram last week from Jouett Shouse, chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee that the delegation's standing might be endangered if 48 delegates went to Chicago with credentials because the call for the convention stipulated that, no state send more delegates than it had votes on the convention floor.

Mr. Pettus promptly notifed State committee members, asking for their votes either for a committee meeting in Montgomery on February 20, to change the resolution, or votes by mail on reducing the delegation to two delegates from each district with two alternates and eight delegates with half a vote from the State-at-large.

Chestnut Creek Church

Here we come again, folks, boasting about old Chestnut Creek. But we have something to boast about. The spirit of God is working in our community. We prove that by the way our church services are growing, both in number and in spirit.

Our Cottage Prayer meeting is a wonderful success. Last Wednesday afternoon we had nineteen women present here in the little old village of Cooper. Wednesday night at 6:30 Sunday school officers and teachers meeting. 7:00 Choir practice. Large crowd attended.

Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days and I think I can speak as a mouthpiece for everyone who ws present Sunday morning. We had one of the most wonderful sermons you could feel the spirit of God in that audience. Bro. Hand's subject was "Is There Any Room For God?" That is a question every Christian should ask himself.

Sunday afternoon the house was full at the singing. We had a splendid singing.

Sunday night we had 98 present at B. Y. P. U., after all the wonderful preaching and singing this week end folks did not forget their place in B. Y. P. U. The senior union's subject was "A Closer Walk With God." Everybody enjoyed it. Ask you to come back any time you wish to.

GRIP TIGHTENS ON ENFORCING HIGHWAY LAW

Motorists And Others Are Warned To Be Careful About Loads, Lights

Judging from reports received at the office of the sheriff of this county this week, persons driving automobiles and other vehicles are not fully acquainted with the highway code, or just do not care and will take a chance of being arrested.

The State of Alabama has motorcycle patrols over its highways at present watching those cars, trucks, wagons and other vehicles at night and warning the drivers about improper lights, and also checking loads on large trucks.

The highway code of Alabama states that an automobile, operating on a state highway, or other public road must have two proper headlights and a tail light, the headlights to be able to be seen about five hundred feet. Motorists are warned about this, and wagons traveling at night must have some kind of light on them so as to be seen. This is as a matter of protection against accidents.

Motorists are also being warned about the brakes on their cars, and officers state that the grip is being tightened in regard to this highway code. While parked on a state highway, you should leave your lights burning, and be as near the curb as possible, it was stated.

Those persons operating trucks are warned not to overload the vehicles, as the State Code regulates the number of pounds to be carried over the highways, and it is advisable to operators of large trucks to acquaint themselves with that law, and see that the license tag is properly classified. A truck tag classified as H-2 allows that truck to carry a load up to two tons.

Any boy or girl under the age of fifteen years who operates a motor vehicle is also violating the law and is subject to a charge of misdemeanor, and the owner of the vehicle is also subject to arrest, it was stated.

Information from the sheriff's office here showed that rigid enforcement of the above items will be carried out, and all persons concerned are advised to take warning.

"Ghost Of Hilo" At High School Friday

The Girls Glee Club of the Chilton County High School will present "The Ghost Of Hilo" at the high school auditorium Friday night, (tomorrow) at eight o'clock.

This is to be something new in the way of entertainment for the people of this section. The characters include Miss Nell Wells, known for her musical talents, who takes the part of "Maile" as the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter and who has mysterious powers as a sorceress. Miss Mary Ellis, as "Princess Leilani" of the Island of Hilo, and Miss Marilyn Hardy, as "Little Sister" the mystery of whose birth is solved by the Ghosts.

A chorus of fourteen girls in hula costumes will furnish songs, music and dances. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

O. L. Ray, age 41, died last Tuesday morning, February 9, at his home near Shiloh. Burial was at Shiloh Wednesday at 11 o'clock, with Spigener in charge. The funeral was conducted by Rev. T. J. Deason and Rev. W. P. Lowery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. O. L. Ray, and ten children, Homer Ray, of Sylacauga, Mrs. L. L. Traywick and Mrs. O. D. Deavers of Clanton; Gatie, 16, Lonnie Ruth 14, J. B. 12, Addie Lee 10, Carson 7, Wilma Gene 4, and Aubrey 2½, all at home.

COTTONSEED MEAL AS A COTTON FERTILIZER

Those farmers desiring to use cottonseed meal as a cotton fertilizer should make the following mixture: 125 lbs. cottonseed meal, 100 lbs. superphosphate, 15 pounds muriate of potash.

Apply this mixture at the rate of 200 pounds to 300 pounds per acre a week or ten days before planting. Mix thoroughly with the soil by running a scooter down the furrow.

Second Poultry Car Scheduled This Week

The second cooperative poultry car over the L & N Railroad this season is scheduled for this week as follows:

Verbena, Thursday afternoon, the 18th; Clanton, all day Friday, the 19th; Jemison, Saturday morning, the 20th.

The following prices will be paid at the car: Colored hens, 12c; leghorn hens, 10c; fryers, 14c; stags, 10c; roosters, 5c; turkeys, 14c.

Feed plenty of mash or wet feed, but do not bring chickens to car with crop full of corn.

TAX COLLECTOR GIVES DATA ON TAX PAYMENT

Warns Those Who Have Not Paid Their Taxes In Chilton County

Due to questions being asked in regard to the time limit on payment of taxes in Chilton County, W. G. Culp, tax collector, has the following to say in regard to this:

"In keeping with my policy of trying to give you the best service possible, I take this opportunity to say a few words to the taxpayers who have not yet paid their taxes.

"The question is being asked daily: How long have we got to pay our taxes? In answer to this, I will say that beginning the first of April it becomes my duty under the law to ask for a decree of sale on all property upon which the taxes have not been paid. Of course, when such proceedings are started, extra costs will begin to accumulate.

"As I have stated in a former article, it is a pleasure for me to serve you in the best way that I can, and to give you all the advantages possible; but in this matter I have a limit.

"The discharge of my duties as a county official in accordance with the law must be my first consideration.

"While I am not unmindful of the seriousness of the depression, especially as to money matters, yet I hope that each taxpayer who has not yet been able to take care of his tax obligtions will begin now and make a special effort to do so within the time allowed by law.

"If I can serve you in any way, call on me."

STAPP CALLS ATTENTION TO STABLE MANURE FOR COTTON

J. C. Lowery, Extension Agronomist

As a fertilizer for cotton, stable manure, if used at the rate of two to three tons per acre, should be applied in the drill and bedded on at least ten days or two weeks before planting. If more than three tons per acre are used broadcasting is advisable.

For each ton of manure apply 100 pounds of 16% phosphate. That is, with 2½ tons of stable manure 250 pounds of 16% phosphate would be required.

The actual outlay in money would be less than two dollars per acre.

IN OBSERVANCE OF THE TWO HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

1732 --- FEBRUARY 22 --- 1932

From the national capital in the District of Columbia to the smallest hamlet throughout the land, Americans, this week, turn their thoughts to the observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

The Government, through an act of Congress, established the United States, George Washington, Bicentennial Commission, of which the President of the United States is Chairman. Through the efforts of this commission, celebrations will be held throughout the nation. February 22d, initiates the occasion and the celebrations continue until Thanksgiving.

If ever a situation called forth a man of destiny, 1776 was the occasion—and George Washington the man. No crisis ever demanded more profound knowledge and ability—not only in one special field, but in all functions of government. No man ever came nearer to fulfilling in accomplishment all that was required of him than George Washington.

In breadth of vision, virility of spirit, compassion for humanity and conception of government, George Washington was unexcelled in his time, seldom surpassed in any time. It is, indeed, doubtful if our nation could have grown from scarce two million artisans and handicraftsmen, farmers and frontiersmen, into its present highly complex industrial civilization of one hundred and twenty-two millions without the solid, fundamental, yet elastic and flexible foundation which came to us as an heritage from George Washington.

Is it not significant that our constitution has survived the astounding changes in living modes of the past one hundred and fifty years? Is it not significant that a man, thinking, living, working, fighting in an era of agricultural economy, could have assisted in the construction and establishment of a form of government which has served with but eighteen changes through a century and a half?

Back over a span of two hundred years the eyes of a grateful people are at this time focussed on the old Washington home at Wakefield, Westmoreland County, Virginia, where was born our first American, George Washington.

Sterling qualities of honesty, courage and perserverance were attributes of the man, George Washington. They are qualities to achievement today as when practiced by Washington during his lifetime. Applying those principles to our individual and national problems of today is the duty of every American, and to those principles we heartily subscribe.

Verbena Service Station Announces New Addition To Service Of Repair Department

Again comes the popular Verbena Service Station announcing another addition to their already efficient and competent repair department of their one-stop service station at Verbena, Alabama, on the Montgomery highway.

Elsewhere will be found the announcement that the above station has secured the services of Mr. Leonard Calloway, who has charge of the garage there. Along with the announcements are letters highly recommending Mr. Calloway in his line of work. These letters are from well known motor companies, and speak highly of him.

Mr. Calloway is well and favorably known in this section, his home being in Verbena for a number of years. He specializes on ignition work on automobiles, as well as general repairing. Find the announcement in this issue from the Verbena Service Station, which is operated by Mr. Charles Gulledge.

Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, addressed the student body of the Thorsby Institute last Wednesday morning, having as his subject "Lions in the Way."

E. G. Caldwell, merchant at Pletcher, Ala., was in Clanton Tuesday on business.

Grammar School Book Drive Is Underway

The drive for books for the children's library at the Clanton Grammar School is well underway, according to Prof. I. Q. Quinn, principal.

The first day of the drive there were something like one hundred books brought in to the library. The drive ends tomorrow, Friday, and all who have story books and others suitable for the school library are urged to get in touch with some child attending the school. Each class room is in this contest.

PROCEEDINGS FILED AGAINST J. M. MIMS HERE

Commissioner Does Not Live In District Reoresented By Him, Is Charge

Proceedings, charging that J. M. (Jim) Mims does not reside in the district he represents as a member of the Commissioners Court of this county, were filed here last week, according to information. Mr. Mims is Commissioner from the Second District of this county, and the proceedings are to oust him as commissioner, it was stated.

The charges, it was reported, against Mr. Mims were filed by J. D. Bean, who lives in the Second District, who is being represented by Percy M. Pitts, attorney. It is understood that the charges against Mr. Mims allege that he resides in the fourth district, while he was elected two years ago to serve from the second district.

Mr. Mims, who is being represented by Lawrence F. Gerald, attorney of Clanton, states that he has resided in Beat Nine, district two, for forty years or more, and still retains his address in that section, although he does stay in Clanton quite a bit.

At present, the case rests, as trial will probably come up before Judge Loyd Tate, at the next term of court here.

MONTGOMERY KIWANIANS TO MEET WITH LOCALS

Several members of the Kiwanis Club of Montgomery will be in Clanton today, to meet with the local Kiwanis Club, at its regular weekly luncheon at the Baptist church.

The program for today promises to be something out-of-theordinary, as the Montgomery Kiwanians will have charge of the entertainment, giving what is known as a model program for a Kiwanis luncheon. A full attendance is expected from members of the Clanton club.

TIFFIN'S KITCHEN CABINET SALE TURNS OUT A SUCCESS

In last week's paper Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company carried an advertisement on Sellers Kitchen Cabinets, announcing a special sale. Tuesday morning of this week Mr. J. B. Tiffin told a representative of this newspaper that they had sold over twenty of the cabinets with prospects of even more than that before the sale ended Saturday.

See the ad in this issue in regard to this sale of kitchen cabinets, and acquaint yourself with the offer being made by this well known furniture store of Clanton.

WAR VETERANS TO MEET HERE WITH SPEAKER

Judge Cage Head To Speak To Men Here Tonight At Courthouse

The attention of every World War Veteran in Chilton County is called to the announcement of the meeting to be held at the courthouse in Clanton tonight at seven-thirty o'clock. This meeting will be of very great importance to ex-service men, and all are urged to be present, whether members of the American Legion or not, it was stated by the Commander of the local post, R. D. Woodson.

It was also stated that Judge Cage Head of Shelby County will be present to speak to the gathering of ex-service men, on matters relative to the legislation, pending in Congress in the interests of the veterans.

In commenting on the meeting tonight R. D. Woodson, Post Commander of the American Legion, and A. L. Robinson, Adjutant, they had the following to say:

"It is our earnest hope that every ex-service man in the county will attend this meeting. It makes no difference whether you are a member of the American Legion or not. [illegible] a meeting in the interest of all ex-soldiers, and we hope that all will be present."

DEALERS ADVISED TO GET STATEMENT FROM SHIPPERS

Seed dealers of Alabama should require shippers, when delivering seed, to present a signed statement that they are delivering the variety and kind of seed ordered, advises Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture.

"Dealers possessing the statement of trueness to type from the shipper will possibly relieve themselves of liability under the state law. Shippers refusing to make this statement have questionable seed and should be shunned," Mr. Storrs said.

DR. ARTHUR JOHNSON TO GO TO NEW ORLEANS

Dr. Arthur Johnson will leave in the next few days for New Orleans, where he will spend a few weeks visiting the clinics.

More Old Coins Come In To News

Old coins continue to show up in the contest to determine in Chilton County who has the oldest United States coin. At present the record is 134 years, and held by Fred Howard at Thorsby.

During the past few days Henry Lee Motley, Maplesville, Route 2 brought to the News office a foreign coin dated 1781. Mrs. Willie Phillips Jones of Clanton showed a gold coin dated 1843. L. H. Bean at Jemison, writes that he has a one-cent piece dated 1807, which makes it 125 years old. Other coins have been brought in, but were of foreign make. The News will not be able to enter into correspondence in regard to the coins, as they will have to be brought to the office.

MRS. ELIZA TOLBERT FOWLER DIED AT MOUNTAIN CREEK

Death visited the Old Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek last Tuesday morning and took the spirit of Eliza Tolbert Fowler, age 65, wife of Dr. J. T. Fowler, physician at the home.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning at the home, conducted by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church. Interment followed in the Elmwood cemetery in Birmingham, with Martin & Sons of Clanton in charge.

Surviving is the husband, one daughter, Miss Trudie Fowler, of Birmingham, one son, J. T. Fowler, Jr., with the Alabama Power Co., Birmingham. One sister, Mrs. John A. Scruggs, of Lloyd, Fla., two brothers, E. C. Bunker, Charleston, S. C., and W. H. Bunker of Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Dorman Batson, Jr., formerly Miss Lera Logan of the Central Alabama Hospital, left Tuesday for Fillansbee, West iVrginia, where she will join her husband, and make their home.

Misses Mary Nell Bachelor and Dean Williams, members of the faculty of the Lightwood School, Elmore County, were in Clanton shopping Monday.

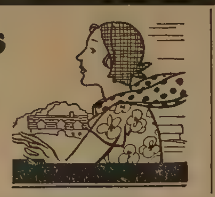
Rowena Rides the Rumble



By Ethel Hueston

ELEVENTH INSTALMENT

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, where the next morning Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate' marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel lougers. They wire the company they have been married.

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register. They find Rackruff Motors have arranged a public reception and dance for them. They are deluged with presents.

After the festivities, Peter angers the hotel staff by leaving his bride alone all night and Rowena tries to console him for the bad opinion he has won by his actions.

They find Bobby awaiting them in the hotel at Seattle and she travels with them to Los Angeles where they are met by an unfriendly hotel clerk, who summons the police who thereupon place all three under arrest for kidnapping Bobby.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Well, there's one nice thing about traveling, trio," said Rowena. "You know just what to expect of every town. A bed, and food, and no adventures. It seems a bit smug after the life of adventure Peter and I have lived."

Bobby said nothing at all. She was brooding painfully over the probable state of affiairs in New York and her heart was wrung with doubts.

There was no letter for her at the hotel in Los Angeles and she wilted visibly.

It was probably her absorption in her personal grief which kept her from sensing at the first moment, as the others did, that something was wrong.

Peter registered for all three, and the clerk instead of consulting the room chart as clerks are supposed to, turned without a word and went into the adjoining office.

"Peter," whispered Rowena, "I don't like that clerk. He looks like the worst sort of manager to me. I don't like this hotel either. I have developed a sixth sense about hotels. Let's go somewhere else."

"Oh, that's all imagination," said Peter, uncomfortably aware that it was not imagination and that Rowena was right about it.

But the clerk came back from the inner office at that moment, summoned a boy, and immediately they were on their way up. Rowena and Bobby shared a large double room with Peter in a single one adjoining, the bathroom between. He was thickly lathering his hands with soap to get rid of his accumulation of motor oil and California dust when there was a knock at the door and Rowena opened it to admit three men, one the manager of the hotel.

"Mr. Blande here?"

"His room is over there. He's in the bath now, I think."

"Call him in, will you?"

"Peter!" Rowena called at the closed door. "Can you come in a minute?"

Peter came at once, the towel still in his hands.

"Hello," he said cheerfully. "What's what?"

"That's what we want to know. Are you Peter Blande?"

"I most certainly am."

"Is one of these ladies your wife?"

"Yes. This lady—Rowena—is my wife."

"Did you register as Mrs. Blande?"

"No, by my maiden name. I am a writer and use my own name for professional reasons."

"You admit that you are his wife, hiwever?"

"Absolutely," said Rowena. "I even brag about it."

"Why, they gave them the bridal suite in Spokane," put in Bobby helpfully.

"Yes, we heard about that. Are you Miss Lowell?"

"Yes. Roberta Lowell."

"Well, I'm sorry, but you're under arrest. All three of you. We have a complaint against you from New York. They say you're not married at all, traveling under false pretenses and want us to hold you. They say you're keeping this young lady by coercion and that you have a demoralizing influence over her."

Rowena and Peter glowered at Bobby.

"What," they demanded sternly, "does this mean?"

"I haven't the faintest idea," said Bobby. "I never saw anything demoralizing about you."

"That," said the officer kindly, "is because you are so innocent. But that lay out there"—and at his indication they turned and saw a uniformed woman on guard in the corridor just outside their door—"that lady is from the Juvenile Court. She will take charge of you."

"See here," said Peter angrily, "What sort of tommyrot is this anyhow? This lady is too old for the Juvenile Court. Why, she is her own mistress. She's twenty three years old."

"Well, according to the complaint from New York, there is nothing we can do about it. Our orders are to put you under arrest. You'll have to talk to the judge."

"But, Peter," cried Rowena, "are you going to let them arrest us for not being married, when we are married! Look at all the trouble we've had. That's proof enough."

"But why should they say you are only pretending to be married if you really are married?"

"Well, who says so? That's the first question. Where did the complaint come from anyhow?"

"From a gentleman in New York by the name of Carter Wellman—"

"You can fix this up," said the officer. "You got influential friends, ain't you? They'll fix you up all right. All they got to do is swear they know all about you and everything's jake and there you are. You just hop down private in your own car with Bill here to show you the way—this is Bill Harmon—fine chap, too—he'll go down with you and introduce you to the judge. He's a swell gent, the judge is. He'll see how things are in a jiffy."

It was the simplest way out, and the officers made it as easy for them as possible, allowed them to walk unescorted through the lobby of the hotel and waited at a respectful distance when Peter stopped to send a telegram, which he wrote with a very firm hand and signaled for Rowena to come and read. It was addressed to Carter Wellman.

"Are you going to marry Roberta Lowell immediately on her return to New York, or are you not? If your engagement is canceled, as she believes, I shall marry her myself immediately. A rolling brown dumpling gathers nothing but trouble for all concerned. Please state your exact intentions."

"But you can't marry her," protested Rowena. "You're married now."

"Well, he doesn't believe it.—And Rackruff, Inc., will pay for that wire if I have to steal a spare tire to get it."

The judge proved extremely sympathetic and agreed with Peter that it was an outrage, no less, the way people in love embroiled innocent bystanders in the tangled web of their affairs. He had his secretary send off a wire to Denver to verify the marriage, and to Rackruff Motors, Inc., in New York, for details of the trip and complete information regarding Rowena and Peter. He even sent for the local Rackruff dealer, who fortunately turned out to be both a native son and a brother Elk. He was willing to stand entirely responsible for their appearance if required.

Besides seeing to their freedom he made Rowena a present of a friendly little dog which he had found in his showrooms that morning and which Rowena promptly proceeded to call Constantine. Peter grumbled at the addition to their party but was overruled.

And so Rowena had a companion on the rumble seat from then on.

By the salesman's good offices they were enabled to return to the hotel without police escort or surveillance of any kind.

In the early morning Peter read to the girls the answer to his personal telegram.

"Such has been and is my intention," read the telegram. "I am probably the last man living entirely honorable in my dealings with women. Our engagement most certainly is not ended and if you interfere I shall sue. Plan to marry her instant of her arrival. In fact expect to meet here with license, ring and minister. Wire what train."

So at ten-ten Peter and Rowena stood side by side under the quaint tiled portico of the Santa Fe station and waved a fond—and not ungratified—farewell to little brown Bobby.

The misadventures of Bobby's return and their legal entanglements in Los Angeles had keyed them to a high nervous tension, but when they had left the limits of the city a sudden quiet restfulness descended upon them. Rowena drooped drowsily against his shoulder.

"Shall I put up the umbrella in the rumble seat?" Peter asked facetiously.

But Rowena pretended she was asleep.

By the time they reached the outskirts of San Diego, Peter as well as Rowena confessed to a complete exhaustion, mental as well as physical.

They pulled up at the U.S. Grant Hotel. There was no boy in sight and Peter, unwilling to waste a moment, himself carried their bags into the lobby and hurried over to the desk. He was surprised at being immediately accommodated with two single rooms.

Their good fortune followed them and they both had a real good night's rest.

Peter had all the bags stowed neatly away in the car the next morning, ready for their start for the East, when Rowena tripped out of the hotel, leading the freshly washed Constantine on a brand-new leash attached to a brand-new collar.

"Gosh, Rowena," ejaculated Peter, "what'll we do with the mutt? I forgot about him?"

"Do with Constantine!" she echoed. "Why, we'll buy him a nice silk cushion to ride on, and get him a fresh bone every day. And charge it all to Rackruff."

Peter did his best picture at Grand Canyon, one which brought him no small amount of praise and profit. It was the Rackruff and Rowena riding through the rainbow fringe, with Constantine's queer, quaint black and white head nodding appribation beside her.

Rowena was not having the best of luck with her work in those declining weeks of their tour. She kept a pencil and note-book constantly at hand, even teaching Constantine to carry them for her on command, but ideas were not coming to her with much frequency. For the first time in her life, Rowena did not feel like writing, did not want to be bothered, and it may as well be added, her writing was far below its usual standard.

They lapsed into comfortable silence. They did not quarrel so much when they were alone—there seemed less point to it. To be sur,e, when occasion required, they would wither each other with a scathing word, but they never went to the old lengths.

In Albuquerque, when Peter had registered and called for their mail he was handed half a dozen telegrams and two or three letters.

"Nothing for Miss Rostand," said the clerk.

"What!" ejaculated Rowena. "Nothing for me? Not anything? Why, Buddy always—he surely must have written. Oh, please look again! There must be at least one!"

The clerk obligingly ran through the mail again.

"Dear me," said Rowena thoughtfully. "How—extremely—odd!"

Alone in his own room, Peter took off his coat and settled down to his mail. A quick glance at the letters told him they were of no especial importance and he turned to the telegrams. The two that he opened first were from the Company, but the third started off on an odd note.

"Darling, I hate to ask you again," Peter read, his eyes starting with surprise. "Devil's own luck. Lost fifty bucks at craps. Got to have it this week or they will chuck me out. Rush it by wire. Wish I hadn't played." It was signed "Buddy."

To Peter it made no sense at all. He turned it over and scrutinized the address again. Ah! That explained it. It was addressed not to "Mr." but to "Mrs. Peter Blande."

His mind traveled back over the trip. Buddy—that was her brother—Ronald Rostand. Ready for his third year in college and taking summer courses to cut down the time and expense. Rowena had received a letter or telegram from him at every stop en route. He remembered her subsequent counting of bills and rush for a telegraph office—her complete financial stringency—the way she starved herself, eschewing all desserts—her thousand painful small economies.

Now Peter realized fully what it meant—this thing that he was going to do. Knew quite well that when Buddy wrote back in complaint of this unwarranted outside interference, Rowena's rage would be beyond bounds.

They had talked sometimes of the future when their motor tour was over, thought they would probably be good friends in later years when their business vicissitudes were separate and distinct, and no longer bound up by compulsion in each other's work and wish. But if Peter flung open insult at Buddy—"The sacred cow!" he sneered—all such hopes for the future were null and void. Well, Peter told himself, he didn't know that he cared. After all, he didn't get on so very well with Rowena. But she was a good sport—the best sport he had ever seen—and deserved a better break than Buddy was giving her.

Peter's grip on the pen made it a sword as he gave form to his scathing thoughts.

"Granting to begin with that it is none of my business," he wrote heavily, "it nevertheless affords me great pleasure to tell you that in my opinion you are an unspeakable cad. You may not know—of course you do not know, for Rowena is one Rostand who is a rousing good sport and would not throw up her privations to you—that in order to meet your insatiate demands for money, your sister, tired and exhausted as she is by hard work and long driving, has saved money by doing her own laundry in the bathtub at nights; has starved herself on soup and coffee and gone without a proper meal for days at a time.

"Better men than you have worked their way through college. For Rowena's sake, I myself am sending you the fifty bucks.

"It is of course quite unnecessary for me to explain that Rowena does not know that you wired for this money nor that I am sending it. Your telegram was handed me by mistake and I opened it under the impression it was for me."

And without an instant's hesitation he endorsed his sentiments with the signature that would one day be worth thousands—"Peter Blande."

Peter was pretty uncomfortable about the whole business. He was not used to any sort of double dealing and was not at all sure but at any moment officers of the law—or perhaps the telegraph company—would hale him away to jail to expiate his unwarranted manipulation of other people's affairs by telegraph.

At El Paso Rowena had two letters. She sat right down in the nearest chair to read them, and Peter stalked moodily from cigar stand to desk and back again, and watched her furtively.

Peter could stand it no longer.

"Buddy O.K.?" he inquired anxiously.

"He's entirely too O.K. I'm worried."

"You can't be too O.K.," protested Peter. "Nobody can.—What do you mean?"

"Why, here he's written me two whole letters, page after page, all about college and the boys and such nonsense, and never a word about money." She marched straight to the telegraph desk and Peter followed her guiltly. He had to know what she was going to do.

"But, Buddy, darling, don't you need some money?" she wrote.

"There was no bad news, I hope," said Peter, as they went up in the elevator. "Nobody bothering him—or anything like that."

"Why, no," said Rowena wonderingly. "Nobody ever bothers Buddy. He isn't that sort."

"How—nice," said Peter.

The boy who took them up to their rooms did a very unusual thing, although neither Rowena nor Peter noticed it at the time. Instead of unlocking the door at once, he knocked, and it was opened from within. They noticed that, of course, and framed in the open door was Bobby Lowell.

"Where in the world did you come from?"

"What are you doing here?"

Bobby was crying, but they were too amazed, too disconcerted, to offer either greeting or condolence.

"I've been waiting four days," said Bobby. "I nearly died of lonesomeness. You were due two days ago. I had a notion to kill myself."

Peter turned to the boy quite savagely. "Why didn't they tell us at the desk?"

"I told them not to," dimpled Bobby tearfully. "I wanted to surprise you. I told them to show you right up."

Rowena marched into the room, took off her hat and gloves and tossed them upon the bed. Then she got out her lip-stick and powder and concealed the stains of travel in a most efficient manner.

"All right," she said cheerfully. "Come on in, Peter, and don't stand gaping.—Constantine, shake hands with one of the Boston Lowells.—All right, Bobby, give us the low-down. Now, Carter Wellman—"

"It's all his fault," sobbed Bobby, ignoring Constantine's black and white paw. "You know that telegram he sent you, Peter? It was a lie. He didn't mean a word of it."

"Will you sue him, or shall I horsewhip him?"

"How do you know? You haven't had time to get to New York and quarrell with him this time," objected Rowena.

I had plenty of time in Albuquerque, and I called him up. I asked him what I should get for the wedding? He said 'What wedding?' I said, 'Our wedding. That you wired Peter Blande about.' Rowena —Peter—he went on something awful. He said if I thought less about clothes and more about my immortal soul I'd be better off. He said what did I mean by telling strangers—and low-principled characters like Peter at that—the private details of our love-affair. In fact, he said he wasn't going to marry me until New York had a new insane asylum where he could control me by the latest improved methods."

Rowena and Peter screamed with laughter.

"Rowena," said Peter, 'I take it all back. I won't punch him in the nose. He's a great old scout."

"What did you say, darling?" inquired Rowena.

"I said," announced Bobby with dignity, "that while perhaps he had never been in jail as Peter had, and had never toured the country under false pretenses and that sort of thing, Peter could teach him a whole lot about handling women."

Rowena rolled back on the bed helpless with laughter.

"What did he say to that?" asked Peter.

"Nothing. He hung up the receiver on me—and me paying for a tedephone call clear from Albuquerque!"

So Rowena retired with Constantine to her rumble seat and they continued swiftly east. Bobby no longer did all the talking. Peter was showing up as something of a conversationalist on his own account.

"You've made a great mistake, Bobby," he told her over and over, speaking in a slow and impressive voice. "I know men. Carter meant just what he said in that telegram, but he resented your taking up such a sacred subject by long-distance telephone. The telephone is such a sordid, mechanical, diabolical device. Naturally he would not wish to make plans for the tremendous romantic experience of his life by telephone at so much a minute. He wanted to have you in his arms."

Bobby was impressed—even a little frightened. "But he used to make love to me over the phone in New York," she said defensively.

"That was different. He was seeing you every day then and the calls were from house to house. It's not like shouting 'I love you' over three thousand miles of farm and factories. I don't blame Carter. I'm like that myself."

"But I didn't know what to wear—"

"That cut him to the quick," said Peter. "Men don't think about clothes in their emotional moments. And to know that instead of every pulse and every vein and every—er—corpuscle—singing aloud, 'I am going back to Carter!'-you were wondering what to wear.—Well, I'm just like Carter. It would wound me to the heart."

By the time they reached San Antonio, Bobby was completely convinced, entirely repentant and asking Peter's advice—he being "one of those men" and knowing how they were apt to feel about things.

"If I were you," said Peter, with the heavy air of one who weighted his words, "I should take the first fast train for New York. You can get a good train at Houston."

"I'll do it," declared Bobby. "I'll take the first train from Houston and I won't breathe a word to Carter. Then if I do change my mind along the road I can call him up somewhere."

So in Houston, Peter put her on the train and went straight to the conductor, pointed Bobby out to him, and gave him the location of her berth.

"She's not very well," he explained in a fatherly manner. 'Not really bad, you understand, but has queer little aberrations once in a while. Gets odd notions about traveling and wants to get off the train. Cooks up any sort of wild excuse for getting off—wants to send a telegram—wants to call up New York—no end to the silly nonsense she can trump up. Now I want you to see that she goes straight through to New York. Her doctor will meet her at the station and I'm depending on you to see that she gets safely into his hands. She'll be no trouble at all, one of the sweetest girls that ever lived, but just will get that odd notion about travel."

Peter gave the conductor ten dollars, who said he could safely promise that she would reach her doctor without misadventure.

"You'll know him all right," said Pe--jawed himself, promised to see to it. Peter passed on the same word, and a five-dollar bill, to the porter of her pullman, and then sent a telegram to Carter announcing the exact moment of her arrival and advising him to get in touch with the conductor of the train. Then he hurriedly rejoined the girls.

"Good-by, darling," said Rowena cheerfully. "See you in New Orleans." "Oh, no, you won't," said Bobby. "You won't see me again till you get back to New York."

At the hotel in Houston they found another fat letter for Rowena and a telegram which she opened nervously. But it was only Buddy's answer to her inquiry from El Paso.

"No," it stated briefly. "If I needed money, wouldn't I ask for it?

And hard up as she was, Rowena gave herself the satisfaction of wiring back the one word,

"Yes."

There was also a telegraphic money transfer for Peter, to the amount of fifty dollars, and with it a short cold message.

"You go to hell."

It was from Ronald Rostand.

Rowena was wrong about it. Buddy needed money a great many times after that but never asked for it again. He accepted a job in a haberdashery where he worked two hours every afternoon and all day Saturday. Rowena didn't like that because it kept him away from ball games, but all Buddy said to her objections was, "I've seen a ball game."

Rowena was quite uneasy about it all.

Peter wanted to write him again, tried many times to put his friendly feelings into phrases, to say cheerio and tell him he was quite the stuff. He would even have apologized for his meddling. But somehow the kindly thoughts would not be written down, for he had not Rowena's facility with words and it was only in the pressure of deep emotion that Peter turned to the pen. And so, months later, when the two met for the first time, there had been no interchange of opinions between them after Buddy's lucid wire. But when Rowena, with a hand of each in one of hers, said brightly:

"Oh, Péter, this is Buddy!" they shook hands heartily and Peter said, "Well, heello!"

"Hello, hello," said Buddy.

And they both laughed a little and each knew exactly what the other had in mind.

They had looked forward to New Orleans as one of the high spots of the entire tour. They had heard enthusiastic friends rave over its quaint charm, had seen exquisite etchings of its thousand odd little crooks and corners, had sampled its time-honored recipes. Peter had his heart set on doing something really worth while in New Orleans—two really worth-while things-one for Rackruff Motors, Inc., and one for Peter Blande and his future.

It was his idea to pick out the most picturesque and typical corner, with just a small portion of the roadster showing, and with Rowena peering out mistily into a shadowy street—a new Rowena, shimmery and shadowy herself behind a Spanish veil. Rowena, on the other hand, thought it would strike a more telling note to have the quaint old shop and the quaint old street with a strictly modern Rackruff and a strictly modern Rowena standing out in bold relief.

Rowena and Peter never had the same idea about pictures, and Rowena wouldn't admit for a minute that Peter was always right. Certainly, whether right or wrong, he would have his own way when it came to pictures.

It was in vain that Rowena argued she wasn't the type to do a native daughter peeping out—she was strictly a New Yorker, looking fascinatedly in.

Letters To The Editor

FROM J.C. EDWARDS

Editor of Chilton County News:

Heb. 13:16 says; The Lord is my helper and I shall not fear what man shall do unto me.

Twenty-four years ago some one commenting on the above text said, To have the proper course in life, to be able to meet the trials and difficulties of life as they came to us, and to meet them in the proper spirit which the Lord directs in the spirit of rejoicing in tribulation and counting such experiences all joy it is necessary that all fear of man which brings a snare shall be removed.

And it is our Lord's direction that we shall fear Jehovah and not fear our mortal fellows. The righteous are bold as a lion as well as gentle as a dove and meek as a lamb. This peculiar combination should be found in every christain, and we doubt if it will be found elsewhere.

In my last letter to you I said that the Bible spoke of three worlds, three glories and a third heaven. It also speaks of three temptations, three lust, three harvests, a broad way that leadeth to destruction, a narrow path or way that leadeth unto life(and few that find it) also a highway shall be there—Isa. 35 chapt. The fourth verse says, Say to them that are of a fearful heart; Be strong, fear not, behold your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense he will come and save you.

God has a due time for his purposes to be made known. Jesus did not come one minute to soon or one to late.

And Jesus said, No man can come to me except the Father which hath sent me, draw him and I will raise him up at the last day.—John 6:44. Later Jesus said, Now is the judgement of this world, now shall the prince of this world be cast out and I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me.—John 12:31-32.

King David said, Wait on the Lord, be of good courage and he shall strengthen thine heart. Wait I say on the Lord.—Ps. 27:14. Time is an important element in all God's plans. We are not to be disappointed when the test of endurance is applied while the blessings we crave tarry long. God took time to frame the world and to fit it for human habitation, time to give the world its necessary experience with evil, time to prepare for the advent of Christ as the world's redeemer, time for the preparation of the church to share in his glorious reign and time must be allowed for the shaping and adjusting of the individual affairs of his people. God has not forgotten when the answer to our prayers seem to tarry long. He who heeds the sparrows fall and numbers the very hairs of our heads is not indifferent to the faintest call or the smallest necessity of his humblest child.

It is now nearly 1900 years since Jesus said. Pray, let thy kingdom come thy will be done, on earth as in heaven. The gospel of the kingdom must be preached to all the world for a witness before that prayer is answered that will be the final end of Satan's ruling the world. So we read; The Seventh Angel sounded and there were great voices in heaven saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ and He shall reign for ever and ever.—Rev. 11:15. We should glory in understanding and knowing the Lord.—Jer. 9:24.

FROM DISGUSTUS JACKSON

—o—

Dear Mr. Editor:

Will you again give me a small space in your paper to say just a few words to the man who has been flinging his burlesques at me from the editorial page of The Union-Banner, under the caption of "The Man in the Moon, Looks Over All, Overlooks None." If this is not a wiseacre I have never seen one.

First, I want to say that I wrote articles to The Banner before The Union was added to The Banner, more than thirty years ago, and have tried to back them up with truth and honesty.

Mr. Man in the Moon, if you will take a single article from among the hundreds that I have written through the columns of The Union-Banner for the past thirty years and show wherein that one of them contains such bunt that it makes you call me a disgruntled wiseacre, two by four littleness, an all wise one who couldn't make a mistake even if he tried. We will examine the article that you might pick out in the way of a discussion, and if you can prove to the readers of The Union-Banner that I deserve such burlesqueing as you have given me I will never attempt to write another article for The Union-Banner.

And should you fail to prove that any of my articles contained bunt that justified your burlesqueing, then will you not acklowledge that your conduct has been such that your are fooled in your position. Instead of being in the moon you are holding your position just below the surface of the earth, and that you are too small to make a two by four.

I do not believe in criticizing any official if he will keep himself clear. But if his service is not in line with truth and honesty I shall continue to denounce any policy that favors the few and oppresses the many.

I am no candidate, and will not be. My advice to those who will be candidates is: Not to accept a nomination from timber that is so small it would not make a two by four.

I appreciate the courtesy that has been shown me by the editor of The Union-Banner and its readers for the past thirty years. One good subscriber and writer for The Union-Banner, not long ago, accused me of being, both a Statesman and Humanitarian. I do not accept the first charge, but do accept the latter.

My main object is to do all I can for humanity, regardless of what kind of persecution I come in contact with.

Respectfully,
DISGUSTUS JACKSON,
Above name given by a subscriber.

PROTESTS PARDON

—o—

Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.,
Dear Editor:

Will you grant me the favor of a small space in your paper to protest against the pardon of Otto Burnett? I understand that a pardon has been recommended by an official in Montgomery.

Otto Burnett, on the night after the election in November, 1928, killed my brother, Lee Traywick. And soon after the killing Burnett was granted a preliminary hearing, and the evidence clearly showed that the murder was premeditated, and cold blooded. And Burnett's attorney offered no defense of evidence, and Burnett was ordered to jail without bail.

Later Burnett's attorney, Mr. Omar Reynolds, got a rehearing before his father, L. H. Reynolds. And again he had no rebuttal evidence; and Burnett was released on a twenty-five hundred dollar bond.

And at the following term of the circuit court the case was handled in a way that the jury was not given the evidence in the case.

The solicitor told me that Burnett said he was willing to take four years in the penitentiary without pardon.

With the above facts I protest the pardon of Otto Burnett. And think every other law-abiding citizen who knows the facts in the case will do the same.

Yours truly,
ENOCH TRAYWICK.

We Do Not Want A War

We do not want another war. We do not know anybody, except perhaps a few reckless boys and some of the people who sell things to fight with, who wants the United States to go to war again. Yet we hear people on the street, talking about the ruckus over in China, speak as if they thought it would bring back our national prosperity quickly if this country took a hand in the fracas.

In the first place, it's none of our business, so far. We have read or heard nothing about the Japan-China affair which remotely suggests the possibility that our country has or is likely to have any grievance against either of the fighting nations sufficient to justify us in declaring war. War is a more serious business than unthinking youth regards it. Our government's duty in the case begins and ends with protecting the lives and interests of Americans in China and Japan, and in urging the combatants, under the terms of treaties with them to which we are a party, to submit their differences to impartial arbitrators. So far as we can see, the authorities at Washington are keeping their heads cool and doing all that American interests require them to do.

War does not bring prosperity, but the opposite. Our grandchildren won't finish paying for the last war we were in, for pretty nearly a hundred years to come. All our present troubles arise from that war. We would be the last to hold back if any foreign power threatened our national interests, tried to take away from us anything which we have got. We are not pacifists. But we think that all the talk about America getting into this little scrap between two yellow races is irresponsible nonsense.

o-o-o-o

Put The Money In The Bank

We are hopeful that the movement sponsored by President Hoover, headed by Col. Frank Knox and participated in by 42 great national organizations, looking toward persuading people to take their money out of hiding and put it bark to work, will ascomplish that result. Nobody can compel anybody to do anything with his money which he does not want to do—except to pay taxes—but it seems to us that an intelligent campaign of education may make a great many people realize how foolish they are and how much harm it is doing to the country, to hold their money in safe-deposits or tucked away under the barn floor.

Money is of no value unless it is working. Invested in anything which can earn money it becomes the basis of credit to several times its actual value. The fifteen hundred million dollars which, some of those at the White House conference stated is being hoarded in America today, has caused a reduction in credits available to business of probably ten times as much. If it were all to be put back into the banks the depression would be over almost instantly.

Many people are still afraid of the banks. It is the belief of those who are behind this anti-hoarding movement that there is no longer any such cause for that fear, with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation functioning. And there is legislation pending which will give the banking situation even further stability. But if anyone still is afraid to trust his or her surplus cash to the banks, why not lend it to the United States Government? Uncle Sam will continue to pay interest on Federal bonds for a long time to come. If he doesn't, then we're all sunk and none of our money will be worth anything to speak of. And there are the Postal Savings Banks, available to everybody for deposits of the smallest amounts, which can always be drawn out immediately if needed and which will earn interest until withdrawn.

Money put to use in those ways is worth something; money held out of use is worth nothing. And the more it is held out of use, the more worthless it all becomes.

A Farmer's Prayer

Following is a clipping from "The Three Mortgage Lifters," which we believe will appeal to you farmers. It should anyway, and should make you feel proud that you are a farmer:

A Farmer's Prayer

"I am thankful that I own no stocks which I had bought at peak prices. I am grateful for guidance that kept me out of speculative markets. It is good not to have to read the stock market quotations each morning before prayer in order to find out how much poorer I am than I was the day before.

"I am glad that I am not a laboring man with a job or in danger of losing the one I might have. I wear no man's collar to the office, wondering whether I am to remain until night. I surely am fortunate that I am not a coal operator nor steel manufacturer, nor any other official hunting trade where there is no trade.

'Give me my pigs and chickens and cows, my health and my strength and my freedom and my faith. I am not making any money, but I am not losing so much that I face disaster and hunger. I still have a place to sleep and three square meals a day.

"Once I looked with envy upon my fellow citizens. I thought they lived in luxury and peace. This morning they need comfort and divine grace to face their plight."

I am grateful for the small blessings and the regular blessings that fall upon me and mine, and my land. I hope my sins, my hypocrisy and my shortcomings will be overlooked, and believe me, I am content that I am not as many others are."

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"The man who has not anything to boast of except his illustrous ancestors is like a potato—the only good belonging to him is underground."
—Sir Thomas Overbury.

And so I left off last week on tour of Clanton, down at the depot, you known, down there where the trains stop, and don't stop. Now we turn around and go back up the other side of the street, while on your left you have Culver & Jones, the busy market and grocery store and a member of the Independent Grocers Alliance, whose ads you see in this newspaper real often. In this store you will find foremost Mack Culver. He has been there so long until the place wouldn't look right without him. Associated with him is Bud Jones, another man worth knowing. Then there is Ira Crowe. He is the deluxe style of clerks and pleasing in every way, and of course there are others there, one Mr. Askins.

Next you see the Alabama Harness & Shoe Shop where Jesse Teel holds forth, and with his ever active pleasing and interesting conversation, he is busy fixing shoes, making harness, repairing auto tops, or something. I'm not acquainted very well with Jesse's helpers.

* * *

M. B. Arant, known to his intimate friends as Bill, is the man you see busy over the desk in the next building. He's the watch and clock doctor of that end of town, and has been located there for sometime, lifting faces on clocks and watches, straightening their hands and putting the mechanicism in good condition. And too, in the same building you will find a lot of good looking shoes, all arrayed on stands on display. This is the stock and show room of L. Crutcher Ross, one of the salesmen for a well known shoe manufacturer, and he lives here too, has a nice family and a good business.

Now, here we are at the store of Tom Kemp. Ever hear that name before? Sure you have, because Tom Kemp is known far and wide. One doesn't hear much from Tom, nor about him, but he's one of the best merchants in town. Does a general merchandise business with a good stock of goods. Yes, Tom Kemp is a good merchant. He has with him his son, of well-groomed appearance and bears the nickname of "Dick." Really his name is Richard, but don't many folks know that. Kind of a quiet chap, goes about his business and the ladies find him a treat to the eyes. Then Miss Maggie Rollins, is there. She does hemstitching and sewing, adding to the attractiveness of the store.

Now, around to the extreme left is the Wade Ice Company, where Jim Wade holds forth, with his father, John Q. Wade. They have been here for a long time. Jim was raised in Clanton, now he is a big ice and coal man, following the business chosen by his father and making a success. They also operate ice plants in other places. And there are several connected with this concern as ice deliverers, and other helpers.

I was about to pass up the second story of the Tom Kemp building. Up there will be found Dr. E. G. Hyman, dentist. Dr. Hyman is well known about these parts too, and has been here for several years.

* * *

Now we stop for a moment to look into the meat market and grocery store known as Broadhead's. In there we see J. Durwood Broadhead, the head knocker, as it were. Associated with him is his brother, Grady D. Broadhead, who is also a member of the city council. Both are splendid fellows and have a nice place of business. Then we also see a dark-haired young fellow in there. He is Arthur Broadhead, son of J. D., and occupies a place of responsibility in the business. Of course you will see the delivery boys around now and then.

Next stop is the office of the Alabama Power Company. Here we find T. Leonard Williams. That man has been monkeying with electricity ever since I've known him, and when I think of him, I just naturally think of electricity. Mr. Williams is the local manager of the power company, and is a most obliging fellow. With him in the office is his charming daughter, Miss Gladys Williams. She also knows her volts, kilowatts and things, and you can depend on being greeted with a smile from her when you enter that office, which is a neat, well kept place. And then there are the other members of the power company force, who help Mr. Williams keep the service of the company up to its high standard at all times.

Now we come to the Southern Seed & Plant Company, owned and operated by Evan Parrish, and Mrs. Parrish. There you see a display of nice fruits, and a large assortment of seeds of all kinds. It is truly a seed store, and a fellow wouldn't have much trouble finding the kind of seeds he was looking for. Mr. Parrish just moved to this new place not so long ago, and now has a better place to serve his customers.

Another Broadhead's Store. This time the firm of J. R. Broadhead & Son, composed of J. R. Broadhead and Mack G. Broadhead, and an old reliable dry goods business in Clanton. They were in business across the street for a number of years, and just recently moved. Now they have a newer building and are no doubt better situated. Mr. J. R. Broadhead has been a merchant in Clanton since I was knee high to a grasshopper or something, and Mack has been there too. They are really dry goods merchants, and their names are known throughout the county for their fair dealing.

Here we are for another pause while we look into one of the oldest firms in Clanton, on the corner. None other than The Fair Store, with W. H. Sartor at the helm, steering the business on. There isn't much use in telling about Mr. Sartor, he is known all over this neck o' the woods, as he has been one of the reliable merchants of Clanton for a long, long time. This store carries a full line of ladies and children's ready-to-wear and some not ready to wear. Associated with Mr. Sartor and as competent salesladies are Miss Ruth Hand and Miss Alma Gentry, both attractive and pleasant young ladies to deal with. Then there is Miss Callie Watts, who occupies a space in the building with a hat and dress shoppe. However, it is known that Miss Callie is to move to larger quarters where she will have more room in which to display her line of dresses and hats. You will see an announcement of this in the paper a little later on.

Well, we've covered another block in the business district of Clanton this wee. We'll be on our way again next week for another short tour.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was pastor in a certain Alabama town where a railroad ran through the city. That railroad divided the folks as completely as if they had been living in two different sections of the State. To be on the other side of the railroad carried with it a stigma that was not excusable. Each side had its own churches and social contacts. The railroad divided so thoroughly that neighbors lived in exclusion of each other. That looked strange and mean to one who had just moved into the city. We are letting other things than railroads divide us in every section of the State. A little "Blue Blood," will draw a line between people. The family with prided "Aristocracy," will live within a stone's throw of a fine family of people, and yet in contacts, be as wide apart as the universe. A little "Social culture" will run a line between neighbors and friends, and shove them apart. A few dollars will do the same. The man of wealth will hold himself aloof from the working man. Can you tell me why we have these dividing lines? They look selfish and mean. There is but one aristocracy in the land, there is but one kind of real culture, there is but one real wealth and that is character. If you have character, you have cause for the running of a line between you and the rest of the world. The only line that should divide the races is the line of right and wrong.

I have attended many funerals in my life and I have stood before many open caskets. I have made this observation—a corpse receives unstinted praise. I never remember to have heard anyone talk mean about the dead man in the casket. When a person dies, the usual custom is to say something nice, or say nothing. When a man is alive we feel disposed to say all kinds of things about him, but when he is dead, we do not offer our criticisms. Let us remember that when we meet the hard criticisms of life. If people never say ugly things about you, if they never criticise anything that you do, it is pretty good evidence that you are dead. The person in the community, the person in the church, who is out doing something is sure to meet with all kinds of criticisms. When people rise up and talk back to you, when they shake their fist in your face, you are not dead and they know it. That namby-pamby kind of a fellow who never creates a stir, and never sets tongues to wagging, is dead and he does not know it. As for me, I had rather be criticised for doing something, than to have no criticisms because I am doing nothing. When you crawl into a casket, folks are not going to criticise you then, whether you be dead or alive.

I was standing near a certain place of business when two small boys came out of the door. One of the little fellows reached into his pants pocket and brought out a half smoked cigarette. He placed it between his lips, and then spoke like "A son of thunder" to his other barefooted pal, "Gim-e a light." The other boy reached into his pocket and brought forth a match, and soon that boy of not over seven, was puffing like a freight engine. That was a sight for a civilized country. I wish that every young woman in the State of Alabama could have seen that disgusting picture. I wish that every mother could have witnessed what I saw. It does not take a prophet, or the son of a prophet, to tell the outcome of those two boys if they continue as they have started. It will not be long before they will be before the courts of our country. When a boy of seven starts out with a cigarette between his lips, he can look at himself, as the monkey looked at his tail while he sat in the path of a grass mower, and say, "It won't be long now."

Not many days ago and not very far from your home, there lived a father, with his wife and children. On Saturday night that father had money enough to buy a little rum, and he bought it. He proceeded to fire up his insides with that awful poison. In a short time he was behind the bars in our "Beautiful jail." The next morning the wife awoke and no husband at home. She went to the kitchen and there was no flour for breakfast. She found her way to a neighbor's home, and had to borrow a little bread for her hungry children. Can you tell me what should be done with a man who will treat his family and himself that way? I hardly know what to do with a man like that, but I do know what should be done with men who will make and sell the stuff that turns a man into a demon.

I visited the parsonage in Prattville, and the pastor had just completed the task of felling two large oaks that stood in front of his door. He carried me out to show me how dangerous were those two trees. Each one had decayed until there was nothing remaining but a little sap and bark to keep them from falling. If a storm had come that way, the two big oaks would have tumbled, and they would have crushed the parsonage. On the outside they looked sound and safe, but on the inside they were in decay. A like condition is to be found among men and women who stand about our homes. Secret sins, unholy ambitions, low ideals, have set up a decay in the heart. Often they look beautiful and trustworthy, but it is because we can not see the heart. Ill fares the community and the home, where the hearts of parents are in decay.

The Way of Life
By BRUCE BARTON

Morality

In Mary Roberts Rinehart's autobiography, "My Story," occures this reference to petticoats:

"They had to be made, two or three, very full . . . and generally a short flannel one to the knees. . . .

"Not long ago a young girl of my acquaintance was going through an old trunk of her mother's and came across a brief bit of embroidered flannel.

" 'What on earth is this?' she demanded.

" 'That? That was my flannel petticoat for my wedding.'

"Whereupon the girl burst into shrieks of delighted laughter. I smiled when I heard the story," says Mrs. Rinehart. "I too have somewhere just such a garment. I scalloped and embroidered it myself for my wedding, and I should have felt a shameless woman without it."

Julia Ward Howe, when a little girl, grew weary from a long ride in the family coach, and allowed her knees to drop apart childwise. Instantly her father reproved her:

"My daughter, if you cannot sit like a lady we will stop at the next tailors and have you measured for a pair of pantaloons."

The characteristics which distinguish a "lady" and comprise her moral code have differed widely in different generations.

I remember the first girl I ever saw who had cut off her hair. She worked in my office. The president of the company called me on the carpet and wanted me to fire the young lady, which I declined to do. To his way of thinking, bobbed hair was a sure sign of an abandoned woman.

I recall the first lady whom I ever saw lighting a cigarette. All of us who witnessed the performance were sure that she was no better than she ought to be.

Only recently I ran across an old copy of the Book of Rules issued by a coeducational college a quarter of a century ago. It consisted of thirty pages of "Thou shalt nots" and, having prohibited almost everything, it wound up with this blanket injunction:

"In addition to the foregoing rules, students are expected to refrain from card playing, dancing and theatre-attendance, and to observe the other common rules of morality."

The Old Testament contains many precepts, but in the book of Micah there is one verse which is a summary of them all. It reads:

"He hath showed thee. O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

This is the basis of all morality. This is fundamental and unchanging.

But whether hair or petticoats are long or short is nothing to worry about.

THE LURE OF THE SEA

In years gone by, millions of well-to-do Americans lived and died without even a glimpse of the blue sea. much less a cruise upon its waters. But since the World War our people have become as someone has said, "water-travel conscious."

And these days of careful spending have caused folks to seek the delights of sea travel nearer home. Pretentious European and Oriental trips have given way to more economical water journeys over a route of romance that may lead them from the home town to New York or San Francisco, thence by steamer through the Panama Canal, touching at seven or more Spanish-American countries and returning via our own national parks, all in about twenty-four days.

Such is the alluring vista presented by a steamship company—the Grace Line-Panama Mail—which despite the depression is rushing to completion four new "Santa" type ocean liners, designed especially for tropical travel and declared to be seasick proof. With deck swimming pools. al fresco dining saloons, sports decks and every safety device, it is said that these new ships will permit maximum enjoyment at minimum cost on their All-American voyages.

The enterprise of the Grace Line in providing these fine ships and attractive cruises will doubtless be rewarded, as the lure of the sea is becoming ever stronger for vacationists. The facilities offered will also tend to keep more American dollars in America, an excellent thing to do under present conditions.

Mrs. J. E. Parrish, who lives at Clayton, Ala., has developed a unique method for chilling and curing meat on the farm. The meat is chilled by ice packed in and old drum, the meat being placed around the drum. The method developed by Mrs. Parrish has proven cheap, simple, and satisfactory, said County Agent F. C. Clapp.

Nine farmers of Lawrence County are keeping farm accounts as a demonstration, and also to ascertain what they are doing as farmers. J. E. Carter, county agent, is directing the work. The information gained will be given to other farmers next year.

Several leading farmers of Lee County will increase their hog production this year on the recommendation of C. H. Bedingfield, county agent. They are starting with 1 to 4 brood sows each. They are making permanent pastures as the foundation unit of cheap and successful feeding of hogs and also other livestock.

Fletcher N. Farrington, county agent, has organized nineteen 4-H clubs for Pike County boys with a total of 558 members. Each club met last month and Mr. Farrington expects to hold monthly meetings with them during February and March. They are enthusiastic about the work and each boy is expected to have a good report next fall.

Isabella Senior I Class

The Senior I Class of Isabella High School has started the second semester off fine. Some are taking more subjects and some have dropped one or two subjects, but everyone is doing good work. Mr. Will T. Martin, our newly elected president, is making us a fine president.

The Senior I Home Economics girls entertained the boys at a class Valentine party, Friday, February 12, third period. We played "Crooked grass that grew in a crooked crabapple," "Pinning the arrow on the heart," etc. After we were through playing we were served with sandwiches that were made by the home economics girls, and later served with candy. The ones who enjoyed the party were Mr. Thomas, the agriculture teacher, Will L. Martin, Lucell Edwards, Parnell Ratcliff, Willie Mae Lenoir, Joe Lawley, Meldie Sansom, Plato Chambers, Claudell Ratcliff, Sidney Griffin, Ruth Martin, Wilson Atchison, Jewel Pierce, Wilbert Conaway, Mittie Fae Jones, Braxton Lecroy, Bill Jones.

Let's all work together and hope to do as good or better in the future than we have in the past.

Junior's Column
By Miriam

A few years less than two hundred years ago George Washington was a boy your age. Boys and girls of all times have similar inclinations. You like lively games and adventurous experiences. You have an ambition to do your best in work and play. You may be a winner, but if you are not a winner you are a good sport with a "try-again" determination. We are not surprised that George Washington was just such an ordinary full-of-life boy. He spent his boyhood years in hunting, fishing, riding horseback, playing with his sisters, brothers and other boys roaming over his father's farm, doing the work his parents had for him to do and studying. It is said that he excelled his playmates in studies and in running, jumping and wrestling. This interesting story of his skill in wrestling comes down to us:

"Into George's group of playmates there came a new boy who was a great wrestler. This new boy challenged one boy after another to wrestle with him until he had succeeded in throwing every boy except George. The other boys were counting on George. To the astonishment of the new playfellow, and the satisfaction of the other boys, he soon found himself thrown and George Washington standing over him—winner."

George's father did not have a great many books, but the ones he had were good one. They were well chosen and well worth reading. Young George found some of them hard to understand, as you probably would, but his father gladly explained them to him. Mr. and Mrs. Washington always carried their children to churches Sunday. When George grew up, going to church was a reverent and regular custom with him. Company (he invited the company to go with him) and bad roads did not keep him from church, though the nearest church was seven miles, and after the war the nearest was ten miles from Mount Vernon.

When eGorge was only eleven years old his father died. He was fortunate in having a good mother (as history describes her, religious, firm in character, stern, but kind.") left to love him and teach him. Though not knowing the high and important place in life her boy was to occupy, Mrs. Washington was trying to give him the training that every boy and girl needs. As she taught, he sat with his chin cupped in his hands drinking in her words with his ears and eyes. He wrote out little prayers of his own. There is one yet existing in his original hand. I am reverently giving you one sentence from this prayer, thinking how much influence it had on his life, and how much influence a similar prayer from our hearts would have on your life and mine: "O Eternal and everlasting God—Direct my thoughts, words and work; teach me how to live in Thy fear, labor in Thy service and ever to run in the way of Thy commandments."

George had a half-brother, Lawrence Washington, several years older than he. Lawrence was a British midshipman. When George was fourteen he wanted to go to sea also, but because of his mother's anxiety for him, he gave up that plan. He went to school two years longer. One of his teachers during this time was a Mr. Williams, who taught him surveying. At the age of sixteen years he went to Mount Vernon to visit his brother, Lawrence. There he met Lord Fairfax who had a great tract of land that he wanted surveyed. He engaged George Washington to survey the land for him.

For several years, with the surveying and other errands into the wilderness inhabited by the Indians, Washington was among the Indians a great deal. He learned their languages and customs, knowledge that aided him greatly when, later, he had to fight them.

I have wondered who would have been "The Father of our Country" if Washington had gone to sea instead of the wilderness. Then I remember that God looks ahead and guides our destiny. If we prepare our minds and accept every opportunity for service God can use us somewhere. A few in great places like Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson filled, but all in places where we are able to serve best.

Dear Boys and Girls:

If any of you have the good fortune during the coming months to visit Mount Vernon, the churches of Pohick and Alexandria and any of the other places made famous by association with George Washington, please write to the Junior's Column and tell us what you saw.

MIRIAM.

Activities of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers

At the meeting of the association held on last Saturday, a general crop program was taken up and discussed.

Mr. Hayden, agricultural agent of the L & N R. R. spoke on the various crop commodities, and what to expect from them this year. His talk, as well as answers to questions given to him, was very interesting and instructive.

The Association is planning a large strawberry movement, some dewberry shipments, also Irish potatoes in carlots.

On other smaller crops, they will endeavor in so far as they can find market for the growers, handle this on less than car-load basis with near markets.

The association urges an increased acreage in dewberries, and also the starting of asparagus growing in this section.

Members are asked to keep in close touch with the office, which is open daily, to serve them, and get information on our work.

Crates have been ordered, and expect to start unloading, beginning Monday of next week.

If you are not a member, come in and see us anyway, and see if we cannot serve you in some way.

On Saturday night at the Dining Hall the Literary Society of Thorsby Institute had a very pleasant Valentine Party. The hall was prettily decorated in red and white carrying out the Valentine scheme. Each one was presented with a red or white heart as he or she entered the Dining Hall. Each one's name was written on the heart. The hearts were exchanged and as the names on the hearts were called people exchanged places. The one who moved was called by the name of the one whose heart he had; so it was quite amusing to see the various people who came forward under a different name. Various races were entered into in the idea of a tournament and points were given the winning side in each contested game. The red hearts won. At the end Mrs. Ruth Sutlive was chosen as Queen of the Tournament and Carmel Snow as King.

A program followed of a short article on the origin of Saint Valentine's Day read by Ruth Foss. Kathleen Langston read a most interesting Valentine story. After the program refreshments were served consisting of cocoa, wafers, dainty heart-shaped cookies and heart-shaped candy mottoes. The refreshments were much enjoyed. Mrs. K. A. Ekblad kindly contributed the cookies which was very generous of her. They were much appreciated.

The evening closed with the Alma Mater.

At chapel Thursday an interesting Bird program celebrating Bird Day, was given under the direction of Mrs. Rascoe Maddox.

On Friday, Lincoln's birthday, Miss Marian Fairbank told in her most interesting way a Lincoln story which very few if any had heard before.

Next Saturday night the Annual Declamatory Contest will take place at Thorsby Institute. Four boys nd four girls will take part. The Glee Club will sing two numbers. Everyone is invited. Admission is fifteen cents for all not pupils of the Institute or Public school. Ten cents is the admission for pupils.

A new tooth is growing in the upper jaw of Mrs. Catherine Dinoon, aged 92, of Galway, Ireland.

FARMERS AND DEALERS HAVING SEED TESTED

Farmers and seed dealers of Alabama are this year having over 3 times as many farm seed tested for purity and germination as were tested last year, reports L. N. Allen, seed analyst for the department of agriculture.

During the past five months Mr. Allen has tested 595 samples free for farmers and dealers.

Watts Hat & Dress Shoppe Announces Its Removal To New Home and Larger Quarters

Clanton's well known and popular ladies wearing apparel shoppe, the Watts Hat Shoppe, announces this week its removal from the Fair Store building on main street to the Hayes Building, on Seventh avenue, which is the Birmingham - Montgomery highway, and located only a few doors north of DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe.

This shop, owned and operated by Miss Callie Watts, will now be in a better position to display its line of dresses and hats, giving to its customers the advantage of having a real ladies shop, where they may select their purchases and with new and modern fitting rooms, have no trouble in getting what they wish in that line.

MISS CALLIE WATTS

In going into the new home, Miss Callie Watts states that she is extending a most cordial invitation to the people to visit her in the new location. She is one of the best known operators of a ladies shop in this section of the state and really needs no introduction to the ladies who seek the latest in styles, colors, etc., in their hats and dresses.

The removing of this place of business from The Fair Store was found necessary in order to take care of the new lines to be shown, and to give a better display. The building has been remodeled inside, with two large display windows in front, and with modern conveniences for the comfort of customers. The formal announcement of the Watts Hat Shoppe appears elsewhere in this issue of the News.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

The sailor sets his sails to suit the wind. The sails of the ship are made to assume an attitude toward the wind so that the ship will go where the captain would have it. Set your mental attitude next Sunday so that it will carry you to God's house. You will follow your mental attitude, and that is why we urge you to set that attitude toward the church.

Considering the weather last Sunday our attendance was good. We are encouraged to hope for better things. Help us with your presence next Sunday. Be in Sunday school at 9:45 and at preaching at 11 A. M. Night service at seven o'clock.

At our church we are laboring to lift. Come and give us your strength.

Marbury F.F.A. News

The Marbury chapter of F. F. A. met last Wednesday night at 7 p.m. The president called the chapter to order and a very interesting program on the subject of "Poultry Enterprises," was rendered. The members on the program were Arnold Stewart, who made a report about, "Uncle Sam Counts His Chickens." Henry Clackley, who made a very interesting talk on "The 1931 Turkey Crop." Mack Dennis, who talked on "Marketing the Christmas Turkey." And Ralph Culver, who gave "The Outlook for Poultry in 1932." The program was well presented and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The business discussed at this meeting was plans for installing a radio in our agriculture class room for the purpose of listening to the weekly F. F. A. program that is broadcast from Chicago. A committee was appointed to install the radio, which was given by our agriculture teacher.

There being no further business we adjourned.

Chilton Co. Pastures

By C. E. Stapp, County Agent

Again I wish to call your attention to the fact that more Chilton County farmers should improve their pastures. Now is a good time to get the pasture cleaned off and grass seed sown.

Mr. H. S. Shaw of Clanton is doing some splendid work on his pasture. He is sowing 100 pounds of Dallis grass, 200 pounds of carpet grass and 200 pounds of lespedeza.

A few acres of good branch land cleaned up and sown to above mixture of grasses equals many acres of rough hill land for pasture.

Don't forget that Tiffin-Klinner are giving absolutely free one beautiful 32-piece set of dishes, one 26-piece set of guaranteed silverware, and 1 7-piece luncheon set of imported linen. All three sets, mind you—with each Sellers kitchen cabinet purchased during their 8-day Sale of Sellers Kitchen Cabinets—Saturday is the last day.

The Woman's Missionary Society met with Mrs. J. F. King Monday afternoon. The program in Royal Service was carried out. The subject, Christianity—The Bulwark of Our Nation, was discussed. Many interesting and helpful facts of Home Missions were brought out by those taking part on the program. The members present were Mesdames Hattie Dickinson, A. S. Bentley, P. L. Donahoo, R. A. Hicks, R. E. Upton, W. A. Gandy, W. C. Wilson, J. C. Hughes, E. H. Downs, and the hostess, Mrs. J. F. King. After the program a social half hour was enjoyed during which hot chocolate and angel food cake were served as refreshments.

Jemison F.F.A. News

Our regular F. F. A. meeting was called to order by Mr. Maurice Hodgens, our president. The roll was called by the secretary, Herbert Connaway. We had as our visitors Mr. Hernie Hodgens and Mr. "Bob" Reynolds.

The boys of this chapter have had a well organized program each time. This week Mr. Wilson Clements was in charge of a program. Those who participated in the exercises were Mr. Jesse Splawn, by a speech on the benefits that the F. F. A. had done this school year. Mr. Charles E. Durbin, with a speech on his project of a small apple orchard. L. Lance Franklin gave a speech on how, what for, and when to grow dewberries. Mr. Herbert Connaway gave us the latest jokes.

Four new members have been added to our roll. They are John S. Busby, Cecil Ellison, John Lowery and Obie Freeman. A meeting will be called for the purpose of making them full members.

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of O. L. Ray Tuesday, February 9, and took him to his home beyond, of rest and peace. He was sick only a week, but in spite of what loving hands could do God saw fit to carry him where suffering and sorrow will be no more. He left a vacant place in his home that can never be filled. Weep not dear ones, for our loss is Heaven's gain. If we only trust in Jesus He will carry us home on high, for He has a place somewhere around His throne for us to fill.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and ten children.

A FRIEND.

Messrs. Ben Tyus, Paul Goodgame, and E. W. Ferguson, all of Birmingham came down Saturday morning and spent the day with Ben's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tyus.

West Mulberry News

It seems that springtime is here again by the way everybody has started gardening and farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Delane Barnes and son of Selma were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kincaid Sunday.

Mrs. Crit Glass and attractive little daughter, Mary Jane, were the Saturday afternoon guests of Mrs. D. Z. Nix.

Mrs. Charlie Bates and little daughter of Maplesville are spending this week with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Lee.

Miss Evelyn Nix was the week end guest of Misses Merle and Mittie Faye Jones.

Mr. Oscar Adams has returned from Florida where he has been in the government hospital.

Mr. Bill Langston spent Saturday night and Sunday night with Mr. J. W. Veazey.

Mr. Hoyt Freeman and Mr. Crit Glass were the guests for a short while Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. D. Z. Nix.

Mrs. Adams was the week end guest of her daughter, Mrs. Sterling Sexton.

The play that was presented at Isabella Saturday night was very much enjoyed.

Mr. Casey Cummings was the week end guest of his brother, Mr. Vernon Cummings, of Isabella.

Mr. and Mrs. Eunice McCary attending preaching at Active Saturday night.

Concord Falls Before Mt. Pleasant, 24 to 3

The Concord Junior High School basketball team fell before the swift passing attack of the Mt. Pleasant boys again last Friday evening.

The game was played on the Concord court, with a large number of spectators witnessing it.

The visiting team swept through the defense of the Concord boys, and piled up a large score during the first half, the count being 16 to 2. The last half found them playing mostly a defensive game, holding their opponents to exactly no field goals. The final count was 24 to 3.

Curtis Traywick, captain of the Mt. Pleasant team, led his team as usual, with 14 points. Burnett came next with 6, making 3 beautiful crip shots.

Culp, playing for the visiting team, turned in a nice performance in defensive play. Parker and Cecil Traywick worked nicely together on the guard position, in limiting the Concord forwards to a very few shots, which were to no avail.

The writer takes this opportunity to commend the clean and sportsmanlike playing of the Concord boys. This little team is improving fast, and will be heard from in the Junior High Tournament which will be held on March 5.

Don't forget next Friday, when the Big Band from Enterprise comes to Mt. Pleasant. This should prove the feature game of the season. Arnold Littleton, from Thorsby, will call the game. Everyone is invited to see these old rivals grapple.

The Mt. Pleasant boys' and girls' teams go to Calera again next Saturday night, February 20.

THE COST IS SMALL WHEREVER YOU CALL

Let the Telephone Keep Your Circle Together

When friends have moved to other cities, children are away at school or you are many miles from the folks back home . . . remember you can bring them to you easily and quickly by telephone.

Next best to seeing friends and relatives is talking with them. Even when they are miles away you can telephone them at small cost.

Out-of-town telephoning costs less than most people imagine. For example, the station-to-station day rate to a point 125 miles away is about 75 cents. If you call during the night period, the rate is much lower.

The Jemison F. F. A. Program

Wilson Clements had charge of the F. F. A. program this past week.

Charles Durbin spoke to the boys on the subject of "My Home Project." He said in part that his project was a home orchard. He has it planted in burr clover, to be turned under and furnish nitrogen from the soil, air and plenty of organic matter. He has treated his trees with crystal gas for the peach tree borer. He has pruned and sprayed his trees. In pruning he sought a low-headed tree with an open top. He cut out limbs that crossed and thinned the fruiting wood. He explained the "pruning to the bud," the "in, out, up, and down" buds.

Jessie Splawn commended the F. F. A. boys on their work in keeping the building and grounds in repair. In fixing doorstep landings and steps, and in renovating sanitary equipment.

Lance Franklin told the boys about the Young dewberry. The Young dewberry is far superior to other dewberry varieties in flavor, and is a fine berry for home use and to sell on nearby local markets. However, it will not stand shipping long distances.

Herbert Conway entertained the boys with some good jokes.

Mr. Montgomery, the advisor, set certain hours on next Tuesday for the boys to work on the school grounds. He also made a talk on good citizenship. He stressed the fact that we need good citizens who are active rather than just a passive good citizen.

The following F. F. A. boys gave their names to Prof. Peterson as entrants into the declamation contest to be held at the Jemison High School on February 26: Osteen Lenoir, Lance Franklin, Alton Cobb, Erwin Beasley, Morris Hodgens. The subject will be "The Constitution of the U. S." In addition to those students there are in the high school a dozen or more girls who will compete. The winner of the contest will compete with the winners from the other high schools of the county.

Notice: The Jemison F. F. A. boys do not want any applications for membership into the Jemison F. F. A. from students who "Believe in Santa Claus." The Chapter members believe that the way to a well-rounded life is by personal and group application.

MORRIS HODGENS, Pres.

A correction: A recent F. F. A. article stated that Mr. Montgomery paid the fees for the Jemison F. F. A. boys. Mr. Montgomery paid the state fees of thirty-five cents each, but the boys are paying him back with farm produce that he can use, as per agreement between him and the boys.

"When I was a girl, I suffered periodically with terrible pains in my back and sides. Often I would bend almost double with the intense pain. This would last for hours and I could get no relief.

Two Good Pictures Scheduled At Wadesonian Beginning On Program for Next Week

There are two good pictures scheduled to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton next week, according to their program as shown elsewhere in this issue.

"For years she has chosen my clothes, my friends, even my tooth paste—but she can't choose my husband!"

Those words sound the defiant keynote of rebellion against mature authority, in one of the scenes of "Meet the Wife," produced by Christie for Columbia Pictures. In this screen attraction, which will be seen at the Wadesonian theatre for two days, starting Monday, the wife seeks to control everybody. She does not stop at her servants, but wants to dominate all her husband's thoughts. She insists, moreover, on picking out the man whom her ward shall marry, without first consulting the girl.

When people of this city "Meet the Wife" at the Wadesonian theatre, they will also meet Laura La Plante, Lew Cody, Joan Marsh, Harry Myers, Claud Allister and William Janney. This offering was directed by A. Leslie Pearce.

The other picture, beginning next Wednesday, and running through Friday is "Consolation Marriage," starring Irene Dunne, famous for her work in "Cimarron." With her are Pat O'Brien, Myrna Loy, and John Holliday.

This picture should be of special interest to women, as it throws light on the question "Marry for consolation?" For remainder of picture schedule, see the program in the News each week.

Concord Jr. News

A large crowd witnessed the game between Concord and Mt. Pleasant on Friday afternoon, February 12, on Concord's court. Concord boys did some splendid playing and kept the game interesting. The game ended with a score of 23 to 3. It must be remembered that our boys went against one of the strongest teams in the county. We are proud of them and the wonderful improvement they have made during the year.

Concord plays Thomas Jr., next Friday afternoon, February 19, on the latter's court.

The P.-T. A. meets Wednesday afternoon, February 24, at 2:30 o'clock. We are urging all the parents to be with us to discuss some tasks we hope to accomplish in the near future. The different rooms have on a contest to see who can have the most parents present.

A joint program will be given in chapel Monday morning, February 22, in memory of George Washington.

PARTY VICTORY IS PREDICTED BY GOV. RITCHIE

Maryland Governor States People Are Turning To Democracy for Leader

Detroit, Feb. 22.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, told a mas meeting of Democrats here tonight that "the Democratic hosts are on the march" and that "their goal is victory and they cannot, will not, be denied."

Accusing the Republican Party of a lack of vision, understanding and alert leadership and asserting that its economic policies "largely contributed to the overwhelming catastrophe suffered by the business men and farmers of America," Maryland's candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, promised that "next November the Democratic Party will receive a sovereign mandate from the sovereign people to give the country what it wants."

"All over the United States the people are turning to the Democratic Party as their authentic voice," Gov. Ritchie said.

"Our party is the party of the future."

Gov. Ritchie said that President Hoover and his supporters, in the campaign of 1928, failed to repudiate "the conditions brought about by the mem-

Local Musicians To Broadcast on The Air

Three of Chilton County's well known musicians are soon to be heard over the air, when the Three Night Hawks will broadcast a program of popular music over Station WAPI, Birmingham next Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Three Night Hawks are Lloyd Howard, accordion; Herman Lowery, guitar; and Holley Jones, mandolin. These three young musicians invite the people of Chilton County to tune in on the above station at that hour Saturday, and send them some requests for numbers.

MISS VIVIAN GRAY NOW WITH WATTS HAT SHOPPE HERE

The Watts Hat Shoppe is now nicely located in its new home, in the Hayes Building, just north of DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, and Miss Callie Watts, operator of this popular place has connected with her now, Miss Vivian Gray, a popular young lady of Clanton. They invite the ladies of this section to visit them in their new place.

KIWANIANS WILL HAVE STUDENT PROGRAM HERE

Excellent Program Rendered Last Thursday With Montgomerians

A most excellent program was rendered at the regular weekly luncheon of the Clanton Kiwanis Club last Thursday at the Baptist church, when several members of the Kiwanis Club of Montgomery were present and had charge of the program for that meeting.

Those from the Montgomery Club who were present were Dr. John Abercrombie, past president of the Montgomery club; Ben Hardeman, secretary; Chas. W. Greer, chairman music committee; Thomas B. Hill, Jr., vice-president and L. H. Waller.

Thomas Hill took charge of the program and introduced Charlie Greer, who thrilled those present by his most accurate imitation of bird songs, whistles and calls, and gave some interesting information concerning bird life. His ability to imitate these whistles and songs of birds was most amazing to members of the Clanton club.

This was followed by a splendid address by Dr. John Abercrombie. Several other men were present as guests of local Kiwanians.

The program for today's luncheon at 12:15 will be in the form of a George Washington program, in which several students from the local high school will take part, in observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Attendance at the Kiwanis Club of Clanton each week is growing and much activity is seen looming for the club.

15,480 Pounds Poultry Shipped From County

The second cooperative poultry car of the season in Chilton County arrived here the past week, and $1,702.80 was paid in cash at the car door for poultry brought in. The car was loaded with 15,480 pounds at Jemison, Clanton and Verbena.

At Verbena, 2280 pounds were received. At Clanton, 8,600 pounds and at Jemison 4,600 pounds.

MONDAY LAST DAY IN WHICH TO ANNOUNCE

Little Discretion Left To Local Body In Prescribing Rules For Primary

The regulations prescribed by the State Democratic Executive Committee are being carried out by the local body or committee on the Democratic party, and next Monday, March 1st, is the final day in which candidates for county offices may qualify to enter the Democratic Primary in next May.

The state committee at its meeting some time ago fixed the qualifications of all candidates, state and county, and barred as candidates in the coming Democratic primary those who supported the Republican or Independent ticket in the general election of November, 1930, and this left the county committee with no discretion in the matter.

At the same time the state party governing body also fixed the final qualifying date of all candidates at March 1st and this act settled that question from a county standpoint. Similarly, the state committee prescribed the amount of qualifying fee at two per cent. of the annual remuneration from the office sought and this, also, is binding on the county committees.

Due to the fact that there are few offices, either state, county, or federal, particularly county, to be filled this year, the election is not expected to create as much interest as has been the case during former years.

In the county, the only places of importance to be filled are the offices of county commissioner from districts three and four, two places on the board of education, and county treasurer. In addition to these offices, justices of the peace are to be elected this year. Such excitement as may occur prior to the election will probably be confined to the commissioners and school board races, although up to Wednesday there had been no candidates for either of the places to qualify formally with the chairman of the executive committee.

M. W. MARCUS OPENS ADV. BUSINESS HERE

In an ad appearing in this issue of the News is the announcement of the opening of the Marcus Advertising System. This new concern is headed by M. W. Marcus, a former Clantonian, who has recently moved back here. Mr. Marcus has been in this line of business for several years and for the past four years has been connected with one of the largest wholesale houses in the South handling their advertising matter.

The offices of the Marcus Advertising System are located in the Hayes Building, over the Watts Hat Shoppe, on Seventh Street. Mr. Marcus stated he intends to acquaint the merchants of this section with his particular business as quickly as possible.

POLK BROTHERS CLEARING FLOOR OF ALL USED CARS

On the back pge of this issue of the News will be found an ad from Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc., stating their stocks of used cars must go, and therefore they are placing prices on them that should move the cars.

Also in a smaller ad, they are advertising for a real producing salesman to aid them in selling these used cars. Both the ads should be of much interest to the people of this and surrounding sections.

INFANT SON OF MR. AND MRS. C. O. JOHNSON DIED FRIDAY

Reedie H., three month old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Johnson, of the Liberty Hill community, died at his home last Friday morning. Funeral services were held Saturday at New Salem. Interment followed in the New Salem cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

The Psychological Time

(AN EDITORIAL)

The psychological time, a big word, but "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the crest, leads on to victory. . . ." according to Shakespeare. There also comes a tide in the lives of nations and political parties. The tide is rising for Democracy in America today. Perhaps never before in the history of our country have the people looked more hopefully to the leadership of any political party, than they are looking to the leaders of the Democratic party today. Individuals have had their faith in so many things sorely tried the past two years; conditions over which they had no control, and often could not understand, have tossed them to and fro, until now they are anxiously willing to join in with that which promises to lead them out of the choas of depression and uncertainty. Broken promises and the ravages of distress in a land of plenty has convinced the citizenship of America that we need a change.

Not only is this situation existing in America as a whole, but this same trend of public opinion is to be found in our own county in expressions of dissatisfaction with present leadership.

America, and not only America, but Chilton County, is appealing urgently to the leaders of the Democratic party. Mass opinion is looking to these leaders expecting them to step out and open up the pathways. The time has come for action. Democrats of influence, integrity and character are behooved to offer themselves for leadership. The opportunity for service is here. The call is clear and appealing. The privates are ready to do battle—the captains must lead on. Victory is in sight. A new day for Democracy is dawning. The tide is rising in America and in Chilton County, which, taken at the crest, now, will lead on to Democratic victory. The psychological moment has arrived. Opportunity is facing us today and those whose business it is to decide, and those whose duty it is to serve, should not—must not let it pass, but with firm grasp and courageous leadership exert themselves valiantly for the victory which is in plain view ahead.

A Most Worthy and Commendable Deed

In Clanton we have a class of citizens to whom we owe a great debt of gratitude. This class comprises the noble women who have dedicated their lives during these trying times to the feeding and clothing of the children of those fellow-townsmen of ours who have been deprived of the means of regular livelihood on account of the exigencies of the economic stratus. Besides the splendid work of Mrs. Stapp we refer to the Pilot Club, the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, the Auxiliary of the American Legion, the Parent-Teachers Associations and the firm, The Leader, and a few individuals.

Scientists tell us that a child that is deprived only for a few months of a nourishing diet will carry the effects of such deprivation throughout his life. Hence, if this be true, the organizations mentioned above are doing a great and lasting work in the building of the future citizenship of Clanton. This work is constructive in the highest degree and deserves the unstinted praise of every loyal citizen of Clanton.

Report Of Arrests In Past Few Days

There were five arrests booked at the office of the sheriff of this county during the past week, according to information from that office.

These arrests include two for assault and battery, one for petty larceny, one for violation of the prohibition law and one for assault with intent to murder.

TWO CHILTON PEOPLE ARE WINNERS IN SALVE CONTEST

Recently this newspaper carried advertisements for the Monticello Drug Co., on a contest known as the "666 Salve Contest."

Out of the 271 prizes awarded, two fell to two Chilton County residents. These were Mrs. J. F. Jones, of Route Five, who won ten dollars, and Miss Ruth Hester Jones, of Route Five who was awarded five dollars.

A complete list of all winners in this contest has been furnished all druggists by the Monticello Drug Company and a list may be seen at the office of this newspaper.

Associational B.Y.P.U. Meeting At Jemison

A meeting of Chilton's Associational B. Y. P. U. at Jemison Baptist church Sunday afternoon, February 28, at two o'clock. This meeting is for the purpose of electing new officers. Banner will be given to the B. Y. P. U. with largest attendance. Jemison B. Y. P. U. will put on the program. All B. Y. P. U.'s urged to send delegates.

SAMPLE SHOE STORE WILL MOVE TO NEW LOCATION

On or after next Saturday, the Sample Shoe Store will be located in the building formerly occupied by the Clanton Drug Co., next door to the Clanton Shoe Shop, on main street, according to Ben Margolis, proprietor of the popular shoe store.

In this new home, the Sample Shoe Store will have more floor space and be in a much better position to serve its customers and give them more advantages. Remember, when going to the Sample Shoe Store after Saturday, it will be located in its new home.

Three Well Known Residents Of Clanton Pass To Great Beyond During Past Several Days

Clanton became aware of visits of the Grim Reaper in three instances during the past week, when three well known residents were called away.

Miss Mattie Wright, age 72, died at her home here Sunday night, following a lingering illness. She was considered as one of the pioneer residents of Clanton, and one of the best liked residents. Funeral services were conducted at the home last Monday afternoon by Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, assisted by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church.

Interment followed in the Clanton Cemetery, with Martin & Sons in charge. She is survived by her brother, W. H. Wright, and other relatives. Pallbearers were Dr. J. E. Gowan, T. H. Neighbors, V. J. Elmore, Tom Kemp, Leonard Williams and Mack Broadheall.

Martha Jane Hayes

Martha Jane Hayes, age 84, widow of the late Lee Hayes, former sheriff of Chilton County, passed away at her home here last Monday. Funeral services were held for this aged resident of Chilton County Tuesday afternoon at Sardis, near here. Interment followed in the Sardis cemetery, with Martin & Sons in charge. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the services.

Thomas Mitchell Bates

Thomas Mitchell Bates, age 61, one of the best known characters in Clanton, died in St. Margaret's Hospital, Montgomery, last Sunday, after a very short illness. Known to the people of this section as "Mitch" Bates, he will be missed.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon and interment took place at Providence, near here. Services were conducted by Rev. W. W. Robinson, assisted by Rev. M. J. Parrish. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Emmett Singleton, and other relatives.

Schools Of County Observe Bi-Centennial

Many schools over the entire county observed the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington last Monday. Appropriate programs had been arranged and were carried out in chapel exercises, with various numbers taking place throughout the day.

The majority of the schools making this observance of the birthday of the first president of the United States were high schools and junior high schools of this county.

J. H. JACKSON IN RACE FOR COMMISSIONER

From Fourth District; J. L. Davis Running From Third District

The second announcement for a candidate for the office of a member of the Commissioners Court of this county, on the Democratic ticket appears in this issue from J. H. Jackson. J. L. Davis, prominent farmer and citizen of Stanton announced sometime ago, as a candidate for member of the Commissioners Court from the Third District.

One of Chilton County's best known citizens and a man who has made a name for himself during the past few years, now comes before the voters of Chilton County as a candidate for the office of a member of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County from District Number Four. This man is J. H. Jackson, who resides near Lomax, Alabama, and his announcement appears in this issue.

Mr. Jackson has lived in Beat Four for the past thirty years or more, and not yet an old man, but full of energy and vigor with a determination to do right by his fellowmen. He is a farmer and has had considerable experience working men, having been foreman of the old Vida lumber mill.

The experience Mr. Jackson has had along the line of milling and farming will prove of great benefit to the people of the district which he seeks to represent as a commissioner, if he is elected to that office. Mr. Jackson stated that he is willing to be judged by his neighbors, and the pastor of a church which Mr. Jackson has attended, and has known for a number of years, spoke in no uncertain terms of the reliability, honesty and fairness of Mr. Jackson.

Mr. Jackson also stated that he believed in operating the county as economically as possible, and that his knowledge of those things a commissioner comes in contact with, will enable him to do this, and he feels he is fully qualified to carry on his work in his district. He stated that if elected he will deal fair with everyone, showing no partiality, regardless of religion or politics. Mr. Jackson is a straight Democrat, and states he has voted that ticket.

CLANTON GIRL WINNER IN DECLAMATORY CONTEST

Clanton comes to the front again and should be justly proud of Miss Alice Polk, who won first place in the declamatory contest conducted at the Thorsby Institute. This is an annual event at this school.

Miss Polk is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Polk of Clanton and is a talented violinist as well as a very gifted young reader. She is a Junior at the Thorsby Institute, and is receiving congratulations from her many friends on her most recent accomplishment, and wish her much success in the years to come.

LARGE ONE-CENT PIECE SENT TO NEWS OFFICE

J. N. Scott, a resident of Maplesville, Route Two, was in Clanton Monday of this week, and while here, stopped at the News office to show an old United States coin. This was a one-cent piece and larger than the twenty-five cent pieces now being used, and much heavier, made of bronze, or copper. This coin bore the date of 1834, making it 98 years old.

Among the other pieces of old money brought in this week was a ten-cent piece brought in by Clark Polk of Clanton. This coin was dated 1811, making it 121 years old. Several other old coins were brought in, but were of foreign makes.

BONNIE WOOD ACQUITTED OF FIRST CHARGE

Placed Under $3,000 Bond To Await Trial for Second Murder Charge

After deliberating approximately 18 hours a Coosa County Circuit Court Jury, Friday, acquitted Bonnie Wood of a charge of second degree murder in the slaying of his brother-in-law, Benton Murchison, on the night of January 6th, this year.

Only a few court attaches, relatives and friends were present when the verdict was returned, compared with the crowds that filled the court room during the two days of the trial.

The tragedy came as a climax to a family quarrel on the night of January 6th, when Benton Murchison and his father, Will Murchison, went to the Wood home to remonstrate with him for ill treatment of his wife, their daughter and sister.

The hearing began promptly at 8:30 Wednesday morning. Solicitors A. L. Hardegree and H. A. Teel were assisted by Hon. L. H. Ellis, of Columbiana, and Hon. Clyde Casey, of Birmingham, special prosecuting attorneys. The defense counsel was Hon. Felix [illegible] Smith and Hon. Garrett Hagan of Sylacauga.

The first state witness to take the stand was Mrs. Benton Murchison. She

Grammar School Book Drive Is Successful

The drive sponsored by the Clanton Grammar School, and which closed last week, was very successful, according to I. J. Quinn, principal. Each class room entered the contest to secure the largest number of books, and the Sixth Grade, with Miss Bessie Thomas as teacher, was awarded first prize, having secured 177 books, for the library at the school.

There was a total of 689 books received by the school, the majority of which are fine books and very suitable for use in the library. The Clanton Grammar School wishes to thank those people who so willingly responded to this call for books for the school.

DELEGATES TO A.E.A. NAMED FROM CHILTON

B. Lawrence Is To Preside; Alternate Delegates Are Also Appointed

The meeting of the Alabama Educational Association is to be held in Birmingham on March 17, 18 and 19. Delegates from the educational system of Chilton County were recently selected by the Executive Committee of Teachers of Chilton County, which is allowed six delegates.

Delegates selected are as follows: B. Lawrence, Clanton; W. C. DuBose, Verbena; Earle Thomas, Isabella; Luther E. Little, Stanton; Marion S. Smith, Enterprise; and I. J. Quinn, Clanton.

Alternate delegates are as follows: L. C. Warr, Clanton; T. H. Walker, Clanton; J. A. Peterson, Jemison; J. D. Griffin, Isabella; Harlem Daniel, Union Grove and Mrs. Barney Burnett, Clanton.

By request from officials of the association, B. Lawrence, superintendent of education of Chilton County, and who is second vice-president of the Alabama Educational Association, will preside at the second session of the meeting which opens Thursday night, March 17th.

Many teachers of this county, who are not delegates to represent the county, are expected to attend this association, as there is much good to be derived from attending the sessions, where school work, accomplishments and problems are taken up and discussed.

Letters To The Editor

JACKSON REPLIES TO ARTICLE BY REYNOLDS

Dear Editor:

Will you grant me space in your paper to reply to what Judge Reynolds said in last week's Union-Banner, in the way of a warning to county Republican leaders? It is not my desire to get into a newspaper controversy with such high-ups as Judge Reynolds, and The Man In The Moon who really know things. But since they have attacked me in such a belittling way I am inclined to resent such attacks.

Judge, it does seem to me if the articles that I have been writing have been so detrimental and disgusting, that you, as head of the Republican party of Chilton County, would have come to me in a statesmanlike manner and told me wherein I was wrong. You said in your letter that I referred to Mr. Hoover, the President of the United States, as a slave dealer, a thief, dishonest, swindler, racketeer. Judge, isn't your statement misleading? I referred to what the American Freeman, a weekly newspaper published at Girard, Kansas, said about Mr. Hoover. I am sure the readers of the County papers understood it as I wrote it. I am of the opinion that the charges made by the paper are true, since Mr. Hoover has passed the charges unchallenged.

Judge, you said that I received a flattering vote for Representative two years ago, and that I was supported by the knockers and kickers of our party. The election returns showed that I got nine hundred votes two years ago, and it seems to me if all of these are knockers and kickers you should handle them more gentle; because if this number should turn loose to knocking and kicking you, and the Republican party of Chilton County could not last long.

Judge, I want to call your attention to an article that appeared in last week's Union-Banner and Chilton County News, in which Mr. Traywick tells how you and your son handled the Lee Traywick murder case.

Now I shall ask you some questions. Did Otto Burnett kill Lee Traywick? Did Burnett get a preliminary hearing before Justice McDowell, and the evidence was so cold-blooded that Justice McDowell ordered Burnett back to jail without bail, and did Burnett later get a second hearing before you, L. H. Reynolds, and you turned Burnett loose on a twenty-five hundred dollar bond? And at the following term of the Circuit Court the case was handled in a way that the jury did not hear the evidence? Was there ever any rebuttal evidence offered by the defense? Did Burnett agree to take a four-year sentence without pardon? And did Judge Smoot pass sentence on Burnett to serve four years? And after Burnett received the sentence, was Burnett turned lose to frolic over the country and have a big time until the appointed day for him to go to Kilby to serve a four-year sentence? And was the State Attorney notified by Republicans that Burnett was not in jail, but allowed to go as he pleased? And did the state attorney order Republican officials to lose no time in getting Burnett in jail? Now, I do not know whether or not all of the above are facts, but do know that part of them are facts. And have been told by several persons that all of the above are facts.

Judge, it was that I knew about the above case that caused me to cease my support for you. If I have to endorse such disgraceful demonstrations as were performed in Clanton on the night after your election as Probate Judge of Chilton County in 1928, and the tactics that you used in the Lee Traywick murder case to be loyal to you and the Republican party of Chilton County, I would prefer to see you knocked out. And the Republican party knocked out, and be called A KNOCKER FOR THE KNOCKERS.

In conclusion I want to ask you just one more question. Do you indorse such a principle as was manifested at the Clanton demonstration on the night of your election as Probate Judge, and the tactics that were used in handling the Lee Traywick murder case?

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old.

Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Co. Pleased With Response To Kitchen Cabinet Demonstration

"It was a success," said J. B. Tiffin, of the Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company of Clanton, when asked about the kitchen cabinet demonstration and sale held last week at their store here.

According to Mr. Tiffin, they had set their goal as selling fifty of the cabinets, and space was occupied in this newspaper to advertise the demonstration and sale for two weeks. A day or so after the first announcement was made, Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company had sold over twenty of the cabinets.

A special offer was made along with the sale, and that coupled with the popularity of the cabinets added to the attractiveness of the demonstration.

Mr. Tiffin stated they were pleased in every way with the response given this sale, and that the people of this section may look forward to more offers of this kind from their store in the future. Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company are not advertising any items in this week's paper, as they are making some changes in the display of their large stock of furniture, and Mr. Tiffin stated that the people should be on the lookout through the newspapers for special bargains coming in right away.

Isabella Closed Basket Ball Season

The Isabella five closed its season last Friday and Saturday at the tournament held in Selma. The boys playde good ball all the season. They won seven and lost five games. The most active players were V. Williams, forward; L. Mims, P. Ratliff, center; H. Morgan, guard; C. Sansom, subs., Griffin, Poole, Jones, Calfee.

Isabella, with the aid of Coach Grant, went places and played ball in every game. Jemison and Marbury were the hardest teams they faced, and defeated Marbury both games, but lost to Jemison.

Isabella will be able to face any five next year with a smile and will play ball fair and square.

The boys went to the tournament last Friday and Saturday in Selma. They won only one game and lost two.

Baseball season is now opening and Isabella boys are starting it off right. The prospects are looking good now for a strong team this spring. The boys feel good over their basket ball team and are ready for baseball.

HOW DO YOU KNOW IT'S JUST A COLD?

(Dr. Christmas Seal

Don't be too quick to say "just a cold". If the patient is a child, the running eyes and nose may mean the beginning of measles, the teasing cough may be whooping cough, the sore throat may be scarlet fever or diphtheria. Even your own cold may be influenza, bronchitis, perhaps the early stages of penumonia.

More than one-half the illnesses of winter are first classified as colds. The Alabama Tuberculosis Association states that a large percentage of these illnesses could be cut short if every person with a "cold" would stop work for one day and stay in bed, but not just lounge around the house, half dressed, but really stay in bed. Keeping away from people for that day would keep you from distributing your cold to others at its most contagious stage. It would help you to fight the early fever and give your heart a chance to steady down a bit. In most instances it would be the end of the cold. Many a case of fatal pneumonia would be prevented if this simple rule were followed.

Don't take your cold for granted and worry along with it. The prescription reads, "Go to bed—stay in bed."

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

The family was seated at the dinner table on Sunday and the morning worship came up for discussion. The father criticized the sermon, saying that it was stale, the mother criticized the music, saying that it was horrid, the grown daughter criticized the ushers, the stuffy room and the pep of the crowd. She wanted it to go off like the bang of a dance hall. There was a small boy sitting at the table listening in on all that was being said. He was just at that school boy age when they believe in fair play, and when he caught a moment of pause in the conversation he chimed in, "Dad, I think that was a bully good show for a penny." This boy had observed that his kin did not pray, they did not sing and when the collection plate came around, he saw his father slip in a penny. It behooves all of us to first ask the question "What did I do to make the service better?" before we launch out with our criticisms. There are a lot of criticized services when the critic invested a penny, or less in the service.

A sad death occurred in Montgomery a few weeks ago. A boy near the age of ten was suffocated in a cave that he had dug. Just to the North of our capitol city there are many tall banks of sand, and this place is a great resort for frolicsome youth. This boy had gone to these banks and had tunneled out a cave for himself. He invited other boys to go with him, and enjoy his cave. The invitation was accepted and three boys entered the cave together. It looked safe. It had been there for days and no dirt had fallen in. It was a good place to play, and into it they went. While far under the embankment, the roof gave way, and down came tons of dirt. Two boys were partially covered with dirt and pulled themselves free, but the boy who had dug the cave was farther in than the others and he was burried alive. When he was recovered he was dead. There are men and women in every county of our great State, who are digging caves of pleasure. The cave may be a Sunday picnic, it may be a dance hall, it may be a drinking and smoking party, it can be any kind of worldly pleasure. When the cave is dug, invitations are issued. The sad part about it is that thousands of our young people are accepting the invitation to play in these caves. We admit that the ball room looks to be a great place for a jolly good time, but you had better watch. There often falls in the cave of the dance hall tons and tons of filth, drinking impurity, low ideals and the soul is crushed. Not everyone who goes into the cave of pleasure to play is killed, but I want to tell you that it is a mighty dangerous place for you to play.

I stood beside the anvil of the blacksmith and watched him as he went about his work. He had some welding to do, and I noticed that he went to a sack and brought out a special kind of charcoal. This was placed into his furnace over a few smoldering embers. He placed his hand on his bellows and soon the dead embers were coming to life. In a very few moments they were at white heat. I remarked to the blacksmith, "I wish that I could blow the currents of the Spirit through my church membership and heat them into a burning glow, like you have done to those dead coals." The man with the hammer made this sensible remark, "You could, parson, if you had the right kind of coal." No one can accuse the pastor of your town of not working the bellows in your church. The currents of the Spirit are sweeping thru every church in our town and county, but the charcoal, the membership of our churches are soggy with the world, and the pastor may do his best, but there is no burning glow. Every church in our county should be at white heat, but we are not. We are unable to produce welding heat because of the inferior quality of the membership composing our church. If we were the fine Christians that we should be, it would be no trouble for us to melt the hard hearted sinners, and weld them to Christ.

I was passing a home not many days ago and I saw the lady of the house out in a weed patch following an old hen with a bunch of chicks. The lady had a brush in her hand, and she was shooing the straying hen back to her yard. This mother hen had decided that a neighbor's flower bed was a good place for exercise, and she had gone there with her brood. With a brush she was being shooed back home. Not many people are experts with a "Brush" but it is a pity that we do not have more who know how to shoo folks away from places where they do not belong. I noticed that if the lady crowded the hen that she would lift her feathers, and her little brood would scatter everywhere. It takes patience and time to get that straying bunch of chicks back where they belong. The same thing is true of men and women, boys and girls when they are astray. It takes time and patience to shoo erring youth back to God and back to our Father's home. We become impatient because they have gone over the fence, and then we crowd them as we are trying to get them back where they belong. Take the "Brush" of authority and follow slowly, patiently, kindly, and you will be able to "Shoo" them back home. How I do wish that we did not have so many human hens and cockerels, who insist on going over the fence with their brood. Parents should stay where they belong and then the little ones will not go where they do not belong. In doing right yourself you make it easy for your children to do right.

LETTERS OF APPRECIATION FOR PICTURES FROM WARR

Large pictures of George Washington were recently presented to rooms at the Clanton Grammar School by Prof. L. C. Warr, principal of the Chilton County High School, and pupils of the classes wrote letters of appreciation and thanks to Prof. Warr for the pictures.

These letters were received by the teachers of the various classes and those believed to be the best were given the News for publication. Following are two outstanding letters written by the pupils:

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 20, 1932.

Dear Mr. Warr:

We still remember your kindness of the fall when you gave us the Alabama Map. We appreciate very much the picture you gave us. We have been studying Washington in reading, language, history and art. We have learned very much about the picture, and have also learned something of Gilbert Stuart. You could have given us nothing more useful. It is hanging in the main entrance of the building. We will try to pay this kindness back in some way.

Sincerely,
MILDRED MADDOX.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 19, 1932.

Dear Mr. Warr:

We, the pupils of the Clanton Grammar School, are very proud of the Un-Finished Portrait of Washington. Each room would like to have it hang in their class room; but we are enjoying it in the hall. As we pass by, we stop to look at it.

We thank you very much.

Yours truly,
MARGARET GOLSON.

Are The Voters Of Chilton County Blessed With Backbone?

Never has the opportunity for the Democrats of the county, state and nation to come forward and show their strength in government been so bright as it now stands. That opinion is being expressed over the entire country right now, and a feeling of optimism is prevailing in all nooks and corners with those Democrats who ever stand for the right.

Of course, this newspaper realizes that in each election year it is natural that each side issue statements telling their followers of the wonderful opportunities they have and that now is the time to come together and push over the top. But, this is not being written in that spirit alone. It is written with the true belief that it is positively true now, and under present conditions among the different political parties, it stands to good reason that the Democratic party has this opportunity to do good, standing right in front of it, and even lingering awhile to see if the Democrats are going to accept it.

There are several reasons for this opinion. There is at present a feeling among the majority of Democrats to stop their differences of opinion on a nominee for office, and to get behind that Democratic nominee and push him over, and to give Democratic rule an opportunity to make some headway, to get a foothold and in future years keep it. In other words, it is best now to get the pie first and then divide it. Stop quarrelling among themselves about who is going to get how much, and how it shall be divided—before they get it. It's like the old story, about not counting your chickens before they hatch. It's best to hatch them and then count and divide them.

In the national government Democrats are getting control in the House in Washington, and on the road to more control. It is true that the Democrats in Chilton County are not in a position to really lose out, or even lose very much in any election, because they do not have any offices to lose to an opposing party, while the opposing party has everything to lose and the Democrats have that everything to gain. This election year is just another opportunity presenting itself to the Democratic party to gain something.

Not only is the above statement true, but there is a fast growing inclination on the part of followers of opposing political parties to line up with the Democratic Party in its fight for the right and prosperity which is waging over the nation among the Democrats. Indications point to the statement that followers of other political parties are becoming vexed with their leaders who have held sway so long and allowed matters to get from under their control through carelessness and over confidence, making themselves believe that they had everything sewed up, so to speak. But undoubtedly they did not have it sewed up tight enough.

Citizens and voters are becoming tired of the practice of securing support for candidates through promises and bribery, if that has been the case, and are looking for something that is substantial and worthwhile—something they can depend on when the time comes that they have to fall back on the man or men they voted for and supported for office.

Chilton County is no exception. It is full of Democrats who wish to see a fair and impartial administration of county affairs. Not only is it full of Democrats who wish to see that, but there are plenty of others who have decided they were in the wrong and that now is the time to correct their mistake and get back to the right thing.

Person after person, all voters of this county, have visited the office of this newspaper, and voluntarily expressed the hope that something be done in the coming elections to give them an opportunity to make a change in the way matters are handled in regard to the administering of county affairs. This newspaper at this point will refer these persons to the fact that they will have this opportunity in the coming elections and to the announcements from solid Democrats who are seeking offices in this county this time.

Get behind these men, give them your support, put them in office and get started on your work of making these changes. A complete change cannot be made at this time, but some good work can be done and headway made. If you are going to listen to the whims and whimperings of the men who see they are slipping, and are begging you to help them, then there is not much can be done for you, because you are possibly too weak to even get started to do the right thing. Brace up, assert yourself—you are a full qualified citizen and have this right. That's the spirit of the Democrats, and that spirit is coming to the front in times like the present, when the big blowing spirit with a nice front and nothing back of it, is fast falling to the rear.

Our Former Congressman, Lamar Jeffers

Chilton County was taken from the fourth congressional district and placed in the sixth congressional district sometime ago when the state was redistricted. For a number of years, Lamar Jeffers was Chilton County's representative in congress, as Chilton was in the fourth district.

Now, since the redistricting took place, Jeffers is no longer representing Chilton County in Congress, but goes to other counties now in his district. We reflect back over the pleasant relations with Congressman Jeffers and the times when he would never fail to be of service in anything within his power, and of benefit to the people he served in his district. And while these memories pass through our mind, we have a feeling of sadness to come with it, for truly it seems we have given up a very good friend, although correspondence from Jeffers gives us reassurance he will not forget his fiends in this district.

We admire Lamar Jeffers, 'not only for his splendid willingness' to serve his people whenever possible, and was on the alert to serve them at times when they did not call on him. but we also admire him as a man. His war record is enviable, serving with the 82nd Division, carrying with him now a mark left as a result of battle when he carried out an heroic act and received commendation for it afterward from the War Department. Service to his people at all times, with an air that created admiration and respect rather than asked for it, and we sincerely hope that although he is no longer a representative from the district which this county is in, he will still remember us, and we know he is still our friend, and our people feel no reluctance in writing him on any matters of information, etc.

At present, the positions occupied by Congressman Jeffers are noteworthy. He is ranking Democratic Member, which is next to the chairman on an important committee, the World War Veterans Legislation, and holds the same position on the committee on Election of President, vice-president and representatives in Congress, and played a big part in passage of the recent bill to eliminate the "Lame Duck" session of Congress. He has recently been assigned to the committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Mr. Jeffers has since being a member of Congress, answered the call of the Democratic leaders and workers in Chilton County, and in view of the above facts, this newspaper feels inclined to comment editorially on this man.

This newspaper will say in closing this comment on Congressman Jeffers that we hope the voters of the Fourth District will take under consideration these comments, and return him to Congress where he has served and knows what to do and when to do it, because we feel that in doing this, the people will send a man to Congress who will never falter in his duty to his people and serve them at all times to the best of his ability.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

"The greatest mistake you can make in life is to be continually fearing you will make one."
—Elbert Hubbard

Before I go one step more on my tour round town, I must step back on the block I was on last week, and ask Mr. Brand to accept my apologies. I just actually left the Spigener Funeral Home out last week, and of all places, it had to be a new business in Clanton that I would leave out. Don't know whether it makes much difference to them or not, but I say I regret it.

The Spigener Funeral Home, down next door to The Fair Store. You can see the attractive signs on the windows, and a peek inside shows you a neatly kept reception room. Mr. E. J. Brand is manager of this concern, and he's the man you see driving that pretty purple ambulance and funeral coach. Mr. Brand has with him, Mr. John Jarrett, who looks after things about over the country. I don't know him personally but I know he's there just the same. Mr. Brand makes his home in Clanton and is the kind of fellow you would just naturally like anyway.

Now we are on our way into the next block, where we come to the firm of Mullins & Moore, with J. Renfroe Mullins and J. Watts Moore, at the helm, and a big general merchandise store there. Also we find W. I. Mullins, one of the old timers of this county. Then there is Charlie Rasberry who looks after customers, and Miss Rubye Branch, who has charge of the ladies wearing apparel side. Then now and then we will find John Mullins busy at sometime in there. A real busy place and a regular farmers' store. In fact they are known as "The Farmers' Friends."

* * *

Next door we come to the Peoples Savings Bank, with Frank J. Callen holding to the pilot wheel, as president. This bank has been in business in Clanton for thirty years, safe and sound. Mr. Callen has next in line H. Grady Heflin, as cashier and he's also a city councilman. Then comes Louie Smith as assistant cashier, with Miss Delilah Kelly as bookkeeper. You don't hear much from these fellows, but they are there with the goods just the same.

* * *

Now here is the First National Bank next door to the one above. Dr. Earl Upchurch is president but he don't stay there as he has other business interests. So we find John C. Page at the throttle as cashier and head knocker of this institution. Mr. Page has as his assistant cashier C. Otto Jones, a likable fellow. Then there is Earl C. Parrish who gives service at one of the windows, and F. L. Harris, the fellow who operates those counting, adding and subtracting machines in the bank. All fine fellows and know their business to a T.

Now the man you see next door is Hugh Jones, one of Clanton's long-time merchants, and now has a nice little store handling different things, and one of the mainest things is that pop corn machine out front. That's where that wonderful odor comes from when he's popping fresh pop corn. A sack of that corn is really good, if you ask me. Let's all stop and get one while we are here.

* * *

Here we are at the Robinson Department Store now. Headed by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson, and carrying a line of dry goods. This store has it's slogan "Style Headquarters For Clanton". We find Mrs. Robinson talking shop, and about the bargains they have, while Gaston Robinson and Mrs. Gaston Robinson are there to serve customers also.

We can't pass by without making a little detour upstairs in this building, where we find the law office of Hon. J. B. Atkinson, former mayor of Clanton, member of the State Democratic Executive Committee, Masonic Districe Lecturer, and other things I can't remember. He's the fellow you see using that Dictaphone machine in dictating letters in his law practice, surrounded by all those law books. Oh yes, you want to know who the young lady in the foreground is. That is Miss Evelyn Atkinson, who is her uncle's efficient secretary. That thing by her chair that looks like an Edison phonograph, is a part of the dictaphone system used in that office, and it's the cat's meow, if you ask me.

Bonnie Wood Acquitted Of Murder Charge

testified that her husband left home on the afternoon of the killing about 3 o'clock going to the home of his father to notify him of a difficulty having taken place between Bonnie Wood and his wife, the daughter of the deceased, Will Murchison; that he returned about seven o'clock in the evening in a car, but that she did not know who the other occupants of the car were; that her husband did not get out at home on his return from his father's, but merely called and told her that he would be back; that in about thirty minutes she heard two shots fired in the direction of the home of Bonnie Wood; that immediately thereafter she heard Amanda Wood, the wife of Bonnie Wood, screaming; that within a few minutes Beno Murchison came to her home, which was only a short distance from the Wood home and told her that Bonnie Wood had shot Benton Murchison and his father; that she went to the Wood home about 11:30 and found lying in the floor in a bedroom of the Wood home her husband and his father. She stated that by this time she was almost hysterical and did not remember other details taking place at that time.

Mrs. Amanda Wood, the wife of the defendant, Bonnie Wood, the next witness used by the state, testified that she, together with her husband and seven children, were in their bedroom when her father, Will Murchison, her brother, Benton Murchison, and her nephew, Beno Murchison, came to their home about seven o'clock on the evening the tragedy occurred; that her husband had started toward the door leading into the kitchen when the three walked into the room, Beno Murchison leading the way; that he stopped for the purpose of shaking hands with Beno Murchison; that her father and brother entered immediately and spoke to Bonnie; that her father asked what the trouble was about and that Bonnie replied, "Amanda will tell you," whereupon she proceeded to tell of the difficulty occurring a few nights previous in which Bonnie Wood gave her a black eye and other bruises. Mrs. Wood testified that her father told Wood he was going to have him arrested that night or the following morning and that her husband, Bonnie Wood, replied, "All right, have me arrested but it may cost you." She said her brother's only statement was that he went to the home of his father and brought him up there to let him see for himself what had taken place because last year when they had some trouble and he told his father about it, they made him out a lie. She said her father again told Wood that he was going to have him arrested and if this happened again he was going to stomp him or else Wood would stomp him. She testified that her brother had no weapon in his hand, nor did he make any threat against the defendant. She testified further that when her husband shot her brother she ran from the room and did not hear any further shots, that she was almost hysterical.

Beno Murchison, the third witness used by the state, corroborated the testimony of Mrs. Wood, and stated further that immediately after the first two shots were fired he saw Bonnie Wood come into the hall; that he heard him call for him and remark, "I will kill every damn one of them." He further testified that Bonnie Wood then turned, went back into his room and fired three more shots; that at the time he saw Bonnie Wood come out into the hall he was immediately in front of the hall door by the side of his automobile that standing with him were the three small boys of Mr. and Mrs. Wood, that he took these boys and carried them down to the barn which was some distance away, that after the last shot was fired he went to the home of Benton Murchison to tell his wife.

James R. Wood, the thirteen year old son of Bonnie Wood, corroborated the testimony of his mother largely.

Dr's. O. C. Powell and J. W. Maddox, who were the doctors examining the two Murchisons after they were shot merely testified as to the location of their wounds.

J. T. Fielding, the father of Mrs. Benton Murchison, the only other witness used by the state testified largely as to the location of the wounds and the position of the bodies when he arrived, he being the first party outside the family to appear.

A number of character witnesses were presented by the defendant Wednesday afternoon, all of whom testified they had known Wood a good many years, and had always known his reputation for peace and quietude in the community to be good.

Dr. A. K. Whetstone was also presented by the defendant to testify as to Wood's physical conditions.

Bonnie Wood, the defendant, took the stand at 8:30 Thursday morning and remained on the stand about an hour and a half. He pleaded not guilty by reason of self defense. Wood testified that on the night of the tragedy, he had started to get some water to take some medicine, as the Murchisons came in. He said Beno Murchison came in, shook hands with him and sat down, then Mr. Will Murchison, his father-in-law, and Benton Murchison, his brother-in-law, came in; that the elder Mr. Murchison said, "Stop, hold on here," and inquired what the trouble was about. Wood said he told him they hadn't had any trouble except what was settled, that Mr. Murchison told him he was going to have him arrested and he told him all right, anything to keep down trouble because he wanted to abide by the law; that Mr. Murchison said, "I could hardly wait to get here to beat hell out of you." He further testified that Benton said, "I'm going to settle this tonight or kill you," that the elder Mr. Murchison said, "I'm not going to wait any longer," and also that the father said, "I don't have but one time to die and now is as good as any." Wood further testified that Benton Murchison was on one side of him and his father-in-law, Will Murchison, on the other side, both facing, neither of them being over six feet from him, that he had his back to one of the doors leading from the room and the father-in-law was between him and the other door." He said Benton was attacking him and he drew his gun and shot Benton, then the elder Mr. Murchison grabbed at him and he shot him." Mr. Wood stated that he did not remember much of the conversation between his wife and her father and brother.

Hon. A. L. Hardegree, solicitor, opened argument for the State shortly before 10:30 Thursday morning with Hon. Felix L. Smith opening for defendant. Hon. Garrett Hagan closed defense argument about twelve o'clock and Hon. Ellis closed for the state immediately after the afternoon session of court was called.

The jury retired about two-thirty Thursday afternoon and returned their verdict shortly after eight Friday morning.

Wood was placed back in jail Friday morning under $3,000.00 bond to await the other charge of second degree murder in the slaying of his father-in-law, Will Murchison, at the same time. This case was continued until the fall term of court. His bond was made early in the day Friday.

Jurors serving on this case were Allen Hosey, Lofton Thomas, Adie Forbus, Claudie Bice, Frank L. Durden, Ira Thornton, Neil G. Arnold, Joe H. Plyler, Adam B. Bryant, Tom E. Durden, Bozeman Hardy, and Ed Waldrip.

HOUDON'S STATUE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

The most famous piece of statuary in America is the marble statue of George Washington, made from life sittings by the French sculptor, Jean Antoine Houdon, who postponed a sitting with the King of France to come to America to make the statue of George Washington.

The people of Alabama are now raising a fund with which to have a bronze cast made of this statue to be placed on the Capitol grounds in Montgomery. The quota for Chilton County is $50.00.

The unveiling will take place Armistice Day, November 11, 1932, with appropriate ceremonies. Every man, woman and child in Alabama should take pride in contributing to this notable monument, commemorating a notable character.

The quota set for Chilton County, which is fifty dollars, should be easily raised. Each county in the state is being asked for a certain amount to go toward the erecting of this large statue of George Washington on the capitol grounds in Montgomery.

The Probate Judge of each county is acting chairman of his county on this move. All funds to be contributed to this should be sent to Mr. William Baldwin, First National Bank Building, Montgomery, Alabama. Mr. Baldwin is acting as Treasurer for the Alabama Branch of the U. S. George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission.

FINE WORK IS BEING DONE ON BETTER COTTON SEED

Prominent Mill Owner Says That The Result Of Planting Better Seed Will Mean A Gain In Price Paid The Farmer

Following is a letter sent to County Agent Stapp, which is of interest to every farmer who raises cotton:

Montgomery, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Stapp:

You are no doubt aware of the fact that considerable meritorious work has been done in Alabama toward encouraging the planting of better cotton seed in an effort to improve the quality of our cotton. We believe this movement is one to which all public-spirited agencies can well afford to give full and vigorous support.

Recently Benjamin Russell, prominent citizen and cotton mill owner of Alexander City, said: "Supplying the mills with this better cotton would result in a gain in price received by Alabama farmers and in a savings of transportation charges to Alabama cotton mills of around $5,000,000 yearly." We believe this estimate is somewhat low and that the figures should perhaps be around $7,500,000.

The attached statement, prepared by our department of information, shows that this $5,000,000 or $7,500,000 is almost within our grasp. If the work that has already been done can be followed up, there is every reason to believe that 1933 or 1934 will find Alabama growing no cotton stapling below 7-8 inch.

Alabama farmers now have on hand at least 80,000 bushels of improved seed. We feel sure that you will use whatever promotional and educational forces at your command to help us in seeing that these good seed are planted and that the seed produced are saved pure again next fall.

Respectfully yours,
E. L. DEAL,
Executive Secretary, Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

WHAT I HAVE LEARNED IN VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE AT ISABELLA HIGH SCHOOL

By Delos Culp

My study of the science ot agriculture began several years ago while I was attending grammar school. My first course was studying a text which dealt only with the primary elements of rural surroundings. In this course we learned the different families of plants and their relation to each other, how trees could be improved by grafting, the necessary conditions for germination, and the preparation of seed beds. We also touched on the methods of selecting and improving planting seeds, the importance of crop rotation, detecting and controlling crop pests and the value of animals on the farm. Our school was small and did not have a specialized agriculture department. Each topic was briefly outlined and we were referred to bulletins of the Department of Agriculture for any further information we might want. Not seeing any of the methods I had studied in practiced, I did not have much interest in what I had learned and it soon passed from my memory.

Upon entering high school I took up a course in the Vocational Agriculture Department. Here we had equipment to carry out in detail the many different subjects we studied, and for the first time agriculture became very interesting. By actual practice we learned to select, improve, test, and store planting seeds, and by using statistics and running experiments of our own, we found that good seed was very necessary to a good yield. Insects were studied in detail and we learned profitable means of controlling them. Specimen plants were collected and we made a study of their root and fruit formation, their purity to type, and the effects of fungus diseases. Many samples of milk were collected and tested to determine the importance of good breeding and correct feeding of dairy cows. We received instruction on caring for live stock and were given practice in judging animals of the most satisfactory type.

Special emphasis was placed upon soil improvement. We learned the correct methods of terracing and drainage. Cover cops were viewed from every angle and by tests and observation we were made to fully realize their importance to successful, low cost, farming. Fertilizers of all kinds were thoroughly covered and we were repeatedly drilled in working of formulas and selecting the best mixture for different crops. Great stress was placed upon Auburn recommendation and they were found best by test. We were taught to repair farm buildings and machinery. Suggestions were given to plan a farmstead for beauty and convenience. Seemingly, agriculture is not very broad, but if it is studied in detail, many, many interesting things will be found that are apparently unnoticed on the average southern farm.

A study of Vocational Agriculture greatly increases one's appreciation of nature. It provides culture that no other study can give; it prepares one to do more efficient work and surely everyone should be familiar with the primary industry of our modern civilization.

News In Brief Form

Six countries supply about 88 percent of the total aluminum produced in the world. In the order of output they are the United States, Canada, Germany, Switzerland, and Norway.

On the second Saturday of each month from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. CST, the American Farm Bureau Federation presents a farm program over the NBC network, which is broadcast in Alabama over Station WAPI.

California avacado growers are making splendid progress in developing their industry. Through their cooperative marketing organizations they have netted in 8 years $1,441,224. The 1,700 members now have 2,000 groves and expect to market 15.000,000 pounds in 1935, or about 100 times what they marketed in 1924.

Large shipments of American apples were hurried recently to Great Britain in order to land them there before the new British tariff became effective. Ships which had been scheduled to call at Halifax en route from New York to London cancelled the Halifax stop because they had obtained full cargoes at New York.

The Rio Grande Valley Vegetable Cooperative Association in Texas expects to market a million dollars worth of vegetables this season, which began recently. Eight "master sheds" are being used for packing. They are equipped with automatic washing, icing, and nailing machines, so that the entire process from he unloading truck to the refrigerator car is as efficient as practical.

Mt. Pleasant Defeats Enterprise By 20 to 19

Rallying in the last five minutes of play, the Mt. Pleasant team overcame a 7 point lead and won over the Enterprise team 20 to 19. The game was played at Clanton last Friday afternoon before a large number of people. The Enterprise boys lost no time in getting in the lead, which they held until the last minute of play. With the count standing 19 to 18 in their favor, little Curtis Traywick dribbled up the right center of the court and flipped a perfect shot, the ball dopping through the net just before the final whistle. Thanks to the men who built the gymnasium, or else there would have been a collapse. This was Enterprise's second defeat of the season, and Mt. Pleasant's fourteenth victory.

Next Friday will close the basket ball season, Mt. Pleasant going to Collins Chapel for her final game.

REPORT OF MAPLESVILLE JR. BASKET BALL GAMES

Dear Editor of Chilton County News:

May I have a little space in your paper for the report of the Maplesville Junior basketball teams?

We Junior's of Maplesville have played some interesting basketball games this season. We haven't played but one school, which is Plantersville, Alabama. But we sure have enjoyed playing them. We won the first which was played in Maplesville, the score being 22 and 28. It ws our very first basketball game, so you can just imagine how big we felt.

Then we went to Plantersville, feeling sure we would beat them again, but luck changed, and they beat us 38 and 8.

Everybody laughed at us because we got beat, but we did not give up. We next played Plantersville here. We beat them 28 and 8. We then went to Plantersville. They beat us one point, the score was 18 and 17. But in all we have beat them about 2 points, not enough to brag about. But enough to make us feel good.

We are planning on playing Selma Jr. girls sometime soon. I wil lsay that we have one of the best coaches, Miss Dorothy Reynolds.

This ends my basketball report until today.

Respectfully submitted,
EMMA REE GAY.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

THIRTEENTH INSTALMENT

Rowena and Peter are employed by Rack Ruff Motors to make a coast-to-coast trip, advertising the roadster. They take Bobby along as chaperon but she deserts them in Colorado and they get married, in name only, so they can travel without criticism. At last, after many tiffs, they near New York. They discuss what they intend to do after obtaining an annulment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rowena was a little more touchy even than usual just at that time because she was having some trouble with her own work, and the fact that Mr. Rack had not been entirely satisfied with her last three stories had done nothing to improve her disposition.

When—the picture done Peter's way, is spite of her—he turned the roadster east once more, Rowena retired sulkily to the rumble seat.

In Richmond they received a long telegram from Bobby Lowell. It was "Prepaid." As Rowena said afterward, "We should have known from that they were married." As indeed they were.

"Darlings," exclaimed the telegram extravagantly. "We did get married and my gown was lovely. Carter was going to sue the railroad but the conductor took him off and apologized so Carter gave him ten dollars instead. Can't we fly down and meet you some place and finish our honeymoons together—even if yours isn't real?"

Peter said he thought he had better answer that telegram and he wrote very fast indeed without one pause for thought.

"Love, kisses and condolences I mean congratulations. As your honeymoon waxeth ours alas doth wane hence how could we twain ride opposite directions in one Rackruff? Anon."

"It doesn't seem to mean much," objected Rowena.

"It means plenty," said Peter firmly. "It means that our honeymoons aren't riding the same sky if I can help it. Carter'll understand."

They were increasingly quite as they neared New York and the end of their adventure. Peter thought Rowena was troubled about the future because she often referred to things she might do and regretted that her work had fallen off. "If I had kept up as well as I started I could land a good job on the strength of it," she said ruefully.

"You can, anyhow. Your work, as a whole, has been top-notch. You were good down to the last adjective. The trouble was that in the beginning you were so superlative you got them to expecting miracles. Never begin at the top," he advised her wisely. "It leaves no place to climb to. Anyhow," he added slyly, "you must have saved up enough on your expense money to keep the children in bread and milk for a long time—what with doing your own laundry and living on soup and cheese."

"Well—some," she admitted evasively.

"Do you suppose we'll ever be real good friends, Rowena? And never quarrel again?"

"I'm good friends now! I've been friends from the very first. I am really fond of you, Peter, but you're so darn mean the angels themselves' couldn't get along with you."

"That's odd. Every one has always remarked what a good disposition I have.—No credit to me," he added modestly. "I was born with it."

"People are so dumb," sighed Rowena.

"Do you think your judge will have any trouble geting the annulment?"

"No."

"How long will it take?"

"I don't know."

"When will he start?"

"He's started now."

"Started now! Why, what do you mean?"

"I wrote to him the day we were married and told him to go ahead with the preliminaries so he could put it through with a rush."

Peter resented that. "I think it was needlessly insulting of you, Rowena! To spread the news like that the day we were married."

"Married! Oh, tish, tosh and even hush! That was no marriage."

"No. But it was nasty of you just the same."

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it, Peter," she said gently. "I did not mean to be offensive, I assure you. I really thought I was doing the stitch-in-time sort of thing."

"Do you thing you'll ever marry the judge?"

"I don't think I'll marry anybody. I hate men."

"What are you going to do when we get home, Peter?"

"Oh, work at something, I suppose. I don't know just what. Maybe I'll go to Paris."

"You can't go until we get that annulment. They will need you here to swear that we—we didn't—that we never—that we never were really married, or anything."

"How long will it take?"

"Why? Are you in such a hurry for your freedom?"

"No. I was just wondering."

"What do you intend to do first, Rowena?" Peter asked.

"Oh, I really don't know. Write up those stories perhaps."

"No plans for the far future?"

"No. Maybe I'll keep house for Buddy when he gets through school. Maybe I'll get married."

"But you say you hate men!"

"So I do. That's the only way to get even with them

From Pennsylvania Peter wanted to cut through as quickly as possible into New Jersey and home that way. He said it was shorter and he knew the roads. Rowena, on the other hand, wanted to go up through Pennsylvania. She admitted it was a longer route, but said she would try to endure a few more days of Peter's company for the sake of the scenery. Peter didn't argue with her. He just turned off and went over the Water Gap into New Jersey. Then they realized indeed that they were nearing home, for New Jersey was their neighbor and Peter recognized every road and landmark. The sign-posts began to give mileage to New York —seventy-five miles, sixty miles and then fifty.

They had luncheon at a lovely little wayside place near a cool blue lake and Peter said if Rowena would excuse him a few minutes he wanted to call up some people in New York.

"Gosh, but you're in a rush to get in touch with everybody," she protested irritably. "I suppose you'd like me to call up the judge and ask him to have the papers ready for us to sign tonight."

Peter didn't say anything, but went on into the telephone booth. When he came back his face showed a little white under his summer's tan and his lips were grimly locked.

"I suppose she had another date," said Rowena disagreeably. "And I'm glad of it."

Peter had nothing to say, but when they had reached the next town he said he hoped Rowena wouldn't mind waiting as he had a little shopping to do.

"Shopping" she ejaculated. "Shopping within forty miles of home? What do you want? Is it anything I can lend you?"

"Oh, no, nothing like that," said Peter vaguely. "Just some odds and ends—little souvenirs—presents, you know—nothing much,"

"You would go through Yellowstone and the Rocky Mountains and buy your souvenirs in New Jersey," she remarked coldly.

When he came back his arms pretty well filled with stoutly tied bundles, Rowena and Constatine were under the umbrella in the rumble seat.

"For heaven's sake—" he began impatiently.

"It's a sort of sentiment with me," she said. "I would never feel that we had a grandstand finish unless we breezed into Times Square in our regular traveling order. You can put your souvenirs in Bobby's place."

Rowena slumped lower and lower in the rumble as he drove swiftly along the heavily shaded roads. She did not feel at all well. In a way, she almost believed she was sorry it was over. It had been fun—all except Peter. It would have been great—glorious—without Peter. Rowena certainly was not feeling well. Her heart was leaden within her. Two large tears forced themselver under her hot lids and through the silken lashes. Rowen closed her eyes and pretended she was asleep.

"If Peter thinks I've got anything to cry about, he's crazy," she said stoutly.

At a sudden lurch of the car she opened her eyes. Much to her surprise she saw that they were far from the state highway, and following a narrow dirt road through a thick piece of woods. She tapped on the window.

"Peter, you're off the road. This isn't the way to New York."

"I know it. It's a short-cut."

Rowena sighed. "I knew I should watch you," she said resignedly.

Presently he turned off from the dirt road into a narrow wood lane, no more than a cow-path it seemed. Rowena knew instantly it would never take them any place at all. She knocked on the window again.

"Peter, you're lost. This road doesn't go anywhere!"

The cow-path turned abruptly up a sharp and jagged hill and ended abruptly at the foot of an immense boulder in the very heart of the forest.

"It's a dead end," said Rowena. "What did I tell you?"

Peter got out of the car and went back, very slowly, to stand beside her, folding his arms rigidly on the rim of the rumble. She noticed immediately how his pleasant eyes had narrowed, how very grim he looked, and his lips set. She stared deeply into his eyes, her lashes still wet with tears, and waited for him to speak.

"Get out, Rowena," he said at last thickly. "This is our last stop."

"Why, we can be in New York in two hours!" she protested faintly. "We've had our luncheon-there's nothing here to stop for!"

"Get our," he repeated doggedly, "We're staying here tonight."

Rowena looked at him wonderingly and put out her hand, slender and sunburned, pink palm upturned and fingers curling. Peter ignored the silent appeal of it.

"Rowena," he said, his voice grown low and strange, "you've made a damned fool of me day after day the whole summer. You've made me the laughing-stock of reporters and hotel clerks and automobile mechanice from coast to coast—not to mention the kick your friends in New York are getting out of my predicament. Well, it's my turn now. You may get an annulment, you may get a dovorce, you may get anything you damn please, but you're my wife—you're married to me—"

"But—not really married—Peter—"

"Well, you are going to be, and pretty damn quick," he said decidedly.

With a wave of his hand he indicated a little log cabin, deserted and still, that showed above the boulder in the thick of the forest.

"We're honeymooning here till Monday."

Rowena blinked her lashes very fast indeed. She fumbled around in the pocket of the rumble until she found rouge, powder and lip-stick and painstakingly repaired the ravages of travel. After that she looked at Peter and laughed.

"You—you're good-natured about it," he said.

"Of course," she declared gaily. "This is an accident. Accidents never make me mad."

"Well, save up as much good humor as you can," he told her. "You're going to need a lot of it between now and Monday."

Rowena looked about her. The little cabin was tucked away snugly in a huge cleft of great rocks and about it on every side towered broad-branched trees, beginning to show gold and blood-red with the touch of autumn. Somewhere near a noisy brook chattered down-hill over the stones. And there was no sight of other habitation or wandering woodsmen in all the length and breadth of the forest.

"It belongs to a friend of mine." said Peter. "That's what I phoned about—to say we were tired and would appreciate the use of the cabin for a few days?"

"Are-are we to be quite alone here?" she inquired casually.

"Quite alone."

"It—it will make it—difficult—about the annulment."

"That," said Peter haughtily, "is up to your friend the judge."

Rowena put her hand on his arm. "Peter," she said gently, "don't do anything rash. You'd beter th-think it over."

STORRS WANTS COTTON USED INSTEAD OF JUTE

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries, has written United States senators and congressmen from Alabama urging them to support "bill H. B. 5612, which places the post office department in position to use cotton twine instead of jute."

"It is my information that while jute is cheaper per pound ordinarily that cotton goes very much farther and is equally as cheap in the long run. The amount of twine used by the post office department would certainly be a large field for low grade cotton. I would appreciate it if you could see your way clear to support this bill," Storrs wrote.

Junior's Column

By Miriam

Between the dark and the daylight,
  When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
  That is known as the Children's Hour.
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Many years ago a thirteen-year-old boy walked into a weekly newspaper office in Portland, Maine. With fear and trembling he dropped a manuscript into the editor's box. When the next issue of the paper appeared the boy looked eagerly for his verses, but they had not been printed. He did not let the disappointment discourage him. He had another copy of his verses, which he immediately sent to the "Portland Gazette," the other newspaper published in Portland. He bought a copy of the next issue of the "Gazette" and went to a quiet street to look for his poem. To his great delight he found it, "Battle of Lavell's Pond," actually printed.

That boy was Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. He lived to be seventy-five years old and wrote many poems that were simple and easy to read and understand. He wrote his last one just nine days before he died.

Because Mr. Longfellow loved children and because they loved him and his poems he is known as the "Children's Poet."

You have read the poem, "The Children's Hour," that begins with the stanzas printed at the top of this column: the poem that gives us a picture of the jolly times Mr. Longfellow had with his own children,

"Grave Alice, and laughing Allegra,
  And Edith with golden hair."

You can feel the very excitement of

"A sudden rush from the stairway,
  A sudden raid from the hall!"

and almost hear the shouts of laughter and squeals of delight when

"If I try to escape, they surround me,
  They seem to be everywhere."

Each stanza brings a feeling all its own as we read on to the end of the poem.

I know you love "The Village Blacksmith," too, and the story of how, after the "Spreading Chestnut tree" of the poem was cut down, the children of Cambridge had a beautiful arm-chair made from some of the wood of it for Mr. Longfellow. Perhaps you have read "From My Arm-Chair," the poem that he wrote to the children who gave him the chair.

Other poems written by Mr. Longfellow that are printed and reprinted for boys, girls and grown-up people to read and enjoy are: "The Arrow and the Song," "The Old Clock on the Stair," "Paul Revere's Ride," "The Building of the Ship," and I am certain that you all have heard the following stanza of his beautiful "A Psalm of Life."

"Lives of great men all remind us
  We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
  Footprints on the sands of time."

Then there are those fascinating long poems, "Evangeline," "The Courtship of Miles Standish," and "The Song of Hiawatha," that are hard to lay aside when once begun.

A pleasant story is told by Signor Luigi Monti, an Italian friend of Mr. Longfellow, that shows how all boys and girls loved the "Children's Poet."

One day, as Signor Monti was walking toward Mr. Longfellow's house, he was approached by a girl about twelve years old, who inquired where Mr. Longfellow lived. He told her it was some distance down the street, but if she would walk along with him he would show her. When they reached the gate, she said,—

"Do you think I can go into the yard?"

"Oh, yes," said Signor Monti. "Do you see the room on the left? That is where Martha Washington held her receptions a hundred years ago. If you look at the window on the right you will probably see a white-haired gentleman reading a paper. Well, that will be Mr. Longfellow."

The child looked gratified and happy at the unexpected pleasure of really seeing the man whose poems she said she loved. As Signor Monti drew near the house he saw Mr. Longfellow standing with his back to the window, his head out of sight. When he went in the kindhearted Italian said,—

"Do look out of the window and bow to that little girl, who wants to see you so very much."

"A little girl wants to see me very much? Where is she?" He hastened to the door, and, beckoning with his hand called out, "Come here, little girl; come here if you want to see me." She came forward and he took her hand and asked her name. Then he kindly led her into the house, showed her the old clock on the stairs, the Children's Chair, and the various souvenirs which he had gathered.

Boys and girls, don't you think next Saturday, February 27th, the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. Longfellow's birth, a good day to look up and read all his poems that you can find? You will find some in school books and certainly you can find many of them in the school library.

Let me tell you a secret, there's great fun in memorizing Mr. Longfellow's poems, and I'm going to memorize one. Next Saturday. Which one? That's my secret!

—Miriam.

HOW VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE HAS HELPED ME

o

Following is a letter written by S. L. Broadhead, a live, wide-awake club worker in Chilton County. This letter tells briefly of the work being done by this club member:

I do not think any course in high school will help a farm boy so much as vocational agriculture, and to a boy who intends to make farming his occupation, I think it is absolutely necessary for him to include vo-ag in his course, for it seems that the only successful farmers of the future will be the present vo-ag boys. Boys studying vo-ag are taught by actual experience how to prune trees, repair farm machinery, prepare good seed beds, fertilize for best results, manage winter legumes and numbers of other valuable things about the farm.

Along with vo-ag goes the F. F. A. which serves to train boys in leadership, which is one of the greatest assets to any business.

I have begun my second year in vo-ag. I regret very much that I did not get to take vo-ag in my junior III year, but I did not start to school at Isabella until I had finished the ninth grade at another school.

My project last year was a purebred Jersey dairy heifer. This project is not yet finished. I have not fully decided what my horticulture project for this year is going to be, but I will try tomatoes. Besides this I am going to plant and keep a record on about a half acre of Irish potatoes.

I believe that if vocational-agriculture and the Auburn plan of farming are applied to a farm, one will make a success. I believe a new era in agriculture is dawning.

S. L. BROADHEAD.

Farmers Advised To Reduce Cash Costs

Alabama farmers are advised to reduce cash costs on the farm whenever possible and consider keeping more livestock for home and local consumption, according to a report released by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician for the department of agriculture.

"Each farm should have, if possible, at least one other cash enterprise, supplementing receipts from cotton," says the report, adding:

Adjust crop acreages and livestock numbers to keep regular workers busy throughout the year with a minimum of hired help. Consider keeping more livestock for home and local consumption but do not overlook the present low prices of livestock products.

"Make the farm produce as much of the family living as it can and reduce cash costs whenever it can be done. Repair old machinery to make it last another year if possible.

"Reduce the cost of producing cotton (1) by planting cotton on only the land best suited to its production, using poor cotton land for other enterprises; (2) by using good seed of a variety recommended by the State experiment station as high yielding and of good quality; (3) by early plowing, close spacing, and good cultivation.

"Make a plan and budget for the year's operations and try to live up to the plan. Borrow as little as possible. Foresight and careful planning are especially important in times like these.

"Advise with your county agent."

HUGE
CLEARANCE SALE
Of Used Cars

We must dispose of our entire stock of Used Cars and trucks by March 10th. Successful bankers liquidate all loans once a year. It is just as necessary for automobile dealers to clean house once a year by disposing of all used cars. So this is truly a clearance or liquidation sale. All cars listed in this sale will be sold at cost or below.

Never before have you been offered quality cars at such low prices. We really mean to clean house, so come in now and buy the car or truck you have intended buying in the spring.

Cars will be sold on terms of 1-3 to 40 percent. down, balance on GMAC plan. We will take in your old car at liberal price as part of down payment.

JESUS IS THE BURDEN BEARER

Jesus is the burden bearer.
He loves one and all.
He alone can rescue us, and save us from the fall.
Oh, won't you come to Him today?
He will give you peace and rest.
Oh, come and lay your aching head upon His loving breast.
In Him you will find eternal life and comfort to your soul.
He will take your burdens all away.
And bring you to the fold.
So cheer up, dear child, it will not be long
Till Christ will come to right the wrong.
Then, oh, how happy His child will be
Through all eternity.
If the way is rough and you have a heavy load,
Remember, Jesus has traveled the same old road.
He knows each one's burden, and each one's care.
And each one's sorrow and troubles He helps to share.
He knows each one's heart, and what they need.
He heals the sick and the hungry feeds.
He will clothe the naked, and keep them warm.
To His loving child no harm can come.

Isaiah XII-17. When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I, the Lord, will hear them, I the God of Israel, will not forsake them.

Isaiah 11, 29, 30, 31: He giveth power to the fait: and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

30. Even the youths shall faint and be weary and the young men shall utterly fall:

31. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint.

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T. A. HAS FOUNDERS DAY PROGRAM

Members of the Chilton County High School Parent-Teachers Association observed Founders Day last Thursday with an appropriate program. Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Miss Nell Wells and Miss Josephine Martin took part on this observance program. A birthday cake cutting was one of the features, with refreshments served by the Home Economics Class of the school.

The P.-T. A. was founded in 1895, and this program was in proper observance of this date. Mrs. Hugh Jones of Clanton also gave an interesting talk.

Party Victory Predicted By Governor Ritchie

bers of their party who had been false to their oaths of office."

"Instead," he said, "they became beneficiaries to the cash contributions to the treasury of the Republican Party made by those who had been conspiring with public officials to loot the public assets.

"They believed, and unfortunately they were correct in the belief, that it was not necessary for them to repudiate the contributors and decline the contributions, because they had an issue that was not personal, and that issue was prosperity.

"Guilt was personal, but prosperity was not. The credit for prosperity, they said, belonged to the Republican Party. Democrats had nothing to do with it.

"What honest alibi can the Republicans advance now to escape the responsibility for the dreadful situation that confronts the American people?" Gov. Ritchie demanded, "the widespread despair and distress, the ruin and chaos on American farms and in American business? Seven million unemployed men and women await an answer."

6TH GRADE PUPILS OF JEMISON LEARN MUCH ABOUT JAPAN

The Japanese Children, by Edna Daniel

The Japanese children wear kimonos. The are made of silk and are very gayly colored. They are made of silk because Japan leads the world in the production of silk. They wear wide sashes around their waists. The Japanese boys are dressed very much like the girls.

Their work is not very hard. They only have to pick cherries when they are ripe. They run errands for their mothers. If they farm, they probably thrash rice and they pick tea, too. The girls and boys tend the flowers for Japan has very beautiful flowers.

The Japanese children have flower festivals every year. The buildings are gayly decorated. If you were to come along on a windy day you would see the children flying kites. Flying kites is their chief sport.

A Visit to Japan, by Ruth Davis

Last summer I took a trip to Japan. The first thing I noticed was the little Japanese girls' dress. They wear robes with large sleeves. In these sleeves they have their pockets which they keep their toys in.

Once as I was going along I passed a little girl who was putting some jewels on an idol. Then I saw a girl bouncing a big rubber ball, and a boy flying a kite.

I did not know how to ask for a foreigner's room in the hotel. The servant took me to a room with a mat on the floor. A bowl and some chopsticks were also on the floor so I had an uncomfortable night.

The Japanese women wear their hair plaited and they wear flowers in their hair. Japan is noted for its flower festivals. They have one once every year.

GILLESPIE FREED FROM SUIT OF F. CALLOWAY

Judge Says Evidence Not Sufficient And Too Contradictory

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 24.—Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, of Chilton County, yesterday was absolved of any blame in connection with the shooting and alleged brutal treatment of Frank Calloway, Chilton farmer, when Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of the United States District Court, directed a verdict for the defendant in a suit for damages brought by Calloway.

The case of Frank Calloway, Plaintiff against W. H. Gillespie, Sheriff of Chilton County and the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, as Surety on the Sheriff's Official Bond was tried in the United States District Court in Montgomery on Wednesday of last week, February 24th, before Judge C. B. Kennamer and a jury. At the conclusion of the trial, which lasted all day, Judge Kennamer held that the Plaintiff had not made out a sufficient case to recover damages against the Sheriff, for the affair growing out of the alleged shooting of Frank Calloway in Coosa County last September and remarked that he based his judgment on the fact that the evidence for the Plaintiff was so conflicting and unreliable that he could not allow a verdict to stand upon it. Sheriff Gillespie was represented by J. B. Atkinson and Lawrence F. Gerald, of the Clanton Bar, who were assisted by Arthur B. Chilton, United States District Attorney, and J. O. Middleton, special United States Attorney. The Plaintiff, Calloway, was represented by Mr. Grady Reynolds and Percy M. Pitts of the Clanton Bar.

New Ladies Shoppe To Open In Clanton

Clanton was visited this week by Mrs. Harold Olsen, of Chicago, and it was learned that Mrs. Olsen is making arrangements to open a shop in Clanton handling a line of ladies dresses, hose and other wearing apparel.

Mrs. Olsen is the former Miss Ena Grenn, of Thorsby, but has been residing in Chicago for some time. She recently attended the large style convention in Chicago at the Hotel Sherman, and states she hopes to bring the latest word in style and material to her shoppe here, at a moderate price.

The new shoppe to be known as Ena's Smart Shoppe, is to be located next door to the popular DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, upstairs in the new Mullins Building. Watch for the opening announcement next week.

Old Coins Still Showing Up Here

Interest in the question "Who has the oldest United States coin in Chilton County?" ceases to decrease in interest judging from the coins still being brought to the News office.

Last week an error was made in the coins brought in by J. N. Scott. These coins were sent to the News office by J. R. Short, of Maplesville, Route Two, and the News failed to state that fact. Mr. Scott brought them in for Mr. Short, who showed an old one-cent piece and a half dollar dated 1858.

This week, among the coins shown, many of them of foreign make, were three United States coins, brought in by Richard Mims, of Clanton, Route 3. These coins were dimes and a five-cent piece, the latter having its date obliterated. The dimes bore dates of 1853 and 1834, making them 79 and 88 years old respectively.

EIGHT ARRESTS REPORTED BY SHERIFF'S OFFICE HERE

WARRANDQUINN ARE RE-ELECTED AS PRINCIPALS

Board Acts According To The Recommendations Of School Trustees

The Board of Education of Chilton County met last Friday at the Superintendent's office, and several matters of importance were attended to.

Among these was the election of principals for the next term of school for the Clanton Grammar School and the Chilton County High School. Prof. L. C. Warr was re-elected to serve again as principal of the high school, and Prof. I. J. Quinn, will serve next year as principal of the grammar school.

Prof. Warr is completing his fourth term as principal of the local county high school and has a splendid record behind him. He has the cooperation of the people of the county, and uses keen judgment in selecting his corps of teachers each year.

This is the second term for Prof. Quinn, as principal of the grammar school. Since coming to Clanton in this capacity, Mr. Quinn has brought many advantageous changes in the school and the announcement that he will return is being received with pleasing response. The action taken on this by the county board followed recommendations from the trustees of the schools.

ELECTION FOR TRUSTEES TO OCCUR MAY 7

Patrons Of Schools Will Hold Meetings To Nominate Candidates

It will soon be time for the election of trustees for the schools over the county, and at the meeting of the County Board of Education last Friday, the following statement was adopted and put into effect:

Notice is hereby given that in accordance with law number 590 passed by the 1931 Legislature and approved August 1, 1931, providing for the election of trustees for the various schools of the State of Alabama, an election will be had at each schoolhouse in Chilton County on Saturday, May 7, 1932, for the purpose of electing three trustees to serve for a term of two years beginning July 1, 1932.

In order that the names of those nominated may appear on the ticket in proper form any legal voter who resides in the definite territory served by the school and meets the qualifications set out in Article 6, Section 133 of the School Code of 1927 may be nominated provided his nomination is filed with the County Superintendent on or before April 23, 1932.

Three managers will be appointed for each school. If for any reason those managers appointed should fail to appear the remaining number shall appoint one to take his or her place. In case no managers appear on the day of the election to conduct the election then the trustees now serving shall

George W. Edwards For Board Member

The announcement of the candidacy of George W. Edwards, for a member of the County Board of Education of Chilton County, appears in this issue of the News.

Mr. Edwards announces for nomination on the Democratic ticket, subject to the action of the pimary to be held on May 3rd this year. He is a well and favorably known farmer, residing south of Clanton, on Route Three. In making his announcement, Mr. Edwards states that he has studied the educational conditions of this county, and believes he is fully qualified to fill the place as a member of the county board of education.

Friends of Mr. Edwards speak very optimistically concerning his race for this place, and to his good standing, not only in his community, but among those who know him over the county, the outlook is promising for him.

PARENTS FACE RIGID LAW ON SCHOOL WORK

Attendance Of Children To Be Pushed According To State Code

Enforcement of part of the Alabama School Code, pertaining to the attendance of children in school, is to be put into rigid effect, according to information from the office of the superintendent here. Following is a copy of a statement mailed to all trustees and teachers in the county:

To all Trustees and Teachers:

Below is a copy of a resolution passed by the County Board of Education at their meeting held February 26, 1932. Please inform your patrons who are negligent in attendance of the Board's determination to enforce the Attendance law.

County Supt. Education.

Whereas, Section 305, Article 16 of the Alabama School Code of 1927 provides as follows:

"Each parent, guardian, or other person having control or charge of any child required to attend school or be regularly instructed by a private tutor, who fails to have such child enrolled in school or who fails to send such child to school or have him instructed by a private tutor during the time such child is required to attend a public school, private school, denominational school, or parochial school, or be instructed by a private tutor, or fails to require such child to regularly attend such school or tutor, or fails to compel such child to properly conduct himself

John Bateman Enters Circuit Judge Race

The third aspirant for the office of Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, composed of the counties of Chilton, Elmore and Autauga, makes his announcement in this issue of the News.

This new candidate is Hon. John W. Bateman of Wetumpka. Mr. Bateman is an attorney of Wetumpka, and is of high standing among the citizenship of his home county, as well as others in which he has worked.

He was at one time solicitor of this circuit, and served as county solicitor of Elmore County for sometime. His friends predict for him a good run in the coming primary election, May 3rd. on the Democratic ticket.

Mrs. J. C. Hughes, Mrs. Mary Lou Wonder and Mrs. A. J. Marlar of Billingsley were the spend-the-day guests of Mrs. Annie Thacker on Tuesday.

CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER OF CHILTON COUNTY

W. LOUIE SMITH

LOUIE SMITH IS A CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER

Announcement Creates Much Interest Among Both Political Parties

A political announcement that is causing much interest among the two political parties in this county is that of W. Louie Smith, whose announcement as a candidate for the office of treasurer of Chilton County appears in this issue.

This stir in interest is due to the many friends over the county who have expressed their wishes that Mr. Smith enter the race for the office and who have assured him of their support. He is the son of Y. E. Smith, one of the most prominent farmers residing in the Isabella Community, west of Clanton. He was born and raised on a farm, remaining there while he completed his early studies in school.

Mr. Smith has resided in this county for something like twenty years, and during the most recent years of his life he has made quite a study of local conditions. He has been connected with the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton for approximately six years, and now occupies the position as assistant cashier of that bank, with a splendid business record behind him.

Not long ago, he spent sometime in New York, where he studied banking and finance, and is thoroughly familiar with all matters pertaining to finance in many branches.

Mr. Smith is fully qualified to hold the office he is seeking on the Democratic ticket in Chilton County. He is the only candidate for this place on the Democratic ticket, and his announcement is being received with much applause over the county.

Articles Stolen From Sheriff's Office Here

Monday night of this week somebody removed from the office of the sheriff in the courthouse here, two heavy weight coats, a pistol, scabbard, belt and cartridges, and took a small amount of cash from the office of the Judge of Probate.

Delbert Norris, deputy sheriff, and owner of the gun and one of the coats, stated Tuesday that they were offering a suitable reward for recovery of the stolen articles and information leading to the arrest of the thief or thieves. No information was given as to how entrance was gained to the offices.

TWO SPEAKERS FOR KIWANIANS PROGRAM HERE

High School Students Give Fine Washington Talks At Last Meeting

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton have another treat in store for today at the luncheon, when Earle Thomas will have charge of the program with Agriculture as the main item.

Two outstanding men of the state in agriculture are to be on the program as speakers. These are Dr. L. M. Jackson, who is widely known for his interest in agriculture in the state, and J. L. Liles, county agent of Jefferson County. Luncheon begins promptly at 12:15 today.

One of the most interesting and informative programs rendered at the Kiwanis club meetings here, took place last Thursday when Prof. Warr had six students of the local high school present a Washington program, in observance of the birthday of this outstanding American. Attendance at the club meeting Thursday was one hundred per cent, with interest increasing.

Those students taking part on the program were Miss Mary Courtney Jones, Miss Ruth Maddox, Miss Sallye Mahan, Miss Elizabeth Stanley, Joe VanDerveer and John [illegible]

Each one took topics from the life of George Washington and in a most interesting manner, told of America's first president as a farmer, soldier, statesman and of his social life and other activities. Mary Courtney Jones told most vividly of the many monuments erected in honor of Washington. A rising vote of thanks from the members of the club was given, in appreciation of this splendid program.

INMATES OF COUNTY JAIL THANK FOURSQUARE VISITORS

Editor Chilton County News:

Will you allow us space in your paper to thank the good people of the Foursquare church for their visits and sermons to us, while here in prison. Some people may think they are wasting their time, but we realize how much good they are doing, and how it makes us feel to know there are some who remember us and who think enough of us to visit and try to cheer us a bit. We appreciate the sermons and songs of Rev. Caswell and his corps of workers. We only wish they could visit us more often and stay with us longer.

Ladies Millinery and Ready-to-Wear Dept. To Be Added To Store of Jesse Baker in Clanton

Sometime ago the Clanton Cash Store became strictly a grocery store, when Jesse Baker and O. D. Deloach dissolved partnership and now the dry goods department of that store is owned by Jesse Baker, with the latter as the firm name.

In the very near future, Mr. Baker stated, his dry goods store will make several changes in its arrangement so as to be able to serve the people better, and one of the most important additions will be that of a ladies millinery and ready-to-wear department.

This department is not yet ready, but the announcement will be made next week, no doubt. Mrs. Clara Mullins and Mrs. Ollie Robinson, two prominent ladies of Clanton will have charge of this department. Mrs. Mullins is widely known for her knowledge and experience in millinery work, and Mrs. Robinson has been connected with this store for sometime, handling the ladies and children's wear. Watch for the announcement of the opening of this department in the News.

Activities Of The Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association

Up to date some 15000 strawberry crates have been distributed among the growers, with some possible 10,000 to 20,000 more to come later if the present weather prevails, and no killing weather occurs.

The outlook for the crop is good, and for a lengthy season, though the high prices of the past season are not to be expected, due to the large acreages coming in throughout the Southern strawberry sections.

The Association will have government inspection, on all its carlot shipments of berries this year, and it will be very much to the interest of the growers to take more care than ever in packing their berries, so as to come in under the U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2 grades, or Alabama Combination.

For this reason, to help the grower in the proper packing of his berries for the necessary grades, the U. S. grade standard is given below:

U. S. No. 1, shall consist of strawberries of one variety, with the cap or (calyx) attached, which are firm, not overripe, underripe, or undeveloped; which are free from mold or decay and from damage caused by dirt, moisture, foreign matter, disease, insects, or mechanical or other means. Unless otherwise specified, the minimum size shall be not less than three quarters of an inch in diameter.

In order to allow for variations other than size incident to proper grading and handling, not more than 10 per cent, by volume, of the strawberries in any lot may be below the requirements of this grade, but not to exceed one-half of this tolerance or 5 per cent shall be allowed for defects causing serious damage, and not more than 1-5 of this amount, or 1 per cent, shall be allowed for decay.

In addition, not more than 5 per cent by volume, of the strawberries in any lot, may be below the specified minimum size.

Alabama Combination Grade:

Shall consist of strawberries which may be slightly damaged by sand or dirt provided that in other respects not less than 75 per cent by volume of the berries meet the quality and size requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade and that the remainder shall not be below the quality and size requirements of U. S. No. 2 grade.

In order to allow for variation, other than size, incident to proper grading and handling, not more than a total of 10 per cent by volume, of the berries in any lot shall be allowed for defects causing serious damage but not to exceed 1-5 of this amount or 2 per cent shall be allowed for strawberries affected by decay.

In addition, not more than 5 per cent by volume, of the strawberries in any lot may be below the specified minimum size.

U. S. No. 2 shall consist of strawberries which are free from decay and other serious damage caused by disease, insects, mechanical or other means. Unless otherwise specified the minimum size shall be not less than five-eighths of an inch in diameter.

In order to allow for variation other than size incident to proper grading and handling, not more than a total

Junior High School Basketball Tournament At Clanton Beginning Next Saturday A. M.

Don't forget the Basketball Tournament for Junior High Schools of Chilton County, which is to be held next Saturday, March 5, at Clanton, Ala.

It is sponsored by the Chilton County Junior High School Athletic Association. These games will be played in the usual official way.

A season ticket will cost 25c, which will be good for all games during the day and also to the final game that night. To those who do not hold a season ticket, 10c for each separate game will be charged. Purchase tickets at door on Saturday.

All teams must be on the court promptly at 8:30. First game will be played at 9:00 A.M. and games will follow until all are eliminated except two teams who will play for the county championship that night at 8 o'clock. This will be one of the feature programs of Chilton County this year and as a large number always attend these matches, we urge everyone to purchase a ticket, because only a limited number is being printed. The teams playing are: Baker, Concord, Enterprise, Union Grove, Thomas, Stanton, Collins Chapel and Mt. Pleasant.

Sample Shoe Store Has Moved To New Location With Larger Quarters And Better Displays

New Home Of Shoe Store Is Located On Main Street In Clanton

"The Sample Shoe Store has moved," is the comment heard frequently in this section now, as this popular bootery is now located in a new place in Clanton.

The new home of the Sample Shoe Store is located on Second Avenue, which is main street here, in the building formerly occupied by the Clanton Drug Company, next door to the Clanton Shoe Shop, and Wingard's Store.

This building has been renovated and made suitable for its new occupant, and Ben Margolis, proprietor of the Sample Shoe Store, states that they now have larger quarters and their stock will be increased to a certain extent.

BEN MARGOLIS

Mr. Margolis came to Clanton several years ago and established this business in the building next door to Hill Grocery Co., and since then has been enjoying a pleasing business, which is devoted almost entirely to the fitting of shoes for men, women and children. Mr. Margolis states that "if we do not have the size and style shoe you want, we get it for you on short notice." Ladies especially, have found that the Sample Shoe Store is a desirable place to purchase their footwear, as a varied line of styles and sizes is carried by Mr. Margolis, who invites the people to visit his new location.

Pleasant Grove News

Rev. J. C. Miller and Mrs. Miller and daughter, Elizabeth, and a young minister, Leon Macon, from Howard College, Birmingham, Ala., were at church on time to perform their regular services Sunday. The morning message was delivered by Rev. Miller, pastor, and was taken from St. Luke 16 chapter, and church covenant. Our evening service was conducted by Bro. Macon. His text was taken from Ephesus 2nd chapter and reference was taken from St. Matthew in general. A large crowd attended both services.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Willis and daughter, Miss Myrtle, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Willis, their son.

L. Lance Franklin spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Charles Willis.

We are very much saddened to hear of the death of Mrs. Lillie Maddox, the wife of Mr. Elic Maddox. Her remains were laid to rest at Pates Chapel cemetery until a better day than this one. May God's blessings be on the grief stricken loved ones still lingering until they, too, shall go.

Hyman Franklin spent Saturday night with Mr. Wilson and "Pat" Clements.

Miss Rubye Wright is spending the week end with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Marcus, of Thorsby, Ala.

Gee! Was there ever any limit to things, especially when there gets to be five sets of twins in a family. Pshaw! Yes, but it's the fact there are five sets of twins in "Our" family. Here they are, Charles Willis, Charles "C.W." Wells, Marjorie Robertsons, Marjorie Wallace, Alice Scott and Alice Clements, Winston Clements and Winston Davenport. Lance Franklin and Lance Lenoir. Yes, but our family is the school bus No. 45, driven by Mr. Wilson Clements and Co., Inc.

Mrs. Laura Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Waldrop, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Dawson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Franklin.

"Minutes to come are like days that have passed."

GRADUAL GROWTH INTO LIVESTOCK IS ADVISED

Farmers should gradually grow into the livestock business instead of jumping in temporarily and out again when the price of cotton goes up, advises F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician.

"Nothing is to be gained by jumping into the livestock business temporarily and out again when the price of cotton goes up", he said. "Unless it is to be a permanent industry farmers had best not enter it. For this reason gradual growth is to be desired rather than an unhealthy increase in one season."

Rowena Rides the Rumble

By Ethel Hueston

FINAL INSTALMENT

"I have thought it over. I've been thinking it over since that night in Cheyenne—the first time we had to show the certificate. We won't have to show any certificate here. We're as free as the birds and the flowers."

"Rack and Ruff will expect us in tonight. They won't like it."

"They're not expecting us. I wired them two days ago that we wouldn't be home until Monday."

"Are—we going to stay here—until Monday?"

"We are," said Peter firmly.

"Peter, Peter," said Rowena, "be careful, oh, be careful! If—you do this it—it will give me a grand chance to be mean to you—if I want to. I can make it hard for you to get a divorce—I can get alimony—"

"It'll be worth it," said Peter grimly. "Besides," he added smiling "even when you are Mrs. Peter Blande in fact, at heart you will still be just Rowena Rostand. You are immortal."

Rowena did a strange thing. She clasped both her hands tightly over Peter's arm and looked up into his face—deep, deep into his eyes—searchingly, for a long time and did not speak. Peter's fell at last before the intensity of her silent gaze but there was no diminution of purpose in his manner.

"And you ought to know by this time that when I make up my mind, it's made," he said doggedly. "So you needn't try to talk me out of it."

"I'm not going to try," said Rowena faintly.

He helped her out of the rumble and cautioned her to be careful of the rocky path up the hill.

"It's easy to get a twisted ankle here," he said.

He even asked her to help carry his bundles up from the car and filled her arms with them. At the foot of the steps that led to the wide unroofed piazza, he kicked over a stone and produced a big brass key that lay beneath.

"Look at this," he said. "The cabin's a sort of open house for everybody and his friend, and the key bears the household motto. "Come easy—go easy"—see?"

"Appopriate to week-end honeymooners, like us," she said quitely.

"You would say that," said Peter. "I assue you, that was not the idea back of it."

The cottage, which consisted of but one immense room and a huge sceened bath, with miniature kitchenette was roughly finished with heavy oaken beams. There was a great fireplace of natural stone, and running end to end away from it on both sides were studio couches against the wall, comprising three full sides of the cottage.

Water was supplied by a windmill among the rocks higher up the hill, and Peter invited Rowena up with him to witness the ceremony of chaining the wind.

"It's our one servant up here;" he said. "Loosing the windmill is one of the real events of coming up. When there is a crowd they do it with a great processional, with incense and incantations. But our minds are on other things tonight so we won't bother."

Rowena followed him down the steep rocky path to the cabin again.

"Been here often?" she asked casually.

"Yes." Peter was laying a fire in the grate.

"Were you here with crowds—or just—alone?"

"Both."

Rowena walked about the cabin ruffing her bronze-bright hair with both hands. She looked at the pictures—the autographs—the candle-sticks—the incense burners.

"Belongs to a woman, doesn't it, Peter?"

"Yes."

Peter was opening up his bundles and putting the food supplies in their proper compartments.

"Do you think she'll like your bringing another—woman—here?"

"I don't care whether she does or not."

Rowena threw off her air of quiet moodiness. She rolled up the sleeves of her blouse and asked for a job.

"You can put the rolls in the oven," said Peter. "And you may as well get as much fun out of things as you can. There's no use to try to get away. You can't."

"I'm not going to try," she said.

Peter pressed the button that started the electric refrigeration, pulled out the drop-leaf table and measured four cups of water into the tea-kettle.

"I hope you're hungry," he said. "We're eating camp rations tonight. Tomorrow I'll show you some good country cooking for I'm really the cabin's star chef. But tonight my mind's on other things and I don't want to be bothered. Our fare will be quick and rough, and it will require an appetite to enjoy it."

"I'm just ravenous," said Rowena politely, although knowing very well that the smallest crumb would catch in her throat.

Peter measured four tablespoonfulls of coffee into the pot and poured boiling water over it to drip. Then he set the table with silverware of sorts and paper plates—"We never wash anything but silver and pans up here," he explained, "and toss a coin to see who has to do it." He laid out slices of cold roast beef, and liverwurst, potato salad, crackers and cheese. Then he opened a can of soup, adding an equal portion of water according to directions on the can.

"You see, when I think of providing for you as a good husband should," he said, "I can't get away from soup and crackers and cheese. The cheese trust ought to give you a discount. I wonder you haven't got a band of mice following you about. What a Pied Piper you'd be for Hamelin!"

Rowena laughed tolerantly. "Cheese is very good for one," she said.

Peter opened up a bottle of horse radish, put salt and pepper on the table, and sugar, cursing softly because he sad forgotten cream for the coffee. Then he filled a great bowl with fresh fruit for a center piece with candle-sticks around it.

"Here you are, Mrs. Blande," he said jauntily, and held a chair for her.

Rowena sank down, a little breathless, rather pale.

Just the barest fraction of an instant Peter hesitated. Then he lifted her face with a very determined fore-finger—and touched his lips to hers, faintly, almost timidly at first and then with stubbornly rising courage crushed them roughly. It was with quite an air of bold bravado that he went to his own chair opposite, but his face was flushed and his eyes did not meet hers.

Rowena threw off her nervousness in forced laughter.

"Oh, Pumpkin Eater," she said gaily, though her voice was that of one who has too little breath for a torrent of tumbling words, "fancy all this furor after three solid months of marriage."

"You won't be laughing about it three days from now," he said grimly.

"Oh, maybe I will," she answered cheerfully. "I'm one of the grandest little laughers you ever saw in your life."

He smiled at her suddenly. "Yes, you are, I'll say that for you. You are just great about—things like that."

Deftly he served a portion of salad and meat on a paper plate for her and poured the coffee.

"Sorry to have nothing better than canned cow for your wedding-night," he said.

"Oh, I adore canned cow. I always ask for it at all my weddings."

She was glad to have the coffee and drank it steaming hot although it scorched her throat. But she could not eat.

"Why don't you eat, Rowena?" he demanded.

"I'm not hungry."

"You're not nervous, I hope—not frightened, or anything."

"Not in the least. I'm just not hungry."

"Why aren't you hungry? You haven't had anything to eat for hours," he persisted stubbornly.

I never have much appetite, Peter. You know I never eat much."

But you haven't eaten anything. You usually eat something. You didn't even eat your adored soup. You're not sick, are you?"

"No." She smiled at him, the friendly warm smile that was genuinely Rowena. "I think maybe it's because I feel so sorry for you, Peter."

"Sorry—for—me—"

"Yes. Because you're doing such a very stupid thing and putting yourself in my power like this. I can do quite terrible things to you—after this—if I want to.—And I can be most frightfully mean—if I want to."

"Yes, I know that."

"You don't know anything yet," she asured him.

"Oh, well, I'm taking the chance."

When they had finished supper he cleared away the dishes quickly and shoved the table into its corner. Then he drew the big, high-backed divnan before the smoldering fire and heaped it with cushions, and turned out all the lights but left two candles glimmering on the mantel.

She did not hesitate but went over at once and sank among the cushions in the corner of the big divan. Peter sat beside her and drew her into his arms, and Constantine crouched at their feet. Rowena made no resistance. For some time they sat there, motionless and silent, both staring, a little awed and very sober, into the flickering fire. It was very still—the stillness seemed to touch them, to make them one with it. The light was low. Little soft scents of wood and pine and smoke crept out to them. Little soft sounds of night in the hills crept in to them. The chirr of katydids filled the air.

Suddenly Peter lifted his hand and drew her face toward him until her lips lay against his throat. His hand carressed her shining, bronze-gold hair.

"Close your eyes," he said. "It's quite dark here and I will not talk. Maybe you can forget it's only Peter and think it's some one you like."

Rowena lay very still, scarcely breathing, against him. He could feel her lips upon his throat quivering ever so little.

"Peter," she said.

"Mmmmm," he murmured indistinguishably.

"Who—whose cabin is it?"

He laughed softly. "Do— you care?"

Unconsciously she stiffened a little in his arms, her quivering lips grew firm. But she pressed more closely into the curve of his arm.

"No," she said firmly.

"It's my mother's," he said. "She likes this sort of thing."

Rowena relaxed and laughed a little tremulously. And the throbbing silence enfolded them warmly.

After a long while—"Peter," she said again.

"Mmmmmmm,"

"It's the third and last warning. —You'd better take me to town—take me right away quick—as fast as ever you can—"

"It's too late now."

"Too late is better than never," she said. "And pretty soon it will be never." Nnconsciously their voices had fallen to whispers. "It's never really too late—until it really is—too late," she added enigmatically. "Peter—believe me—you'd better—"

Again he laughed softly. "Why, Rowena, why?—You are my wife—"

"Because, if you don't—I warn you, Peter!—I'll never let you go again—never—as long as you live—and it will be too late for ever."

Even against the straining of her arms about him she wondered breathlessly if he would rise up at that and go away. But of course he didn't. He laughed again, an odd pleased laugh, and pressed his lips to her fragrant hair.

And Constantine murmured quite contentment at their feet.

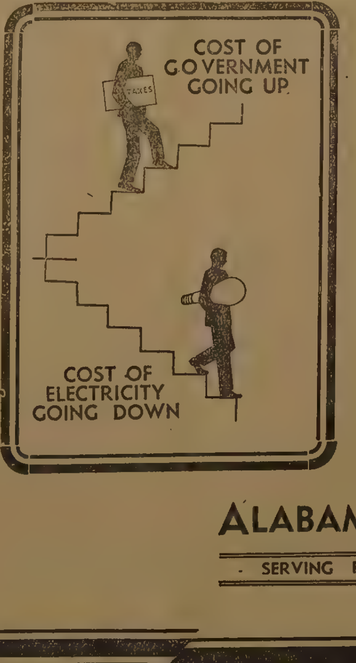
THE END

TAXES INCREASED 6 TIMES AS FAST AS THE BUSINESS

...but Electricity costs you LESS

Alabama Power Company pays over $1,900,000 a year in taxes. Taxes assessed against this Company have increased more than 6 times as fast as the business during the past ten years. They are now 2½ times what they were in 1925.

While the cost of government, as reflected by taxes paid by this Company as well as by every business and home owner, has steadily increased—the cost of electricity in the average home has grown steadily less. The average rate per kilowatt hour for home electric service was 37.1 higher in 1926 than in 1930.



COST OF GOVERNMENT GOING UP
TAXES
COST OF ELECTRICITY GOING DOWN

Under the American plan of business management, the citizenry sharing as stockholders, the number of towns and communities served in Alabama has increased over 1100% during the past 10 years—The service has been improved—millions have been expended for wages and materials in the home territory and the cost to the public has been lowered. Under the Alabama Public Utility Act and the regulation of the Public Service Commission the utility companies are required to economically and efficiently operate their properties.

As opposed to this, advocates of government ownership would offer you political management and experiments seemingly limited only by the depth of the tax-payers' pocket.

Local Seed Dealer Attends Interesting Meeting And Brings Back Some Important Data Of Interest To Farmers Of This Section

The following letter from Evan Parrish, local seed and plant dealer, is of importance to farmers:

Editor, the Chilton County News:

Will you please allow me a few lines in your valuable paper to say something that I believe will be of importance to every farmer in Chilton County?

A few days ago I attended a Seed Meeting in Birmingham, sponsored by our State Department of Agriculture. The meeting was attended by a group of seedsmen from different parts of the State, and presided over by our State Seed analyst, Mr. L. N. Allen, of Montgomery.

The purpose of this meeting was to explain our new seed laws to all its dealers throughout the state, and as to how dealers should protect themselves in buying misbranded seeds, and seeds of low vitality. Dealers are particularly cautioned against buying seeds from shippers who are not willing to back up their products—for example—in the buying of soy beans. There are two varieties identical in appearance. Namely, the o-too-tan and the black ebony. Yet there is quite a difference in the yield, and unless shippers give guarantee of variety dealers should refrain from buying from such irresponsible shippers.

From the above paragraph possibly you have concluded that I am writing this for the benefit of other seedsmen, but is it not of interest to the famer who buys his seeds and who has his whole years' work at stake, to be assured that he is getting seeds true to variety? Another thing that our state laws require, and that is a complete analysis of the seeds one buys. The wide-awake farmer can now demand of his local seedsman, the Purity, Germination, Weed Seed and the date of tests. Then if he is assured that the seeds will measure up requirements of State Laws, he can plant seeds with more satisfaction.

A few weeks ago your county agent published, through the columns of local papers, the fact that farmers who had seeds of any description to offer for sale should bring in samples and have them sent to state testing laboratory for analysis. This was a very good announcement, but I do not believe the importance was emphasized. In fact, one of the announcements carried no signature whatever.

Farmers are probably not aware of the fact that it takes two or three weeks to develop a test, and with samples coming in from every section of the state there will probably be a delay in getting out returns. Bring your samples in to your county agent, or your local seedsman and he will send them off for you and your report will be mailed direct to you. When you get this report, take care of it and when offering your seeds for sale, you can show the analysis which must be copied onto a tag and fastened on to receptacle from which the seed are being sold.

In getting your samples to send away do not select them, but bring samples that will look just like the balance of the seed you will be offering for sale. It is always best to have your seed as free from inert matter as possible, but if inert matter (hulls, trash, etc.) are to be offered for sale then the same inert matter should be shown in analyzation. In getting your sample, run your hand as far down into container of seed as possible and get sample from center.

For further information inquire of your local seedsmen.

Yours for more protection to the farmers.

EVAN PARRISH.

Restless, could not sleep

"THERE were days when I felt like I could not get my work done. I would get so nervous and 'trembly' I would have to lie down. I was very restless, and could not sleep at night.

My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."—Mrs. T. R. Gibson, Fort Payne, Ala.

Beautiful Colonial Tea Given By Music Appreciation Club.

A delightful social affair of the past week was the Colonial Tea given Friday afternoon by the Music Appreciation Club at the home of Mrs. Grady Broadhead. For this occasion the home was decorated with garlands of Southern smilax, masses of daffodils and flags.

Little Joan Atkinson and Jimmie Walker dressed as Martha and George Washington, received the silver contributions.

The tea table, presided over by Mrs. Omar Reynolds and Mrs. James Wade, was beautifully appointed. A silver bowl of white narcissus and blue hyacinths formed the center piece. Red tapers burned in silver candelabra. Miniature silk flags and hatchets were artistically arranged about the table.

Serving in the dining room were Mrs. W. M. Wyatt, Misses Mary Louise Pack and Jane Roberts.

During the afternoon a musical program arranged by Mrs. B. M. Roberts was rendered. Taking part on the program were Mesdames McGraw, Roberts, Misses Della Latham, Nell Wells, Mary Ellis, Emma Sue Morris, Jane Roberts, Helen Roberts and Joan Atkinson.

Others assisting in receiving were Mrs. Lawrence Gerald, president of the club, Mrs. W. M. Polk and Mrs. Arthur Johnson.

Too Much Government

We saw some startling figures the other day. If they are correct, and we have every reason to believe that they are, since they were compiled by the New York Sun, a responsible newspaper, then we have reached the position in this country when one-tenth of all the people are on the public payroll.

One hundred persons out of every thousand are taxeaters! That includes national, state, county, municipal, township and village employees. Add to those the number of pensioners and persons being supported by old age relief funds, in poorhouses, prisons, and insane asylums, and it is easy to believe, as Senator Metcalfe of Rhode Island asserts, that every six people in the United States are carrying a seventh on their backs.

That is the penalty we are paying for our easy policy of letting "government" do everything.. It is because of this enormous host of taxeaters that the burden of taxation has become almost too heavy to bear. There must be public officials to enforce and administer the laws, of course. There is no escaping from a certain percentage of public employees. But the inescapable tendency of our willingness to let professional politicians run our public affairs is to increase the number of jobs at public expense. Politicians hold their power by "taking care" of their supporters. We think it is foolish to expect them to change their own methods voluntarily. But we also think that unless there is a speedy curtailment of the cost of government, state, national and local, there is going to be a general uprising of indignant taxpayers who will throw all the politicians, of all parties, out of their jobs and compel them to go back to earning an honest living.

A Safe Place For Money

We like the plan, fathered by Col. Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News, for an issue of "baby" Government bonds to be offered to everybody in the effort to induce people who are afraid of banks and of other forms of investment to take their money out of hiding and put it where it will earn something and be useful.

These bonds, we understand, are to be issued in denominations as low as fifty dollars, and will pay interest at about 3 percent. If they are not safe, then nothing is. For these bonds to become worthless would mean that the government of the United States had collapsed, and there is no fear of that even among the most timid. We hope that some scheme will be worked out whereby they can be offered at every Post Office.

We still think the best place to put money is in a sound bank, but we can't criticize very severely the people who say they do not know how to tell whether a bank is sound or not. We are hopeful that the financial relief measures adopted at Washington will put an end to bank failures, but in the long run the whole banking structure will have to be revised.

The great majority of the banks which have failed in the past three years should never have been permitted to start business. Many of them were established over the protests of responsible financiers, whose objections were overridden by the political pull of the bank organizers. There should be no connection whatever between banks and politics, and no politician should ever be permitted to have a traceable interest in any bank. Politics is an industry whose operations are in the nature of favors; banking is a sacred trusteeship of other people's money and no honest banker can have a single favorite.

Relief For The Small Farmer

Farmers who find themselves short of cash or credit with which to finance their 1932 crops can borrow money under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, which provides that fifty million dollars is made available through the Secretary of Agriculture for crop-financing loans to farmers, and much more than that will be available if necessary.

These loans, Secretary Hyde announces, will be on an acreage basis and not more than $400 may be borrowed by any one farmer. This money must be used for the purchase of seed and the cultivation and harvesting of crops, and loans are to be secured by liens upon growing crops.

We think this is a pretty good arrangement for two or three reasons. In the first place, it is cheap financing for farmers, the interest rate being only five and one-half percent. In the second place, it is likely to result in teaching a good many farmers how to use credit in the same way a business man uses it. The kind of loans with which farmers are most familiar are mortgage loans on the security of their land. And if farmers, generally, take advantage of this process, it will distribute a large amount of working money throughout all of the agricultural regions, and every dollar so distributed will contribute many times its own value to the restoration of business activity and the benefit of the community in which it circulates.

We are sorry for the farmers of Connecticut and Pennsylvania where State laws prohibit the giving of liens upon crops. Farmers in those states will not be able to take advantage of this new line of credit.

We understand that local or county agents are to be named for the handling of applications for loans under this new plan, but anyone interested can find out all about it by writing direct to the Secretary of Agriculture at Washington.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"Success or failure in business is caused more by mental attitude even than by mental capacities."—Walter Dill Scott.

* * *

Due to something yet unexplained by the editor, this column of mine was cut off short last week, and left us standing upstairs in the Robinson Department Store Building, so we'll just start to begin to commence where we left off last week. We're on our way.

* * *

Still upstairs we find the office of Dr. J. P. Crumpton, dentist, who has as his assistant Miss Courtney. the little lady in white uniform. Then there is the office of Justice of the Peace T. W. Bryan, where court is held sometime. Mr. Bryan has with him as his secretary, his niece Miss Edna Bryan, who recently came here from Rhine, Ga.

* * *

Now we will get back down on the street and take a look into the office of the Farm Bureau and office of the County Agent, who is C. E. Stapp, the tall fellow you see there. The attractive young lady who is so busy over at the desk is Miss Zora Guy, secretary in the Farm Bureau's office, bookkeeper, and what have you. She has been in that office for a number of years and knows that business. Then there is J. D. Collins, who looks after the selling of feed, seed and the testing of cream shipments. All done under the efficient of Cohen E. Stapp, the county agent, and a blamed fine fellow.

The next door is where watches, clocks, guns, etc., are doctored by Mr. L. D. Popwell, who has been in that line of business in Clanton ever since I can remember, and he's still going strong at it. Mr. Popwell is his own secretary and assistant.

* * *

All the noise you hear now is in the next building where I. D. Armstrong operates the Clanton Shoe Shop, resoling and repairing shoes in general. A nice appearing shoe shop with competent assistants. I don't know the names of the fellows Mr. Armstrong has helping him, but they know their work all right.

* * *

We will now stop and chat awhile with the firm known as Wingard Brothers, where D. A. Wingard and W. W. Wingard hold forth, with D. A. Wingard at the helm. Here we also find Mrs. Wingard, who is handy at hemstitching and sewing. This is a general merchandise store.

* * *

Now we have arrived at the end of our tour, almost. This big building is occupied by the Clanton Building Supply Company, with Dewey Rockett and his father J. T. Rockett as overseers, with a large stock of hardware, furniture and other things. In there you also see Chester Mims, the fleshy fellow over behind the counter. Then there is Luther Teel, who also knows the hardware business. On the side where the little trinkets are is Mrs. Roberta Childress. And there are always some plumbers and carpenters around there too.

Just around the corner we find the Clanton Mattress Factory, with Frank Foshee as boss and his son Phillip, where mattresses and pillows are made, rebuilt, etc. Then upstairs are the Law offices of Hon. Raymond C. Smith, young attorney of Clanton. Mr. Smith's efficient secretary is Miss Melna Dial, the young lady you see in the first office there.

Now we've come to the place where a lot can be said. The stately courthouse of Chilton County. We'll try to make it as brief as possible, as we must get on with our journey. On the left as you go in you see the room of the Commissioners Court, while on the right is the office of the Circuit Clerk, with J. Z. Mims at the desk, and Mrs. Mims as his assistant.

Next on the left is the office of the Judge of Probate with L. H. Reynolds at the desk, having as his assistants Mrs. Odis Miller and Mrs. David Arant. On the right next is the office of the Tax Assessor with Akins Collins at the steering wheel and running nicely. He has as his assistant Mrs. Walter Robinson. Next on the right is the office of W. G. Culp, Tax Collector, and with Miss Cleo Broadhead as office assistant. Then comes the office of the "Law", meaning none other than the Sheriff's office, with W. H. Gillespie as boss of the outfit. Deputies are James Gillespie, Louis Gillespie and Delbert Norris, all husky, well trained and ready men. Sometimes Loss Robinson can be found there.

The next office you see on the right is that of W. D. Spigener, Register in Chancery. Mr. Spigener operates his end of the business alone, and very efficiently. Then comes the office of M. D. Foshee, who operates an abstract business. Upstairs we find the tidy office of Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, Treasurer of Chilton County, who also operates her part of the place, alone.

We might walk up to the building of the Educational system, which is next to the courthouse, and there we see Buford Lawrence, at the helm of this boat, as superintendent. Mr. Lawrence has as his competent assistant Mrs. Marion Smith. We also find Miss Madge Scarborough up there as Elementary Supervisor, and Mrs. C. E. Stapp, as attendance officer.

I see right now that this column will not be able to get down to the corner of Upchurch's this week, but we'll just take you as far as we can, so across the street from the courthouse we will go. There is the Woco-Pep station. Here we find the office and warehouse of R. J. Sumner, wholesale distributor of Woco-Pep. With him is "Doodle" Gore, Bill White, and E. L. Powell, who run the big trucks. In the same building is the service station, operated by one Mr. G. M. (Mon) Wyatt, who knows that business. Then there is Reuben Wyatt and Guthrie Johnson, who help Mr. Wyatt in this business.

Next stop on the corner is M. A. Gore's feed store, where there is a lot of flour, seed, feed and other things. Mr. Gore has been in business on that corner for a long time. This building has an upstairs to it, but we will go up there when we are on the other side of this block.

Right next door is the grocery department of the Clanton Cash Store, with O. D. DeLoach as chief of the tribe, having as others with him, Eli Moates and Jack Mims. Eli runs the meat market end, while the others sell groceries.

Now here we are at the Dry Goods department of the Clanton Cash Store where we find none other than Jesse Baker as high mogul. Mr. Baker has been in business here a long time, and has Mrs. Lonza Robinson as one of his efficient clerks in this place.

We will have to cut this trip a little short this week, and continue next week. Stay with us the fun is just starting.

This Paper Will Give Daily Trip Adventures Scouts

The Chilton County News is making arrangements with the scout executive to have one of his scouts write a daily 'news letter' of his happenings while en route and at the Olympic Games in Los Angeles this summer and also of his return trip.

Four lads who are scouts in this Central Alabama Area Council will leave with Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sigwald early the morning of July 26th and by auto go 2500 miles across interesting and historic routes to the 10th Olympic in Los Angeles. The Carlsbad Caverns will be seen on the outgoing trip.

The scouts and party will spend a week at the Games seeing Percy Beard of Auburn as he makes his attempt to hold the 100 m Hudles in the huge Olympic stadium. Many other competitions between the fifty-odd nations to take part will be seen by the boys. This includes the night football game between three Eastern Colleges and Three Western Colleges. Other items are too numerous to mention at this time.

The way back by the Grand Canyon, Petrified Forest and the cattle country as well as crossing the Mojave Desert will be an 'ever-to-be-remembered experience' for the Scout who will write for this paper.

Brief News Notes

"Every good farmer needs good livestock on his farm and good livestock require good permanent pastures. These should be started in February or March. Consult your county agent."—J. C. Lowery, Auburn.

A recent press dispatch from Germany says that the index of wholesale prices in Germany at the beginning of 1932 was back to the pre-war level. However, livestock prices had fallen 36 per cent below the 1913 index and raw materials 7½ per cent.

A white leghorn hen (owned by Egg-a-Day Farm, Spartanburg, S. C.) produced 93 eggs in 93 days in the egg-laying contest now in progress at Auburn, Alabama. Beginning late in November she never missed a day until February. These 93 eggs weighed approximately three times her own weight.

At two cooperative sales of poultry held at Roanoke in Randolph County poultrymen received $1,244.44 for 10,290 pounds of poultry. Poultrymen were well pleased with the results.

On the national 4-H radio program which will be broadcast on March 5 by Station WAPI Birmingham between the hours of 11:00 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Alabama time, a prominent Alabamian will be heard in the person of Dr. I W. Hill, now with the U. S. Department of Agriculture but formerly state superintendent of education in Alabama.

American trade experts stationed in London have estimated that about half of the products exported from the United States to Great Britain are affected by the new British tariff. The calculation is based on trade statistics for 1930. That year the value of exports from the United States to Great Britain was $767,485,000.

Mrs. Nett Hubbard Passes February 21

Born November 7, 1854; died February 21, 1932. A lovely character gone from the walks of life, whose charms and Christian life, portrayed in her words, thoughts and deeds, a spirit of love, an influence sweeping through a vast throng of personages with whom she was thrown in contact. Yielding untold devotion, a building of ties unsevered, even at the call of death. Ever patiently yielding submissively to the prolonged days and nights, where her body bore the burden of disease, gradually menacing the vital organs that functioned her purpose in life, and until the candle of her life gradually grew dim and obscured by the ravages of disease.

She was ever appreciative of deeds of kindness and affection shown her. She was a lover of home and her church being a life long member of the Baptist church of Macedonia, near Maplesville, at which place she was laid to rest. The cortege to the cemetery was evidence of a vast number who held her in their high esteem in life.

She was a resident of Chilton County, until 15 years ago, when she cast her lot with her granddaughter, Mrs. J. L. Kincaid, of Bessemer, Ala., at which place she died.

"Nannie," as she was called by those most dear, spent her wedded life with Mr. D. C. Hubbard, who preceded her to the grave in 1912.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. D. Nix, of Maplesville, one son, Mr. Vernon L. Hubbard of Wilton, Ala. seven grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

"To Nannie" we ascribe these lines:

The roses of love glad the garden of life,
Though nurtured 'mid weeds dropping pestilent dew,
Till time crops the leaves with unmerciful knife,
Or prunes them forever in loves last adieu.

In vain with endearments we soothe the sad heart,
In vain do we vow for an age to be true,
The chance of an hour may command us to part,
Or "Death" disunite us in love's last adieu.

Still hope, breathing peace through the grief-swollen breast,
Will whisper, "Our meeting we may yet renew"
With this dream of deceipt half our sorrows repress,
Nor taste we the poison of love's last adieu.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD— THE HOPE OF THE WORLD

Dear Editor:

Please allow me a short space in your paper to say a few words concerning the Bible. Jesus taught us to pray: "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Matt. 6:10.

God used men and women to make types and shadows. He said to Abram, "And in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." Gen. 12:3. "For all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever." Gen. 13:15. "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Gen. 22:18.

We learn from the Bible that Christ is the seed. Gal. 3:16. Jesus Christ is to have associated with him 144,00. Rev. 7:4. "These were redeemed from among men." Rev. 14:4. These will sit with Christ in His throne in judgment, Rev. 3:21. "And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." Rev. 20:4.

Judgment Day is a thousand years. Rev. 20:2, II Pet. 3:8. It is through the Christ that the people will be blessed. There is a remnant of the body of Christ on earth, which belongs to no nominal church. These heard the voice, "Come out of her, my people." Rev. 18:4.

When this gospel of the kingdom is preached for witness, then the Battle of Armageddon will come. Matt. 24:14. God will destroy everything that is not in harmony with His kingdom, but, before the destruction cometh from the Almighty God, he will warn the people through His witnesses.

Satan will be bound a thousand years which means a time of restitution. Restitution means to restore the willing and obedient back in harmony with God, and live on the earth forever. Acts 3:21, meaning this: The people will be given everlasting life on the earth—the willing and obedient people.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:3. "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. 5:5. "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." Ps. 37:29.

Yours for the truth,
W. A. COKER,
Clanton, Ala., Rt. 6.

Foursquare Church News Chilton County

Our Sunday school is growing fast; every Sunday new faces are to be seen in the several classes.

There will be no mid-week service this week, because of repair work being done on the building. The old tower is being torn away. Plans call for the addition of new rooms, to be used as prayer rooms, Sunday school rooms, Crusader room, and a commissary. Services will be held next Sunday, although the building will be in an unfinished condition. We invite all who have no church home to come and worship with us.

Sunday school at 9:45 Sunday morning. A class for every age from the Cradle Roll department, to the adult classes.

Morning worship at 11:00 A. M. As this is the first Sunday of the month, there will be communion service.

At 6:30 P. M. the Crusader meeting will be held with Mrs. Pearl Mims in charge.

The evangelistic service will begin at 7:30. Rev. H. H. Caswell, evangelist and pastor, will speak on "A Three Days Journey." Everyone who will be saved must take this three day journey—what is it? There will be special music at every service.

Thorsby Institute News

The Christian Endeavor Society was led by Gerald Smith and Jack Higgins. Questions and topics as to what the good Christian Endeavor or a similar organization does for young people were given. It was also consecration meeting so that the roll was called. The Executive Committee minutes were also read.

The dormitory of Thorsby Institute wishes to thank Mrs. Christ who has kindly contributed vegetables several times recently. It is a big help to re. ceive such things.

Thursday afternoon the Home Economics girls of Chilton County High School played the Thorsby Institute girls. This was the first game the T. I. girls have played with an outside team as games ae generally intra-mural. The Chilton County girls won. The score was 28 to 8.

On March 19 there will be an open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society. A French and a Latin play will be given. One will be able to follow the plays by the action of the players.

STATE POULTRYMEN HAVE 37,758 BIRDS TESTED

To improve their flocks Alabama poultrymen had 37,758 birds tested for B. W. D. (pullorum disease) during the past year, reports R. B. Jones, state department of agriculture poultry inspector.

Tests were made in the state laboratories at Auburn under the supervision of Dr. C. A. Cary, state veterinarian. There were 2,715 reactors.

Mr. Jones reports there are 28 accredited hatchereies in Alabama and that a list of these and of the accredited and certified flocks in the state will be furnished anyone writing the department of agriculture for it.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

We are going to make March a go to church month. Wonder how many people in Clanton who will see to it that you attend church every Sunday and every service, during the month of March? We are going to test you out on Easter Sunday night and see. Going to church is not a duty, it is a privilege. Resolve now, that you will be in your place each Sunday for one whole month.

One fourth of this Conference year is now gone. Play fair with your soul life and with the God whom you worship, and bring to the service next Sunday one fourth of your obligation for the year.

Sunday school at 9:45. Preaching at 11 A. M. and at 7:30 P. M. Please note that the night service has been changed to seven-thirty.

We note many visitors in our congregation. We are glad to have you. If you have no church home, come thou with us and we will do thee good.

Charged with desertion, Charles Grannis of Chicago pleaded he had to leave home because his wife's parents came there often and beat him.

Michael Colloran of Los Angeles revived while a wake was being held over his supposed corpse and objected to "all this noise."

For Treasurer

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Treasurer of Chilton County, Alabama, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held on May 3rd, 1932. I will appreciate your vote and influence.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I saw an older brother of mine do a foolish thing. We were waiting at the pasture gate and the mule that my brother plowed and rode came near us and stood like an animal of confidence and safety. My brother walked up to him and leaped to his back. The mule had no objection, but when he felt the spurs digging into his ribs, he turned and made for the pine thicket with all of his speed. The faster he would run the deeper would the spurs dig into his side. The mule being without a bridle, could go where he pleased, and the thoughtless, daring boy, could do nothing but hold on and yell for help. He had plenty of time to see how foolish it was to ride a wild mule wthout a bridle. At our house that night mother had to patch a shirt, and pour turpentine on scrathed arms and a bleeding back. That ride was not half so foolish as is to be seen among many people of today. When you see a man, or a woman, riding the ways of pleasure without restraint, you may expect broken ties and bleeding hearts. When we ride our temper, our pride, our passions, with the bridle pulled off, it is not far down the road before there will be a calamity. You had better put a good bridle on yourself, and then ride as master of yourself. A good bridle is a mighty good thing to have when a fellow is going to ride a wild mule.

And it came to pass that a certain young man in a certain Alabama town decided that he would make some easy money for himself, and so he rented a hall and printed in box car letters the sign that told of the line of his business and the hours when the business open and close. Then he took to his feet and went from store to store and from house to house and told about his business, and urged his friends to patronize his shop. There was to be music and waxed floors, evening gowns and rare perfumes. There were promised for beauty and winsome smiles, there were hours of merriment for all. In due time the doors were opened and a crowd of young men, and a few who were older, came in to slop and slide. They stood around as sober as judges, and looked for what they never saw. Wonder why these young fellows did not embrace each other and make use of that waxed floor and that waiting music. Soon they began to break off one at a time, and before long the place of business was announced to close there were no customers in sight. That business went dead. There was shouting in heaven because the mothers of that town refused to furnish daughters as the drawing card to that business. So endeth the parable, Amen and Amen.

Well do I remember that Sunday afternoon when a company of boys found their way to a hillside where there were tall oak trees and long grape vines hanging by the tree trunks. The old relible barlow knife was called into service, and soon the grape vine was cut in two. I swung down upon the vine to see if it was secure among the branches of the tree. I had located a choice swing. I climbed the hillside and holding to the grape vine I let myself go. I swung out and out, until I was among the branches of a Beech tree, when the grapevine gave way, and down I came. I remember until this day that sickening feeling that comes in the fall. There was a terrible thud, and then I was literally covered with trash and a long vine that coiled about me like a snake. I got that fall because I put my faith in something that was not securely woven into the limbs far above my head. Many a hard fall comes to men and women today because they swing out on things that are not safe. The next vine that was cut, not one, but a half dozen boys swung down upon it to see that it was safe. There are many vines in this world that are not safe. Swing out on the vine of smoking, drinking, Sabbath descration, profanity and the like, and you will be literally "Busted" in the fall that is sure to come.

A Georgia friend told me this story. This man's father had a five acre field back of his barn, and it produced corn and cockleburr in profusion. The farmer was the proud owner of a fine gray mare and a big billy goat. Both had been turned into that five acre plot after the corn was gathered. The mare had long hair on her tail. and the cockleburrs had matted it until it was a sight. One cold morning in November the old mare was standing by the barn in the sunshine when the Billy Goat came up behind her and began to rub his head on the matted tail. It felt good to his hard head, and he rubbed vigorously. Finally his long horns caught about the center of the tail that was matted with burrs, and the mare decided to move about the same time. That forced the horn through the hair of the tail, and old billy started to jerking. The mare became frightened and started off in a trot. Billy murmured "wait a minute please", but the horse picked up in speed. Billy could not get his horn from its tangle and soon he was a kite flying clear of everything behind the racing animal. The old mare ran around that five acre field five times, and every fifty or a hundred yards billy would cry,"Wait!" On the fifth lap his horn let go and billy fell over in a fence corner and rolled against the fence with a thud. He staggered to his feet and looking toward the mare he said, "Blame fool!" It is not everything that feels good and that tastes good that is safe to tamper with.

MT. PLEASANT DEFEATS COLLINS CHAPEL 22 TO 4

A large number witnessed the two basketball games last Friday, when the boys and girls from Mt. Pleasant motored over to Collins Chapel where they added two more victories to their season's record. The girls won over the Collins Chapel lassies by the low, close score of 4 to 3, while the boys easily rung up their victory by the large score of 22 to 4.

The girls game was hard fought, both sides struggling for possession of the ball, but the visitors succeeded in looping 2 field goals, while the home team could only net one field goal and register one point by foul shot. Both sides missed numerous shots.

The boys game proved to be entirely too slow and dull. The Mt. Pleasant boys getting about the worst game of their career out of their system. They were guilty of too much individual play and this resulted in their missing many crip shots. Curtis Traywick was pitifully off his usual form. He accounted for only 10 points, Burnett following closely with 8. Acock, center for Collins Chapel, looped their only field goal.

Some Highlights Of The Life Of Senator John A. Darden, of Goodwater, Alabama

Candidate For President Of Alabama Public Service Commission

Following are some highlights on the life of Senator John A. Darden, furnished this newspaper:

The history of Senator John A. Darden of Goodwater, candidate for the President of the Alabama Public Service Commission on a platform in the interests of the masses of the people of the state, reveals a life of early struggles against poverty and adverse circumstances in his fight for an early education.

Born of poor parents, who died when he was less than 12 years of age, by hard work, perseverance and undaunted courage, he has worked his way thru the public schools of Coosa County, the Agricultural School at Sylacauga and the University of Alabama. He learned early in life how to work and has never forgotten how. He has farmed, worked at saw mills, taught school, run a country paper and has practiced law for more than 25 years, 8 years of which he was County Solicitor for Coosa County.

He has served two terms in the House of the Alabama Legislature and is now serving his first term in the Senate. In all his work he has shown marked ability, loyalty to the needs of the masses of the people of the state and has ever worked for their benefit.

SENATOR JOHN A. DARDEN

His campaign for President of the Alabama Public Service Commission, on a platform which will give the people cheaper gas, water and electricity and eliminate many obnoxious practices now in effect, is sweeping the state.

NOTICE OF FILING OF BILL OF COMPLAINT by the State of Alabama, Complainant vs. One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, Respondent.

State of Alabama, Complainant. vs. One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, Respondent.

In the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama in Equity.

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 12th day of February, 1932, one Dewey Price did transport in one Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said automobile was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and decreed that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for two successive weeks in Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all person claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 18 day of April, 1932, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand, this the 26 day of February, 1932.

Junior's Column

BROTHERS

"Aw, mother, must I let Jack play with my marbles?" asked Edward.

"Why, son, he can't hurt them can he?"

"He'll lose all of them and then I won't have any when Jim an' Joe an' Phillip an' all the rest come over here."

"How many marbles have you?" asked mother with a twinkle in her eyes.

"About two hundred," replied Edward crossly.

"Here you can have six, but I know they'll all be lost when I get home from school." Though Edward knew that Jack liked the brighter colored ones best, he sullenly gave him six of the dull colored marbles. He hastily picked up his books and ran to catch the other boys as they passed going to school. He soon forgot his crossness in the eager plans of the crowd for a climb up the mountain the next day for nuts. With school work and playtime, Edward was kept too busy to think of Jack and his precious marbles.

What a good time Jack had rolling marbles! These dull ones didn't sparkle and whirl pretty colors as they rolled on the floor, but they would move. His blocks wouldn't move. They stayed right where he put them. His cars would move only when he pushed or pulled them, but the marbles, once started, would roll and roll. Sometimes they would roll under the desk and hide; sometimes they would hide under the couch and what a good time he did have finding them!

After awhile Jack grew tired of rolling the marbles and finding them. He let them stay hidden, some behind the radio and others under the desk. He climbed upon the couch and went to sleep. Before long mother came in to see why he was so quiet. It wasn't like her lively little boy to be so still. He slept until noon, when Edward came in asking where his marbles were. Jack could not remember at once where they were then he said, "Oh, they are hiding under the desk and behind the radio." Edward got them and put them away with the others.

Jack was not well. He did not play much that afternoon and by the next morning he was really ill. His mother called the doctor. He came and said Jack must stay in bed.

Long before Edward had finished his Saturday morning's work, the crowd came by for him to go with them to get nuts. Mother gave him permission to go, as mothers usually do, though she needed his help on Saturdays and she needed his help while Jack was sick.

The climb was great fun. Nuts were abundant and they soon found all they wanted. They found so many pleasant things to do that the time flew past for most of them, but one boy in the crowd was not having the good time he usually had on such jaunts. His mind kept going back to his unfinished tasks and to the small brother, too sick to play. Edward was glad when the crowd decided to go home.

After being sick for several days Jack began to improve. How he did enjoy getting well! And indeed he had reason to, for his big brother whom he adored was with him the very first minute possible after school was out. That same big brother gave him a handful of the pretty, whirling, rainbow colored marbles for his very own.

And Edward? Oh, Edward was not cross to Jack any more, instead he was anxious to find ways to amuse him and make him happy. He forgot that he had once thought more of his marbles than of Jack's pleasure; but he remembered that Jack always tried to do just what he did and that it was up to him to be the kind of boy that he wanted his brother to be.

ANTI-HOARDING CAMPAIGN IS TO BE STARTED

Statement From Chairman Explains Purpose Of New Project

The recently inaugurated anti-hoarding campaign which is to be put into working order over the United States is creating considerable interest. In commenting on this campaign in Alabama, Donald Comer, state chairman, has the following to say:

"The anti-hoarding campaign in Alabama will not be an intensive drive to sell bonds as we did in the Liberty Loan campaign during the World War. The Alabama Committee plans no house-to-house solicitation of subscriptions.

"Its sole purpose is to call to the attention of those who are holding 'timid money' out of circulation that this money may be exchanged for U. S. Government bonds which carry the same guarantee by the Government that the money carries and in addition will pay two per cent interest.

"These bonds will be available on March 15. They will be redeemable by the holder at full value at any time on 60 days' notice.

"The week beginning March 6, will be devoted to intensive educational efforts to let the citizens of Alabama know that these bonds will be available in exchange for 'timid money' which is being held out of circulation. Sunday, March 6, of that week has been officially proclaimed by Governor B. M Miller as "Faith-In-Your-Nation" Sunday in Alabama, when all pastors are asked to refer to this movement in their sermons. During the week speakers will be asked to appear before all group meetings to acquaint them with the purpose of the campaign. Local communities are asked to organize their own efforts along this line.

"Again it is emphasized that the sole purpose of the campaign in Alabama is to bring 'timid money' back into the regular channels of circulation by offering to exchange for it interest-bearing U. S. Government bonds which carry the same guarantee by the Government that the money itself carries. We are concerned only with 'timid money' now out of circulation and do not wish to disturb any money already in the regular channels of circulation."

of 10 per cent, by volume, of the strawberries in any lot shall be allowed for defects causing serious damage, but not to exceed 3-10 of this amount or 3 per cent, shall be allowed for strawberries affected by decay.

In addition, not more than 5 per cent, by volume, of the strawberries in any lot may be below the specified minimum size.

Definitions Of Terms

As used in these grades:

"Overripe" means dead ripe, becoming soft, a condition unfit for shipment and necessitating immediate consumption.

"Underripe" means so immature that less than two-thirds of the surface of the berry is of pink or red color.

"Undeveloped" mean not having attained a normal shape and development owing to frost injury, lack of pollination, insect injury, or other causes. "Button" berries are the most common type of this condition.

"Damage" means any injury from the causes mentioned which materially affects the appearance, edible or shipping quality.

"Serious damage" means that the strawberries are soft, badly deformed, badly bruised, leaky, or otherwise seriously injured. Strawberries which are caked with dirt or which show no pink or red color shall be considered seriously damaged.

"Diameter" means the greatest dimension at right angles to straight line running from the stem to the apex.

either serve as managers or appoint substitutes who shall conduct said election.

The polls shall be opened at 8:30 A.M. and close at 2:30 P.M. The managers shall then canvass the ballots and certify the results to the County Superintendent of Education.

Those elected as trustees must be legal voters.

Those voting in the election must be patrons of the school from which the trustees are being elected. They may or may not be legal voters.

The word patron is defined by the Attorney General of the State in an opinion rendered Feb. 20, 1931 as: "Those persons residing in the definite territory served by the school who are parents, guardians, or custodians of children who are in attendance upon such school, and who are eligible to attend."

Joe Hall Johnson First To Register For Scout Camp

Scout Joe Hall Johnson is the first to register for the 1932 season of Camp Spring Villa, the popular Scout camp for this Clanton District Boy Scouts according to Camping Chairman John Hollis. Young Johnson registered for the full three weeks of the camp. Those scouts who will only stay one week at the camp will go the week of July 18th to 25th. Joe will start his camp experience June 4th. Others in the Clanton District troops which include Lay Dam, Thorsby and Mitchell Dam besides Clanton will register within the next few weeks. Last year over a dozen local scouts enjoyed Camp Spring Villa.

The scout executive on his visit last week visited the troops and reported to Local Chairman C. E. Stapp that they were all in good condition and were all at work on the scoutcraft Jamboree to take place in Auburn Friday, May 6th. Last year the local boys even tho it was their first Jamboree, brought home a number of 'first awards'.

The Cub Pack at Mitchell Dam will soon erect a flag pole with a new American Flag. Cubmaster MacRay is doing a good job as leader of these prescout age lads.

Scouting needs and deserves the support of every citizen in Chilton County. One only need watch the scouts in their activities to see that to them this movement means everything that stands for good clean fun and instruction in the better traits that make the finest citizens.

RECENT FREEZE HERE DAMAGES STRAWBERRIES

Associations To Have Berries Shipped Under State And Federal Inspection

The strawberry crops of Chilton County were damaged considerably by the freeze that struck this section recently, according to authorities on the subject. However, a bright outlook is seen for the next crop in approximately sixty days, it was stated.

Arrangements have been made for strawberries shipped in carlots from Thorsby, Clanton and Jemison this year to be shipped under federal and state certificate.

This has been announced by managers of the Thorsby Clanton and Jemison fruit and truck growers associations who declare that the inspection service of the state and federal departments of agriculture will assist in establishing the fact that Chilton county produces high quality berries.

Managers of Thorsby and Jemison Fruit and Truck Growers Associations have worked out plans for inspection and for complete market news service from the department of agriculture. Managers of the Chilton County associations are C. R. Foss, Thorsby; S. P. Shaw, Jemison and L. E. Diefenderfer, Clanton.

Over 100 cars are expected to be shipped from the county. Last year 91 cars moved from Thorsby, 39 cars from Clanton and 32 from Jemison, making a total of 160 cars moved from the county during the season.

State strawberry producers expect to advertise Alabama to the nation this Spring by shipping Federal and State inspected strawberries to northern and eastern markets.

Annually Alabama produces from seven to twelve million quarts of strawberries. Records compiled by the department of agriculture show in 1931, 10,176,000 quarts.

Strawberry acreage in Alabama is slightly larger this year than last, reports F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, who estimates the acreage this year at 4,100 acres compared with 3,850 last year.

John Ezell Is Selected On Staff

Scout John Ezell, son of Rev. S. J. Ezell, one of the Patrol Leaders of Troop 47 of Clanton has been selected as the Clanton District's representative on the Junior Camp Staff announces Camping Chairman, John Hollis, of the Clanton District. The Scout Executive is well pleased that this young Scout will be one of his helpers and he has already been designated as the staff leader in charge of all woodwork, carpentry and kindred subjects.

Each day at the camp improvement period John will assist the campers in building benches, repairing cabins and other minor carpentry duties.

Prof. A. Carnes, on his weekly visits to camp will have John as his assistant in teaching the Merit Badge subjects that require the use of hammer, saw, nails, wood, etc.

There are other duties that John will have but none more important than the nightly planning the next days program with the other Junior and Senior members of Camp Spring Villa. This assures each day of camp being a little better than the last.

THIS MONTH IS OUTSTANDING FOR KIWANIANS

Programs Planned For Next Three Weeks Have Many Splendid Features

The program for today's luncheon of the Clanton Kiwanis Club will include several peppy songs and musical numbers, with talks by local citizens, reports of various committees of the club to be made, and any business that may come before the members.

Last Thursday's luncheon was among the outstanding of the year. A well prepared and tastefully seasoned lunch started things off in the right way, along with the enthusiasm displayed in songs by Cohen Stapp. Two visiting speakers, guests of the club, were present and a new slant on present conditions of agriculture and industries was given the club in the talks by these two men, Dr. L. M. Jackson, and J. L. Liles, the latter being County Farm Agent of Jefferson County. Earle Thomas had charge of the program.

Mr. Liles' address was most interesting, as he gave some very important figures and information concerning the farm life of the state. Attendance last Thursday was only a little off with two members absent. A full attendance is expected today.

This month will bring two brilliant entertainment for the Kiwanians of Clanton, when these old timers will have the ladies on two consecutive programs. On March 17th the Kiwanis Club will hold the annual "Ladies' Night" which is always looked forward to by the members of the club, and those who are fortunate enough to be invited as guests. On the night of March 22, the Clanton Pilot Club will entertain the Kiwanis Club at a banquet.

Legion Sponsors Plan To Aid Unemployed

Chilton County Post Making Effort To Help Give Work To Those Who Are In Need; Citizens Asked To Cooperate With Local Post

All over the United States, the American Legion has started a movement that if successful, will aid greatly in helping those persons who are in need and are willing to work. There is no reason why this idea should not succeed, and at present it is being put into use in many places. The Legion Posts over the country establish a headquarters where the people of their respective sections turn in any odd jobs of work they wish to have done. The post then gives this job to someone who had applied to them for work.

The Chilton County Post of the American Legion has already put underway their part of this nation-wide program, and R. D. Woodson, commander of the local post, states that so far it is working out successfully. An employment officer for the Chilton County Post of the Legion has been appointed and headquarters established. A. L. (Lonza) Robinson is the employment officer here and is located at the Robinson Garage and Machine Shop in Clanton.

The people of Clanton and surrounding section are asked to cooperate with the local Legionnaires in this work. Anyone who has an odd job of work at their home or place of business, that someone can do, may call Mr. Robinson, and this job will be listed, and an unemployed person who needs aid, will be sent to do the work. It doesn't have to be a large job, even a half days work will help.

There has been some criticism in the past concerning the American Legion, because some of its spokesmen have given the impression that they were more concerned with bonuses and beer, than with unselfish service. But this campaign is evidence that the men who wore the American uniform in the World War are really making a great effort and taking a fine step toward being of service to their country, even in times of peace.

What Would You Have Printed In Your Copy Of The Paper Each Week If It Was Printed According To Your Own Likes?

That is a question that almost every, if not all newspapers would like to know. What would you like in your copy of the Chilton County News each week, and what is it that you do not like?

It is believed that people in every walk of life read this newspaper, and each one probably has his or her idea about what they would like to read and about the things that could be left out each week so far as they are concerned.

For a little fun, the News invites its readers to write in and tell them what are the things in their copy of the paper they like most each week, and what are the things they don't like.

Maybe you don't like the way news articles are written, or maybe you do. Maybe you don't like the editorials and maybe someone else does like them. Maybe you don't care a rip about the social section, and maybe that's the reason you take the paper.

Anyway, just write to the News about the things you like or don't like in the paper. You may sign your name, but no names will be published with the comments. Do not make your comment too long, and do not hesitate to tell the things you don't like, as well as the things you do like to read in the News.

This tournament is composed of eight of the crack independent teams of the county and should be one of thrills from the beginning to the end. The teams must be ready to play at the regular schedule time. Each team will be given passes for eight players. The season tickets will be twenty-five cents each, or the same for one game. Below is the drawing for the first round:

Concord vs. Enterprise.

Billingsley vs. Collins Chapel.

Union Grove vs. Providence.

Mt. Pleasant vs. Thomas Junior.

COUNTY BOARD RECEIVES $8,072.30 FROM THE STATE

The Chilton County Educational system received a warrant from the State Department of Education this week in the amount of $8,072.30, to apply on salaries, according to B. Lawrence, superintendent of education.

However, Mr. Lawrence stated, this amount is hardly half enough to pay even one scholastic payroll of this county. It was stated that the amount now due from the state for educational purposes in this county is approximately $46,000.00.

MT. PLEASANT IS SCHOOL WINNER IN TOURNAMENT

Basketball Tournament Takes Place In Clanton Over Past Week End

(Reported to News)

The basket-ball season in Chilton County Junior High Schools ended last Saturday night with the Mt. Pleasant Juniors emerging victorious over the Thomas Juniors in the final, via the forfeit route.

With the Mt. Pleasant team leading 7 to 3 soon after the second quarter opened, one of the Thomas Junior players committed a personal foul, then quickly followed with a disqualifying foul which resulted in his expulsion from the game. At this point the Thomas Junior team was called off the floor by their coach and principal, which automatically resulted in a forfeit game to Mt. Pleasant, 2 to 0.

These two teams had been successful in winning in the opening games that morning, and then coasting to easy victories in the semi-finals that afternoon.

The first game of the day was between Thomas and Stanton with the Stanton team being eliminated by the count of 15 to 12. The game was played well, with both teams putting up a brave stand for victory.

The second game drew Concord against Baker, with Concord trimming their opponents by the score of 18 to 7.

The third game following with Mt.

Mrs. Stapp Named As Committee Chairman

Mrs. C. E. Stapp, superintendent of Child Welfare for Chilton County, has been named County Chairman of the Membership Committee of the Alabama Conference of Social Work which will meet in annual session in Mobile, April 10th to 12th, announced Richard Hudson, President of the Conference today.

The Social Workers meet each year to discuss the social, welfare and health problems of the state. Prominent social workers from other states, as well as from Alabama, are invited to appear on the program and bring to social workers, public officials and interested individuals, the benefits of their experiences throughout the nation.

Mr. Hudson stated that every person interested in the welfare of the people of Alabama should be interested in the Conference and that membership in the Conference was open to everyone interested in social betterment.

The officers of the Conference are: President, Richard Hudson, Birmingham; 1st vice president, Miss Florence Van Sickler, Mobile; 2nd vice president Miss Loula Dunn, Montgomery; secretary, Miss Margaret Shook, Montgomery; treasurer, Mr. E. B. Robinson, Talladega.

FARM INFORMATION

Soy Bean Seed Production For Farm Needs

J. C. Lowery, Extension Agronomist
Otootans — Laredos — Mammoth Yellows

Several hundred thousand dollars are sent out of Alabama every year for soybean seed which should be grown at home. Many farmers fail to plant soybeans because they do not have the money to pay for the seed.

Each year thousands of dollars are lost because farmers fail to receive the variety of beans which they purchased losing not only the purchase price of the seed but in many cases a crop of hay.

Whether the farmer is a landlord or a tenant he can produce his own soybean seed.

Suggestions:

1. a. One half acre of land as a soybean seed plot will produce sufficient seed for the average two horse farm.

b. Plant soybeans between the hills of a few acres of corn when planting the corn will give a good supply of seed. This plan has been followed very successfully by many farmers of this state especially in producing Otootan seed.

c. Another method is to plant rows of soybeans between watermelon rows, between rows of first year kudzu, or on terraces.

2. Plant when danger of killing frost is past and by the first of June.

3. If planted alone, plant rows wide enough to permit one or two light cultivations.

4. Apply either basic slag or superphosphate when planting the soybeans.

5. Harvesting. Ottotans may be left in the field until the leaves have fallen. Cut with a scythe or mow when there is sufficient dew to prevent serious shattering. It is customary with Otootans interplanted in corn to cut the vines out with a hoe, gather up bunrles and frail them across the wagon body, later cleaning up the seed thus collected.

Mammoth Yellows and Laredos should be mowed after the seed are fully developed but before they are so mature as to permit much shattering.

6. Threshing. Where only a small quantity of seed for home use is being saved place the vines when very dry, on a sheet, tight floor, or in a tight wagon body and beat out with sticks.

If a thresher is available the concaves should all be replaced with boards and the drum slowed down so as to prevent excessive cracking.

Soy Bean Seed Production for Market

Many farmers desire to produce soybean seed for sale. The average man producing seed for use on his farm will frequently have a few bushels to sell during February and March. Farmers should be encouraged to form the habit of selling a few extra soybeans seed just as in the past they have been selling some cowpeas during the late winter.

However, there is need for certain sections to develop commercial soybean seed production. Several counties have produced a car or more of seed in 1931.

Suggestions:

1. Varieties. Otootans, Laredos, and Mammoth Yellows are the most important. There is greater need for Otootans than any other variety since it is our best hay variety. The Laredo is the safest variety for the lands infected with cotton wilt.

2. In commercial production of seed a sufficient number of farmers should agree to grow the same variety to insure a production of at least 400 or 500 bushels, estimating a yield of about 8 to 10 bushels when planted alone and two or three bushels when planted in corn. However, the acre yield of soybeans will vary widely from year to year.

3 The growers should be grouped convenient to a thresher.

4. These growers should understand that the beans must be recleaned, graded up to the standards of the seed shipped into the state if they expect to find a market. Before harvest time it would be well to have these men in a meeting where instructions could be given as to proper harvesting and threshing methods.

5. Mammoth Yellows and Laredos should be mowed as soon as seed have fully developed, but before mature enough to permit serious shattering. Otootans can be left in the field until after the leaves have fallen and mow when damp enough to prevent shattering.

6. Thresh on n ordinary grain thresher which has had the concaves removed and boards substituted. Slow down the drum so as to prevent cracking.

All foreign material, rotten, or undeveloped seed must be removed. The beans must be stored so as to prevent heating or damage from moisture. Fuller instructions will be furnished to groups desiring to grow soybeans for market.

Junior's Column

By Miriam

One day, nineteen hundred years ago, Jesus and His disciples went to a desert place near the sea of Galilee. Great numbers of people heard where they had gone and followed them, some to hear His words and others to be healed.

When Jesus saw the people coming to Him He was sorry for them, because He knew that they needed help. He healed them that had need of healing and began to teach them many things. They listened to His teaching until evening came.

The people were far from home and none of them, except one boy, had any food. The Bible does not tell us why it was that the boy still had his lunch late in the evening, but I like to think that he was so much interested in what Jesus was saying that he did not get hungry.

The disciples suggested that Jesus should send the people away that they might go into the village to buy food. Jesus answered them by saying, "They need not depart; give ye them to eat." The disciples were surprised at that command, for they had no food and there were five thousand hungry people!

The boy thought of his lunch. He gave it to Andrew, one of the disciples, and Andrew gave it to Jesus. Jesus took the lunch, looked up to heaven and gave thanks and broke the bread and fish and gave to His disciples to pass out to the people. He kept breaking the bread and fish and passing it out to the people and the lunch kept lasting until the people were all satisfied.

Can you imagine the thrill of joy the boy had when he saw his simple lunch of bread and fish being blessed by Jesus and then used to satisfy the hunger of five thousand people! Though it was a mere lunch in his hands it was a bountiful feast in the hands of Jesus.

After all was over Jesus said, "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost." And there was a great deal more left than the boy had given to Jesus.

Jesus is not here today in the form of a man who could take your school lunch, and after giving thanks to His Father in Heaven, increase it until all the hungry people would be satisfied. He is even more wonderful. Then the people had to search for Him to find Him; now we can have His Spirit with us all the time.

We know that now a boy or girl can offer his or her heart to Jesus and He will take that gift and use it—as He did the boy's lunch—by handing out to hungry human hearts smiles, kind words, and helpful, loving deeds.

You boys and girls who have given your hearts to Jesus and are letting Him hand out through you smiles and helpful kindnesses to everybody you meet—homefolks, school mates, that little boy or girl that everybody teases and picks on, the old people who don't have many friends, your teachers and your preacher and everybody else—you, I say, are the happy boys and girls. With every kindness that you do, a good share of the happiness produced comes back to you. As Jesus continues to hand out cheer and happiness through you, your happiness increases, and there is always a great deal more left than you can give away.

St. Matthew 14; St. Mark 6; St. Luke 9 and St. John 6, all tell us about Jesus feeding five thousand people with five loaves and two fishes, but we thank St. John for telling us that a boy had the joy of giving the loaves and fishes to Jesus.

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

At 11 o'clock next Sunday the pastor is going to speak from this subject "Why I Hate Whiskey." It will not be long before candidates will be nominated for the two parties in the Presidential race, and should I speak then on the whiskey question, some one would accuse me of speaking against, or for some candidate. Before nominations are made, I am going to have my say. I do not dabble in politics in the pulpit, but I try hard to be strong on all moral questions. I am not ashamed to acknowledge that I hate whiskey, and this message next Sunday should be heard by every man and woman, every boy and girl in Chilton County. The message will be red hot, and we want you there to help us in outlawing this curse of our race and civilization.

Sunday school at 9:45, preaching at 11:00 A. M. and at 7:30 P. M. There will be a general assembly of the Sunday school at 10:30. On account of the cold weather last Sunday we made a discouraging start for March, but we want you to make up for that day by breaking records next Sunday.

THE OLD RELIABLE L&N (LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE RAILROADS of the United States can not move s weight alone. YOU must do your share if they are to sur- e the deplorable conditions now confronting them.

he following figures show what the Louisville & Nashville ilroad has accomplished toward overcoming the tremendous ndicap imposed on all railroads by unregulated and unfair npetition, increased taxes, decreased freight and passenger enues and government subsidized barge lines.

he revenues of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad have lined $30,000,000 since 1921. One-half of this vast sum was to the decrease in freight rates amounting to 17%. The er half was due to loss of passenger traffic.

uring the same ten-year period this railroad has reduced its rating costs by more than $34,000,000 in spite of the fact t taxes have increased nearly $2,000,000.

nd although the L&N, in 1931, under such drastic economy, l earned less than 2% on its half-billion dollar property in- tment, the above achievement emphasizes the remarkable rts the L&N made to "carry on" and preserve its standing credit in the face of such tremendous odds.

he Interstate Commerce Commission has fixed 5¾% as a rate of return on the value of railroad property used in nsportation. It is evident, therefore, that less than 2% is a gerously low return. Continued operation on such basis uld be ruinous to the railroad systems of the United States, and would seriously impair the Nation's whole economic structure.

The ailroads ust Earn o Spend

This condition must be averted. The railroads are doing their share and have earned your help. Do YOUR part by traveling on the steam railroads---ship by rail and lend your cooperation in their effort to obtain legislative relief. Give the railroads a helping hand!

Those enjoying her wonderful hospitality were Mesdames Grady Broadhead, John Armstrong, Hosea Downs, C. E. Stapp, J. H. Alred, Arthur Johnson, Julius Burnett, Laurie Farrier, William Lanier, James Wade, Mack Wyatt, L. F. Gerald, John Deramus, F. J. Callen, T. C. McSwain, Grady Reynolds, Barnet Deramus, Hugh Simpson, R. D. Woodson and Miss Madelyn Orr. The high score prize, a beautiful pewter teapot, was won by Mrs. Mack Wyatt. The low score prize, a deck of Congress playing cards, was awarded to Mrs. L. F. Gerald.

TREES ARE NEEDED ON LAND NOT USED

Confident that there will be no overproduction of trees in Alabama in a long, long time, Lyle Brown, extension forester of Auburn, advises planting of trees on land not now in timber and not being used for other agricultural purposes. Idle fields and eroded hill sides will produce trees and these trees will develop into a money crop in addition to restoring and preserving the land, Mr. Brown said.

Urban people who own land and are trying to farm it as absentee landlords may find it more profitable to let it produce timber. Most Alabama land will produce good timber if fires are kept out. No great amount of planting is needed.

SCOUTING

By Lone Scout Charles C. Foshee
Billingsley, Alabama

What is Scouting? This is an organization designed to help in the preservation of the health and formation of the character of its members. It was incorporated February 8, 1910, and chartered by act of Congress June 15, 1916.

The movement is intended to furnish an outlet of activities for young boys by cultivating outdoor sports that will lead them to be future citizens.

Scouting came from Great Britain to America as a movement of "Knights of Honor" which was their name. The scout's oath, which he follows, is: "On my honor, I will do my best: 1. To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the scout law. 2. To help other people at all times. 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

There are classes of scouts, such as: Tenderfoot, Second class, First class, Star Scout, Life Scout, Eagle Scout, Veteran Scout. All these wear uniforms alike and of the same color. There are various merit badges that can be won after the scout has become a Second Class Scout.

Why Be A Scout?

1. Membership in the greatest boy-man organization in the world; a brother scout to over 893,000 scouts and scouters in our own country and over 2,000,000 throughout the world.

2. The service and cooperation of nation and local councils.

3. The right to participate in Scout camps, jamborees and other events.

4. A Lone Scout has the right to select "The best man in his community to be his friend and counselor.

The Boy Scout handbook is one of the most worthwhile books available for boys. He can use this book in scout service or it can and is used for reference for school work. If you live near a Boy Scout Council office, get in touch with the Scout Executive at once and take steps to become a scout. Or if you live outside the territory or rather become a Lone Scout, write to The Boy Scouts of America, Lone Scout Service, 2 Park Avenue, New York City. Write for literature and application blanks. No cost whatsoever.

I know you will like this work, because others have. "Once a Scout always a Scout," has been said by many of the Presidents of the United States.

This handbook costs only 50c per copy. The Scout yearly fee is also 50c, making a total of $1.00, which will be the best investment ever made. This work is carried on by Congress of U. S. as President of U. S., president and vice-president, vice president of Scouting. Any boy may become a Scout within the ages of 12 to 21. Write at once and get the information on Boy Scouts or Lone Scouts.

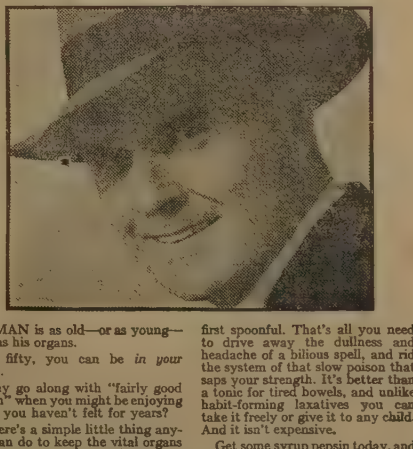
Fifty and Fit



A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

It Looks Like A Good Year

The year 1932 is still young, and anybody who would undertake at this early stage to forecast what is going to happen between now and next Christmas is either a fool or a better prophet than we are. But as far as we can see from here, the year has started off more hopefully than 1931. We are inclined to look ahead with the same confidence that was exhibited by the old lady who used to say that she had noticed that if she lived through February she always lived through the rest of the year.

It seems to us that the work which has been done at Washington so far, and the other remedial legislation that is apparently certain of passage, has already done a great deal toward relieving fear in the business and financial world. There is at least a feeling of hopefulness, which was almost lacking a few months ago.

It is hard to blame people for being apprehensive when there seems to be no encouragement ahead. It is hard for a man to keep up his courage in the dark. It took a long time for most people to realize that we had been dazzled by the false prosperity of a few years ago. Money was easy, jobs were plenty, wages were high and, as it turns out now, even the wen whom we regarded as wise and intelligent leaders in business and finance were fooled, like the rest of us, into believing that these conditions could go on indefinitely. Most of us spent money recklessly, and a lot of us were greatly surprised when we discovered that the old natural laws were still in force. It turns out that the old fable of the ant and the grasshopper still provides the safest guide for human beings.

From all we hear and observe, we think that people generally have got over the notion that there is an easy road to sudden wealth. Folks we know are much more reconciled to working hard and living within their means than they were three years ago. We know a good many who were never fooled, and they are the ones who are sitting pretty today. And, as we said in the beginning, all the signs that we can read point in the direction of better times ahead. It looks to us as if, along around 1936, we may be looking back on 1932 as the year when the biggest of all our national prosperity waves began. For one thing is certainly true, and that is that the United States has never failed to come back from periods of depression stronger and more prosperous than ever before.

o-o-o-o

Values That Money Cannot Buy

Sometimes we wonder what would be the effect if things should go on about as they are now indefinitely. How much worse off would we be as a people if the present standards of income should prove permanent?

It all depends, it seems to us, on where you stand when you look at the world. If you're standing on a dollar-mark things are pretty bad right now. But there are other points of view. Why do we want prosperity to return? So we can all have more money. But if we had more money, what would we do with it?

It seems to us that during those boom years when money, for a lot of people, was easy to get, it proved to be pretty har dto hold. And from what we saw and heard and read about what people did with their money, especially people who had never had any experience with money before, it didn't do many of them much good. On the contrary, it seems to us, it was a genuinely bad influence. And is there any reason to believe that people, speaking generally, would get any more lasting value out of easy money if boom times came back? We think not.

Of course, we want everybody to have a job. We not only hope that but we expect that conditions will change so that there will be no unemployment to the extent of wide-spread distress and privation. And we realize that there will always be some people who will have more money than they know what to do with, and who will continue to spend it foolishly. But it does seem to us that in the effort to make everybody rich our system has not succeeded in making anybody very happy; and we wonder whether we have not somehow, as a people, lost our grip on the more enduring things of life in the struggle for the mighty dollar.

There are spiritual values which are immensely more important than riches, which are not at all dependent upon wealth, which, in fact, are likely to be destroyed by the possession of more money than is needed to keep the body warm and fed. Perhaps these lean years may prove to have had a disciplinary value in turning people's thoughts away from mere pleasure to the soberer but more important things of life.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"The men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing and succeed."—Lloyd Jones.

* * *

Here we are at a drug store, the Calloway Drug Co., where Joe N. Calloway holds forth as the big cheese, with his brother as second big cheese. Here you will note a very neat little drug store, with all the trimmings. Both the Mr. Calloways are really drug store men, and know their business.

* * *

You will now note the barber shop next door, where we find Ed Wagoner, "Red Wagoner, G. Cleve Headley, Joe Ben Downs as barbers and good ones too. This is an old line of barbers and enjoy a good business. Yep, there's the shine boy there too. He's sitting back there against the wall.

* * *

This big store is our next stop. We will go in here for a visit, where we are greeted by Reedie Taylor, the manager of the Chicago Sales Company, carrying a large stock of dry goods. We also will meet Miss Etta Baker, Miss Kate Aldridge, and Mrs. L. H. Williams, the latter having charge of the millinery department, while the others cater to the ladies mostly. We also get acquainted with W. A. Kemp, who stays on the side to take care of the men's apparel.

* * *

Another big dry goods store is our next place to visit The Leader, a store known far and wide over this section. Here we find the one and only, Mr. Maurice Lande, boss, chief, big cheese and high mogul of this big store, who greets us with a pleasant smile and a welcome hand, and who will tell us of the large stock of dry goods they carry here. Then we will meet Mrs. Lande, who is right up to date on her knowledge of dry goods, and now we have the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Anna Jones, known to people as a real saleslady. Mrs. Jones has been with The Leader for a number of years, and we are invited back again.

* * *

Now this building we are in has an upstairs, where we will go and we find the law offices of Lawrence F. Gerald, one of Clanton's prominent attorneys. As we go in we are pleasantly greeted by Mrs. Agnes McNair, efficient secretary to the attorney, and we are escorted into his office, where we get the once-over and enjoy a nice chat with Mr. Gerald.

* * *

Across the hall we find the law offices of Percy M. Pitts, member of the Legislature of Alabama, and a well known attorney. We note the mounted deer head on the wall, and ask about that. We learn that Mr. Pitts shot that deer himself recently. We note the neat appearance of his offices.

* * *

Now we will go to the offices of Dr. J. E. Gowan, dentist, where we find a very neat place and up-to-date equipment. I suppose that is what you call those things. Dr. Gowan has been in Clanton as a dentist for a long time.

* * *

And so, we resume our tour round town this week, stopping at Alred Drug Company, The Home of Quality. Here we find some real characters in Clanton, with J. Hance Alred as boss of the outfit, and sole owner of his name, as it were. Mr. Alred has recently become a full-bred registered pharmacist, and now will give personal attention to prescriptions. With him we see the one, Mr. Albert Davis, soda-skeet, clerk, car-hopper, and what have you. Then there is the one and only Robert "Bob" Alred, also with the same official capacity as Albert. Both these likable fellows have been with Alred's for some time.

Whoa, we walked right past one of Clanton's nicest little offices. Up next to Alred's, is the office of Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson, physician of note in this neck o' the woods. We will stop in for a moment and see the doctor, and then we will meet Miss Dewey Branch, efficient assistant to Dr. Johnson, and compliment her on the neatness of the office.

* * *

While we are talking here, we will just say something about the office of Dr. Arthur Johnson, way up on the end of the street, where Miss Alma Allen is the efficient assistant to this well known eye, ears, nose and throat specialist.

* * *

Now we will visit the V. J. Elmore 5c and dime store, one of a chain of many over the state, and headquarters of them all, where orders are issued, and so forth. We will meet Mr. Virgil J. Elmore, who is founder, owner, and operator of these well known five and ten cent stores. A fine sort of fellow, he is. Then in his office as secretary we are getting acquainted with Miss Marine Harris. Then we will find Bill Inzer, who acts as something of assistant manager, or something. Now the attractive young ladies who are always ready with a smile to serve you at the counters. These are Miss Annie Mae Foshee, Miss Ruth Prince and Miss Glennie Mims. One of the best places of business in town—well arranged, and kept.

* * *

We will tarry for awhile, at the well known Upchurch Drug Company, on the corner—the business corner in town. In this large and complete drug store, we find Dr. Earl E. Upchurch at the head of the business. Then we meet William H. L. Smith, the head-knocker under Dr. Upchurch. With these are Emmett "Happy" Conaway, Eunice "Sunshine" Chism, and now and then we see Leroy "Pee-Wee" Martin up there. These fellows are all the kind that you like to have serve you in a place of business, and with all the advertising Upchurch Drug Company does, I think they ought to do more newspaper advertising locally.

* * *

The bright red front of the Hill Grocery Store is beckoning us with a smile, and as we walk in we are greeted pleasantly by the manager, Mr. J. W. McEathern, who is anxious that we be pleased. And to back up Mr. Mc's pleasant greeting is Ernest Arant, another real groceryman, who under the manager's training is up on his business. Mr. McEathern has been manager of this store for sometime, and we are pleased to find that he is pleased with business here, and we note the orderliness of his store, and the displays of his stocks. On Saturday's we find extra clerks there to aid in serving the people.

* * *

We will stop and rest awhile here, and continue on our tour next week.

Letters To The Editor

FROM "OLD RAMBLER"

Dear Mr. Editor:

I was rambling through the columns of a Republican paper a few days ago, and came across this statement: "We endorse the wise, able and patriotic administration of the national affairs by Herbert Hoover as president of the United States. And we hereby call upon all loyal Republican to stand steadfastly behind him, and give him the loyal support we are due him."

Farmers, Laborers, Merchants, Bankers, do you feel that you are due Mr. Hoover anything, except a vote of disapproval of his stewardship to the masses of this great nation? Figure closely and see for sure whether or not we are due Mr. Hoover anything at all except a vote next November against him.

And as I was rambling further thru this paper I came across a statement where two political pals meet on the corner and engaged in a jubilant conversation, and as they concluded their conversation, one said to the other, "You can tell your friends one thing, though, I have got beat every time I ran for office, but I am still a Republican plum to the core. And I can stand right up to the LICK LOG, EVEN IF I DON'T GET ANY SALT."

Did you ever hear the old saying:

That beats an old BOBBED TAIL STEER He won't LICK any log that hasn't any salt about it.

Has there ever been a time when we needed a revaluation worse than now? Not a revaluation of powder and lead, but a revaluation of the MIND.

Yours truly,
OLD RAMBLER.

Isabella School News

The F. F. A. Chapter held its regular meeting in the agriculture building last Wednesday. The program was presented and plans discussed for a party. The party was given Saturday night in the agriculture building. It seemed that everyone enjoyed a nice time.

The boys are making rapid progress and much improvement in baseball. A drive is in progress for money to buy more equipment. The outlook for a splendid team is good this year. The first game of the season was played with the outsiders last Friday as a practice game. The score was three to four in favor of Isabella.

Everything has been going smoothly for the last semester, and we feel sure that under the present faculty, that the school will flow smoothly to the end of the year.

The Senior High School assembly met Monday, March 7th. The meeting was called to order by the president. After business was attended to the following program was given:

Devotional: Lucile Cobern.

Song: Assembly.

Can the Church Stop War? Homer Morgan.

Works of Kipling: Mildred Durbin.

Poem, When Earth's Last Picture Is Painted, Myrtle Durbin.

Origin of the Song, Little Church in the Wildwood: Clifford Manning.

Song: Assembly.

Adjournment.

Coming Soon: Cabbage or Dollars, a comedy in three acts, to be staged at Isabella in a few days. Everybody watch for the time.

CO. AGENT STAPP ANNOUNCES CREAM STATION FOR THORSBY

County Agent Stapp has arranged with the Thorsby Fruit Growers Association to receive cream on Friday afternoon of each week between the hours of 1:00 and 4:00. Cream will be weighed, samples drawn and tested as is done at Clanton on Saturday. Mr. Stapp states that he made this arrangement in order to accommodate farmers in the Thorsby territory who do not get enough cream to ship.

Those interested in this project are asked to get in touch with either Mr. Stapp or Mr. Foss, Manager of the Thorsby Fruit Growers Association.

CO. AGENT STAPP MAKING READY TO RECEIVE APPLICATIONS FOR GOV'M'T LOANS

Mr. Stapp announces that beginning March 15th he will begin receiving applications for loans to farmers who cannot get financial help otherwise to make a crop in 1932. In order to avoid a rush at the office on the 15th, Mr. Stapp asks that farmers come by beats as follows:

March 15: Beats 1 and 2, March 16: Beats 3 and 4, March 17: Beats 5 and 6, Mearch 18: Beats 7 and 8. No applications will be handled on Saturday, the 19th.

March 22: Beats 9 and 10, March 23: Beats 11 and 12, March 24: Beats 13 and 14, March 25: Beat 15.

No applications will be received from farmers in adjoining counties.

Mr. Stapp points out the following important facts pertaining to loans this year:

1. Those making applications will have to pay a fee to employ clerical help as the Department of Agriculture does not furnish any clerical help for making applications.
2. No loans will be granted at present to farmers who borrowed last year and have not paid up.
3. No loans will be granted to farmers who did not farm in 1931.
4. Those making applications for loans must take oath that they have been unable to get financial aid for this year and that unless they get aid they will not be able to farm.
5. Farmers found guilty of making false testimony relative to this are subject to six months imprisonment and a thousand dollar fine.
6. All who make applications must give description of land, including numbers, that they will cultivate this year.
7. Tenant farmers must get their landlord to appear with them and sign waiver of lien to all his interest in the crop until the Government loan is paid.

Special Session Of The Unity Baptist Association Called For Friday, March 25

In response to a call of the State Baptist Organization through its Secretary that all the Baptist Churches in the State be called together in their respective associations in a One-Day session between the 21st, of this month and the 2nd day of April, 1932, the Executive Committee of the Unity Baptist Association has designated Friday, March the 25th, as the day on which to meet and the Baptist church at Billingsley, Alabama, as the place to meet.

I, therefore, as moderator of the said Unity Baptist Association, hereby respectfully call upon all the churches in said Association to immediately take the necessary steps to have delegates appointed to attend this meeting of the association.

This is to be an inspirational meeting and it is hoped that great spiritual blessings will come from same.

Delegates are to be appointed just as they are in our stated annual meetings, but there will be no reports to be made as they are in our annual meetings.

It is expected of each delegation to carry its lunch that there may be no burden on any one church and community.

Churches that will not have regular preaching or business meeting between now and the 25th, of this month will please have a call conference at some suitable time between now and the 25th, and appoint the proper number of delegates to attend this meeting; and I call upon the clerks, deacons and pastors of all the churches to see that this is done and that each church has a good representation at the meeting.

Remember the time and place, March the 25th, 1932, at the Baptist church in Billingsley, Alabama.

Yours for the on-going of the Kingdom Work.

LOOKS AS IF OLD COINS ARE STILL BEING FOUND NEAR HERE

During the past several days, old coins have been showing up at the News office, following this newspaper's query as to who, in Chilton County has the oldest United States coin.

Among those showing old pieces of money recently were P. D. Wilson of Clanton and Leon Pierce of near Clanton. Mr. Wilson has a paper piece of money worth ten cents, so far as Uncle Sam is concerned, but Mr. Wilson wouldn't take that for the old money which is up in years. Leon Pierce has one of those large one cent pieces, almost as large as a half dollar, and dated 1817, making it 115 years old.

H. F. McClure brought an old ten-cent piece to the office the other day, with a date of 1825, making it 107 years old. This is one of the rare coins of that date. Mr. McClure stated he found the coin in Mobile County.

Mr. and Mrs. Crit Jones and children and Miss Ethel Mize of Lay Dam attended the play given at the Thorsby Public School last Saturday night.

Miss Mary Ella Gerald, who is attending school at the University, spent the week end in Thorsby with her mother, Mrs. H. M. Gerald.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moody and Mr. I. S. Gerald of Birmingham were week end visitors at the home of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

Mr. L. F. Gerald, wife and daughter. Celia, of Clanton were dinner guests at the Gerald home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Thomason were visitors in Thorsby Sunday.

Miss Lois Leech returned home Sunday from Birmingham where she has been the past month.

Little Oleetah Bice is ill at her home.

There wil lbe services at the Thorsby Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Sleepy Miller of Clanton spent Sunday in Thorsby with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Burnett.

Mrs. Don W. Walker and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rowell of Birmingham spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Walker.

The play, "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose," which was given by the Public School of Thorsby, on last Saturday night, was highly successful, in that it kept the audience intensely interested from start to finish. It was exceptionally well presented, the characters all being well suited to their parts.

In spite of the bad weather prevailing last Saturday, a good audience was in attendance. However, owing to so many requests for the play to be given again, it was decided to give it again next Tuesday night, March 15th. Don't fail to see it this time.

Thorsby Institute News

Thorsby Institute Term Tests begin on Thursday of this week and last through Friday.

Last Thursday at chapel the biology class, under Mr. Sutlive, their teacher, gave a very interesting and helpful program.

A week from Saturday night is the next open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society. All are invited to come and see the play, "Theseus and the Minotaur," and the French play, "Blue Beard." Both stories are familiar to many, but have never been given in Thorsby.

March 25, 26, 27 are the dates for the Young People's Christian Life Conference. The banquet will be at noon, March 26. All young people are invited to register. The registration fee is 50 cents for those living in or near Thorsby.

The Christian Endeavor met last Sunday evening at the Congregational church. There was a large attendance considering the weather. The topic for next Sunday evening will be: "What Does It Mean To Be A Christian?" led by Miss Jenkins. All are cordially invited to attend these meetings at any time.

MR. R. W. LITTLE

Mr. R. W. Little, whose death occurred in a Selma hospital on February 11 at 7:52, evening, was buried at Plantersville, in the family lot, on the following Saturday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by his dearest friend and choice preacher, Bro. J. W. Dunnaway and pastor of the Plantersville Baptist church of which he was a member.

Mr. Little had spent his entire life at Plantersville and in that vicinity, where he was born and reared. Had Mr. Little lived until March 17, he would have been 82 years old.

We feel that everything was done for him that loving hands could do, but God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take him from our midst to that home eternal.

He left to mourn for him one daughter, Mrs. Ruby Mae Biscoe, one son, J. T. Little, one step-daughter, Mrs. Sarah Coker of Gadsden, and one grandchild, Henry Eugene Biscoe Jr., of Plantersville. Besides these he leaves brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws. many relatives and friends.

Weep not, dear children, for God has said in his blessed word, "Let not your hearts be troubled, ye believe in God, believe in me also. In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you."

Children. you have my deepest sympathy and prayer.

Biology Field Trip (By Tina Hyman)

Mr. Varnell's biology class made a most interesting and instructive field trip last Wednesday morning, the purpose of which was to gain a first-hand study of new specimens for experimental work and discussions at the regular class period. Quite a varied collection of wild flowers and animals that live both on land and in the water were found by the students. A rare specimen was a wood mouse, which is quite different from the familiar mouse found around our homes.

Forensic Club (By Louise Knox)

The Forensic Club presented a program at assembly on Wednesday, March 2. The following numbers were offered:

The Importance of Debating, Elizabeth Stanley.

History of the Club, Louise Knox.

Why I Am A Member of the Club, John Ezell.

A book on Debating was presented to the high school by Sallye Mahan, class president.

The regular meeting was carried out Thursday afternoon. Dan Smith told how to select a subject for debate. Pearl Vinson discussed the presentation of a subject, and John Ezell offered several suitable subjects for debating. The club feels a great deal of good can come from an organization of this nature. The program was received well by the student-body.

Mr. Wyatt Talks To Senior Two English Class (By Pearl Vinson)

During the first period last Thursday morning, Mr. Mack Wyatt, editor of The Union-Banner, talked to the Senior II English Class on the subject of the literary value of the newspaper. His talk was very instructive and appreciated by the entire class.

In his talk he urged the class to study newspapers more carefully because each printed newspaper is a contribution to the world's history. He also emphasized the fact working with newspapers is an honorable calling, and that editors of newspapers are always anxious to get the news fully and truthfully for their readers.

At present the Senior II English Class under the supervision of Miss Nell E. Wells, is studying the history and development of the newspaper. Mr. Wyatt's talk helped us very much in our study. We appreciate his interest in our school, and we extend a cordial invitation to visit our school again soon.

SHAKESPEARE STORY TELLING CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED

The National Junior • Shakespeare Story Telling Club, through the assistance of local teachers, will shortly form a branch or association here, under the direction of Miss Mary Ellis.

The Club is educational in purpose and is designed to acquaint every grade school child with the works of the famous bard and in such a way that it will appear like play to them. At the same time, it prepares them for high school English studies while those who are not fortunate enough to advance beyond the grades will have a working knowledge of the classics.

The plan consists of story hours for the children when groups will meet and tell Shakespeare Stories in simplified form.

Prizes for the best story teller will be offered at various stages of the course and diplomas will be awarded each child who has finished the prescribed course.

The grand finale will be a Shakespearean evening or pageant or Shakespearean program having the children portray the Shakespearean characters.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was driving along the highway and far down the road I saw a cross bar by the roadside. On coming a bit closer I read the words, "Stop, Look, Listen." A railroad track crossed the highway at that place and the management of that road had placed that sign of caution, so that the traveler would be on his guard against danger. Many people traveling that way will obey the instruction of that sign, but the majority of travelers will dash by as if it were not there. That is why we have so many accidents at railroad crossings. The sign says, "Stop." We are going fifty and sixty miles an hour. We are in too big a hurry to bring our car to a stop. We are going somewhere, but we do not know where. The sign says, "Look." But we have no time to look for anything except that one thing that fills our minds. The sign says, "Listen," but we have no time to listen for anything, but that voice that is calling us on. God has placed his signs of danger across the pathway of men and nations, but we pay no attention to his words of caution. This is a fast age, and we have no time to stop, we can not afford to look for anything but pleasure and we are unwilling to listen for the voice that speaks to us from heaven. There are thousands of crashes in human life everyday, and all because people refuse to heed the warnings along the way.

I am not saying when and neither am I saying where, but not many days ago two men and two women came to a hotel at three o'clock in the morning. The men were rather boisterous, and had to be rushed off to their room. The next morning they came down to the hotel office and asked the clerk, "What town is this and what hotel?" They acknowledged that they were all "Shot" the night before and had no idea where they were, and why they were in a hotel. These men were not Alabama men, but they had been fishing in Alabama streams. There are two things that will make a fool out of any man—women and whiskey. These two men had been, willingly or unwillingly, trapped, and they lost their honor and their minds, and were guilty of things that they would not dare face where they resided. My Lord, what are we coming to? Yet, there are people in our county who are willing to vote like the Literary Digest wants them to vote, and say by their straw ballot, "Do away with the 18th Amendment." We have plenty fool men and crazy women now, but if we do away with the 18th amendment, we are going to multiply this number by the hundreds. When we turn over our government to the wet forces, we will have acted as foolish as a mother does when she puts her children in a car to be driven by a drunk chauffeur.

* * *

Have you ever noticed that vultures never make a noise unless they are feasting on something dead, or perhaps on a roost near something that pleases them well? That is what I am reminded of as I listen in on the croakings of Lowel Thomas as he gloats over the straw ballot that is being taken by the Literary Digest. This ballot is strictly wet propaganda. The Digest is dripping wet in its policy, and it has yielded its columns to the millions of wet money to send out these card ballots, knowing that every wet voter in the United States will rush in his vote to do away with the 18th Amendment. Whiskey men were sent out to secure the voting list, and if they took the name of a voter and he was dry, it was just a blunder on their part. They expected to get a few dry voters on their lists, but they did not calculate to get over one dry voter to four wet voters. The percentage of wet votes was determined before the voting started. This was done to make it appear that our country is overwhelmingly wet. There was never a bigger lie pandered off on the public. When the Literary Digest straw ballot is over, they will report about eleven million wet ballots and not over three million dry ballots. The percentage may even be larger than that in favor of the return of the saloon. Back of this effort there is a deep set scheme to frighten both political parties into the adoption of a wet platform. The same forces who have spent their thousands to get this expression through the Digest, will be before each gathering when a man is to be nominated for president, and they will go to the last limit to force a wet man into the race for president. Should the Republicans, should the Democrats, nominate a wet candidate, the man will be brought out by the corrupt element in our nation. Never before has corruption asserted itself with more determination than it is now. This is the last supreme effort. If they fail now, they know that prohibition is here to stay. When Lowel Thomas pulls his bill out of the wet straw vote, like a vulture fresh from a carcass, he smacks and croaks, for it looks to him like the United States is hopelessly wet. The underworld is unanimous for the return of the saloon, many who can not be classed as belonging to the underworld, are voting to do away with the 18th Amendment. The unfortunate thing is that such people will be so thoughtless as to line up with that bunch who will kidnap the Lindy baby, or do anything else that will destroy morals or hinder civilization. When the wet forces in the United States will produce a finer civilization and a better standard of morals, than the godly men and women are clamoring to produce, then it will be time to turn affairs over to them, but not until then. Let them show thei rhand in production of the better and finer things of life before we give to them one inch of the rope.

Oak Grove News

Miss Lesta Cobb is presenting a play at Oak Grove Friday night, March 11, titled, "Always in Trouble," or "The Hoodooed Coon."

It starts with a laugh and ends with a roar. When it's all over you'll want some more. So don't be grouchy and don't be glum, and wish by heck you hadn't come. Will guarantee to give a good show. Come and see it then you'll know. You'll laugh and holler 'til your sides cave in. Watch the hoodooed coon, he'll always win.

Starts at 7:30. Admission 5c and 10c.

A Prayer

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

Increase our faith, oh, God, and help us to grow in grace and purity. Teach us how to pray. Give us the spirit of prayer; help us to pray without wavering, never doubting, but knowing, oh, God, that thou will give us our petitions. For thou art our king of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth. Our help is in the name of the Lord who made Heaven and earth.

Help us, oh, God, to walk in thy statutes and keep thy commandments and do them that we may be blessed of thee. Give us rain in due time. Bless the land that it may yield its increase; give us peace in the land, in our homes and bid evil out of our land and home. Help us to live in love and peace with thee and all mankind, doing thy will from the heart, knowing that thou alone can help us and deliver us from sin. We pray that thou will have thine own way in our life. Use us according to thy will; let our work be wrought in thee and thy will be done in us.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932. this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed........ per cent for the year (or years).............., for the purpose or purposes of....................," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed..........per cent for the year (or years).............., for the purpose or purposes of...................." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

DEATH OF UNCLE PAT MUIR

On last Thursday afternoon about 6:30 o'clock we lost our dear father. All was done that loving hands could do, but God loved him best, and saw fit to take him home to heaven last Thursday p.m.

Father went away to heaven as the crowd came and went. We loved our father and we can never forget him. He is gone, but his spirit will be with us always. We will miss him, "Oh, we will miss him! His vacant place can never be filled." He was sick only one week to a day, and God sent an angel in the coluds and took away our dear father, and we hope to meet him in that better land some day.

We loved him, Oh! we loved him, but God loved him more, and has taken him to yonder shining shore.

We shall meet him, but we shall miss him. There is a vacant chair. We shall linger to caress him when we breathe our evening prayer.

When three years ago we gathered, joy was in his mild blue eyes.

But a golden cord has severed him, and has taken him beyond the sky.

—Written by His Wife and Children.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to tell you all how we appreciate the kindness of the pupils who were interested in helping us through the illness and death of our dear daddy. Mr. Martin & Son carried out the funeral services nice.

—His Son, Frank Muir.

Six months before his death Charles Marven of Hull, Eng., dug his own grave.

THORSBY FRUIT & TRUCK GROWERS ASSOCIATION

This section was visited with a severe freeze on last Saturday night and Sunday, which did a considerable damage to the strawberry patches. All strawberries in all sizes that were formed, are gone, and there only remains to hope for the chances the plants have in coming back for new blooms, and this depends entirely on whether the crowns were hurt or not.

We have estimated here that some 50 per cent of the crop is gone, but of course these figures may have to be revised, for possibly less or maybe more.

In this connection, we call your attention to the benefits of mulching. First it is very necessary to mulch berries, if you wish to have them free from sand, and therefore make your grades better, as the government grading is very severe on sandy berries.

Then again, we believe that a well mulched patch will be able to withstand a freeze better than a patch not mulched. If on the danger of a coming freeze the berries were covered with some pine straw or other straw, and this later raked off the top, so as not to suffocate the plants, we believe that a grower may in most cases get by a freeze like the one we recently had.

We understand from Castleberry that they are now held back until about April 1st, while we may not look for shipments until some time after the 20th of April.

However, it is found that where heavy application of fall fertilizer was used, and thereby the patches being further advanced, the most damage had been done, while again many other patches not so far advanced, seemed to have suffered only slightly. To those who have not as yet received any crates, a notice is given, that as soon as we can tell how the crop will come out, we will get in touch with you, and will also have plenty of crates for you.

In the meantime it would be well for you to be in touch with us and keep us advised how your patches look.—Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association.

Mt. Pleasant School Wins In Basket-ball Tournament

Pleasant turning back the Collins Chapel quintet by the one-sided score of 27 to 6.

The fourth game proved to be one of the thrillers of the day when the fast-stepping team from Union Grove set the heavier team from Enterprise down by a small margin of 18 to 17. Little Charles Retherford and Danny Jones were the big shots in this game. The former getting 7 points, with the latter turning in 6. M. Glass was outstanding in the center position, as he repeatedly placed the tip-off over Cagle, for Enterprise. James Griffin, the speed demon for Enterprise, led his mates in scoring honors, with 8 points to his credit. Enterprise held a 5-point lead at the half, but an early rally in the third quarter brought the Union boys to the front, where they ran up a 5-point lead, never to be overcome. The Enterprise boys, with the count of 18 to 13 against them, and about 4 minutes to go, came through with 2 nifty field goals, pulling up to within one point of their foe. They became overanxious at this point of the game and within the last minute and a half they missed several shots from underneath the goal which they ordinarily make good. A hard game to lose, but clean fought.

In the semi-finals, Thomas rapped the Concord boys by the tune of 22 to 12. Then came the Mt. Pleasant and Union Grove game with the former, after a sad showing in the first quarter, setting the Union Grove boys down to a 28 to 14 defeat. The Union boys opened with a bang. running up a count of 8 to 1 during the first quarter, and then held a 12 to 8 lead at the half, but after the opening of the 2nd half the Mt. Pleasant team began to click, and they drove through the Union defense to lead 22 to 12 at the end of the 3rd quarter. During the last quarter, the victors turned in 6 more points, while the Union team could only account for 2. Thus the game closed 28 to 14. Curtis Traywick, captain for the Mt. Pleasant team, again swept in honors by looping the ball from all angles and in some odd positions, in accounting for his 18 tallies. Through graduation the Mt. Pleasant team loses him and Harry Parker, who has also played well his position as right guard. Cecil Traywick, running guard and Leonard Burnett, right forward, are the only two returning to Mt. Pleasant for next year. Littlejohn does not plan to enter school next year, and J. P. Culp, who has recently developed into a great defensive player and deadly shot from under the goal, will graduate this term.

This breaks the winning combination from Mt. Pleasant, who have won 16 out of 19 games this season, including the 1930-31 Shelby County champions from Calera and the varsity team from Chilton County High School. Their 3 losses were as follows: To Enterprise, 15 to 8. To Stanton 20 to 19. (extra period). To Calera 19-17

Their total points for this year are 351 against 183 for their opponents. Of this 351, Curtis Traywick has 217 and Burnett 88. The others being turned in by the center, guards and substitutes. Thus closes the career of one of the smoothest working teams ever to represent the Mt. Pleasant school.

They have one more game booked for this season and that is with the Shebly County champions of 1931-32, from Wilsonville, who won over Calera last Saturday night in the final game. This game will be played next Saturday night at Calera, Ala. "See it by all means."

In the girls' game last Saturday, Collins Chapel edged out over the Mt. Pleasant lassies 7 to 5, for the county championship.

LOCAL GOLFERS RE-ELECT SAME OFFICERS HERE

Members Hold Meeting Here Recently And Show A Growing Interest

The annual meeting the members of the Clanton Golf Club was held last Monday night. In recognition and appreciation of his splendid services. and management during his previous administration, R. J. Sumner, Sr., was unanimously re-elected president for the ensuing year. The First National Bank bankers, to-wit, John Page and Otto Jones, were also unanimously re-elected vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. And the follwing as Board of Directors, V. J. Elmore, J. E. Edgar, Raymond C. Smith, Reedie Taylor, M. Lande and J. C. Page. Raymond C. Smith, Claudie Pipes and Claud Reynolds were appointed by the president to constitute the Greens Committee.

Extensive improvement has been made on the course during the past few weeks, and will continue from time to time. It is anticipated that several others will join the club as soon as the ground hog weather withdraws. Every man is a prospect whether he joins or not.

Golf is one of the oldest if not the oldest outdoor games known to the civilized world. One material difference between it and other games is that it is ordinarily played for the exclusive benefit of the person playing and not for the entertainment of the spectators.

"Happy" Conway Now With Polk Brothers

Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc., local Chevrolet dealers gave out the following statement ~~this week~~, "Mr. ~~E. K.~~ "Happy" Conway is now on our sales force, selling the great American value for 1932, and our OK used cars."

"Happy" is well known over this entire section. He was formerly with the Upchurch Drug Company of Clanton, where he made scores of friends. Now he is with another of Clanton's prominent business concerns, and invites his friends to call on him at Polk Brothers place, where he will be glad to demonstrate the new Chevrolets and other cars they have in stock.

WADESONIAN INSTALLS NEW SOUND SYSTEM

New Projection Screen Also Added To Local Theatre For Better Results

An announcement that will be received with much interest among theatre goers in this section, is that coming from the Wadesonian Theatre here, stating they have just installed a new and modern sound system and a new projection screen.

Talking pictures have been showing at the Wadesonian Theatre for some time, but the management now states that this new equipment just installed is entirely different and will give better results. The difference between the old one and the new is that the record of music and talking is made onto the film, and is not separate as heretofore, thus eliminating the possibility of the picture and sound becoming irregular.

The new screen will also add much to enjoyment of a picture, and the Wadesonian wishes everyone to come to see and hear this new equipment, and they are to be congratulated on this improvement.

UNINSTRUCTED DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

Say They Will Have As Their Slogan, "The Party First"

Montgomery, Ala., March 15.—In a clear-cut statement to the voters, the eight prominent Democrats running for delegates at large to the Democratic National Convention on a platform calling for an uninstructed, unpledged and uncontrolled delegation declare they wish to represent "the Democracy of Alabama rather than the personal ambitions of any man" and will cast their votes for the most available presidential candidate when the convention meets, but will under no circumstances vote for former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, because they are convinced his nomination "would be disastrous to the Democratic Party."

Signed by William P. Screws of Montgomery, Hugh Mallory of Selma, George M. Grant of Troy, Woolsey Finnell of Tuscaloosa, Douglas Arant of Birmingham, Shelby S. Fletcher of Huntsville, T. S. Faulk of Samson, and R. B. Evins of Birmingham, the statement asserts that their slogan will be "The Party First", strongly opposes a hog-tied delegation, and declares that since Alabama has no favorite son in

Co. Agent Is Receiving Gov't. Loan Applicat'ns

Last week's issue of this paper carried a statement relative to Government loans, and asked that those desiring to make application come from certain beats on certain days. Mr. Stapp will continue to receive applications next week as follows. March 22, Beats nine (9) and Ten (10), March 23, Beats eleven (11) and twelve (12). March 24, Beats thirteen (13) and fourteen (14). March 25, Beats fifteen (15) and Sixteen (16). On account of a good many failing to get the notice in time to come this week Mr. Stapp announces that farmers living in Beats One to Eight who failed to get the notice in time to make application this week may come in on Tuesday, March 29th.

Annual Easter Sing At Poplar Springs

The annual Easter singing will be held at the Poplar Springs church, near Clanton on Easter Sunday, March 27, according to the committee in charge of the arrangements. This committee is composed of D. B. Jones, W. F. Gilliland, and W. M. Devaughn.

This annual singing has been held at Poplar Springs each Easter Sunday for the past twenty years. All singers and others are cordially invited to attend. Singing starts at ten o'clock in the morning and will continue through the day. Bring lunch.

FORMER CLANTON RESIDENTS VISIT RELATIVES PAST WEEK

Their first visit to Clanton in four years, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Smith, and charming little daughter, Betty Ann, of Denver, Colorado, arrived in Clanton Wednesday afternoon of last week to spend a while with his mother, Mrs. Mamie Smith, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were at one time residents of Clanton, and moved to Denver to make their home over ten years ago. They have been busy while in Clanton, visiting friends. They expect to leave Friday morning for Columbus, Ga., and then on to Tampa, Fla., where they will visit Mrs. Smith's mother and other relatives, returning to Denver about the middle of April.

Hospital Here Will Close This Month

OUR HOSPITAL WILL BE MISSED

(An Editorial)

Clanton's much prided hospital will close its doors this month, unless something unforeseen occurs to enable it to continue operations, according to a statement made known following a meeting of the directors of the hospital here recently. The closing is expected to take place this month.

Ten years ago, when the movement was started to locate a hospital in Clanton, it was received with hearty response by a large number of thinking citizens. The hospital was erected and during its early life, prospered, although beset with hardships, due to misunderstandings. Since then it has been a pride of Clanton and Chilton County, and has turned from its doors several young ladies as graduate nurses, who have made good, and it has turned out of its doors, persons who were sick and injured when they entered, to leave well again.

Dr. Gragg's public statement says that the hospital is unable to continue operating due to lack of finances. That in turn being due to so much turned their way that had to be taken care of without pay. If one should reflect over the years past, it could be easily seen that the management of the Central Alabama Hospital has done all in its power to operate the institution as economically as possible, with the cooperation given it by those who wanted to keep a hospital for Chilton County, and surroundings, an institution where patients could be cared for and treated at low cost, and yet properly so.

This hospital has meant a lot to Clanton and Chilton County, and has been a great help, as well as being needed. had the influential persons given their full support to make it a success by boosting it. It will be greatly missed when the time comes to those who are in need of such an institution, and will have to go to larger towns to get this advantage, causing more expense and possibly even proving disastrous when the need is an emergency and urgent as some cases can be and are.

However, this is not the first hospital to close its doors during past months. Much larger institutions of this kind, in much larger cities in this state, have closed their doors for the same reason. With its knowledge of the operation of the Clanton hospital, this newspaper feels inclined to pay tribute to Dr. V.J. Gragg, and Miss Grace Robinson for their efforts in behalf of the hospital. It is known that these two have unselfishly made sacrifices in order that Clanton's hospital could receive all possible financial aid during this trying time.

It is true, if the Central Alabama Hospital is closed this month, as planned, its open doors will be greatly missed, even more so, now than ever before. Those who need hospital advantages will either do without or be forced to go to a larger city, further from their homes and at more expense, unless other local places are large enough to accommodate them, which is impossible at times.

Clanton received a pleasant visit from one of its former residents last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, in the person of Dr. T. H. Neighbors, who was formerly connected with Alred Drug Company, but now resides at Goodwater, Ala.

DECISION MADE AFTER MEETING OF DIRECTORS

Dr. Gragg Makes Statement Regarding Closing Of Local Institution

Clanton's hospital, the Central Alabama Hospital, will probably be closed this month. That statement was made public here during the past day or so, following a meeting of the directors of this institution.

The Central Alabama Hospital was built in Clanton approximately ten years ago, and during the early years of its establishment here it was a success. It became known over the entire state, as being the best hospital and most convenient located between Birmingham and Montgomery.

The directors of this institution held a meeting last Thursday, March 10th, at which time this decision was made, after a careful study of the financial condition of the hospital during the past few years and up to date. The condition is due, it was stated, to the large number of charity cases taken care of by the hospital, and accounts due the hospital not being paid.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, physician and surgeon at the hospital, and president of the institution, who has done much toward aiding it, makes a public statement in regard to the closing of the doors, planned to take place on or about March 20th, unless other steps are taken. Following is Dr. Gragg's statement:

Editor Chilton County News:

Dear Sir:

Through your paper, I desire to make a statement, to the public in general, and particularly to the stockholders of the Central Alabama Hospital.

At a meeting of the directors called March 10, 1932, it was decided to close the hospital on or about March 20th. The reason for closing being the financial depression.

About 10 years ago, when the hospital was built, we all felt that there was great need for such institution and that it could be operated on a paying basis, and at the same time be of wonderful service to the community. Hospitals had paid dividends before that time and it was reasonable to expect them to contiue being self-supporting, but about that same time the several Protestant religions also visualized the general need for hospitals and a crop of new hospitals sprang up in nearly every city of any size. Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, etc., all driving for large, modern, well equipped hospitals. The result was that we soon had more hospitals than were in demand and about two years ago, after the depression set in, these hospitals together with other private and public institutions began to fail. First the Presbyterian in New Orleans, next the Baptist in Selma and then the Methodist in Montgomery and others in practically all the larger cities and some in smaller towns.

The Central Alabama Hospital started out with a serious handicap. We owed in the neighborhood of $10,000.00 on our building. This we at one time reduced to nearly $6,000.00, but there was interest, fire insurance, and other

Here's Something Interesting. Which of These Opinions Do You Agree With --- Or Not?

Last week the News stated in an article that the readers of this newspaper are invited to write in and state the things in the News each week they like best and why, and also the things they did not like. The invitation still stands, and here's some interesting comments already:

There's a lady writes in and says that she finds the editorial columns real interesting, because they carry information she does not find anywhere else in the paper, and some she has never heard of before. That's good, and we thank this lady.

Then a letter comes from up the northern part of the county stating that the writer, whose name was not signed, enjoyed reading the news from the various communities represented in the paper each week.

A young lady writes in, and unhesitatingly signs her name, complimenting the "Round Town" column in this newspaper, saying she gets a kick from this column.

Then here's one that is not so complimentary. A lady states that she cares nothing whatever for other features in the paper except the society section.

Here's one from a man who says he finds that he is well repaid for the money he spends for his subscription to the News, by reading the column "Moral Echoes" written by Dr. D. W. Haskew of Clanton. And another note, unsigned, states that "it is just a good newspaper."

These are all the comments that have shown up this week. Write yours in, and we'll see what you like in the News.

Association Will Meet In Thorsby

Announcement has been made that the Chilton County Baptist Association will hold a meeting at the Thorsby Baptist church, Thorsby. Ala., on Friday afternoon, April 1st, beginning at one-thirty o'clock. All churches are asked to send representatives.

A representative from the state convention will be present and this meeting will be of importance to the county association.

ROOSEVELT DELEGATES GIVE VIEWS

Public Statem't Shows Where Delegates Stand In Regard To Presidency

In a statement sent to this newspaper, candidates as delegates to the Democratic National Convention, who are supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt for nomination as presidential candidate, give their views and intentions. Following is the statement from the candidates as sent from their headquarters in Birmingham:

To The Democratic Voters of Alabama:

We believe that a majority of the Democrats of this State favor Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt as their candidate for the Presidency in the coming election, and are convinced that the people are entitled to an opportunity to express their preference by sending to the National Convention of our Party delegates reflecting their choice. We have announced as candidates for delegates from the State at large publicly declaring that if nominated we will support Gov. Roosevelt in the Convention. If nominated we will go to the Convention as uninstructed delegates with the announced intention of doing everything within our power to bring

W. M. U. Sponsors Sale Watts Hat Shoppe, 25th

According to an announcement given the News. Miss Callie Watts, manager of the Watts Hat Shoppe, popular ladies' wear store of Clanton, located across the street from Hill's Grocery Store, will give a percentage on all sales made Friday, March 25th, to the W. M. U. of the Clanton Baptist church.

All the ladies of Clanton and surrounding vicinity are urged to bear this date in mind. Watts Hat Shoppe carries a complete line of ladies' wearing apparel, of high quality, and all merchandise is the latest thing in style. Prices are very reasonable and in line with conditions generally.

Those making purchases at this store on the above date will not only be assured of full value for their money, but a percentage of it will go to a most worthy cause in carrying forward the commendable work of the Baptist W. M. U. of Clanton.

Cream Station At Thorsby Growers Off.

County Agent Stapp advises that he cooperated with the Thorsby Fruit Growers Association in opening a cream station at their office last Friday. The station will be open to receive cream on Friday of each week between the hours of one and three forty-five P.M. Farmers interested in this project will see Mr. Foss at the Fruit Growers Office.

MR. J. L. MINER MAKES GOOD REPORT ON SHEEP RAISING

In 1925 Mr. Miner had 20 head of sheep from which he sold 14 head of mutton which brought $52.70, wool and hides, $19.51, r a total of $72.21.

In 1926 he sold 12 head, wool and hides, that brought $78.47. 1927 he sold 20 head, wool and hides, that brought 122.18. 1928 he sold 3 head, wool and hides, that brought $26.80. 1929 he sold 11 head, wool and hides, that brought $65.95. 1930 he sold 7 head and hides that brought $48.36. In 1931 Mr. Miner sold 10 head, wool and hides, that brought $59.38.

This shows a total of $473.36 worth of sheep, wool and hides, sold for the period from 1925 through 1931. At the beginning of 1932 Mr. Miner had eleven head of sheep on hand.

LEGION NEEDS MORE JOBS FOR WILLING MEN

People Of Clanton Urgently Asked To Aid In This Drive For Work

The Chilton County Post of the American Legion has been doing some splendid work in aiding those who were in need of work, in this section, by establishing a free employment bureau.

The idea is for all persons in the county who would like to get something to do, even tho it be only a small piece of work, to turn in their name to the employment officer, who also will accept lists of jobs that are wanted done by other people, thereby bringing the job and the worker together.

A. L. (Lonza) Robinson has been appointed as employment officer, with headquarters at the Robinson Garage and Machine Shop, in Clanton. Mr. Robinson states that the plan works fine, but he finds that jobs are short, and that he has more applications for jobs than he has jobs to offer.

The citizens of Clanton and surroundings are asked to cooperate all they can along this line, with the American Legion. If you have an odd job you wish done, call Mr. Robinson and tell him, so that some needy person will get a little work to do. The job doesn't have to be a day's work, but even a half day, or a few hours, will come in good.

Maybe your back yard needs cleaning up, or maybe you have some wood you want cut up, or floors scrubbed. Think over these things and help the American Legion in this fine movement in Chilton County.

100 Foot Well Is Drilled At Verbena

A well one hundred feet deep has just been drilled at Verbena, Ala., for the Verbena Service Station. The drill is six inches and went through considerable rock before the desired supply of water was found.

The drilling of this well was necessary according to Mr. Charles Gulledge, operator of the station, due to a considerable seepage of gasoline and oils from pumps into a well nearby, which has been in use there for several years, and considered a splendid well of water. The drilling of the new well was completed Tuesday, and a fresh water electric pump will be used to draw the water for the station, according to Mr. Gulledge.

Eight Arrests Are Shown Over Week

Eight arrests are docketed on the books at the sheriff's office here, since last Thursday and up to Tuesday this week. Three of these were for violating the prohibition law, two for assault and battery with a weapon, one for driving while intoxicated, one for rape and one for living in adultery.

LADIES TO BE ENTERTAINED BY KIWANIANS

Annual Ladies' Night Takes Place Tonight At Local Baptist Church

An affair which is looked forward to by each member of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, and some ladies of the town, will take place tonight at the Baptist church here, when the Kiwanis Club of Clanton will hold its annual "Ladies' Night". Wives, daughters, sweethearts and mothers will be guests of members of the club at this affair tonight.

It is understood that a most enjoyable program has been planned and ready for presentation. while the ladies who serve the club have a menu card that would tempt the most delicate and particular appetite, and please the most fastidious palate, awaiting the Kiwanis Club members and their fair guests tonight.

Among the outstanding features on program is the presence of one of the outstanding Kiwanians in the state, John K. Watkins, district governor, from Opelika, who brings with him a

SAYS JEREMIAH'S PROPHECY WILL SOON BE FULFILLED

Editor Chilton County News:

Will you please permit me to say a few words through your valuable paper, or rather quote a few scriptures recorded by the prophet Jeremiah?

First, I wish to say that prophecy is the foreknowledge of God, symbolically spoken through His servants, just as He chooses. I don't understand that it makes a person any better because God chooses him for this purpose, but only puts more responsibility on him.

Now, friends, the prophecy that I wish to quote is shortly to come to pass. We will first notice Jeremiah 4:6 says, "Set ye the standard toward Zion, retire, stay not, for I will bring evil from the north and a great destruction. The lion is come in from his thicket and the destroyer of the Gentiles is on his way, he is gone forth from his place to make thy land desolate and thy cities shall be laid waste without an inhabitant, for this gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl, for the fierce anger of the Lord is not turned back from us.

And it shall come to pass at that day saith the Lord, "That the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes and the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall wonder at that time shall it be said to this people and to Jerusalem.

A dry wind of the high places in the wilderness towards the daughters of my people, not to fan nor to cleanse even a full wind from those places shall come unto me. Now also will I give sentences against them.

Behold, he shall come up as clouds. And His chariots shall be as whirlwind. His horses are swifter than eagles, woe unto us, for we are spoiled.

O, Jerusalem, wash thine heart from wickedness, that they mayest be saved. How long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee.

Now turn to 5:15. Lo, I will bring a nation upon you from far, O house of Israel, said the Lord, it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation. A nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandeth what they say.

Now let's go to Ezekiel 7:15. The sword is without and the pestilence and the famine within, he that is in the field shall die with the sword, and he that is in cities. Famine and pestilence shall devour him. But they that escape, of them shall escape and shall be on the mountains like doves of the valleys. All of them mourning, everyone for his iniquity.

Now, friends, I think this prophecy has direct reference to the destruction of the Gentile age.

Just what the destroyer is, I don't know, but the prophets call it a lion, pestilence, famine and sword. However it will be sufficient to complete the job, and it will be cut short in righteousness.

Now turn to Rev. 18 and 1 and after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power, and the earth was lightened with His glory; and he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, "Babylon, the great is fallen and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication. And the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies." Now go to 21 verse and a mighty angel took up a stone like a great mill stone and cast it into the sea, saying, "Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." 23d verse, "For by thy sorceries were all nations deceived."

Now, friends, prophecy is of no benefit to us if we don't get the interpretation of it. This would be my interpretation of some of the above. The lion is an inhuman class. His horses are airplanes. Their language is the determination which the present world will not understand. The sword is a symbol of destruction. The pestilence and famine is hell in various forms. The city of Babylon is the present political and religious and commercial system. The merchants are the ones who are operating it. They are making it a house of merchandise. The mill stone is that old crushing, grinding system that we are now under. It won't be long until this old house of merchandise is going into bankruptcy, and will fall into the hands of the receiver, and God will make the settlement, and will judge everyone according to their works.

J. H. JACKSON,

MUSICAL TASTE BETTER

In spite of the preponderance of jazz and other trivial music on air, Walter Damrosch believes that radio audiences are rapidly forming a taste for symphonic and other high class programs.

He has come to this conclusion from the many thousands of letters he has received from those who have enjoyed his concerts by a symphony orchestra during the past few years, and the great increase in these expressions of approval which have come to him during the recent months. He says:

"From the first I was confident the radio would bring about a new era in the history of symphonic music in this country, but I had no idea that the results would become apparent so quickly."

Several of America's finest symphony orchestras, grand opera companies and concert bands have been heard on the air regularly during the past season, all contributing tremendously to the development of a better appreciation of good music on the part of the general public. We should have even more such programs in the future.

SCOFFS AT DAILY DOZEN

To those or us who do not relish a lot of physical culture exercises before breakfast or at any other time, a recent pronouncement by Dr. Jesse F. Williams, professor of physical education at Teachers College, New York, comes as a message of cheer.

Dr. Williams declares that earlly rising to the accompainment of an alarm clock, going through wearisome seting-up exercises and enduring a cold bath is "silly, superstitious and artificial."

Because of the mass of physical culture propaganda with which we have been deluged in recent years, we have come to believe that any sort of painful contortions which we loathe must be good for us. It is doubtful whether those who indulge in these fads are any healthier or longer lived than those who go through life naturally and painlessly.

Anyway, we hope Dr. Williams is right, and as his advice is easy to follow, we imagine that a good many will give it a thorough trial by forgetting the daily dozen and other ceremonies prescribed by faddists.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A young lady was conducting a religious gathering, and read this interesting thing about a dollar bill: "A business man placed a piece of blank paper to a dollar bill, asking everyone through whose hands it passed, to write down what it was spent for. It was gone for several weeks and then came back to the man who had sent it out. Here is the story of that bill: Spent five times for salary, five times for tobacco, five times for cigarettes, three times for candy, twice for ribbons and laces, three times for meals, one time for auto parts, one time for groceries, one time for washing, two times for shaving, one time for tooth paste, but never a time for the church and the worship of God." In its journey that dollar bill had been used thirty times, showing that it had been spent fifteen times for things not necessary, fifteen times for things necessary. It is a fact that we spend money for everything before we spend it for the Lord's work. If anything in the category of our business life must wait, it is the preacher and the church. Hambone said, "De Lord am not pushing me lik de grocery man." In God we live and move and have our being, and I am anxious to know when we are going to give him a square deal.

I think that the ugliest sight I ever saw was a great big Devil fish. It had many arms and they were reaching out in every direction to grasp everything that came within reach, but I noticed that the Devil fish had not a single arm reaching out to give. I looked at the fish and said to him, "Old fellow, I have seen things on the shore who were equipped as you are. I have seen business men who had arms reaching out to take, but no arms reaching out to give. You live in the sea, and reach out to grasp the things of the sea, but these land Devil fish wear clothes and walk up and down our streets and highways, and grasp everything in the air, on the earth and under the earth. They have no hands, but they may have a few 'Feelers' out of which they shove a few dollars for decency's sake." I have wondered why anything that had life should be named "Devil fish," but after I saw that thing, and examined his body, and his methods of dealing with everything else in the sea, I saw that there was no other name that would have suited him. There are Devil fish in the sea, and there are Devil fish on the shore.

Not long since I heard a man making a report of collections that he was asked to raise. With pride he pointed out that he had collected 80 percent. of all his assessments. I will admit that it did look good in these times of depression. We allow ourselves to be satisfied when we get eighty percent. of a collection for the church. Listen to me, if you had ten children in a school bus. and a report should come to you that the bus had been wrecked, and that eighty per cent of your children were not killed, would that satisfy you? If we have a family of ten and two of them are killed, we think that the percentage lost is terrible. We can treat church deficits with but little concern, but in the heart of some good people, and in the heart of God, there is a great hurt. If you rate fifty, seventy, ninety-five percent, in your church loyalty, do not forget that there is a hurt in the percent. where you fail. Why not be one hundred percent. in everything?

As you motor through the Rocky Mountains you will be startled by large grizzly bears shambling out before your car. They are protected and know it. The motorist knows it also, and he will stop his car to keep from killing the bear. When the car is still, Mr. bear quietly walks around to the running board, and placing his front feet there, he sticks his head above the body of the car, and begs you for your lunch. Motorists have spoiled the bears by feeding them, and they are always there to get free food. The bears have ceased to work for a living. They can get all they want to eat, by blocking traffic, and begging for food. Here of late there have been many human bears begging their way through this world. I am firmly convinced that charity will spoil birds, brutes and men. A Scout is taught to accept pay, but not to accept charity. A good rule for all.

In one of our schools of Theology there was a great preacher who had the habit of occasionally digging his hands deep into his pants pockets, at the same time he would throw back his head and speak like thunder. He was himself in that moment of inspiration, and under the power of his eloquence people trembled. All the Theologs in his school wanted to be like him, and so they tried to imitate the great leader. While they were preaching they too, would dig their hands deep into their pants pockets, throw back their heads and roar like thunder. A twitter would play through the audience. When the great man was himself people trembled, but when there was imitation, the crowds laughed in merriment. All of us are more or less imitators, but we had better be careful how we let it be known. At a Conference the Bishop pulled his handkerchief out of his breast pocket so gracefully, that forty preachers are now doing that same thing.

COTTON SEED

By C. E. Stapp

Are you planting the best variety of cotton seed? The cotton variety test in Alabama from 1926-31 shows some interesting facts. For the information of farmers in the county who wish to grow the leading variety of cotton for this section, the following is an average of 16 tests annually in Central Alabama since 1926: The length of staple is given in 1-32 inch.

D. P. L., 458 pounds lint cotton, 30.9 staple.

Cook's 1627, 447 pounds lint cotton, 28.6 staple.

Cook's 307-6 (Rhyne) 446 pounds of lint cotton, 27.9 staple.

Dixie Triumph, 434 pounds lint cotton, 29.9 staple.

The above are leading varieties in both yield of lint and staple of 35 varieties tested by Auburn since 1926. These tests were conducted in north, central and south Alabama. The above are results obtained from tests conducted in central Alabama and apply to Chilton County. Alabama made the greatest progress last year in growing better varieties of cotton than any of the cotton growing states. This was due to the large number of people stressing the importance of better varieties of cotton and to the ginners co-operation in setting "gin days" in order that the farmers might save their seed pure. The following farmers have notified me that they saved their seed pure at the gin last fall. Possibly there are others whose name I do not have at present: J. R. Robinson, Woodie Pate, Ellie Shirley, E. C. Moore, J. Z. Mims, W. A. Jones, Miss Mabel Jones, R. M. Davis, Frank Nelson, Gulledge Brothers, W. A. Foshee, W. W. Williams, G. T. Guy, Tom Hilyer, Richard Turpin (colored), H. S. Shaw, Grady Jones and Bill Jones.

Most of these men gave indicated their willingness to help get their surplus seed in the hands of other farmers of the county hoping that this year a large percentage of our cotton acreage will be planted in D. P. L. seed. I will be glad to help any farmers who want good seed to get in touch with source of same.

SOLONS HEARING VOICE OF FARMER

Montgomery, Ala.—This winter the legislative department of the American Farm Bureau Federation is carrying forward what is probably the most extensive and far-reaching legislative program it has ever undertaken, says E.L. Deal, Alabama Farm Bureau secretary.

Recently tremendous support was thrown behind the equalization fee as an amendment to the agricultural marketing act under which the Federal Farm Board operates when President Edward A. O'Neal and other American Farm Bureau officials appeared before agricultural committees of the Senate and House.

"One main purpose of the equalization fee is to control surpluses and prevent the American price of cotton and other important crops from being set by the world price," Deal said. "This is the plan the farm bureau has for improving the agricultural marketing act."

Another important piece of work of the farm bureau legislative deparment was in getting approved a measure to establish a $10,000,000 revolving fund for use by the Secretary of Agriculture in promoting the organization of agricultural credit corporations and livestock loan companies.

Largely through farm bureau efforts the bill was liberalized to make it more workable. Loans may be made out of this fund to individuals desiring to purchase capital stock up to 75 per cent of the face value of the stock.

Many other measures are receiving either the support or opposition of the national farmer's organization, Deal said.

STORAGE OF EGGS GETS ATTENTION

Montgomery, Ala.—Placing eggs in cold storage to be held for sale in late summer and early fall when prices are usually at a peak is attracting the attention of Alabama poultrymen, according to J. B. Sylvest, manager of the produce department of the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association.

Already more than 100 cases have been stored, and storing will continue until around 5,000 cases have been stored, he said.

In past years producers have gained 4 to 10 cents per dozen by storing for sale in high-price months, he said.

PERSHING'S PARSING

Ability to parse a sentence better than a fellow contestant for an appointment to West Point gave the United States its greatest living soldier, General John J. Pershing, according to a story recently published.

Back in 1881, when three Missouri boys appeared before an examining board which was to select an appointee to fill a vanacy at the United States Military Academy, Pershing was one of the three. He and another boy named Mallory were so evenly matched that the board was hard put to decide between them.

As a final test the board proposed for parsing the sentence: "We are, as near heaven by sea as by land." Pershing did a perfect job of parsing while Mallory fell down, so Pershing got the appointment, was graduated from West Point, rose to high military rank and eventually became commander of the A. E. F.

His rival, J. D. Mallory, has had a modest but useful career and is still living as a rural school teacher near Purdin, Mo., having taught all these years. Possibly he could beat Pershing in parsing that same sentence today.

Fun and Fire

"How much fun it would be to see this place burn! I guess the blaze would go nearly to the sky," thought George Dowdell, eleven years old, as he passed through a thick forest of fine timber. Without waiting to think of the great damage a fire would do in the forest, he struck a match and put it to a deep bank of leaves. Soon the fire was spreading rapidly. George ran away to watch the fire from a safe distance.

The wind began to blow. As it increased the fire spread faster, the flames leaped higher, and the popping and snapping of the burning vegetation grew louder. The fire rushed on like a fiery dragon with millions of flaming tongues that were darting everywhere, licking up leaves, straw, brush, bushes, small trees and great ones.

By the time Mr. Flaxon, the man who owned the forest, could get help and conquer the fire, more than half of his five-hundred-acre forest had been burned. Timber worth thousands of dollars had been destroyed. Only smoking stumps were left where tall trees had stood.

While George was watching the fire as it was roaring around the roots and trunks and in the tops of the trees he had time to think. He realized that he had started something that he could not stop, and he wished that he had not started it. He thought of class discussions in which his teacher had asked the class to make a list of the losses caused by allowing fire on woodland. How he had enjoyed those discussions! And now that he remembered them, he no longer enjoyed watching the raging flames. He wanted to forget the fire, but the harder he tried to forget it the more his mind stayed on the havoc the fire was making of Mr. Flaxon's prized forest.

When George went to sleep that night he was still worrying about the fire that he had caused. He dreamed that he was one of the stately trees he had seen burn. In his dream he saw the fire coming nearer and nearer. His feet were rooted deep in the rich soil. No chance to escape, for, like all other trees, he was anchored to one spot of earth. The fire kept coming nearer; the hot wind was sweeping around his trunk and away up among his branches. Then the flames themselves came darting around his trunk and setting the dry outside bark on fire. As the bark caught higher and higher the furnace below, fed by leaves and straw on the ground, sent up a scorching heat that parched the straw on the branches of the tree that was George. Look! A blaze from the bark has reached the parched straw. Now the entire top is blazing! The tops of the trees all around him were burning up too, and the terrible fiery furnace that they all created consumed branches and trunks until only smoking stumps were left. The spongy soil around his roots had also been burned down to the clay, and the clay was baked like a brick.

Just then his mother called, "George, wake up. Are you having a bad dream?"

George awoke and found that his horrible experience as a burning tree was only a dream.

"Where is Daddy?" he asked.

"He is still with Mr. Flaxon and the other men fighting fire in Mr. Flaxon's woods," his mother replied.

Then George told his mother his dream. He also told her that he had started the fire in Mr. Flaxon's woods. After talking awhile they decided that the only thing for him to do was to go to Mr. Flaxon and tell him that he had set the fire in his woods and that when he grew to be a man he would try to pay him for all the loss it had caused.

Before George went to sleep again he made a resolution that he intended to repeat aloud every day. This is the resolution: "I'll always try to keep the Golden Rule, and I'll always remember that fire is easy to start but hard to stop."

Alabama Hard Hit By Cold Weather

Alabama was hard hit by the cold weather of the past week, reports the department of agriculture.

F. W. Gist, statistician, reports that it is too early to estimate the amount of the damage done fruits and vegetables.

Reports from over the state to Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, indicate the following to be true:

Tomatoes, beans, corn, squash, cucumbers and other tender vegetables were killed.

Strawberires must grow new crop berries as berries were all killed.

Cabbage, turnips and mustard damaged but it is generally believed they will come out if there is no further damage.

English peas were badly damaged. B. P. Livingston, chief of the plant industry division of the department of agriculture reports that it is difficult to give grade on those shipped following the cold.

Onions were apparently not hurt.

Pears and early blooming peaches were badly damaged or killed with some damage to buds of other fruits. Irish potatoes also suffered heavy damages.

COTTON POOLS ARE CLOSED FOR SEASON

Montgomery, Ala.—Pools for the season 1931-32 of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association will be closed March 31, it was announced here by J. A. Beaty, general manager.

Exception will be made in the case of the special pool created this season to receive "drouth loan cotton," he said. Outside of this members desiring to deliver cotton after March 31 will deliver it to pools for the season of 1932-33. A schedule of advances for the 1932-33 season has not yet been announced, he added.

This year the association received cotton from its members and advanced within one cent per pound of the market price. This cotton will be sold before July 31 and final settlement made with members, as it has been demonstrated that the holding operations of the past two years have benefitted the non-members at the expense of the member, the co-op head said.

"To eliminate speculation and to discontinue sustaining the market during the harvesting season at the expense of the member" was given as the reason for the sales policy for 1931-32.

Beaty said that officers and employees of the association would spend much time this spring and summer improving facilities for handling cotton next fall. Last fall the association placed a competen classer at 35 points in the State where farmers could carry their cotton and get immediate service on classing and advances. This service will be greatly improved and expanded for the next season, he said.

The Workstock's Plea To Farmers Of Chilton County For 1932

I am fat and fine at this time and I am wondering if you are planning on producing 90 bushels of corn for me this year. You know, I am very fond of corn, but I like a change in my grain feed sometime. As a little extra, what about a little plot of oats, rye, soybeans, kaffir corn or some other small grain? I can hardly get along without, at least 2 tons of hay. Most any kind of hay will be pleasingly accepted; Johnson grass, alfalfa, sudan grass, peanut hay, pea vine hay, vetch or Austrian peas makes a fine feed for me. I am sure you can grow some of these crops, because I have seen them grow in Chilton County. Then, too, I am an Alabama guy and I want you to stand by me (I'll make a good crop for you.)

Things didn't go so well with me last year. I was a little puny almost all the year. My master bought a box of stock powder for me. Now, you know I can't make a whole year on stock powder, but I did notice some mighty good directions on the box. "Here is what I saw. 'Feed in clean trough free from manure; give ample grain and hay; give clean, fresh water and keep salt in trough at all times; examine teeth once each year; keep feet in good condition; curry and brush daily; keep stock in roomy stall; let stock have access to lot in favoable weather; and give two tablespoons of stock powder a day. Would you be surprised if I told you that my master followed all of these directions. Well, here is what he did: He overlooked all except the last one. Now, I have only horse sense, but I know you can and are going to do more for me this year.

Next to my eating and health comes my pleasure. Please give me a nice place to roll after my day's work is done. If I could spend Sundays and rainy days grazing in a good pasture I'd feel much better. I really get tired in a dry lot with my head over the fence. Just before I close I must offer my prayer:

To thee, my master, I offer my prayer: Feed me, water and care for me and when the day's work is done provide me with shelter, a clean dry bed and stall wide enough to lie down in comfort. Talk to me, your voice often means as much to me as the reins. Pet me sometimes that I may serve you more gladly and learn to love you. Do not jerk the reins and do not whip me when going up hill. Never strike, beat or kick me when I do not understand what you mean, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me, if I fail to do your biddings see if something is not wrong with my harness or feet.

Examine my teeth when I do not eat. I may have an ulcerated tooth and that, you know, is very painful. Do not tie my head in an unnatural position or take away my best defense against flies and mosquitoes by cutting off my tail.

And, finally, Oh my master, when my useful strength is gone, do not turn me out to starve or freeze or sell me to some cruel owner to be tortured and starved to death, but do thou, my master, take my life in the kindest way; and your God will reward you here and hereafter. You will not consider me irreverent if I ask this in the name of Him who was born in a stable. Amen.

Democrats In County Should Begin Work Now --- Not Wait Until After The Primary

That old adage, "The early bird catches the worm," should be fairly ringing in the ears of the Democrats of Chilton County at this time. On the ticket that will be presented at the polls to those voting Democratically, will be candidates for all offices in Chilton County, to be voted on, except one member of the county board of education.

The candidates who are seeking office on the Democratic ticket in Chilton County are all men who are true in their belief that the Democrats have a splendid opportunity to make headway in this county in the coming elections. They have come before the voters of Chilton County, asking for these offices, giving their stand as being fair and impartial, but Democratic.

It will be found that all office holders who were elected on the Democratic ticket have always been fair and square in all their dealings with the people they serve while in office. That is something inherited by those who have Democratic blood flowing in their veins. True Democratic fairness and hospitality that has been brought down through the years and still is as solid as ever.

Find the political announcements in this newspaper and become acquainted with those who are seeking local offices on this ticket. They are all of the type adhering to the truth and running solely on a basis of right county government for the interest of all the people of the county and not seeking office in order to keep things pulled in a certain selfish direction.

These men cannot win this race fighting alone. When they announced, they sincerely hoped, expected and believed that the voters of the county would, or have realized that the time has come when fair and impartial administration of affairs is becoming necessary, in order to prevent the inevitable rut that such affairs usually get into, and now is the time to begin this work of telling and showing the voters of the county this item.

It is true that those candidates who are seeking offices in the county on the Democratic ticket, have nothing to fear in the primary election, but nevertheless, it is not too early for the Democrats to begin working along this line. It will take "spunk" and a lot of it, but there should be enough of that in every thinking citizen of the county to keep him out of the old line, where he is dictated to as to how to vote—one of the things he has a perfect right to do according to his own wishes, and if he sells this, he then sells his rights as an American citizen.

Each Democrat of the county, or one who intends to come over and vote the Democratic ticket, should resolve now that he or she will vote as the mind dictates, go down the line and cast that ballot for the men who are anxious to serve the people in the offices they seek on the Democratic ticket, and serve in such a way that criticism would be out of place.

Crime And Punishment

The most frequent comment we hear about the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby is that "hanging is too good" for the perpetrators of this heartless, brutal crime.

We are inclined to agree, not only in this instance but in general, that our present methods of punishment for crime are "too good" for the criminals. We have tried being tender-hearted with criminals for a good many years, in most parts of the country. The net result is an enormous increase in crime, overcrowded prisons conducted at heavy cost to the taxpayers, and the belief of every "smart" crook that he can "beat the rap" if he only gets a lawyer smart enough and crooked enough to find the loopholes in the law. We have carried to the limit of absurdity the principle that it is better for a thousand guilty men to escape punishment than for one innocent man to be convicted.

Certain facts seem to us incontrovertible. One is that the death penalty is no deterrent of murder where it is not promptly and certainly enforced. Another is that imprisonment does not reform criminals nor the fear of it frighten them. Other methods of punishment, other means of preventing crime, must be discovered and applied.

Let sociologists deal with the causes of crime, the influences that make criminals out of boys. But let us all take a practical, common-sense view of the punishment for crime. At all costs let us back up our law-enforcement agencies, let us clear the statute books of the laws which protect the criminal, let us speed up our criminal trials and place men on the bench who will show no mercy to those who deserve none, and then let us consider whether the old-fashioned whipping-post, the stocks and the pillory, which held the convicted criminal up to public disgrace and shame, may not be as effective deterrents of crime as the gallows, the electric chair or the penitentiary.

The outstanding characteristic of the modern criminal gangster is his vanity. Destroy that and you have destroyed his chief incentive to crime. "Two-Gun" Crowley went to the electric chair a hero in his own eyes and in those of his child-minded admirers. Gerald Chapman, murderer, is a figure of greatness among youthful crooks because he smiled when the trap was sprung. 'Would crime seem heroic, crimnals heroes, if Crowley had been flogged in public and Chapman exposed to public contempt in the stocks? We think not. We think that punishments to be effective should be so shameful that dread of their disgrace will deter even the most hardened.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

"Silence is a true friend that never betrays."
—Confucius.

* * *

And away we go on our tour round town this week. Last week we paused at Hill's Grocery Store for a visit. And while there it occurred to me that we were next door to where Ben Margolis had his Sample Shoe Store. Ben moved right in the middle of our tour and we missed visiting him. He's up on main street now.

* * *

We perambulate on down to the two-story building, where Dr. Joe E. Edgar has his dental offices. Dr. Edgar is rated as one of the best dentists in this section, and he has some very neat offices upstairs.

* * *

Now we will stop at the funeral parlor of J. Mell Martin & Sons. The sons are Samuel, Leroy and James Carl. This is the first real funeral parlor established in Clanton, giving excellent service, both on funeral arrangements and ambulance service with two modern coaches. Mr. Martin has been in this business in Clanton for a number of years. The nice little building has just been "done over" inside and is really a nice place. Samuel Martin sticks around there practically all the time and knows his business almost as well as his father does. That's paying them both a compliment. We find that Mr. Martin is a very congenial fellow and is really a booster for Clanton and Chilton County.

* * *

Now—here's where I'm stumped. I don't know whether to say something nice about the fellows in the next place of business or to say what I think of them. As you see the place is none other than the building of C. G. N., the Chilton County News. Anyway, we'll go in and meet the boys. Outside of the editor, we find Vernie Teel, associate editor of the News and The Rockford Chronicle. John M. VanDerveer, Jr., assistant associate and one of the chief moguls on the two papers also. Then we see Bonnie Hand, the assistant to the assistant associate, to the associate. Now ain't that some handle. Three newspapers are published in this plant each week, one for Chilton County, one for Coosa County and one for Elmore County.

* * *

Now the next building is vacant, and so we stop for a short call at Dief's Cafe, a neat little eating place. and while here we will just get a cuppa cawfee, or something and are pleasantly served by Mrs. Glenn W. Moore, and Miss Legra Mims, who serve the food from the kitchen, where it is prepared by excellent cooks. Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, widely known man of Clanton, is the proprietor of this place. We'll meet him down next door.

* * *

Now we cross the street and visit the well known Dief's Service Station, and meet Mr. Dief, who really believes in service, pronto. We also get acquainted with the three fellows who help make Dief's one of the most popular places in town. These are Wilbur Scarborough, J. E. Easterling and Herschel Gore, all have become fixtures at this place, where Pan-Am products, and Goodyear tires are sold. This place, ladies and gentlement, has been in business here for approximately six years and has never closed its doors. That's some record.

* * *

The large house you see, as we pass on down this street is where Mrs. J. C. Jones resides.

* * *

Now we come to the Two-One Service Station, where Bill Lanier is the chief mogul. This is one of the newest service stations in Clanton, and is one of the most attractive. Mr. Lanier, we find is a pleasant sort of fellow, and we stop to chat a while with him. Rufus White is also here, and gives filling station service as well as mechanical service if any of their customers desire it.

* * *

We will saunter on down to the end of this street, where we are pleasantly greeted by Mrs. Mary Martin, operator of another of Clanton's popular filling stations. Mrs. Martin has with her a very likable young fellow, D. C. Melton, who looks after the business for her. They handle Woco-Pep products and we are invited to visit them again.

* * *

Now folks we'll cross the street where the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company is located in the large building you see. This is the only real large wholesale grocery business in the county and one of the most efficient and complete grocery houses in the state. There we find Roland Taylor, Tom Taylor and Jimmy Taylor, who have several others there with them to help them move the business along.

* * *

The big house next door is where Mayor and Mrs. J. Lee Smith reside.

* * *

We will walk on back up this side of the street, and the large home you see there is the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Jack and Alec Hayes.

* * *

And we come to the ground floor office of Dr. Hayes, one of Clanton's prominent and well known citizens, who owns quite a bit of property here. Now we might call your attention to the warehouse of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, which is in charge of Willie Jones, the Coca-Cola man of Clanton.

* * *

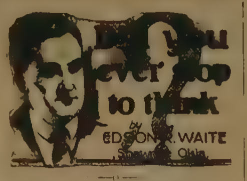
Now this big building here, as you see, is the New Exchange Hotel, where Mr. M. R. Orr is the mistress and a very capable and likable one too. Mrs. Orr has with her, her daughter, Miss Madelyn Orr, one of Clanton's popular young ladies. The New Exchange Hotel is considered one of the best between Birmingham and Montgomery and enjoys a fine business. Its meals are widely known among the traveling people.

* * *

We will stop here at the hotel for a spell and rest awhile. It's a nice place, and we'll continue on our tour next week.

* * *

I owe Mr. Dewey Eubanks an apology. When we were touring up at the barber shop next to Calloway Drug Company last week, I guess Dewey was not in as we missed him. Anyway, he is one of the fine barbers up at that shop, and has been there for several years. I call your attention to this, so's you see that shop has more barbers than I gave it credit for, and good ones too.



S. E. Thompson, publisher of The Chicago Illustrated Times, says:

"Romantic is the simple act of reading a newspaper! Only a short time ago this sheet of white paper was in another form of life. It was part of a spruce or balsam tree—flexing its green arms in the white silence of a north country. The woodsman's ax meant not death but new life to that tree. It meant that the tree was to become part of your life, that it was to bear the urgent news of the world to your doorstep. That tree was to know the big "Barking" drums that tear logs into shreds. It was to whirl along in the wide white wet ribbon of paper in the paper-making machine; someday to hear the roar of newspaper presses in the heart of the newspaper building. Before this newspaper got into those presses it had felt the molten heat of the stereotype chamber, the steam of the matrix table; it had scuttled thru the slam-bang bustle of composing and engraving and editorial rooms.

"The newspaper is the brain-child of a small army of news-hungry men and women who have in many cases suffered hardship and labored long that their reportings may be placed before you on this sheet of paper.

"Be as unworldly as a child for a moment—focus your eyes and powers beyond the surface of this newsprint. Picture in your mind the trees and the ships and the freight cars and the presses—vision the faces of newspaper men and women, etched sometimes with fatigue, ablaze with the fire of a purpose.

"Let your imagination be your companion as you read your newspaper and you'll never know boredom. Wouldn't life today be a dull business without the newspaper? It's a thrilling business to both of us—to you in the reading and to us in the publishing!"

SOW THE SEED OF THE RIGHTEOUS

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

What kind of life are you living today?
Are you living for God or worldly fame?
Are you laying up treasures in Heaven above,
Or seeking the wealth and praise of this world?

Remember the Bible says, you know;
Where your treasures are your heart is also.
So be careful friends f the seed you sow,
Be sure you sow the golden grain
Whatever you sow you shall also reap
The seed you sow will return to you again.

Sow the seed of the righteous and obey God's word,
The wicked worketh a deceitful work,
But to Him that soweth in righteousness,
Shall be given a sure reward.

Sow to yourselves in righteousness,
Reap in mercy and gain even as I have seen
They that plow iniquity and sow wickedness
Reap the same.

So be careful friends what you think or say.
Some bird will carry your thoughts away,
Yes, far beyond your reach and mine
So let your thoughts, words and deeds be kind.
Be careful friends what step you take,
Ask God to keep you from all mistakes.

He alone can keep you in the righteous path,
He alone can save you from sin and death
Ask God to keep you day by day
Help you his commandments to obey
He will save you from all unrighteousness and sin
A home in Heaven by obeying his laws, you will gain

Friends the time is coming, we none know the day
When our lives will be an open book proclaimed to all the world
Then shall we be willing to reap on that day,
The seed we have sown along life's way?
Or shall we be willing that all may see
The deeds that have been done by you and me?

Alabama State Bar To Meet In B'ham

The Alabama State Bar Association will hold its annual meeting in Birmingham, at the Tutwiler Hotel on Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16, 1932. The plans and program are in the making, but at this time the following is assured.

The Birmingham Bar Association has accepted the privilege and responsibility of acting as host to all out-of-the-city lawyers and guests and, cordially invites every judge and lawyer in Alabama to be its guest at a banquet to be held on Friday evening, April 15th.

There has been recently completed and occupied in Jefferson County a magnificent court house. The County Commission and Court House Commission have requested the Alabama State Bar to inspect and "judicially dedicate" the new court house during this meeting.

The following sections of the association, with the following chairmen, are now in process of organization and will be prepared to make a report at the meeting:

(a) Section on Criminal Law and Procedure. Honorable Thomas E. Knight, Attorney General, of Montgomery, and Honorable Roderick Beddow, of Birmingham, co-chairmen.

The association has been fortunate enough to secure for that portion of the program assigned to this section the presence of John H. Wigmore, of Northwestern University, author of "Wigmore on Evidence". Col. Calvin Goddard and Leonarde Keller of the Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory. These gentlemen will give a demonstration program relating to evidence in criminal cases and methods of detecting deception.

(b) Section on Equity Law and Procedure. Hon. Files Crenshaw, Chairman.

(c) Section on Aeronautical Law. Hon. Douglas Arant and Hon. Amzi Barber, co-chairmen.

(d) Section on Commercial Law. Hon. DuPont Thompson, Chairman.

The following speakers have accepted invitations to be present and will appear on the program:

Hon. Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis, Mo., President American Bar Association.

Hon. James Grafton Rogers, formerly dean of the Colorado Law School and now assistant Secretary of the State of the United States.

Hon. William Draper Lewis, Philadelphia, Penn., formerly dean of Yale Law School and now director of the American Law Institute.

Aside from intellectual treats those attending will be given other forms of entertainment that will make them forget the depression.

The association has requested the following to meet with it and if consistent with their plans and wishes, to organize sections of the Alabama State Association:

a. The judges and solicitors of the state.

b. The women lawyers of the state.

The courts of the State are requested to declare a holiday for the days of this meeting. Special and unusual low hotel rates are promised for those who attend.

—Signed: John S. Stone, Pres. Birmingham Bar Association.

SPEED DEMON CAMPBELL

Following what has become in recent years his annual custom, Sir Malcolm Campbell of England again broke the world's record for automobile speed at Daytona Beach, Fla.; a few days ago. In one mile stretch he reached the astounding velocity of 267 miles an hour.

Campbell first set a world's record at Copenhagen in 1923 with 137 miles an hour, a speed relatively slow compared with his later feats. Every year since, with the exception of 1926, he has lowered the record.

Upon leaving Florida for a visit in Canada before returning home Campbell declared that he woul dreturn next year in the expectation of attaining a still greater speed. He is now 47 years old and has been driving racing cars for a quarter of a century.

DODGING TROUBLE

By Dr. Christmas Seal

Running away from unpleasant things in daily life is a prolific cause of mental illnesses. You may doge a duty or an unpleasant fact once or twice without harm, but dodging trouble does not remove it and gets you into bad mental habits. Almost always the trouble of dodging is more wearing than facing it would be. Perhaps you began to be a "dodger" in your childhood, but you can begin "facing things" at any time.

The Alabama Tuberculosis Association suggests that nervous ailments such as headaches, vomiting, hysterical attacks, sleeplessness and even convulsions may be nothing more than emotional crises that are a part of the "dodging habit." The way of cure is to face facts, avoid strain, live one day at a time. A good prescription would read as follows: Avoid overwork, overplay, overworry, over-indulgence or what ever "over" may be factor in your life, for these things do contribute to mental as well as physical illnesses.

HOLY WEEK CUSTOMS

Many are the religious customs observed throughout Christendom during Holy Week, some of which would seem strange to us. Among these is the ceremony of "whipping the vegetation" which prevails in South American countries in connection with the observance of Good Friday.

In Colombia on this day, masked penitents march in small processions, silently and mournfully, whipping as they go the wayside vegetation, as well as the grasses and the fruits.

Dr. Cesar Uribe, former associate professor of Harvard Medical School, declares that the thrshing of the bushes and plants on Good Friday, serves as a most effective pruning of dead leaves and branches.

During the Lenten weeks prior to Easter, Colombian housewives lay in large quanities of staple supplies, such as flour, potatoes, rice and sugar, in preparation for Holy Week. During Holy week, all shops are nearly double in the preparatory period previous. Although Holy Week fasting is general, the prices reach a peak which adds greatly to the cost of living.

American tourists enjoying the luxury of an Easter cruise in southern waters, will find unusual interest in the religious processions which throng the main streets of Bogota, Colombia, on Easter Sunday, when penitents carry aloft the famous figures of saints noted for their jeweled head-dresses. Thousands of chanting men and women follow the processions, which are among the most colorful to be seen anywhere.

Plant, Can, Pickle And Eat In 1932-1933 --- Begin The Spring Garden Early

By C. E. Stapp, County Agent

A year-round garden every year should forever be the slogan of all farmers whether it be during hard times or days of prosperity. The same should be adopted by most villagers and urban people, though many of them fail to realize the economic importance of the home garden until the periodic depressions come. Everyone with a plot of ground that will grow grass, be the plot ever so small, can grow some vegetables. The success in growing vegetables depends primarily upon the following: thorough preparation of the soil before planting, supplying the necessary plant food through proper fertilization, good seed, selecting the vegetables and varieties that are adapted to your section, and then cultivating or working sufficiently to keep down the weeds.

The garden should be plowed thoroughly before spring plantings are made. Where barnyard manure is available it should be broadcast in liberal quantities before breaking the soil. This is an excellent garden fertilizer and can be used with certain degrees of success where other materials cannot be had, although best results are obtained where this is supplemented with commercial forms of nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

Hotbeds and "hotkaps" or plant protectors may be used to good advantage in starting such plants as tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cabbage, and lettuce before they can be planted in the open. Such plants can be started in the house in a shallow box placed near a window where they will be exposed to sunlight, and transplanted to the open field as soon as danger of frost has passed.

By repeating the plantings of some of the crops a balanced and continuous supply may be had throughout the season. For further information see your County Agent.

Farmers Stimulated To Grow Own Meat

The livestock class in vocational agriculture at the Goodwater High School is doing its part toward stimulating interest in farmers of Coosa County to grow their own meat and lard. There are only six students in this class. All of them are running a sow-and-litter project except one and he has a pig growing project.

The boys have some very good brood sows for these projects. James Neighbors and Fulmer Ward have pure-bred Duroc Jersey sows. Thomas Eason and Casey Barnes have good grade Duroc sows. Duncan Brown, Jr., has a very fine registered Berkshire sow that will weigh around 350 pounds. She is bred to a registered Berkshire boar and will farrow the first of April. This sow offers many farmers a chance to obtain them a pure-bred pig to be grown out to a brood sow. I believe this is the best individual sow and possibly the best bred sow in Coosa County. Loyd Bice will grow out two pigs to a marketable size for his project.

These boys have made definite written plans as to how they are going to handle these sow-and-litter projects. They are also carrying a corn and legume project as a source of feed for these sows. They are taking plenty of interest in their projects and I am looking forward to finishing a group of A grade projects this year.

With around 80 percent. of the farmers in Coosa County not having a brood sow, it is high time we all made an especial effort to bring more good sows into our county. Forty percent. of the farmers in the Goodwater community have brood sows and we are making every effort possible to raise this number up to 100 percent.

E. N. MERRIWETHER.

Thorsby Institute News

Next Saturday night at 7:30 the Helen Keller Literary Society of Thorsby Institute will have an interesting progroom, yet different from any that has been given. Two plays, one in French, and the other in Latin, are to be presented. One will be able to tell by the English introduction given and the action of the plays, what is going on. The English titles are Theseus and the Minotaur, and Blue Beard. Most people are familiar with these stories. Everyone is invited. Admission ten cents.

A week from Friday night the Christian Life Conference begins to which everyone, especially the young people, are invited.

The Christian Endeavors enjoyed a social at the dining hall Saturday evening at 7:30 P. M. It was attended by a large number and all seemed to enjoy themselves very much. A new game of indoor tennis was played and enjoyed by all. The party was honored by the presence of Guy Higgins who had a birthday on this date. The party turned out to be a birthday party after all.

The Christian Endeavor had their weekly prayer meeting Sunday evening at the church. The topic was "What Does It Mean To Be A Christian." Several good talks were made.

News In Brief Form

Alabama livestock farmers are now getting ready for the two ton-litter shows to be held in the fall. The first will be at the Union Stockyards in Montgomery, Sept. 15-16; the second in Birmingham, Sept. 20-21.

Birmingham, Alabama, has been made a base point in freight rate making for sulphate of ammonia. The action came as a result of Alabama Farm Bureau work, and it should result in substantial freight rate savings to farmers.

Each year the Federal Farm Board has operated it has turned back into the Federal treasury a handsome portion of the money appropriated by Congress for administration expenses. It is expected to be around $300,000 this year, or on June 30, 1932.

Last year 865 Alabama farmers conducted permanent pasture demonstrations on 38,812 acres in cooperation with the county agents. Two years before (1929) there were 430 with 19,539 acres. This increase indicates that Alabama farmers are making better pastures, essential to successful livestock production.

Extension of electricity to agriculture has doubled within the last five years and now stands at approximately 20,000 miles of transition lines. California has more electrified farms than any other states, due to their irrigitation and to their agriculture. New York is second with 50,000 farmers on electric lines.

Being very dependent upon foreign countries for her meat supplies, Greece has been obliged to introduce meatless days as in war time. Because of difficulty in obtaining foreign currency to pay for exports the financial committee of the Chamber of Deputies decided to introduce three meatless days per week.

Our Sunday school meets at 9:45 A. M. Preaching at 11 A. M. We need you to fill your place in God's house.

Sunday night at 7:30 the young people of the church will have charge of the service. They are going to render a program that will be well worth while, and we want you to give to them the encouragement of your presence. They will give several special musical numbers, along with reading and pantomines. The program will last for an hour, and there should be a crowded auditorium.

We are publishing a church bulletin for our church program, and we are anxious that you have a copy each Sunday.

Do not let little excuses keep you from God's house next Sunday. The most of us have worn out the old ones. If you are going to stay away, please get up an excuse that has something to it. There are more "Threadbare" excuses for church attendance than there are threadbare clothes in this country.

UNCLE SAM'S GOOD DEAL

When Uncle Sam engages in any business transaction he usually gets skinned good and plenty, but there is one instance on record in which he made a really good deal, aided by a generous Alabama Corporation, and it was in connection with Muscle Shoals at that.

The story is told by a writer in the Review of Reviews, who relates how the Alabama Power Company, which formerly owned the Muscle Shoals site, donated it to the United States government as an act of patriotism when this country entered the World War. To make the transfer legal, the government gave the company a check for one dollar as compensation for the property, at the same time expressing appreciation of the gift. The writer continues:

"Later the power company reproduced the check in some literature which it was distributing, to inspire Southern citizens to similar gifts, whereupon the government fined the company $500 for reproducing a public document without official sanction. So the government made $499 on Muscle Shoals."

And, he might have added, the government hasn't made any further profit from the project since, because of the persistency of Congress in making Muscle Shoals a political football instead of handling it as a business proposition.

Upon the complaint of his wife that he took 25 cents from the baby's bank, police arrested Roy Markee of Evansville, Ind.

Pleasant Grove News

Mr. E. D. Dawson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Franklin.

Hyman Franklin spent Sunday with Maurice Wright.

Miss Minnie Eloise Williams spent Wednesday night with Miss Ruby Wright.

Things In General

Most of our farmers have planted their sugar cane, English peas, onions, cabbage, and lots of other things in Pleasant Grove community, and a considerable loss has been brought by this out " of season" weather, as it may be termed, but to make up for this loss of crops, those who have a late kill of meat on hand are receiving a blessing in curing and saving it.

Foursquare Church News

The work of remodeling the church is progressing rapidly. The front has been finished, and work on the additional Sunday school rooms has been finished.

Following is the current program:

Thursday night at 7:30, the midweek service will be held. Mrs. Caswell will be in charge of this service.

Sunday school at 9:45 Sunday morning. You are invited.

Sunday morning preaching service will be at 11:00. Rev. Caswell will be speaking on "The Three Greatest Temptations."

Crusader (young people's) meeting at 6:30 Sunday evening, with Ruth Plier in charge.

At 7:30 Sunday night, Rev. Caswell will use for his subject, "The Kingdom of God, and the Kingdom of Heaven."

We extend to everyone an invitation to attend and take part in the services.

"Oh! I wish we had a Telephone" is often the complaint heard in the home without a telephone.

Sons and daughters feel they are being left out of things because without a telephone they are often cut off from their friends. Mother and father too are handicapped for the same reason.

Consider how important telephone service is to the comfort and happiness of the entire family; how necessary it is in keeping you in constant, quick reach of friends, what it means in added convenience, in emergencies and as a protection to the home.

Truly there is nothing you can buy at such small cost that will give the family so much in added comfort, pleasure and satisfaction as a telephone. In fact, the cost is so small that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed_____ per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of________," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed_____per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of________." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

Station Tells Best Varieties Of Corn

Auburn, Ala., March 15.—The experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute has found that the variety of corn which a farmer plants is an important factor in determining what he makes. In north Alabama the best variety beat the poorest variety 7.7 bushels per acre; in central Alabama the difference was 7.9, and in south Alabama 10.4 bushels per acre. These are figures for five years (1926-1931 inclusive), including 15 tests in north Alabama, 9 in central, and 7 in south Alabama.

In presenting the figures J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, said that the difference on 10 acres was 77 bushels in north Alabama, 69 in central Alabama, and 104 in south Alabama. Either amount is sufficient for one mule for an entire year, he added.

Attention is called to the fact that the varieties did not necessarily include the poorest variety grown by Alabama farmers. If however, there are better varieties grown in the state the experiment station staff is not familiar with them.

Based on these experiments the Auburn experiment station recommended for north Alabama, Hastings, Douthit, Whatley, Mosby, Neal's Paymaster; central Alabama, Whatley, Douthit, Hastings, and Mosby; and south Alabama, Whatley, Douthit, Mosby, Hastings, and Pee Dee No. 5.

The above are varieties of white corn. Indian Chief was the most consistent high yielder of yellow corn during experiments of two years. Other good varieties of yellow corn are Locker, Grays, and Craig.

In line with these facts county agents are assisting farmers in getting seed of better varieties of corn for planting this spring.

Montgomery, Ala.—J. T. Mabry, prominent cotton planter of Panola, Sumter County, understands well the advantages of cooperative marketing of cotton.

He recently placed 745 bales of cotton in the annual pool of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association for marketing. The cotton was shipped from Panola to Demopolis by boat.

The cotton is of D. P. L. 4-8 and Mis-Del varieties and stapled from 15-16 to 1-1-16 inches. Mr. Mabry received premimums allowed by mills because of the superior staple length of his cotton.

about the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt. If circumstances should arise making his nomination impossible, we would then, of course, feel free to use our own judgment in promoting the best interests of the Party, but we will under no circumstances trade or barter our votes with any combination attempting to defeat the choice of a majority of the Democrats of the Nation. Under our Alabama primary system there can be no such thing as an instructed delegation in the strict sense. No State Convention has acted and no direct preferential primary is provided for, consequently the people can only indicate their choice through delegates who, though uninstructed, have frankly stated their position. Such being the case, there can be no issue of an instructed or uninstructed delegation. The sole issue is Roosevelt against the anti-Roosevelt combination.

bagful of witty remarks, wise sayings and fine philosophy, and who is to have as his lady-guest, one of the fairest to be picked in this section.

Another feature of the evening will be little Miss Betty Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Smith, of Denver, Colo., who will entertain with several tap dancing, and to dancing numbers. Little Miss Smith is a clever tap dancer and has appeared before numerous clubs and has been heard over a Denver broadcasting station.

This entertainment will take the place of the regular noon weekly luncheon of the club. Tonight's affair is scheduled for seven-thirty o'clock.

At the meeting last Thursday, several matters of business were attended to, and a loval program given. Each month, there are three programs arranged with outside color, while one each month is given over to local talent and speakers.

The club voted to give to the high school, a bust of George Washington, which will bear a bronze plate stating it was presented by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to my friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses they have shown me during my long illness. The many flowers, the good things to eat, and their many bright, encouraging visits. The Y. W. A. girls and the little school girls have never forgotten me, and I especially thank them. I thank my faithful wife and children, and Mrs. Adelle Hancock for their never tiring efforts in waiting on me. They never gave me an unkind word. I have only a short time to live and I want everybody to know how I thank them. May God's richest blessings rest on everyone.

Hospital Here Plans To Close This Month

overhead expenses to pay every year. Another burden was the amount of charity work that we were always called on to do. Being situated a great distance from any Charity hospital it naturally fell to our part to do much charity which meant cost of operating without credit or returns.

Everything possible was done to cut expenses and practice economy to make ends meet. In ALL CASES where the patient could pay only part of his bill, if I was the doctor in the case, I let my bill go and allowed him to pay the hospital, and this was not in one or two isolated cases, but in hundreds of them. In fact, this was such a general practice that I doubt if I have averaged $10 per patient cash returns on major operations since the hospital has existed.

In most instances, the Superintendents in charge have co-operated with me in practicing economy. They have kept a cow, have produced eggs and chickens, and made our own vegetable garden, and usually canned enough vegetables and fruits in summer to last all winter. Had it not been for this we would have been a financal failure long before now.

And while dealing with that feature, I desire now to acknowledge co-operation and courtesies from outside our organization. One year the Community Chest aided us in taking care of several cases. During the administration of Mayor Atkinson and Mayor Hart, they and their Councils donated our water supply in recognition of the charity service to the town and community.

But to make a long story short the charity cases which always amounted to more than 20% has gradually grown as the depression continued till for the last several months it has reached 75% or 80% of our total and even with all methods of economy and retrenchment possible we find it impossible to carry on longer.

We hope that some way will be provided to re-open and continue the operation of this much needed institution and in closing this statement, we wish to express our sincere thanks to all doctors, nurses and others who have so heartily co-operated in carrying on with us.

Sincerely yours,

V. J. GRAGG.

Uninstructed Delegates To Convention Give Views

the Presdential contest "it is without question the wise thing to send to Chicago an unpledged and open-minded delegation that will be free to carefully weigh the merits of every candidate in the light of conditions then existing and vote for the man best qualified to lead the party on to victory and properly administer the Nation's Governmental affairs."

Pointing out that "certain of our citizens, inspired by interest in only one presidential candidate and commonly reputed to be pledged to him, have announced themselves as candidates for delegates at large," the eight unfettered Democrats declared they are "deeply convinced it would be injurious for Alabama thus to tie her hands and preclude her convention delegation from considering the merits of other presidential candidates."

"We believe," their statement continued, "that the Alabama delegation should be free to act in the best interest of the Democratic Party when the convention nominates its candidates for President and Vice-President, and should not be hog-tied to the political ambitions of anyone. If Governor Roosevelt at that time seems to be the logical man we will vote for him, but we do not think Alabama's delegation should go to Chicago pledged to him or any other man. We hold no prejudices; we have no favorite; we are for the Party first."

They said they are convinced "by recent political history that former Governor Smith is not and can not become an available candidate."

The Democrats who seek to go to the convention with open minds and a free hand to do the best thing for the party will be opposed in the Primary of May 3 by a slate of candidates put in the field by W. C. Fitts, personal representative of Governor Roosevelt. Mr. Fitts and Warren S. Reese, Jr., of Montgomery, President of the Alabama Roosevelt clubs, recently announced that the candidates on their slate are all committed to the New York Governor.

HERE'S A COIN THAT WAS ALMOST AS OLD AS OLDEST

A United States coin was brought to the News office the other day that was almost as old as the oldest coin yet brought in. It was a big healthy silver dollar, dated 1799, in good condition, and the property of Jesse Baker, merchant of Clanton. This coin was 133 years old, lacking one year being as old as a coin showed by Fred Howard of Thorsby sometime ago. Mr. Baker also had other coins, a small silver five cent piece, smaller than a dime, and dated 1835. He also had a two cent piece dated 1865. Mr. Baker showed some Cuban coins of one cent, five cent, ten cent, twenty cent and forty cent values, and told some interesting facts about these coins.

Rescuers Find Baby All Alone In Cotton Field

Who is "Little Tess?"

More than 500 persons who crowded yesterday into Dr. Arthur Johnson's infirmary at Clanton asked the question as they bent over a pretty golden haired and blue-eyed baby girl and sought the answer in vain.

"Little Tess" herself, with only about 18 months of worldly wisdom, could not help them.

It was after 9 o'clock Monday night in that storm scattered section between Thorsby and Union Grove that "Little Tess" was found.

An ambulance from Clanton was attempting to make its way through the tornado stricken area. Eddie Wyatt of Clanton was riding on the running board of the ambulance to direct the driver.

Whether the road was too narrow, or whether the driver failed to make a sharp turn, as luck would have it, the ambulance slipped on soft ground into a ditch.

And as the driver and others alighted to look over the situation the cry of a baby broke the stillness. The sound came from a field nearby and in the half light the crew saw a tiny figure in white.

Wyatt rushed over and picked up the tot. He looked around in vain for its home. There wasn't a house in sight.

The baby was bleeding from an abrasion on its forehead and her cheeks were scratched and bloody. To his questions the baby replied with sobs. A search of the surroundings failed to reveal any other person.

And so "Little Tess" has become the great mystery of the storm.

Who is she, where she lived, no one seemed to know.

So the nurses have named her "Little Tess" because she came to them out of the storm.

Late Tuesday night, the baby was identified as a member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Lyold Butler, of near Jemison. Mr. Butler lies seriously injured in a Birmingham hospital.

DALY MILLER HOME IS DAMAGED BY FIRE MONDAY

The home belonging to "Miss Daly" Miller, near the high school was slightly damaged early last Monday morning by fire and smoke. She is confined to her bed, and when the house caught near a fire place, Mrs. Roy, who attends "Miss Daly" carried the latter to a neighbor's home, when the alarm was sounded.

The flames were extinguished with only small damage done. The volunteer firemen answered the call.

J. D. Broadhead Home Burned Last Thursday

Clanton suffered another serious fire damage last Wednesday night. The home of Mr. J. D. Broadhead, prominent citizen of Clanton, was damaged by fire, the origin of which has not been determined. The flames were discovered about two o'clock last Thursday morning and the volunteer fire department was summoned. Aided by a strong wind the flames rapidly spread and it was with great difficulty that they were finally brought under control. The amount of the damage has not been fully ascretained at the present writing, but the building with its contents was almost entirely destroyed. The home of Mr. Broadhead was situated in the part of Clanton which is known as the Gowan Addition.

o-o-o

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Heflin made a hurry trip to Randolph last Monday night when word reached them that the storm had passed in that direction. Mrs. Heflin's family is from Randolph.

Death Toll Mounts As Checkup Begins

Over fifty persons were reported killed from a tornado sweeping and twisting through the northern half of Chilton County Monday night, and it is believed that approximately three hundred persons or more are injured, the majority of whom are serious.

No estimate in dollars of the damage done has been made. It is believed that there are one hundred homes completely demolished, and many badly damaged by the twister. Clanton and Thorsby have been the scene of rushing activities since about 7 o'clock Monday night, rendering all possible assistance with aid from Birmingham and Montgomery, both responding immediately to calls for doctors, nurses and ambulances.

Striking a quick and killing blow, a twister swooped down at Lomax, three miles north of Clanton Monday afternoon between five and six o'clock, claiming two lives there, continuing on eastward over the county in approximately a half mile wide strip dealing death and destruction to all in its path.

A second blow, about thirty minutes later, struck Thorsby, doing considerable damage to residents in the town proper and demolishing the front of the Wyatt Drug Co. Just above Thorsby, homes were torn from their foundations and smashed.

The first word of the catastrophe reached Clanton when a Martin's ambulance was called to Lomax during a driving rain, with a report that a cyclone had struck the place. The scene at Lomax, along the railroad and highway was terrible, with homes demolished, telephone and electric wires tangled across the roads, poles down and injured persons seeking medical aid.

Three negroes were brought in, two of whom were dead, and several white persons were injured. The home of VanBuren Edwards, was a total wreck, as was other homes in that immediate section. Aid was handicapped by the fury of the wind and rain, while rescue workers combed the wreckage for the injured.

During this time, doctors from Clanton, with their assistants arrived on the scene at Lomax, and administred first aid to several injured, while others went to Thorsby for treatment.

The tornado hit in spots in Chilton County, near Ridersville, Plantersville, Stanton, and on eastward toward Thorsby and Jemison, killing and demolishing as it went along. Soon, reports began to come in from other sections of the county, including the Union Grove community, east of Thorsby and Jemison, the Collins Chapel Community, Mineral Springs Community, all on the east side of the county, while ambulances from Martin & Sons and Spigener's of Clanton were kept busy bringing the injured to the hospital in Clanton. Linemen from the Clanton

Judge Tate stated Wednesday that no court would be held this week, and all cases set for this week would be carried over until another term.

Relief Work Progresses Rapidly In Stricken Area

American Legion, Red Cross And Volunteers Rush Shelter, Clothing, Food And Medical Aid To Stricken Families In The County

Tuesday afternoon relief work started on a small scale with citizens of the town closing their stores, clerks and managers giving what help they could in securing clothing and other material for the stricken families in Chilton County. Relief headquarters were established in the Walker Building in Clanton, with W. H. Sartor in charge, and several ladies of Clanton aiding in checking and distributing. The Chilton County Post of the American Legion also took steps in this work, with R. D. Woodson, Cohen E. Stapp and Gene Gore directing, with the aid of national guardsmen.

Committees composed of citizens of Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison and Maplesville were appointed Tuesday afternoon to look after conditions in the stricken communities near Thorsby and Jemison. And Wednesday morning early saw trucks loaded with suppiles and volunteer workers from all over the county, pouring into the sections needing aid. This work was being directed from the office of the County Agent in Clanton with Cohen E. Stapp in charge, associated with his was Clyde Baird, head of Red Cross Emergency work in this section.

Checks from five dollars up, were being received in Clanton from various sections, for relief work, while telephone calls and messages offering assistance came from many sections of the state. Hunt Frasier and H. G. Boyd, of Selma were in Clanton Monday night and rendered considerable aid by securing urgent hospital supplies from Montgomery. State highway crews in this section, under the direction of Milton Smith, aided Wednesday morning in carrying tents and other supplies into the affected sections.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE HAS QUIET WEEK

The past week has been according to reports reaching us from the office of Sheriff Walter Gillespie, a slack week. Up to Tuesday morning there had been only three arrests reported. These arrests were made on the charge of violating the prohibition law and we were unable to obtain the names of those whom the officers took in toll.

The Injured

The following list of injured is very incomplete. Due to the injured persons being sent to other places, and receiving medical attention at the scene of the tornado, the News was unable to get a better report. This report came mostly from the hospital in Clanton, and from the offices of Dr. Arthur Johnson and Dr. Napolen Johnson, where many were carried.

BIG DEMOCRATIC RALLY WILL BE AT WASHINGTON

Rally at National Capital On Jefferson's Birthday, Also Honors Wilson

Washington, March 23. — Jefferson Day, April 13th, will be marked by the greatest Democratic demonstration Washington has ever known, except of course, the inauguration of a Democratic President.

The entire day will be given over to business meetings, a gala luncheon, a memorial service at Woodrow Wilson's tomb in the Washington Cathedral, and an anniversary dinner. The most prominent members of the party will participate and their speeches will be broadcast over nation-wide radio hookups, as will be the memorial at St. Albans.

Among the speakers for the day will be Newton D. Baker, Claude G. Bowers, Governors Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, George White of Ohio, former Governors Alfred E. Smith of New York, James M. Cox of Ohio, Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, and Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming. In addition to these are Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic Leader of the Senate, Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey of the House of Representatives, John W. Davis of New York, Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illionois, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Congresswoman from New Jersey.

Among those to whom invitations are being extended to attend the celebration are all the Democratic Senators and Representatives, Democratic State Chairmen, Democratic National Committeemen and Committeewomen, Chairmen of the State Victory Committees in the party's $1,500,000 Victory campaign, all Democratic Governors and all Democratic Mayors of the larger cities, and Minute Men of the Democratic National Committee, both those already elected and those who have applied for membership.

The invitation to this National Democratic Rally is going out over the names of John J. Raskob as Democratic National Chairman, Jouett Shouse as

Club Rally Called Off This Week

To the Principals of Schools,
And Club Presidents:

On account of the severe storm over the County I think it advisable to call off the club rally on Friday of this week. We will have it on Friday, April 1. I understand that Friday of this week conflicted with some of the monthly examinations anyway, and since everybody will be busy the remainder of this week. I think it best to postpone the rally until April 1.

Assuring you that I will appreciate anything you can do toward making the rally a success, I am

Yours very truly,
C. E. STAPP,
County Agent.

Chilton County High School Effects Activity Program

Editor's Note: The following article appeared in the March issue of the Alabama School Journal, and is prepared by Prof. J. B. Varnell, a member of the high school faculty.

By J. B. Varnell, Dept. of Science

Undaunted by discouraging prospects of a possible short term, the faculty and students of the Chilton County High School at Clanton last September set up a program of activities based on a nine months term of energetic work. Taking the reins of uncertainty in their own hands, and guided by the plans of Principal L. C. Warr, the school to date has made gratifying progress toward the attainment of the five objectives of the activity program. These objectives are as follows:

1. The presentation of an electric clock system to the school by the senior class.
2. The establishment of clubs and other extra-curricula activities.
3. Beautifying the school grounds by the students taking the agricultural course under the leadership of their instructor.
4. The addition by the students and teachers of the equipment necessary for a profitable study of future home life.
5. The erection of a building by the County Board of Education to serve as a school gymnasium and also as a storage building for the school buses.

When the 1931-1932 session opened the senior class found a small balance left in the treasury by the class of 1931. The members decided to use this balance as part of a fund for the purchase of a senior class memorial. To this amount they have added throughout the session and recently purchased an electric time system for the school. This equipment has been paid for in full.

Some of the clubs organized in accomplishing the second objectives include the Forensic Club, sponsored by Miss Nell E. Wells; the Utopian Scientific Society, organized to stimulate interest in science; the Stunt Club, sponsored by the physical education classes and directed by Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin; the Inter-Se Club, sponsored by the advanced Latin students; the Junior I English Club, organized to encourage interest in public speaking and current literary activities, and sponsored by Miss Margaret Kendrick; and the Current Event Club, sponsored by Miss Josephine Martin of the History Department.

Directed by Mr. J. B. Varnell, director of agricultural classes, the school grounds have been much improved since September. Experiments in the selection and planting of lawn seed and in soil testing have resulted in a beautiful lawn surrounding the school building. Many flowers and shrubs have been planted and a rockery has been set up in which more than three hundred tulips of different kinds have been planted. In this work of beautifying the school grounds the High School Parent-Teacher Association has been of material help to the students.

The combination gymnasium and garage provided by the County Board of Education has been completed. In this building the class in manual training under the direction of Mr. T. H. Walker has recently installed up-to-date shower baths and dressing rooms.

The Home Economics Department has been furnished with some very valuable equipment, which is not only used in the regular classroom work, but which is frequently called into service when groups of various sizes are entertained in the school.

Mt. Pleasant School News

Prepared By Junior III Class

Our school resumed activities last Monday after two days of dismissal due to our teachers attending the Alabama Educational Association held in Birmingham.

Attendance has been holding up well above 90 per cent this month. Only a few absent on account of illness or work.

Our parent-teacher association added one hundred dollars worth of new equipment to our building last week. Included in this order are a complete set of shades, a large water cooler and fount, and a large, handsome map of Alabama. We are all justly proud of these recent additions, and wish to extend our thanks to the P.-T. A. for these splendid contributions.

We have recently set out shrubbery and flowers about our campus and around our building. This we hope will add a beautiful effect to our school.

Miss Kathleen Smith made a pleasant visit over the week end to the home of her friend, Miss Henrietta Bean, who lives in the Collins Chapel community.

The basket ball season has come to a close. Our boys are now playing baseball.

Misses Dorothy Jones and Ertice Riggins were the guests of Miss Gertie Lee Lowery last Sunday.

Wendoll Massey, popular member of our Junior II Class, spent last week end with his little friend, Charles Wilson.

Our P.-T. A. will meet again at an early date. Watch for the announcement and be present.

Messrs. Lawrence Edwards, Curtis and Cecil Traywick attended the Sunday school exercises at Mineral Springs last Sunday.

The Mt. Pleasant Sunday school is planning on giving an Easter egg-hunt next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All interested in the Sunday school are invited to attend.

Misses Luettie and Callie Cooper were the guests of Misses Lamurel and Virginia Littlejohn last Sunday afternoon.

Miss Pauline Chambers is spending the week at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hayes.

A banquet will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bean shortly, in honor of our basket ball boys and girls. A great time is anticipated by all who attend. The Junior III class will be honored by joining the above.

The Junior III Class is busy completing their parts for the graduating exercises which will be given on April 13th. J. P. Culp, popular member of the class, was unanimously voted president of the class. He will present the welcome address. Dorothy Jones will give the class history. The class prophecy will be issued by Harry Parker, while Lucile Price will display her poetic aspirations by presenting the class poem. The ncomes the class will and testament by Mabel Gillespie, while Curtis Traywick, class grumbler, reveals why everything about school is wrong. The class speaker has not yet been announced.

Our school plans tp give an Easter Egg Hunt next Friday afternoon. Also a picnic at the end of school. We are all looking forward to another great time, such as we had last year at Log Cabin Beach when over 150 attended.

Misses Zella Mae and Gladys Bell spent the week end at Calera with their uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner Eiland and family were the guests of Mrs. Eiland's mother, Mrs. J. H. Gillespie, last Sunday.

Miss Annie Chambers spent Saturday night as the guest of Miss Myrtice Cost.

A dog in the gallery of a Baptist church in Chicago began to yelp when the choir started to sing and the music halted until he was ejected.

Sunday school at this place is moving along nicely.

The cooperative singing society met with us last Sunday afternoon. Directors for the afternoon were C. W. Scott, W. G. Northcutt, Lonnie Cobb, Russell Scott, Lloyd Edwards, Mrs. Howard Roper, and Mrs. J. D. Scott. Organists were Mrs. Rena Mims, Miss Ruby Smith, Miss Effie Cofer, Mrs. Howard Roper.

Rev. Howard Roper will preach an Easter sermon for us next Sunday at eleven o'clock. We hope the entire community will turn out and enjoy the occasion.

There will also be preaching at this place on the fourth Sunday in April by Rev. D. Durbin of Clanton. Let's give Mr. Durbin a good congregation for his first visit to our community.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932. this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by it's governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed........ per cent for the year (or years) ...., for the purpose or purposes of.................." and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed..........per cent for the year (or years)................, for the purpose or purposes of.................." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

WHEREAS, notice is of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

"ARTICLE —. The Legislature may form or provide for the formation of Forestry Districts in Alabama for the promotion of reforestation and the development and protection of growing timber and, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining such Districts, may authorize and provide for the collection of an acreage tax not to exceed five cents per acre to be levied and collected on the lands comprising such Districts. This Article shall be retroactive as to legislation in accordance with its provisions enacted by the Legislature of 1931."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Happy Easter greetings to all. Let us all rejoice on Easter day. It is the day that means more to us than any other day of the year. On that day we are called upon to think of the victory that Jesus won over death and the grave. Blessed be God—there is a life beyond this life.

We are rejoiced to have the Knight Templars with us in regalia dress next Sunday morning. They will occupy the center aisle, and will be guests of honor. We are inviting all who will, to come and worship with us on Easter day. There will be special music and a special message.

Our Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m.

Preaching at 11 a.m. and at 7:30 p.m.

The service on last Sunday night, conducted by the Young People of the church, was a great success. The large crowd and the splendid program, made the occasion a happy one.

Our Orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. Grady Broadhead, is a great asset to our church life. We are pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McGraw as members of our church.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach; liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

Who Is Not Economical?

The favorite alibi of the apologists of the Administration for the two-million-dollar deficit that has resulted from a dozen years of absolute Republican domination over the Government's expenditures and receipts is that wicked Congresses have run over wise and economical Presidents—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—and that therefore in some mysterious way the White House is absolved from blame.

Theoretically the President is the leader of his party and when the Presidency has been held by strong men there has been no difficulty in his laying down the party policies and directing legislation as long as Congressional majorities were of his political faith. Cleveland, Roosevelt and Wilson all had insurgencies to deal with, but, in the main, they prevailed in whatever strife arose between them and their party associates in Congress.

The country is always inclined to give the President the benefit of the doubt in any controversy he has with Congress and the President's power, if he has the courage to exercise it, is greater even than a constituency's demand for a chance to dip into the pork barrel. In other words, a President is well-nigh omnipotent Governmentally when he is in the right and the Congressmen are in the wrong.

In any event it is a strange excuse for a deplorable treasury situation that Republican Congresses have so bullied Republican Presidents that a provident White House has been powerless before a spendthrift Capitol.

Of course, this is pure nonsense. The President's name bowed to the same influences which moved their political brothers in Congress to spend lavishly. Even where they interposed vetoes it was with the minimum of strenuousness nearly always—and when has one of them failed to indorse the general trend of a Republican Congress and to seek its re-election?

How much had Congress to do with the enactment of the Farm Relief bill, which resulted in the waste of practically half a billion dollars in a political gesture? President, Hoover, hampered by his pre-election commitments, demanded a specific measure and got it. Nobody expected it would be an adequate remedy for the agricultural ills, but the President had pledged himself to farm legislation and this enormous sum was tossed away to save the Administration's face.

The President was warned by every economist worthy of that designation that the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill would shatter industry and increase unemployment, but he signed it nevertheless rather than antagonize those who had contributed most to his campaign fund. The inevitable and foreseen consequence was the series of reprisal tariff rates by those countries against whose products the embargo duties were aimed—which in turn brought about the exodus of America's export business to localities under the new protection. Naturally American factories deprived of these markets had to shut down or run on part time, unemployment increased, and the echo was diminished incomes and naturally less revenue, and so the deficit came about.. In the first place the President could have averted the advent of the deplorable Grundy scales by a mere expression of distaste for them. In the second place, after missing that easy opportunity, he could have saved the country's business by a veto which would have been sustained by the Democrats, for the tariff bill was effected by the narrowest of margins. Still the Administration disclaims all responsibility for the Treasury being "in the red," and tries to make the country believe that it was all the fault of wasteful, selfish Congressmen.

Not without significance is the latest sequel, where a Congress dominated by the Democrats has cut off $114,000,000 from the recent budget sent in by the President, which, with automatic reductions due to non-recurring items, has already decreased the general appropriations more than $450,000,000.

Yet we may anticipate that when campaign time comes along the Hydes and Hurleys and Jahnckes of the Administration will be pointing to the record as another example of Administration economy.

The March King Passes

John Phillip Sousa, was perhaps the greatest band leader that America has ever known. Less than two weeks before his sudden death he filled a place of interest next to that of the President of the United States, in the ceremonies of the Bicentennial, on Washington's birthday, February 22, 1932.

At the conclusion of the President's speech John Phillip Sousa became the center of interest when he stood at the East entrance of the Capitol and directed the patriotic program of band music of the combined Marine Band, the United States Army Band and the Navy Band. This was Sousa's great hour of triumphant leadership.

"The March King is dead," said Captain Taylor Branson, the present leader of the Marine Band. To Branson and other musicians Sousa was "the greatest of them all." He was born in Washington and brought the Marine which is known as the "President's Band," to a degree of perfection. His fame was heightened when he composed "The Washington Post March," and "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Those who saw him on Washington's birthday will remember him as an old man with whitened hair, but still possessing the vigor and ability heightened by his wonderful successes.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

> "Love of truth will bless the lover all his days; yet when he brings her home, his fair-faced bride, she comes empty-handed to his door, herself her only dower."
> —Theodore Parker.

All set for the continuance of our tour round town again this week, and we have rested a bit at the Exchange Hotel, and invited back again. Now we will walk upstairs in the Hayes Building, where Clanton's only beauty salon is located, the DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, operated by Miss Mabel Howard, who really knows her p's and q's along that line. We say howdy to Miss Howard and she introduces us to Mrs. Ena Olsen who operates Ena's Smart Shoppe, where we are shown a pretty display of ladies dresses and novelties.

* * *

Now the next stop is the attractive little store where the Watt's Hat Shoppe is located. This is not a new business for Clanton, but it is in a new location and a very attractive one too. This place is operated by Miss Callie Watts, who has as her assistant Miss Vivian Gray, and they certainly have some pretty things for the ladies there too.

* * *

These fellows you see next door, in the Exchange Barber Shop are jim-dandies. We'll stop and meet them. They are Dick Bean, Walter Sanford and George Wyatt, and all good barbers. It's a nice place to go, and service is just sticking out around them. The colored shine boy is named Claud and he steps on it when it comes to service too.

* * *

It's about lunch time, so we might just as well stop next door and eat a bit of something, and that something is going to be good food too, because this is Matt's Lunch Shoppe, where Matt Ware and Mrs. Matt Ware look after the cooking personally. We are pleasantly greeted and served by Miss Pauline Davis, a splendid waitress, and Miss Chloe Nivens, who has been assisting there for several days.

* * *

Now for a stop upstairs in this building where the offices of Dr. T. J. Marcus are located. Dr. Marcus is one of Clanton's prominent physicians and is a splendid fellow to have for a friend. We also meet up with John M. VanDerveer, Sr., one of the prominent insurance men of the state, and then we see Victor Heard, attorney.

* * *

Now folks, we are back where we started, so we will just move on up, across the street by The Fair Store, and go upstairs where the offices of Grover Cleveland Walker, attorney are located, and we are pleasantly greeted by Miss Vera Jones, secretary to Mr. Walker. We will enjoy a nice chat with Col. Walker before continuing on our tour.

* * *

Here we are hailed by Webb Parrish and George Tippett, barbers at the Dixie Barber Shop, one of the neat little shops of Clanton, and one that enjoys a fine business. You'll like these fellows.

* * *

Now let us stop a minute next door at the Popwell Pressing Shop, where Robert Popwell is the head-knocker, and we are invited in by Mrs. Popwell, a lady liked by all who know her. Mr. Popwell has his son, Irby Popwell as his assistant in operating this growing business.

* * *

Here we are at Marvin Carter's place, where he sells and repairs radios. It's known as Carter's Radio Shop. This place of business has recently moved to this location, and with the young Carters in the business with him, Mr. Carter has a nice radio place.

* * *

Now we will visit one of the most popular eating places between Birmingham and Montgomery, and one of the finest. This is the Dixie Cafe, operated by Leonard Easterling, with Mrs. Mattie Williams as partner. Mr. Easterling is a good cafe and business man, while Mrs. Williams is a splendid dietitian, and looks after the preparing of the food. They have associated with them Miss Dessie Robinson, Miss Matalye Glass and Dewey Robinson.

* * *

Now the next place is where the busses stop every day. This is Jones' Place, operating a soda fountain, lunch stand, newsstand and other items, with S. A. Jones as manager, who is ably assisted by his charming wife, and his brothers. This is a popular place and enjoys a good business.

* * *

So on we go, and stop a minute to see Fate Maddox at his garage next door. Fate is a good mechanic, and knows his automobiles.

* * *

This is the most recent addition to Clanton's corps of filling stations, and is the Shell Place, with Leon Mullins, the tall fellow you see over there busy giving service to his customers. And there's Clay Marcus also.

* * *

Now we will walk on up to George McCain's stables, the largest horse and mule stable in the county, a regular livery stable, all fixed up, with George A. McCain as chief man. He has other fellows here too, to help him.

* * *

Next stop is the Maddox Filling Station, on the corner of the Selma highway and the Birmingham-Montgomery highway. This station dispenses the Gulf products, and is operated by A. D. Maddox, a splendid sort of fellow, and we are welcomed to his place of business. In connection with this place is the Maddox Dance Hall, a popular place, operated by J. A. Maddox. Dancing lessons are given here, and the dances held in Clanton are also given in this hall.

* * *

This is a good place to stop for awhile this week, until we can resume our tour again next week, and we'll visit all these filling stations up in this neck o' the woods.

Farmers' Taxes Are Terrible

Farmers are taxed out of all proportion to their earnings, according to figures gathered in Washington by Tom Catchcart, editor of The Country Home. All over the country, he finds, agricultural taxes rose steadily from 1924, and remained at their high level of 1930, although meanwhile the farmer's income has gone down enormously. It takes two to three times as many crops to pay a tax bill this year as it would have taken to pay the same tax bill a few years ago. A practical program for lower and more just taxes is the test which will be applied to every candidate up for election in farming areas this year.

Big Democratic Rally To Be Held In Washington

Commander of the Minute Men, John W. Davis as General Chairman of the Democratic Victory Campaign, and Speaker Garner and Senator Robinson as the chiefs of their party in the House and Senate.

Jouett Shouse is in charge of the arrangements for the celebration and Chairman Raskob will preside at the dinner at the Willard Hotel, with former Governor Cox of Ohio as toastmaster.

The objects of the rally are fourfold:

First, to honor the memory of the founder of the party and the most recent of the Presidents of Democratic faith.

Second, to demonstrate Democracy's unity of purpose and the quality of leadership it offers in its essay to assume responsibility for the national government.

Third, to survey the political situation in each of the 48 States and to ascertain from the reports of eminent Democrats what the National Committee can do to help the campaign in each of these States and so compass a national victory next November.

Fourth, to receive reports from Victory State Chairmen on the progress on the $1,500,000 Victory Fund Campaign towards securing what is required for carrying forward the educational and organization work from now until convention day and to place in the hands of those selected a compass the election of the candidate who will be chosen at Chicago a sufficient fund so that the campaign may start adequately immediately on the convention's close.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was standing by the creek bank when I saw a large Bull Frog coming toward me. He was covering the distance by leaps and bounds. He passed me in great haste, without speaking a pleasant "Good Morning," and made a dive for the deep water. I stood there a few moments, wondering why the Bull Frog had so hastily come from the swamp. On hearing a sound in the direction from whence the frog had come, I glanced in that direction, and I saw a tremendous snake following the trail of the frog. That frog had met with that danger far out in the swamp, and he knew it. He acted the part of wisdom and made haste for the deep water. I would that men and women could be induced to show a like amount of sense. The Bull Frog sees danger and skurries, but men and women will see danger and dare it. They know that there is danger in playing around at night, they know that there is danger in tampering with the bottle, they know that there is danger in the ball room, they know that there is danger in selling rum, but they tarry around those things of danger, and take a dare. Sad indeed, that so many, who thus tamper with danger, never find the refuge of safety. They go to feed the morbid appetite of the snake of sin.

A layman was talking to a layman and here is how he accused him, "You spend more time and more money in your lodges, than you do in your church life. You attend lodge meetings twice each week, and stay from two to three hours in each session. You pay your dues promptly, and they amount to more than you pay to your church. How can you face God at the Judgment and say to him that your heart was in his church?" I am a great believer in fraternal orders and in clubs and social gatherings, but my first belief is in the church of God. The command is, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." There are a lot of folks in our town and county who are in need of the words of this godly layman. Any church member—I care not to what denomination he may belong, if he gives more of his time and money to his fraternal order, or to his club or party, than he gives to his church, that one is fooling himself if he thinks that he is giving God and his soul a square deal. When people spend their time in lodges, golfing, and partying, their hearts are there and their greatest treasure is there. Where your treasure is, there is your heart. It is time fo us to make first things first.

Along with my Lettergraph was sent a kind of fluid called, "Correction Fluid." When I am cutting the stencil for printing, if I make a mistake, I can take some of that fluid, and spread it over the mistake made, and then continue writing correctly. That fluid is a great asset when a fellow is operating a machine. Somehow my typewriter has never learned to spell, and it knows nothng about grammar, and it is often doing the wrong thing. How fine to spread a little fluid, and then go on as though no mistake was ever made. If I had some "Correction Fluid" that could be used on human life, I could do a landslide business. The best of us are constantly making mistakes, but there is no fluid that will correct a mistake made. We may see our mistake and never make it again, but the mistake made is there to stay. How careful we should be in cutting the stencil of life, for our mistakes must go into the record on high.

The court was investigating the wrecking of a ship. The witness on the stand was giving a description of what he saw from the deck of a vessel standing by. He said, "I saw scores of men and women floundering about in the water, and I heard them calling for help." The judge, leaning toward the witness asked, "And, sir, what did you do?" The man replied, "I did nothing." "Nothing!" shouted the judge, "And men and women were dying all around you." The witness was hissed from the room as one unworthy to give testimony. That thing is beng repeated a thousand times over every day, in almost every community. There are men and women, old and young, who are dying all about us. We see them sinking in sin, we hear their cries of distress, and we are doing nothing to save them. Awake, ye Christian men and women and throw out the lifeline

"Who kidnapped the Lindbergh baby?" The answer to that question is the longing passion of every American heart. Only one class of people have been left out in the charges made. No one has yet dared to charge the church with that crime. We do not charge the church and Christian people with doing things like that. The deed sounds like the dastardly work of the underworld, and all efforts are being made to locate the crime there. The church is the one great influence and the one great institution that lives to oppose such things. The crushed hearts of devoted parents, turned at once to the church, and they made this appeal, "Christian people of America, pray for the return of our babe." The church of God is the greatest institution on earth. She is not charged with dastardly deeds, but she is appealed to when the heart is crushed, or when there is a crying need anywhere.

J. D. Evans Is Wed In Winston-Salem

Of much interest to the people of Clanton is the following clipping from a newspaper in Winston-Salem, N. C., relative to the marriage of Miss Blanche Gaither to Mr. J. D. Evans, son of Mrs. Gene Evans of Clanton:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Franklin Gaither, of Harmony, announce the marriage of their daughter, Blanche Marie, to Jeter Davis Evans, of Birmingham, Ala.

The wedding of Miss Gaither and Mr. Evans was solemnized Saturday, February 27, 1932, at the Methodist parsonage in Danville, Va., with Rev. John L. Bray officiating in the presence of a limited number of friends.

Mrs. Evans is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Gaither, of Harmony. She has made her home in this city for the past three years where she has been connected with the county health department.

Mr. Evans is the son of Mrs. G. T. Evans, of Clanton, Ala., and for several years has been associated with a local brokerage firm, having been transferred to this city from Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans will be at home to their friends at 609 West Fifth street, this city.

SMITH ASKS IF DENNIS LIKES HOOVER PROSPERITY

Monday, the News office was visited by Robert M. Smith, of south of Clanton, and Mr. Smith commented on a letter written by J. N. Dennis, of Clanton, which appeared in The Union-Banner last week. The letter said in part, "Our people don't want any more Miller Economy."

Mr. Smith laughingly commented on the letter and said, "I wonder if Dennis wants some more of Hoover and Prosperity. He didn't have anything to say about that." Mr. Dennis is chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of this county.

"An example of what the Passenger Department calls 'highly commendable cooperation' was provided by Operator M. L. White, Clanton, Ala., February 21. It was arranged to stop No 4 at Clanton to entrain three passengers en route to Zanesville, O. Operator White, who goes off duty at 5:00 P. M., returned to the station at seven o'clock to permit the passengers to occupy the waiting room until the arrival of No. 4, and saw them off on that train."—L & N Employes' Magazine.

Kiwanians Enjoy Brilliant Entertainment During Past Few Days In Clanton

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton have been highly entertained during the past several days, having staged their annual "Ladies' Night" last Thursday, and having been guests of the Pilot Club of Clanton Tuesday night of this week.

The entertainment last Thursday night took the place of the regular Thursday luncheon at noon, and with fifty persons present, the affair was acclaimed a success. The three long tables in the basement of the Baptist church where this affair took place, were decorated in St. Patrick Day colors and favors, and the menu, prepared by Baptist ladies of Clanton, received numerous compliments from the guests.

On the program were several Kiwanis songs, participated in by all present, with Mrs. Ed McGraw, pianist of the club, accompanying. The principal speaker of the evening was John K. Watkins, governor of Kiwanis nternational in Alabama, introduced by John Hollis, president local club, from Opelika. He spoke in most inspiring sentences on "Kiwanis," and although his address was short, it was extremely interesting and was enjoyed.

Another feature was little Miss Betty Ann Smith, of Denver, Colo., a guest of the club, who brought encores with her clever tap dances in costume, with Miss Mary Ellis at the piano.

Besides the wives and other lady guests of the Kiwanians, there were several former Kiwanians and their wives present.

The regular weekly luncheon will take place as usual today at the Baptist church at twelve-fifteen.

Special Service By Chevrolet Dealers

Detroit, Mich., March 23.—A special service campaign of interest to the more than 4,000,000 Chevrolet owners in the United States is to be launched on a national scale by Chevrolet dealers beginning March 28, M. D. Douglas, general parts and service manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, announced here today.

Designed to improve the operation and appearance of cars now in owners' hands, the campaign will have the furthere effect of adding to the safety of the highways by insuring against any possible mechanical defects in those cars serviced during the campaign, Mr. Douglas pointed out.

Some vital operation, ranging from brake adjustments to wheel alignment and complete tightening of every part of the chassis, is to be offered by the dealers at sizable reductions from the flat rate charge, for a period of one week only during the campaign. Ten such featured services, all having to do with appearance and performance, are in the campaign, which extends over a period of ten weeks.

National newspaper advertising, as well as special newspaper campaigns for the dealer's local use, are to publicize the event and the featured services each week. Radio announcements on a national and local scale also are to be used.

Mr. Douglas pointed out that the special rates during the campaign will induce many people, who otherwise might not have their car serviced, to check at least vital points pertaining to performance before they get out on the highways during the heavy motoring season. See the advertisement in this newspaper this week, in regard to this service, from your Chevrolet dealer.

Chilton: W. L. Powell, H. S. Shaw, J. D. Collins, Clanton.

Coosa and Northwest Tallapoosa: E. Robinson, Goodwater; J. W. Ferguson, Sylacauga; H. C. Norrell, Rockford.

Elmore: Paul Martin, Ed Sanford, Lloyd Lancaster, Wetumpka.

Sermons In The Flesh

"Put your faith in God, your family in the field, your flivver under the shed and grow what feed you need." That was what Rev. Sam Smith, a North Carolina colored preacher, recently took as his text, and he doubtless preached as good a sermon as any that has been delivered on the subject. Here's hoping that he made his hearers see the evil of their ways and resolve to set their feet on the road that leads upward, out of the slough of one-crop despond, to the broad, shining plains of diversified farming where happiness and prosperity abound.

If only better balanced farming methods were practiced as generally as they are preached! But every years brings new converts into the fold, and one of these days the South is going to be a veritable Promised Land, provided an epidemic of back-sliding doesn't break out. Stories of profitable farming, retold here, are sermons that live and breathe, and may their number increase.

Prices of farm products are low, but G. W. McKinney, of Franklin County, Arkansas, goes right on making a good living and some money on his 300-acre farm. His flock of hens and herd of cows keep something coming in the year around. Legumes on a liberal acreage build up his soil and feed his stock. He paid cash for a new automobile, last summer, out of profits made on his farm during the first six months of the year.

In the heart of the cotton belt, Oscar Keener has run his 540-acre farm in McDuffie County, Georgia, for six years without growing a stalk of cotton. He raises feed for large herds of beef cattle and hogs, and has surplus hay and corn to sell. He says that if a man farms to make a living and not to make money, the money part will take care of itself.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Schafer, of Tangipahoa Parish, Louisiana, are getting ahead by selling more than they buy, and never having to pay a grocery bill. They believe in hauling stuff to instead of from town, and the grocery store always owes them, sometimes as much as $200. The 11 acres that they devote largely to truck crops yields a gross income of around $6,000 a year. They grow plenty of feed for the live stock and keep up the fertility of the soil by turning under green manure crops.

Associational Call Meeting At Thorsby

Chilton County Baptist Association will hold its call meeting at the Baptist church in Thorsby, Ala., on Friday, April 1st, beginning at one-thirty in the afternoon.

On the third anniversary of Herbert Hoover's inauguration as President, "three or four visitors came in, following a Cabinet meeting," according to press reports. One of the callers was identified as Henry J. Allen, special assistant to the president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who, in 1914, when he was running for Governor of Kansas as a Progressive, is reported by the Oswego (Kan.) Democrat to have said the Republican party was "crookeder than a barrel of snakes."

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Never in the history of Alabama has there been a storm of such intensity or so widespread in area as swept over several counties in the central section of the state during the time between five and six p.m. Monday, March 21st. In the number of people killed or injured, and the destruction of real and personal property the results were appalling.

Thorsby and vicinity were hit by the cyclone, or whatever might be the name of the terrific wind and rain storm, which blew away houses and outbuildings and scattered their splinters far and wide.

One of the first effects of the storm was to put electric light and power systems out of commission, in a section where most of the residents were dependent upon these improvements. Leaving the whole section in darkness. The first intimation the people had of it was the lights kindled by fires in the destroyed homes. After experiencing the heavy shocks from the wind. Soon after the storm was subsided inhabitants, cars and trucks and anything which could be used to bring in people were put to use and Red Cross nurses and ambulances were sent from Birmingham and Montgomery and temporary hospitals were opened to give first aid to the injured. It was long past daylight Tuesday morning before they ceased to bring in victims of the storm. In the Pates Chapel district, west of Thorsby, six people were known to have been killed and many injured. Two houses near the Pates Chapel school building were completely destroyed, but the occupants escaped injury. At Liberty Hill some three or four farm houses were completely destroyed but the neighbors formed a relief corps and began immediately to help rebuild the houses. The storm swept a wide swath about a mile north of Thorsby. Frank Nelson's place was hadly hit, destroying all the out houses and wrecking the min house, the furniture was destroyed, but the people were not hurt. Outside the house a large tree crashed into the barn pinning in the catale and mules, but when released the mules ran away and up to this writing they have not been found. The chicken house was so completely destroyed that no remnants of it could be found, dead chickens were scattered about the house. Mr. Nelson was seen in Thorsby Tuesday hunting for a place to find shelter for his family and we learned later that he is occupying the lower part of Mrs. Villadsen's home. A little to the south of the Nelson place the John Queen home was wrecked by wind and completely destroyed by fire. The family was seriously injured and removed to the Clanton Hospital. The J. W. Powers home which had recently been remodeled and rebuilt was unroofed and greatly damaged. Trees all around it were uprooted and destroyed. None of the family was injured. Walter Littleton and family who occupied the Akins Collins farm were very seriously injured and were sent to the hospital.

A distressing feature of the whole affair is that several people in the confusion were taken to the hospitals and the friends don't know where they are, some families being separated and taken to different hospitals. The thanks of our people are due to Dr. J. D. Kincade of Birmingham who came with nurses, ambulances, and doctors, rendering great assistance in giving first aid to the badly injured, many of whom would have probably died without it. The Birmingham fire department furnished transportation for relief work. A temporary hospital was fixed up where telephone exchange used to be. Town people turned out and helped all during the night.

The large windows in the Wyatt Drug Company store were blown in and the heavy awning was blown down, which tore down a large piece of the side and yet in the protected portion of it, several cots were placed for the injured as they arrived for first aid. The town hall was turned into a supply station for food and clothing. Electricity was connected so as to supply heat for the making of hot water and coffee at the temporary hospital.

Platforms Of Farmers Running for Prosperity

1. A good garden, canned vegetables and fruits, a milk cow, a flock of hens, and a few pigs for every farm.
2. Reduce cash expenditures for farm operations and receive cash income from several farm products.
3. Reduce the cost of maintaining work stock and the production of milk, beef, pork, and spring lambs for market by developing good pastures, growing legume hay and necessary grain feeds. Store surplus hay for future use.
4. Depend more on lime, legumes, and farm manures for fertilizing purposes.
5. Sow land of mediocre fertility and hill land in grasses and clovers for grazing and improvement.
6. Terrace hill lands and sow winter cover crops to prevent erosion. Keep farm implements in repair and under shelter when not in use.
7. Grow cultivated crops on the best land on the farm, limiting the acreage of tobacco, corn, cotton, potatoes, etc., to amount that can be economically handled with the men and horse labor available on the farm to assure quality as well as quantity production.
8. Improve the production of livestock by use of pure-bred sires, by the sale of inferior animals, and by better feeding and care.
9. Keep farm records to determine types of farming that pay best. Prepare credit statement for banker and keep it up to date from year to year. This practice will put the farm on a better business basis, aid credit standing, and inspire confidence between banker and farmer.
10. Cooperate with other farmers in buying needed supplies and in marketing farm products.

A Few Observations Over The State By County Agent Stapp

March 1 Crop Report

Fifty-seven per cent of last year's corn crop was found on farms in Alabama on March 1, this year, compared with 39 per cent a year ago and 47 per cent in 1930. This is a reflection of the larger crop produced last year. Of last year's corn crop 5 per cent has or will be shipped out of the county of production, compared with only 2 per cent shipped the two preceding years.

Eight per cent of last year's oat crop was found on farms March 1, compared with 4 per cent last year and 5 per cent in 1930.

Sixty per cent of the cows on farms were being milked March 1, with an average production of 1.4 gallons per cow milked.

Egg production on March 1 was 48 per 100 hens.

Farm labor supply was 195 per cent of the demand.

The weather, up to March 1, this year, was unusually favorable to farm work, the winter having been mild and open. Since March 1 the only real cold weather of the winter has occurred, which found vegetables unusually well advanced, and which did some damage to early vegetables, and particularly to strawberries. Later reports may indicate this damage to be greater than is now apparent.

Farm Credits

The outlook for farm credit this year is not very good locally. A survey made by the Alabama Extension Service discloses the fact that Alabama banks will be able to supply little more than half the farm credit which they extended last year.

This situation is due to the fact that small returns from money crops prevented many farmers from paying their bank and store debts extended last year. Banks now seem to be disposed to carry these balances without foreclosure. In order to do this they will be able to extend little more credit for this year. More than 40 banks have closed in the State since January 1, 1931, up to date and there have been several consolidations. This situation calls for very careful financial management on the part of farmers for this year. Fortunately ample food and feed supplies have been produced, and a very small volume of credit will be needed by the farmers, unless they attempt an overproduction of money crops in 1932. It will be part of wisdom to follow up the production of home supplies and to curtail the acreage of money crops. At the same time, there is at present a splendid opportunity to engage in some soil building projects on acreages formerly devoted to the production of cotton. These projects will certainly bring returns in increased yields in the future without the expense of artificial fertility. With extreme economy and thoughtful management the present situation may well give place to a better system of farming in the future.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Chilton County News:

Please give me a little space in one of your columns to say a few words in regard to educational matters.

First, I want to say that my visit to the Alabama Educational Association was greatly enjoyed. It gave me a great thrill to see an army of five thousand (in round numbers) professional teachers whose determination is to educate the youth of Alabama, even though it takes some sacrifice on their part. I'm quite sure most of these teachers are behind with their pay. Probably some of them had to borrow money to visit the A. E. A. and in the face of all this, they cheered each speaker who said that education in Alabama must go forward regardless of its financial condition.

I regret very much that the patrons who are so careless about sending their children to school were not there. One of the major needs in Chilton County and in the State of Alabama is that the people need to be furnished the facts and figures in regard to education. They should first be made to realize the need of education, the cost of education and the kind of school and equipment that is most economical.

I would be glad to see the day come when Alabama will put education first and when this is done good roads and other public enterprises will spring up as if by magic. But so long as the officials of any state permit the educational funds to be used for other purposes than that of education, that state shall go backward instead of forward.

It seems that it is hard for some people to understand the financial condition of the state; they seem to think the board of education has the money with which to pay the teachers, but just won't pay them. This is untrue, for the board is very much in sympathy for them. The board would be glad to pay off its back debts, but it can't until the state pays the board.

I'm sorry that such rumors get started, but somehow they will, so when you teachers hear this kind of news you can feel sure that somebody has misstated or misunderstood, one of the two.

I hope every citizen in the county will feel free to call upon the superintendent for any information they desire in regard to educational matters. I also want you to feel free to come and sit with the board at any time. We want the cooperation of every citizen and parent, that we make educational opportunities better in Chilton County.

Yours for education,
W. L. SANDERS.

H. L. MIMS WRITES

Editor, Chilton County News:

I would like to know if you would allow me space in your paper for a few lines? If they do not seem too boresome or too much like whistling in the dark to scare the haints off. I am sure that other people have Bibles and some of them read and study them. If not I would not have written the article to The Union-Banner, which they failed to print. If people did not have Bibles and study them they would not be able to understand the prophecy after it was explained. It is strange that such heavy criticism was cast on this article before that it was not printed, and yet we can figure the whole thing when you see an article written and the writer does not sign his name. Then he is whistling a little tune in the dark.

I would not write anything that I would not sign my name to, nor would I write anything I could not stand behind. I will stand behind every statement that I made in the article that I mailed to The Union-Banner and which was not printed. I first replied to Mr. J. O. Jackson, whom I take as a close friend, and explained the prophecy of Jeremiah in regard to the conflagration or the destruction 600 years B.C. when the Chaldean army beseiged Jerusalem and burned Solomon's temple. The Jews were taken captive and sold, some to one nation, and some to another. All the persons were 4,600 taken by Nebuchadnezzar. This was the destruction spoken of by Jeremiah and lasted 70 years. At the end of this 70 years Darius and Cyrus captured the Babylonian monarchy and sent the Jews back to Jerusalem. It was at this time when Daniel saw the vision of the 70 weeks. I can explain both those prophecies without a Bible, but some people are so scared that someone will interfere with their system of worship or their denomination that they can't stand the fire; so prejudiced that they cannot help but let it be known, and will not stand sound doctrine. They do not like to even see it in a newspaper.

Mt. Nebo News

We are glad to see some more spring weather after the hard freeze which killed all the gardens in the community.

We are sorry that we have had sickness in our communiay and hope each and every sick person a speedy recovery.

Sunday, March 20, was our preaching day. Rev. J. M. Metcalf brought us a fine message. A large crowd attended the services.

During the cold and rainy weather our Sunday school and Epworth league failed to have as many members attend meetings, but had a large number last Sunday morning and evening.

Our Epworth League had a social last Friday night. A good number of members were there. The social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Culp. We enjoyed many good games and had a wonderful dinner, which was enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. Ola Edwards, Mrs. Zora Traywick, Misses Myrtle and Pauline Durbin, and Mr. Woodrow Durbin were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Culp last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mims were the guests of Miss Lloyd Culp Sunday.

There will be an Easter program at Pleasant Grove next Sunday night. We hope everyone will attend that can.

We will not have Epworth League meeting next Sunday night since all the members want to go to the play at Pleasant Grove.

Happy Anna Lane

Anna Lane was walking down the village street toward the general store of Layton. Her happy thoughts kept time with her steps as she hurried along. She would have been puzzled if she had heard Mrs. Norman say, "Poor Anna. Poor Anna," as she passed Mrs. Norman's house. Anna did not feel poor. Her heart was merry and she was humming a gay little song.

"From here she looks as happy as any girl. Why do you say 'Poor Anna?' " asked Mrs. Luteson, Mrs. Norman's sister.

Mrs. Norman explained by saying, "Anna is only twelve years old, but she has kept house for her father for two years, since her mother died. Her mother was not well enough to do her work for more than a year before she died, so she taught her to cook, and to keep a neat house."

"Doesn't she go to school?" asked Mrs. Luteson.

"No, they live four miles out and that is too far for her to come alone. They have no neighbors, so there are no children to come with her," answered Mrs. Norman.

"She is alone today," said Mrs. Luteson.

"Her father probably stopped at the blacksmith shop and sent her on to the store for something as he often does. She always comes to town with him and often stops and stays with me if he is to be busy for an hour or two. She is bright and friendly, but because she has never known any companionship except that of her father and mother and their grownup friends she is shy with other children.

"I'm interested in her story," said Mrs. Luteson. "I hope she will come to see you while I am here."

"Maybe she will," replied Mrs. Norman. "I do her sewing and it is about time for her to have another dress or two."

"While you have been telling me about Anna I have been thinking of some things I would like to do for her." Mrs. Luteson talked eagerly of the things that she wanted to do for Anna and then asked, "Do you think Mr. Lane will agree to my plan?"

"I don't know," replied Mrs. Norman, "but I think it is a fine idea. We can dine out there tomorrow. I'll call Anna when she passes back and tell her that we are going to see her tomorrow. I see her coming now," and Mrs. Norman hurried out to Anna.

While Anna and her father were going home she said, "Father, Mrs. Norman's sister is visiting her and they are coming to see me tomorrow. Mrs. Norman said they want to see you too."

"What time, daughter? I had planned to cut wood on the back forty tomorrow."

"They said 'afternoon,' Father. What do you think they want? Mrs. Norman comes sometimes, I know, but this time she asked to see you, too."

"I don't know Anna, but I have been thinking lately that I must send you to school. That maybe what she is thinking of too."

"But father, I study while you are away and you hear my lessons at night."

"Yes, I know that, but you need to be with other girls and teachers some. You don't play any. You would like to go to school, wouldn't you?"

"I would like to go if I could stay at home too, but we live too far from Layton."

"I have thought of asking Mrs. Norman to board you next year so that you can go to school. How would you like that?" asked Mr. Lane.

"O, Father! I'd like that! but I don't want to leave you. What would you do about cooking and keeping house? You have to work all the time."

"Oh, I can manage that and I can go for you Friday afternoon and you can be with me until Sunday each week. This is March. Before school opens again in September, we shall see what we can do."

For awhile Mr. Lane and Anna were both thinking and nothing was said, then Anna exclaimed, "Look,' Father! the honeysuckles are in bloom! Oh, I'm so glad."

"Yes," said Mr. Lane, "the plants have had a long rest, their strength has been renewed and they are waking up in new beauty. Do you remember the big brown Easter lily bulb that Mr. Hix gave me last fall? It was only a dry bulb—"

"And now, Father, had you noticed, it has a high stalk with some buds on it. Do you think they will be open by Easter Sunday?" asked Anna.

"Well, well, you found it did you! I thought I had a surprise hidden away in the woodshed for you. Yes the flowers will be open by Easter. We shall take it to mother's grave and slip it out of the pot and set it in a place I have already prepared where it will bloom again next year."

"Father, the story of the Resurrection is the sweetest story mother ever told me. Now when I see the violets, honeysuckles, the pretty redbud trees, and the snow-white sloe trees beginning to bloom I think of the times when mother told me the Resurrection story; and I think of how beautiful mother will be and how happy we shall all be with Jesus after the next resurrection."

"Yes, dear Anna, the springtime is a time of beauty and fragrance. Though this world is a flower garden, Jesus' Resurrection opened a door into a life that is much more beautiful than anything we can imagine. St. Paul says, "But as it is written, 'eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.' "

Next week we shall hear more from Mrs. Luteson, Mrs. Norman and Anna.

A. E. A. Urges Parity For Alabama Schools

At the regular session of the Alabama Educational Association held last week in Birmingham the association, in a resolution, warned that unless the State "pays its just obligations," it will be only a matter of time before the schools will cease to function.

The association went on record as favoring early action to relieve the State's financial distress, and included recommendations in resolutions passed.

These resolutions gave assurance that education is willing to bear its just share of the burdens incident to the present situation, but that it is obvious there is a limit to the ability of the profession to carry the heavy burden it has been carrying and that this limit has now been reached.

The resolution further emphasizes its position as in entire sympathy with any economy program, but expresses the conviction that the chief burden should fall on the non-essentials, and that the first obligation upon our financial resources is the support of the public schools and institutions of all grades.

This resolution recommends that legislation, and a constitutional amendment if necessary, which will place the schools on a parity with other state departments, and to the end that there may be no discrimination as to the payment of appropriations when due. It is stated that unless prompt payment is made by the State of its just obligations to the schools it is only a matter of time until they will cease to function.

Tornado Survivors Nursing Injured, Burying Dead In Chilton County

By GEORGE L. DAVIS

Daylight yesterday revealed to scores of rescue workers in Chilton County a picture of desolation, tragedy and suffering in the densely populated, but isolated communities of Collins Chapel and Union Grove that had remained hidden from the outside world through the night, and brought a hurried call for physicians, medical supplies, ambulances, food, clothing and shelter.

These sections caught the full force of the tornado which previously had dipped into the edge of the town of Lomax on the Birmingham highway, about four miles west of Collins Chapel.

Here in the Collins Chapel and Union Grove communities the storm swept along a path of five or six miles fully a mile wide, scattering homes like chaff, clipping and uprooting giant trees, and dealing death and destruction on every side.

Out of the tornado's path the workers late Monday night and yesterday picked up lifeless bodies from among the scattered wreckage of homes, others with broken limbs, and through the day survivors went about their work of prying among shattered timbers to salvage whatever clothing and bedding they may, while others, grim and tight-lipped dug graves or gave aid to the wounded.

Just how many persons were killed in the Collins Chapel and Union Grove communities, the residents themselves could not say. Several homes, that survived the storm, sheltered more than a score of wounded persons, while those more seriously injured were taken to Clanton, Montgomery and Birmingham.

But Eddie Wyatt, of Clanton, who guided ambulances into the section said he knew of 35 persons of the two communities and surrounding territory who had been killed by the storm, and had counted 98 injured that had been removed to hospitals.

Heroism

Stories of heroism typical of those produced by any major disaster were told by the refugees. There is the story of Simuel Mims, a member of one of the oldest families of this section, his wife and child.

Mr. and Mrs. Mims were in the living room Mr. Mims holding his three-year-old son, Douglas, in his arms. The child was ill. It had been raining for sometime and the wind was blowing briskly, but not at an alarming velocity before the tornado struck.

The tornado struck with the suddenness and speed of lightning, it was said, and in a moment the house had been swept away. Mr. Mims was left on the foundation of the house and the child had been hurled away. Mr. Mims was buried under a mass of debris in one corner, and Rasmond Sammons, who lived in the house with them lay 20 yards from the house.

Mr. Mims was not seriously hurt. Terrified he arose and called for the child, but his cries were drowned by the whistling wind and rain. He went to the aid of his wife, who was dangerously injured and together they called for the child. But the wind was so high they could scarcely hear their own voices. Frantically they began a search, when a flash of lightning revealed the youngster nearly 50 feet away walking towards them with outstretched arms.

They found Sammons a few minutes later. He was severely hurt, and could not walk without assistance. So the Mims family, drenched and wounded walked a half mile to the Boswell home where they remained during the night. Rasmond Sammons was taken to a Montgomery hospital and the Mims family was removed to the home of Mrs. John Littleton.

Mrs. Littleton cheerfully converted her home into a hospital to care not only for the Mims family, but members of the family of A. J. Davis, whose home was in the center of the tornado's path.

A vivid description of the catastrophe was given by Askew Davis, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

"It happened about 6:40 o'clock Monday evening," Askew said. "Father and mother were attending to the incubator in the kitchen and my brother, Arthur, and I were reading. My grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Cleckler, an invalid, was on her bed in another room. Everything was quiet. I didn't even notice that the wind was blowing any stronger than usual. Then the tornado hit us. It was all over in a minute. I can't describe the sound. There was a terrific roar and a cracking of timbers and the next thing I knew I found myself under part of the floor on which I had been sitting. The rest of the floor was gone and there was nothing but a black cloud overhead. The wind was still roaring. I crawled out and saw my brother coming from towards where the barn had stood. The barn was gone too. Father was under a pile of debris at one corner and I helped him out. Then we saw mother. She was coming out from under a large oak tree that had stood in the yard.

"We found grandmother still stretched upon her mattress, which rested on a heap of brick that had been the chimney. Grandmother's bedstead, bedsprings, and all of the furniture in the house was gone. Grandmother was dead when we found her."

Mr. Davis, he said was seriously injured. He received a fractured skull and a broken rib: Mrs. Davis had a broken rib and Arthur's arm was broken. Askew, himself received a leg injury.

As the writer near Clanton yesterday en route to the scene of the disaster evidence of what had occurred was noted along the highway: Ambulances that whizzed to and fro, a national guard truck carrying tents and men to aid in setting them up and help with relief work, occasionally a hearse, again a truck load of caskets.

Clanton Full of Refugees

Clanton was thronged with people. Aside from the disaster that had befallen a part of the citizens of Chilton County, it was explained it was also court week in Clanton. Crowds stood before the undertakers parlors, most of them curious, others bereaved by the loss of relatives and friends. At Clanton a meeting was in progress in the city clerk's office to organize the relief work.

The little community of Lomax about three miles north of Clanton gave the first view of the storm's horror. On the outskirts of the village the tornado had dipped into a settlement occupied by railroad workers, and demolished six homes. Two or three negroes were killed here, and about a dozen injured.

We left the highway as we approached Thorsby for the Collins Chapel community, about five miles distant.

Near Collins Chapel we met H. E. Robinson, who operates a store and farm and his neighbor, J. P. Littleton. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Littleton obligingly sketched the path of the storm but neither could estimate the number of dead or injured. The need for help was urgent, however, they said.

From Collins Chapel to Union Grove is a thickly settled community. No home is more than a quarter of a mile distant from another. All residents are white.

Tornado Follows Road

The tornado, it appeared, followed the winding road that connects these communities. The first sign of the disaster strangely enough was noted at the Collins Chapel church.

Here two large pines had been uprooted, one of them falling to the edge of the church cemetery. In the cemetery groups of citizens labored preparing the graves for those who are to be buried there. The church was not damaged.

Then we came to the home of S. E. Hilyer. A large tree was uprooted in the yard, part of the roof was gone and the window panes were broken.

"This is just the beginning," Mr. Robinson said, "You haven't seen anything yet."

The home of Frank Osley, a large two story house, was next. The house had been lifted from the blocks and had settled back at an angle. The large porch shed was crushed and two trees in the yard were blown down.

About a 100 yards from the Osley house stood the home of John Caton. Only the pillars and a section of the porch floor about ten feet wide, marking the spot where the home stood. For more than 100 yards the debris was scattered.

Then we came to the home of A. J. Davis, where Mrs. Cleckley met her death. Half of the floor was gone and the walls had folded down upon the other part. An automobile that had been parked under a shelter across the road from the home, stood 50 yards from the spot against an oak tree.

The home sites of Carter Willis and Obie Willis, his son, were next. Nothing remained here but a few scattered timbers, and a pile of corn. The storm had removed the crib but left the corn.

Cotton Bale Wafted Away

Just a mass of scantlings and fragments mark the place where stood the home of J. M. Bratton nearby. Mr. Bratton had a large number of bales of cotton stored in a shelter which stood across the road from his home. The storm carried away the shelter and one bale of cotton but left the other bales. The missing bale was found a quarter of a mile from where it had been stored.

Then we entered the Union Grove community. The large home of former Sheriff J. L. Gore, was a mass of wreckage.

A hundred yards away clothing blown from the home is hanging in the trees and tin from the roof remains wrapped about the small trees that bend with the storm. The large trees were broken near the top or uprooted.

John Robinson lived in a house that was probably built with a view of escaping tornadoes. The home was erected in a deep valley, protected on the northwest by a hill fully 50 feet high. But the tornado followed the decline and dipped deep into the valley to tear the house into fragments.

At Mims's Crossroads stood an old tavern, a popular meeting and voting place 60 years ago on the old Clanton and Calera road. It was occupied by J. L. Davis and son. Mr. Davis operated a store. The home and store were wiped off the earth.

Nor is this all. The homes of Lafayette Littlefield, Sam Varden, Bud Blackmon, Holly Mims, John Chandler, Thomas Chandler, Asa Hilliard, and Perry Robinson, all were completely destroyed.

Caring For Injured

The scores of injured persons who were taken from the wreckage yesterday morning were being cared for by neighbors or in hospitals in Clanton, Montgomery or Birmingham.

Those who survived were seen all along the way picking among the ruins of their homes. A jar of canned fruit, a washboard, a broken bit of furniture, here and there, the head of an iron bed stead without the foot—clothing and bedding, tattered by the storm, a broken wash basin and a whole pitcher.

The people of Collins Chapel and Union Grove are a God-fearing and hard working lot. Until now they have known little suffering on account of the depression.

"They live at home," Mr. Robinson said, "they don't live out of paper bags—at least they use so few of them that I can hardly make a living at my store."

Even now the visitors hears no appeal for help. Here is one group of people who are accustomed to helping themselves and caring for each other in times of need. They do not know how to ask for help. And so they go along their way unsmiling, rummaging through the wreckage of their homes, attending their sick and wounded and burying their dead, asking nothing and grateful to an All-wise Providence that it wasn't any worse.

"It's a cruel blow that has been dealt these good folk," the writer remarked to Mr. Robinson.

"Yes," he agreed, "but the Lord has said he would take one and leave one and I guess that's what He's done."

SELMA COMPRESS COMPANY REPRESENTATIVE VISITOR

Clanton was visited last week by Mr. W. S. Perry, soliciting agent of the Selma Compress Company, of Selma, Alabama. Mr. Perry visits this county quite frequently and advises with the customers of his company, giving such advice as he is able to in regard to the care and sale of cotton in the bale.

Mr. Perry's knowledge of cotton, and its care in storage is wide. In a statement to a representative of this newspaper, he stated that his company is widening its scope of service to the sections served, and in the coming season hopes to be able to be of more service to their customers.

The wedding of Margie Atkins and Alexander Cummings of Minehead, Eng., had to be cancled at the altar because the bridegroom was too nervous to make the response properly.

With a toy pistol Mark Rayden of Chicago held three policemen at bay for an hour and then surrendered.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Morrison, of London, both lawyers, appeared on the same side in a lawsuit which their client won.

Fifty-Four Dead From Tornado That Strikes Chilton

office of the Alabama Power Company and from the crews of the L & N Railroad, were on the scene immediately aiding in clearing the tangled wires from the roads, while two passenger trains were held in Thorsby for several hours, unable to get through.

As calls for help came into town, the Central Alabama Hospital was soon over crowded, with all available space used. Ladies of Clanton unselfishly volunteered as nurses and served untiringly throughout Monday night, into Tuesday morning, when they were relieved by other volunteers and nurses from Birmingham and Montgomery.

The two latter cities responded wonderfully to the calls for relief, and for doctors, medical supplies, nurses and officers, who arrived on the scene late Monday night, and continued arriving Tuesday, sme stopping at Thorsby and some at Clanton.

Birmingham ambulances rushed to Thorsby and Clanton, and with doctors and nurses, braved the treacherously blocked roads into the stricken area near these towns, giving medical aid and bringing the injured into town.

When the hospital in Clanton was filled to its capacity, the offices of Dr. Napoleon Johnson and Arthur Johnson were thrown open, and extra cots were supplied, all soon filled with sufferers from the tornado area. An emergency hospital was set up at Thorsby at the office of Dr. Horace Franklin, and in the telephone exchange there. Many injured were rushed to Birmingham when quarters at Thorsby were filled. No telephone connections could be had between Clanton and Birmingham until Tuesday morning.

Ambulance drivers, doctors and nurses worked untiringly through the night seeking the dead and injured in the communities hit by the twister, making trip after trip to the hospitals and funeral parlors. Some most terrifying scenes were found during the night in the stricken area around Collins Chapel and Union Grove. Roads, blocked by fallen trees greatly handicapped, and at times prevented entrance to storm swept sections of the county, and it was not until daylight Tuesday that entrance was gained, and more injured persons were found.

In one section a small child was found, and up to Tuesday night, it had not been identified, but was resting easy, while a small girl remained in the hospital unidentified until Tuesday afternoon. One mother, injured and brought to the hospital, carried, wrapped in a quilt, her small baby, dead, unknown to her.

It was stated that a man, running with his child in his arms, felt his child become lifeless when struck by flying debris, while his wife and baby had been blown into a creek nearby. Obie Willis of the Union Grove community told of his struggles in saving his wife from drowning, and from falling timbers, after she had become unconscious, by falling on top of her while his mother was killed in the same house.

Among the homes completely demolished in the sections struck are those of Fate Littlefield, Jack Davis, Sam Varden, Matt Davis, John Chandler, Tommie Ellison, Holly Mims, John Gore. There were seven persons killed in this section within a radius of a quarter mile, it was stated. The Queen home, north of Thorsby, where Mr. and Mrs. Queen were killed, was destroyed by fire, and a small daughter badly burned, while a son was seriously injured.

Following is a complete check-up of the Mineral Springs Community and its condition as made by Charlie Cox and Horsley White late Tuesday afternoon:

Chilton County Hit By Second Tornado

SUNDAY STORM TAKES TOLL OF LIFE, PROPERTY

Area Struck Last Week Gets Visit; Sightseers Are Caught In Tornado

Sunday afternoon saw hundreds of sightseers from many sections of the state, up in the Thorsby section of the storm of last Monday night. The highways and country roads were thronged wath cars, occupants of which received a shock when they saw approaching from the southwest, a heavy black cloud and the form of another twister, on its way into that section. This occurred sometime near two o'clock.

Many who saw the twister approaching, made haste to leave the path it was apparently taking, while others who did not have time to get away, sought safety in gulleys and ditches along the road, leaving their cars in the roads.

Preceding Sunday afternoon's storm there was a stiff wind and considerable rainfall in the vicinity of Thorsby. Describing the twister, one who was directly in its path stated that at first when he saw it, it looked like a huge column of smoke, boiling up as if coming from a locomotive, and looked to be about a mile away, however, apparently traveling fast, because before he could drive his car to complete safety, he was covered with dirt and sand, and the air suction from the twister made progress almost impossible.

Others describing it as a great big "booger bear" coming toward them and being unable to get away from its path. A huge column of clouds, black in the center, with its edges a swirling mass of yellowish arms, throwing pieces of houses, barn and debris from its center, high into the air.

R. C. Champion of the Pleasant Grove Community, west of Jemison, where one person was killed, stated that he was determined to see this one as best he could, and after deciding he was safely from the path of the twister he stood on a hill and watched it tear homes, and barns in splinters and carry them into the air, being almost swept from his feet. He told of seeing a group of negroes leave a truck in the road and get into a ditch.

Sightseers on the section near Thorsby and Jemison made haste to seek safety in large culverts under the railroads, while others raced madly southward and northward from the path of the twister. One family, whose home was destroyed in Monday's storm, got under the concrete porch, the only remaining portion of their house, seeking safety while tents erected for them last week, were blown away.

The twister Sunday afternoon, followed almost directly the same path of those Monday night of last week, tearing away many tents on places where homes were destroyed Monday night.

In Lawley, Ala., west of Thorsby, Perry Hicks, 41, one of the prominent farmers of that section, was killed. Mrs. Hicks was critically injured, and their home demolished. Mrs. Hicks is a sister of Horton Walker, a member of the faculty of the Chilton County High School at Clanton.

Dessie Lawrence, 38, Dessie Lou Lawrence, age 9, all of Lawley were reported as injured Sunday afternoon, as was Willie Hicks, age 40, who was sent to Selma for treatment.

Walker Lawrence, age 40, died en route to Montgomery on an M & O train that had been stopped to carry injured to hospitals.

Austin Lawrence, age 2, was reported as instantly killed, and Mrs. Jane Green age 88, was reported instantly killed.

Jake Kinebrew and his wife, negroes of near Pleasant Grove, whose house was destroyed by the tornado Monday and who were living in a tent, were injured when their tent was blown away. After the tornado crossed the Montgomery highway it did considerable property damage in the vicinity of Collins Chapel and injured R. P. Clakeley, of that section.

Destruction Complete

One of the most complete pieces of destructive work done by the tornado was at the McCarty home, near Pleas-

Typhoid Serum To Be Given In County

All persons residing in the sections struck by the tornadoes recently should have typhoid innoculation, according to Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer. With this statement, preparations have been made for typhoid innoculation to be given the people in the storm areas of Chilton County, without cost, according to Dr. T. J. Marcus, of Clanton.

Four places have been designated as depots where this innoculation is to be given. These are at Thorsby, Jemison, Clanton and Maplesville. The doctors to give this are as follows: Dr. H. G. Franklin, Thorsby; Dr. R. B. McNeill, Jemison; Dr. T. J. Marcus, Clanton, and Dr. J. J. DuBose at Maplesville.

All persons in the storm areas of this county are urged to get this typhoid innoculation. There will be no cost. The following days are set out for this to be given, and persons are asked to abide by this schedule; First dose, Satuday, April 2nd; second dose, Thursday, April 7th and third dose on Thursday, April 14th.

DR. W. L. PARRISH OFFERS SERVICES TO STOCK OWNERS

In a statement to the News, Dr. W.L. Parrish, prominent veternarian of this county, said that his services are open to those persons in the storm area who have stock needing a veternarian's attention.

He stated that if he has not called on anyone needing his services as a result of the recent tornadoes, to get in touch with him, and he would visit their place, and that all charges have been paid.

Extra Copies Of News For Sale

Extra copies of this issue of the News are on sale at headquarters of the Red Cross Relief in Chilton County, at five cents per copy.

These papers have been donated to the Red Cross by the Chilton County News and all sales will be given to the relief fund in the county. Many persons have already asked for extra copies to mail to friends over the country.

MISS RUTH PRINCE GOES TO MANAGE ALEX CITY STORE

It is pleasing to note the accomplishments of local young people, and this week the news was heard that Miss Ruth Prince has gone to Alexander City to take charge of one of the V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c and $1.00 Stores, just opening there.

Miss Prince has been connected with the local V. J. Elmore store for several years, and her many friends here wish her much success in her new position and location.

Local Legion Post Meets Monday Night

Col. R. A. Woodson, commander of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion, stated this week that this post of Legionnaires would meet at the courthouse on next Monday night, April 4th.

This is the regular meeting night, and is one of the most important meetings to be held, as much work is before the local post, according to Col. Woodson.

GOVERNOR MILLER SPENDS SOME TIME IN CHILTON

Governor B. M. Miller spent considerable time in Chilton County last Wednesday visiting the hospitals and in the storm stricken sections.

Those witnessing his meeting with victims of the storm were touched by the kindly look in the governor's eyes and the words of cheer he spoke to rich, poor, old and young.

Governor Miller praised the manner in which volunteers of this section fell into line, aiding the suffering families and attending to the injured.

Court Scheduled Here Postponed

Two terms of court for Chilton County were scheduled this month, but due to the calamity which fell here last week, all cases have been continued. according to Judge Loyd Tate, judge of the 19th judicial circuit, who was in Clanton Monday. A few civil, nonjury cases were disposed of, Judge Tate stated, and no court will be held until further notice.

POULTRY CAR BRINGS IN OVER THOUSAND DOLLARS

The cooperative poultry car which came through Chilton County recently, left over one thousand dollars in cash for poultry raisers, according to C. E. Stapp, County agent.

The car stopped at Jemison where 3335 pounds were loaded, for which $391.91 was left. In Maplesville there were 839 pounds loaded for which $113.16 was paid. In Clanton $785.62 was paid for 6,500 pounds, and in Verbena the car received 1,647 pounds and paid out $188.79.

Warning!

People are soliciting funds for Red Cross and storm sufferers without being authorized. Beware of such people as this is a means that many people have of obtaining money for themselves.

CLUB MEETINGS, SOCIAL FUNCTIONS ARE POSTPONED

Last week ,there were several club meetings and other social functions planned to take place. All these were automatically postponed, following the tragedy that struck this section, Monday of last week, and practically all social functions scheduled for this week were postponed.

HAS ANYONE LOST A NICE FRIENDLY AIREDALE LATELY?

Someone has lost one of the finest little dogs, an Airedale, according to Mrs. Annie Thacker, of near Clanton. Mrs. Thacker stated that this dog came to her home Friday afternoon, almost exhausted from hunger, although it has apparently been well cared for.

The dog has three white feet, and a makeshift collar. The owner can get the dog, Mrs. Thacker said, if they will come to the home of J. B. Marlar, Clanton, Route 5.

"GEORGE IN A JAM" AT HIGH SCHOOL IN CLANTON

The Senior Two Class of the Chilton County County High School will present on Friday night, April 1st, a three act comedy-drama entitled "George In A Jam."

This promises to be a splendid presentation, full of fun and laughs, with all local talent. Miss Nell Wells and Miss Margaret Kendrick are directing.

George really gets into a jam, when he sets out to make things hum for himself, losing a nice sum of money from his uncle because he would not marry the girl of his uncle's choice. The boarding house scene is a scream. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

SEVEN ARRESTS REPORTED FROM SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Seven arrests were reported made during the past week by the sheriff and his officers. One for giving bad checks, one for driving while intoxicated, two for violating prohibition law and three for petty larceny.

The P.-T. A. of the Grammar School held an exercise on the grounds of the campus last Friday, planting two pecan trees in honor of George Washington. Miss Emma Sue Morris presided. After the singing of several patriotic songs Mrs. Omar Reynolds presented the trees to the school in a few well chosen words, and Prof. Quinn responded with appreciation on the part of the school.

Contributions Pour In From All Sections Of The State

MORE FOOD NEEDED IN CHILTON COUNTY

As soon as news of the tornado in this county was out, contributions began to come into Chilton from many sections of the state—contributions in cash, clothing and food, and when the following report was made, it was still coming in.

However, it is not being sent wrong, because the people of Chilton County who have been affected by the tornadoes of last week and last Sunday are sorely in need of food and money with which to carry on. Crops have to be made, and work should be started in that direction now: It will take money to get these crops started.

Below will be found a list of those who have contributed to the Red Cross Relief Fund of Chilton County, and contributors of food, clothing and other supplies. This report covers up to Tuesday morning of this week, only:

Many Places In State Struck By Tornado

Letters Being Sent To Storm Sufferers

Following the survey of the Red Cross, of the stricken areas in Chilton County, letters have been mailed to a majority of the stricken families, instructing them as to their nearest relief station. Following is a copy of the letter being mailed out:

TO THE STORM SUFFERERS

In an effort to best serve the storm sufferers we have set up service stations at Thorsby, Jemison, Clanton and Maplesville.

We have assigned you to . . station. If you prefer to be served from one of the other stations please let me know at once and I will gladly make the change.

After this please go to the station to which you have been assigned, as each station has a list of families they are to serve, also a list of families who will be served by the other stations.

We have food and clothes in the four named supply stations that has been donated for the storm sufferers. If you are in need please report or come in some time this week, and get help.

Assuring you that we are doing everything possible to help you.

Yours truly,

—Chilton County Red Cross Relief Committee. C. E. Stapp, General Chm.

Boy Scouts Doing Fine Work Here

Some of the most outstanding work being done in the areas stricken by tornadoes recently, has been done by Boy Scouts. The troops of Clanton, Thorsby and Lay Dam, in Chilton County have been of much assistance to the Red Cross workers and others doing relief work.

They have aided in the distribution of food, clothing, cots, and other supplies to the suffering families, and the loading and unloading of supplies to the families in the storm areas.

John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive was in this county last week, making a survey of the work being done along the relief line, by the Scouts of this section, and was highly praising the work.

CORRECTIONS ON LIST OF DEAD LAST WEEK

Since last week's issue of the News, a few corrections have been discovered in the list of names of those reported killed in Monday's tornado in this section.

Nat Smith was reported as dead, and later, this was found to be not true. Oce Blackmon child as was listed last week was not correct.

DR. S. A. BARSON WILL GIVE GLASSES TO TORNADO VICTIMS

Dr. S. A. Barson, well known optometrist, of Montgomery, who visits Clanton once each month at the Exchange Hotel, stated to the News Monday that he would fit glasses and give them without charge to those persons in the storm area of Chilton County, who lost their glasses during the storm.

Dr. Barson stated that this would be done only for those who are not able to purchase new glasses. Dr. Barson is in Clanton on the last Monday in each month, with headquarters at the Exchange Hotel.

Chilton County Puts On Show For Visitors

The hospitality of Chilton County people and their anxiety to show their visitors the best, was truly shown Sunday afternoon while hundreds of sightseers were visiting the storm torn areas near Thorsby.

The visitors from all sections of the state were viewing the ruins of the tornado of last week, and to try to show the visitors something,—another tornado was staged right in the same place. Now, that's real hospitality and service.

* * *

Mrs. C. C. Polk and daughter, Mrs. Jones, have moved to Clanton, and will be in the home of W. M. Polk. Mrs. Polk suffered the loss of her home at Sylacauga in the storm of March the 21st, and she has decided to live with her son in Clanton.

ELMORE, COOSA COUNTIES ARE BADLYDAMAGED

Easter Sunday's Tornado Is Felt In Many Places Not Damaged Last Week

Four persons were reported killed at Lawley, Ala., and one in the Pleasant Grove Community, west of Jemison, Ala., Sunday afternoon early, when the second tornado came tearing across that section of the state.

Eight counties bore the brunt of Sunday's tornadoes, two of them being hard hit by tornadoes which last Monday claimed more than 300 dead in the state and between 2,500 and 3,000 injured.

These two counties, Chilton and Bibb, reported six of the known dead in Sunday's storms. Four were killed at Lawley, in Bibb County; two lost their lives in the vicinity of Thorsby, in Chilton County, and two unidentified negroes were reported killed in White Plains community, in Chambers County, in messages to Red Cross headquarters.

Property Damage Heavy

More than a score of persons were injured in Bibb and Chilton Counties, several persons were reported hurt in a tornado in Cleburne County, 12 miles east of Anniston, and 12 or more persons were believed injured in Chambers County. Twenty homes were destroyed and a number of head of livestock killed in Chambers County.

One man was injured and extensive property damage was caused in Tallapoosa County, between Dadeville and Tallassee.

In addition to these counties, extensive property damage also was reported from Morgan County, Elmore County, Walker County and Lee County.

The tornadoes, after sweeping across Alabama, swirled into Georgia and Tennessee and scores of persons were reported injured in these two states.

Rain With Wind

In Alabama virtually the entire state experienced rain and wind.

Extensive property damage was caused in Elmore County by a tornado that whipped the section north of Wetumpka. Several fishing parties at Lake Jordan, north of Wetumpka, were endangered by the storm, but reports late Sunday indicated that all had escaped injury.

Walker County reported a hailstorm accompanied by high winds. Hailstones as big as baseballs fell in and near Cordova, badly damaging homes, automobiles and vegetation.

Drenching Rains

The tornadoes that struck in Chilton and Bibb Counties followed almost the same path taken by the storm Monday, which took a toll of more than 60 dead with hundreds injured in these two counties.

Outraced Tornado

The Birmingham residents pictured the tornado as appearing like the smoke from eight locomotives speeding along the highway. One Birmingham woman, Mrs. W. R. Miller, reported that Mr. Miller drove the automobile 85 miles an hour to outrace the tornado.

Another man en route to Birmingham, W. B. Sewell, reported to friends that his automobile was overturned three times while he was driving along the Montgomery highway attempting to escape the storm.

Billy Smith, editor of the Chilton County News, reported that Sunday's tornado came near catching hundreds of sightseers who had driven into Chilton County to view damage caused by last Monday's storm.

Many of the sightseers abandoned their automobiles to seek safety in ditches along the highway while others escaped injury by outracing the storm.

Relief workers already on duty in Chilton and Bibb Counties caring for injured in the previous tornado arrived at the new storm scenes within a short time and began immediate work of giving emergency relief for the injured.

The tornado Sunday also ripped away tents that had been erected to house homeless of Monday's storm.

In addition to relief workers already in the stricken areas, three experienced Red Cross representatives were dispatched from Birmingham headquart-

Twister Described By Pleasant Grove Cor.

Following is a story written by Lance Franklin, of the Pleasant Grove Community, where Monday's tornado did considerable damage:

Our pastor was at church to perform his regular service Sunday morning. His message was on "The Resurrection and Death of Christ." The morning service was given to a congregation of uneasy people, and, the evening service was not held due to a cyclone that swept away the homes of those that were in its 150- to 200-yard path. Among these were Mr. Carl McCarty, Mr. Green Cofer, Mrs. Lige Gore.

Another cyclone hit Pleasant Grove community about three-thirty, destroying the above mentioned houses, killing Mr. G. W. Tubbs at the home of Mr. Carl McCarty, and injuring his wife. No one else was injured. Mr. Tubbs was Mrs. McCarty's father. An official report stated that six were known to have been killed at Lawley.

The cyclone was as bad where it hit, but it was not so wide as the other. It came, however, with the same purpose that the other did, taking God's own, and staying pretty close, or on the same trail as did the other one last Monday night.

This cloud seemed to sail back and forth for about forty minutes, and then straightened itself out into a funnel form and came sweeping whatever was in its way. It appeared to all spectators to be traveling from the southwest course to the northeast direction, making one direct northward turn for about one mile to form the elbow off the old route, and it was this elbow that got Mr. McCarty, Mr. Cofer, and Mr. Gores houses. The following story was told by Dalton McCarty in regard to his grandfather:

"Grandpa and I were standing out on the porch watching the cloud and had been watching it for thirty minutes. Grandpa expressed his opinion of the cloud possibly bringing a cyclone with it and in a few minutes we saw the colud go into a funnel-like shape, but still grandpa watched to see what course it would take and for a short few seconds we gazed at it, until it was about 175 yards of the house, and about this time we saw the lumber from Mr. Green Cofer's house flying around just as high as we could see. Then we rushed into the house. Daddy, I think, got the baby and the next time I knew where I was I was coming from below our garage up by the fence about 20 to 25 yards from the house. It was about ten seconds from the time it hit Mr. Cofer's until I was out beside this fence. By this time cars and help began to run in. Everybody was looking for grandpa, but I had covered him up with two quilts so it wouldn't rain on him. I thought sure he was dead then, but he lived about 10 to 20 minutes.

In Pleasant Grove's former cyclone Miss Lois Davenport was killed, not instantly. Her father, Mr. Enoch, and her brother, Bernie, were reported to be improving some.

Who makes your Fire Insurance Rate?

Property owners—individually and collectively—create the conditions which determine the cost of their fire insurance.

There is nothing secret in the making of fire insurance rates. Several major facts enter into the determination of these charges, such as construction, occupancy, the quality of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property and general loss experience.

ELIMINATE HAZARDS

Stock Fire Insurance Companies maintain bureaus to assist in eliminating fire hazards or correcting defects which may affect your rate. The advice of such bureaus is offered to you free of charge through your insurance agent.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Job was a religious, prosperous and happy man. There was none like unto him in his day. The devil charged that Job was being hedged about and protected by God, and that he was serving God for pay. A tornado swept his family away, his possession went and he himself came down to sickness and suffering. "In all this Job sinned not." In his desolation he said, "The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." The Master said that the rain and the sunshine would come to "The just and the unjust alike." As we look over the wreck and the ruin of the recent tornado, we can not understand. It came to the just and unjust and both alike suffered. After all, it is not the attitude that the tornado assumed toward us that hurts, but it is our attitude toward God because of the storm that will bring to us untold injury. If we are serving God for pay then we feel that we have had a bad deal, but if we are serving Him because we love Him, then we will join in with Job and say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." All things work together for good to us if we love God.

* * *

Three hours after the tornado had done its worst, a truck was slowly wending its way over a country road. In trying to get by rubbish in the road, the rear wheel slipped into a ditch. The driver stopped his engine, and got out to see what his trouble was. He heard the faint cry of a little child some distance out in a field. He left his truck and went in search of the lost babe. He found it sitting on the ground, weeping in the darkness. It was a mile from its home, and for days no one knew to whom it belonged. Tell me not that God did not hear the cry of that babe. Its pitiful appeal was heard in heaven and God sent his angels down to push that truck into the ditch at that point, so that the driver would hear the cry of the babe and go to its rescue. Such things as that are not mere happen so. There is an eye in heaven that never slumbers, and there is a heart that beats with everlasting love, and that great One will ever take care of his own. God sent that man that way, and he had conditions arranged so that the cry of the babe could be heard.

* * *

I was out in search of cases in need, and I came to where a home was before the storm. A tent had been erected on the ground, and the owner of the property was under that tent, putting down flooring, preparing to bring his family together again. Like a hero he was working alone, preparing to go on in spite of his loss. He told me that he had lost his earthly home, but that he had a home where moth and rust, where storms and tornadoes, would never come, and that he was going to do his best to serve God in fidelity until he was called to live on high. How uncertain are these things that we have down here. One day we have health, and the next we are flat of our back in sickness. One day we are happy, the next we are in tears. One day our homes seem secure, the next day they are splintered and thrown to the winds. It behooves all of us to make plans for another world. Put your trust in God and heaven, and not in the things of this world.

* * *

Uncle John stood by the scattered remains of his home at Lomax. He had come from back in the days of slavery and carried the name of his old master. In his own way he told how suddenly he and his family were in danger. I asked of him, "Uncle John, did you have time to pray when you saw the twister coming?" The old darkey looked away to the woods and replied, "No, Sar, Boss, it was done da, and there was no time to pray." Scores of lives were snuffed out without even a moment in which to pray. How necessary it is that we stay prepared to meet God all the time. We should so live as to be prepared at any moment to go. Keep your grip packed and then if the train blows at noon or at midnight, all you will have to do will be to climb aboard and go on that long journey.

* * *

In less than twenty minutes after the demon of the air had dealt his fatal blow, the phones were ringing, and automobiles were flying in every direction. Rescue work was in full swing, and in a few hours sympathetic hearts were relieving suffering and housing the homeless. We sometimes think that folks are rather selfish, but when there is a real need, we forget classes and clanishness, and reach out our hands to assist. The automobile is a great blessing, as well as a great curse, in this our age. If it had not been for the rapid means for scattering news and transporting the suffering, the tragedy would have been more fatal than it was. Now that we know the good of the automobile, we should certainly use them to carry us to God's house on Sunday, and not off on trips of pleasure.

* * *

While I am writing this the sun is shining and the birds are singing. There seems to be a voice echoing in nature, "Be still and know that I am God." Yes, the storm is over, and now we have time to be still and meditate. I am wondering if our people are going to continue to live as they have been living. It is time for all of us to stop an dthink. You had better give up your ways of sin, you had better find your place in the worship of the sanctuary, you had better snap out of your indifference, and prepare to meet God.

COMMISSIONERS EXPRESS THEIR THANKS FOR AID

Resolution Adopted At Meet In Clanton Last Week On Assistance

Whereas, a great calamity has recently befallen our County and our people are now in the midst of great sorrow and hundreds are in dire need and distress;

And Whereas, the Court of County Commissioners have been appealed to by many citizens desirous of aiding the distressed and suffering and there exists no legal authority to authorize a direct contribution to this cause;

And Whereas, the officials of the National Red Cross have today been in conference with the Court of County Commissioners and other citizens of the County and the Red Cross outlined fully its procedure with reference to the relief plans and it was considered advisable and advantageous that the Court of County Commissioners follow the plan so outlined for the relief and rehabilitation of our people in the devastated area;

Be, It, Therefore, Resolved by the Court of County Commissioners that we urge our people to contribute to our stricken neighbors as liberally as possible through the Red Cross and other relief organizations administering to their needs;

Be It Further Resolved, that the Court of County Commissioners pledges its support and active cooperation to the plans as outlined and we urge our unfortunate friends and neighbors to be as patient as possible under the circumstances that the resources available may be used to the advantage of those entitled thereto;

Be It Further Resolved, that we sincerely thank our friends and neighbors in the adjoining counties and nearby cities of Birmingham, Montgomery and Selma for their heroic efforts and sacrifices in administering to the needs of our distressed and worthy citizens and especially do we thank the cfficials of our National Red Cross, the American Legion and its Auxilliary, the Boy Scouts and other organizations that so promptly came to our assistance.

John A. Darden Here And Speaks To Crowd

Senator John A. Darden of Goodwater, a candidate for the office of president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, was in Clanton Monday of last week, and spoke to a large crowd at the courthouse, in the interest of his campaign.

Mr. Darden has a splendid support in his race for this office. He served during the past senate, and is a widely known and prominent attorney of Goodwater.

His message to the people of this county last week was well received, and in line with the general opinion of the people and the statements from Mr. Darden were in regard to his intentions if elected to the office he seeks.

Marbury F.F.A. News

The Marbury Chapter of F. F. A met March 23, at the last period of school. A very interesting program in the form of a debate was rendered by the program committee. The resolve was, "That the farmer should use commercial fertilizer this year." The speakers on the affirmative were Gray Peek and Pierce Culver. The negative speakers were Ralph Culver and Mack Dennis. The debate was very interesting and resulted in the favor of the affirmative. Following the debate Herschell Dennis gave us the latest jokes.

Our honorary visitor at this meeting was Mr. Sargent, who gave us a very inspiring talk on the subject of "Objectives of an F. F. A. Chapter." This talk was very interesting and was highly appreciated.

The business discussed was electing a representative for this chapter to attend the State F. F. A. Convention at Auburn next summer. Two members were nominated, but Gray Peek, president, was elected. After the president had expressed his appreciation for the nomination we adjourned.

Tornadoes Cause Heavy Farm Damage In State

Tornadoes in Alabama Monday, March 21, destroyed over 1600 farm homes and buildings and left thousands of farm families homeless and without clothing and food.

A majority of those killed and injured were farm men, women and children.

Farmers suffered heavy losses thru the destruction of livestock, poultry, feeds, foods and timber.

Surveys of farm damages have not been completed but county agents of Alabama Extension Service made the following reports on March 23.

C. E. Stapp, Chilton County Agent: "In Chilton County 150 houses, barns and buildings totally destroyed with 40 others damaged. Estimated 25 head of work stock and 25 cattle killed. No estimate made on number of hogs or poultry killed. Feed and timber loss heavy, no accurate estimate."

R. D. Winch, county agent of Marengo county:

"Three separate tornadoes hit Marengo, Jefferson, Demopolis, Allenville and Faunsdale. About 400 farm homes and buildings valued at $250,000 destroyed. Timber valued at $15,000. One hundred and ten head of livestock valued at $5,500 killed. Four thousand head of poultry, mostly baby chicks, valued at $1,500 destroyed. Humans, 15 known dead and 125 injured."

F. M. White, county agent of Clay County:

"Tornado damage very severe. Twelve persons dead and 200 injured; 70 seriously. Courthouse being used to house some homeless. Church at Lineville turned into temporary hospital. Severely injured hospitalized at Talladega and Anniston. Seventy-five to 100 homes destroyed; probably 400 homes and outbuildings destroyed. Much poultry and some mules and cows killed. Millions feet of timber blown. Red Cross Community organization and U. S. Army caring for situation."

R. M. Reaves, county agent, Cullman County:

"More than 100 farm homes damaged, 65 of which are completely demolished. Three hundred people left absolutely homeless; 23 dead and 75 injured, many very seriously. Fairview High School and two churches demolished. Heavy damage to timber in tornadoes' path. Livestock injury throughout the 20-mile path of tornado, impossible to make accurate estimate of damage; will possibly run into hundreds of thousands. This is incomplete house to house survey."

M. T. Gowder, county agent of Jackson County:

"Tornado struck East Jackson County in neighborhood of Paint Rock station on west traversing county through Tennessee Valley and Cumberland Mountain section to the Georgia line on east and destroyed about 100 to 125 farm homes. Mules, cattle, dead but cannot be estimated accurately. Damage to homes, timber, livestock, school buildings and personal property on farms estimated about $750,000. If the weather conditions are favorable much feed and personal property will be saved and if unfavorable weather the damage will be greater. Red Cross erecting tents and supplying cots for colonies."

R. C. Lett, county agent of Tuscaloosa County:

"Estimate 300 farm buildings destroyed. Large number of poultry and some livestock. Some farms only land left. Can't give definite information."

J. P. Robinson, County Agent of Perry County:

"The damages done in Perry County are as follows: 125 farm homes destroyed, 600 people destitute, 150 wounded, treated up to date. Twenty-one found dead so far. Timber loss great. Livestock, poultry, crops and land slight. The total loss estimated at $250,000."

W.T. Coker, Talladega County agent:

"Thirty-two farm families on 21 farms suffered heavy losses. Total loss in building and timber $26,000. No livestock reported killed. But little timber included in losses. Some farms were completely stripped of buildings and contents."

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Another month has passed. March was one of the hardest church months this pastor has ever known. It seemed that everything militated against successful efforts for the kingdom, but we are not quitters. Roll up your sleeves and start April right.

Sunday school meets at 9:45 and preaching at 11 A. M.

Sunday night Dr. N. B. McLeod will preach at 7:30. We invite all who really enjoy a great sermon to be present. After the preaching service Dr. McLeod will hold our Second Quarterly Conference.

If you should see a storm coming toward your home you would make this kind of prayer, "Lord, if you will spare me, I will go to church and Sunday school every Sunday." Why can you not be a loyal church goer without being scared into it? This is a good time for all of Chilton County to resolve that they will "Pay their vows to the Most High."

Boy Scouts Active Over This County

Activities of Boy Scout Troops over Chilton County are becoming more and more noticeable, and much work is being done.

Scoutmaster Rascoe Maddox, of Troop 43, Thorsby, announces that William L. Each is the new assistant scoutmaster of this troop, working with Clyde B. King, also an assistant. The Thorsby Troop 47 will meet next Friday night, April 1st at six o'clock.

This troop has been very active during the past several days, aiding all possible in the relief work being done in the sections of the county suffering from tornadoes.

Last Friday, the Boy Scouts of Clanton visited the Scouts at Lay Dam, where games were enjoyed, especially the game popular with Scouts called "Capture The Flag." Edmund Lakeman is leader of the Scouts at Lay Dam. Plans were made to have a Tenderfoot Investiture ceremony Friday night, April 8th at Lay Dam, according to John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive who was in this section the past week.

HAPPY ANNA LANE

Part II.

The sun was almost down when Mr. Lane and Anna reached home from Layton that day in March. While Mr. Lane fed the horse and hogs and fed and milked the cow, Anna fed the chickens, gathered up the eggs and prepared supper.

After they had eaten supper and had washed the dishes Anna got her books. She did not find it irksome to study and recite her lessons alone, for she had the fun of reciting them to her father, who had taught school and had traveled a great deal. He was always able to help Anna to understand any hard place in her lessons. Often he could tell a story drawn from his knowledge and experience that would explain the question that they were discussing.

Always after lessons were over, Mr. Lane and Anna would read some from the Bible—Mr. Lane reading one verse and Anna the next. Sometimes they talked about what they had read, but always there was a simple prayer of thanksgiving and praise to their Heavenly father. Anna had taken part in this evening prayer every evening since she could remember. Her Heavenly Father was as near and as real to her as the gentle wind that she could feel, but could not see. Each night she went to sleep with a peaceful, happy and trusting heart.

The next day's work went off as usual with Anna except that her mind would keep wandering from her studies to the visit Mrs. Norman and Mrs. Luteson were to make that afternoon. She felt that somehow it was to concern her, more than anyone else.

Mrs. Norman and her sister, Mrs. Luteson, drove away from Layton early in the afternoon bound for the Lane farm. When they reached the top of the last woodland slope they saw before them a beautiful picture. Below them was a wide valley of pretty fields, and on the side of the hill beyond the valley was a little log house surrounded by a smooth green lawn. Near the house were green shrubs with a few early spring flowers blooming among them. This was the Lane farm. When they drove up to the house and stopped Anna met them with a smile. By her side stood "Old Collie," a fine collie dog that had been her devoted playfellow for several years.

When they went into the house Mrs. Luteson was pleased to see that Anna kept the house as neat as any grown-up housewife could. After a while Mr. Lane came in. Guessing that he was rushed with his work, Mrs. Norman without delay told him that her sister had a request to make of him. Then Mrs. Luteson said, "Mr. Lane, my sister has told me a great deal about your daughter, Anna. Yesterday afternoon when I first saw her I was attracted by her bright, happy face. Lucy, my only daughter, is away from home in school this year and will be away traveling next summer. It is not likely that she will be at home much for the next several years."

"Oh," thought Anna, "does she want me to leave father and go live with her?"

"I wonder if she expects me to give up my only child in order that she may stay with her," was Mr. Lane's thought.

"Lucy's father," continued Mrs. Luteson, "bought a shetland pony for her when she was about Anna's age. Since she is not at home we have no use for the pony. We do not want to sell him and neither do we want to keep him. My idea is this, Mr. Lane. I shall give Anna the pony and buggy if you will allow her to accept it."

"Mrs. Luteson, that is a kind offer," replied Mr. Lane with a sigh of relief. "It will mean so much to Anna I will not object. I intend to send her to school next year, and the pony and good old Collie here will make it possible for her to go to school from here each morning."

"That is what I told my sister when she told me that Anna could not go to school alone because of the distance," said Mrs. Luteson. "I shall be greatly pleased if the pony can make that possible. I can see that it would be a great trial to you both to be separated for a week or a month at the time in order that she might go to school."

When Mr. Lane and Anna had tried to express to Mrs. Luteson their appreciation for the gift, Mr. Lane went back to his work. After a pleasant visit with Anna, Mrs. Norman and Mrs. Luteson went back to Layton. Anna ran a race with Collie toward the woods where her father was working. When she saw him she shouted, "Father, I guess I am the happiest girl living, for I can go to school and be with you too and I shall have a pony all my own!"

In her prayer that night Anna thanked God for His love, for kind friends, and for all the blessings that made her life happy.

A Democratic House Means More Economy And Efficiency

On the day following the introduction of a resolution in the Democratic House by Chairman Byrns of the Appropriations Committee for the appointment of a House Economy Committee to investigate and report upon reorganization of the Administrative departments and bureaus, and, while a similar resolution by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, was pending in the Senate, President Hoover rushed a message to Congress proposing a plan of reorganization. He asked for immediate action, giving him authority to put it into effect. He graciously proposed that Congress should have sixty days to study a rearrangement of any reorganization the President should make and to request suspension of Executive action in any particular.

The President's plan would create four new assistant secretaries with combined salaries of $40,000, but for this increase millions—it sounds like Colonel Sellers' "There's meel-l-i-o-n-s in it"—would be saved, but without the details of how the savings would be effected.

The Executive's coordination plan also comes at a time when most of the appropriation bills have been acted upon—that is to say, three months too late for intelligent action by the Appropriations Committee to put it into effect, and while the House is formulating the tax bill and preparing the remaining appropriation bills, and the Congress is dealing with various features of the depression.

It is not surprising therefore that Speaker Garner should declare that the President's projects would only mean greater expenditures, and that this was no time to submit them. He predicted that the President would "hear plenty" about it from the floor of the House.

The breathless haste of President Hoover, however, is surprising in view of the fact that the subject is 22 years old, having its inception in the Taft Administration in 1910, interrupted by the war in the Wilson period, noisily proclaimed as a policy of the Harding regime and occasionally referred to in the "era of smug complacency"—as John W. Davis calls the Coolidge incumbency.

Mr. Hoover as a Cabinet member was its active protagonist. His office was an art gallery of charts and glyphs on coordination.

In the past 10 years there have been three major undertakings in this respect: Transfer of the Bureau of Mines and the Patent Office from the Interior Department to Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce, doubling the expenditures of the Patent Office; transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to a special bureau in the Department of Justice, with an increase in budget estimates of $2,000,000; consolidation of veterans' agencies into one bureau, with an increase of $8,000,000 in expenditures. That's all, covering an entire decade.

With this roseate record of economy and efficiency, Mr. Hoover now asks authority to create more high-priced officials and to have the entire matter of reorganizing the Administrative branch of the Government put into his hands.

But with a Democratic House and almost equal party representation in the Senate, we are now in the Era of Real Economy and Efficiency. While the Democratic leaders may lack some of the engineering implements and appliances with which Mr. Hoover worked his reorganization miracles, they have a sound and comprehensive knowledge of the principles and policies of Democratic government intelligently and economically administered. The solution can safely be left in their hands. The country is through with engineering as a governmental science and also with miracle workers.

o-o-o-o

Sound Tax Reduction

There is room, and plenty of it, for sound tax reduction by government. But in some quarters there seems to be a misunderstanding of the question.

Nothing must be done that will in any way imperil the legitimate operation of government, or cause it to fail in meeting its liabilities. If that should happen, the inevitable result would be panic—and there is no telling where it would end. It is manifestly impossible for government to cut costs to the degree of manufacturing businesses, which can adjust overhead to demand for their products.

What government can do is to eliminate waste, duplication of effort, the general inefficiency prevalent to many departments. Doing this would improve, rather than damage, the operation of government—and it would be a boon to the taxpayer, who is already struggling under severe burdens.

o-o-o-o

Good Business For All

Improvement of transportation conditions, especially in respect to the railroads, would have a sustaining effect on all business throughout the country and contribute immeasurably to its recovery, in the opinion of Harry J. Haas, President, American Bankers Association.

Any attempt to benefit the lines, he said, will be directly reflected in many other fields of activity. Furthermore, the people have a tremendous direct financial interest in the rails. Outstanding railroad bonds and notes amount to $11,500,000,000, and stocks total over $7,000,000. Over $3,000,000,000 of insurance reserves, backing up hundreds of thousands of policies, are invested in railroad bonds.

In normal times the railroads pay yearly over $580,000,000 to bondholders in interest, $460,000,000 to stockholders in dividends, and $2,500,000,000 in wages to 1,500,000 workers—a total of almost four billion dollars which goes directly into the hands of an appreciable part of the public. To this must be added the $400,000,000 they pay annually in taxes. The contribution thus made to national stability, and economic development, is easily imagined.

During the past year the railways' purchases amounted to one-half those of 1929, and they are likewise paying less in wages. This condition obviously does much to prolong depression—but the railroads can do nothing about it until our regulatory laws are changed so that they will be allowed to compete on a basis of equality with other common carriers. Fairness to the railroads would be good business for all.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

> "Make yourself an honest man, and then you may be sure that there is one rascal less in the world."—Carlyle.

* * *

To express my views and so forth in regard to the terrible calamity that struck this county last week, would be useless. People are fully realizing its vastness.

* * *

We will continue on our tour round town from where we left off last week. And that will take us to the filling station operated by John T. Ellis, and his son, Earl, on top of the hill, leaving Clanton on the north side of town. This filling station is quite popular with tourists, as they have found that Mr. Ellis and his son give excellent service.

* * *

We are kind of up in the residential section of Clanton, so will just have to pass up these homes and get back to the Billingsley Service Station, where Texaco products are handled, and where we see that tall fellow, Curtis Billingsley doing a nice business, at a very attractive filling station, where things are done in a modern way.

* * *

After this visit now, folks, we step across the street to another filling station, the Sinclair Service Station, and find W. W. "Preacher" Bishop all "het up" waiting on customers, and there's W. E. Miller over there putting air in a tire, or something. This is another nice little station. And here comes Kin Vnson driving up in the Sinclair truck, he's the wholesale distributor.

* * *

Well, we bid them good morning, and stop at Bates Auto Shop, where H. M. Bates is sitting in the back at his desk. He refers us to Ensley Culpepper who works on automobiles, getting batteries all fixed, and then this fellow who just came in is Mack Parrish, who works here also.

* * *

Here we are at Bill's Garage. This place has been in business in Clanton for a number of years, under the management of W. F. Fiquette, who is more familiarly known to people as "Bill." We also meet Mrs. Fiquette, a charming lady who looks after the office and we find her a very pleasant talker. Now we will see the mechanics, and they are Euell Woodyard, and Delbert Brand. Euell is a good mechanic and Brand knows his automobiles, too.

* * *

Here we are folks, at J. L. Ruffin's feed store, where chickens are bought and sold, and where the majority of people buy chicken feed. The young fellow with the glasses on and who is in charge, is Clyde Mims, and knows his chicken feed. Here comes the big boss now, Mr. Ruffin, who is well known over the county and has certainly built up a good business.

* * *

Now, let's stop and chat a minute with Mr. Plier, who is known far and wide as "Uncle Charley". He operates this grist mill here and is certainly an interesting fellow to talk to.

* * *

This big building, as you see is the Ford Building, known as Clanton Motors. We are greeted by Julius "Rip" Burnett, the assistant to the manager, who is T. J. "Tom" Littlejohn. These fellows, you will note are anxious to have us look through their plant and will show us through personally. We get acquainted with Arthur Burnett, the pleasant young fellow outside, and then here is Luther Culpepper in the parts department, and Grady Bates who looks after customers as they drive in. Odis "Sleepy" Miller is that fellow over there who is so calmly going about his work on cars, and then there's Hardy Hurt, one of the best mechanics in this section, and a fellow who knows his Fords. This is Monroe Benson, another good mechanic, and the young fellow is Curtis Hurt, who helps up here at times. Then that is "Slim" over there, the tall colored fellow who tinkers about the place. The salesmen have just come in and we find they are "Sie" Foshee and Joe Higgins, two of the cracker jack salesmen of the county. I believe we have met all the people with this Ford place, so we'll move on across the street.

* * *

This is the Standard Oil Station, and is operated by two fellows, brothers, who are the best of pals, and good business fellows. They are Durwood Teel and J. L. Teel, and when it comes to service, they are just broke out with that. They are well known to many tourists, who have stopped at this nice little station for automobile service. They are known for their ability on washing and polishing cars, also.

* * *

We will visit a minute with Mrs. Nelson, who operates this nice little cafe here. We find Mrs. Nelson a very charming lady, and we meet her daughter, Miss Maxine Nelson. This little cafe is popular among the country folk who come in to Clanton and its plate lunches go a long way in creating this popularity, too.

* * *

Next place is the office of C. Reese Mullins, one of the oldest insurance places in Clanton. That is Mr. Mullins sitting back there at the desk, and we are pleasantly greeted by his son, Reese, also.

* * *

Howdy there, Mr. Turner. Here we are folks at the agency of International Harvester machinery, and this Mr. James O. Turner is the big cheese here, and knows his farm machinery. Mr. Turner is a most interesting fellow to talk too.

* * *

So we will just stop and visit for some time with Mr. Turner, and resume our tour next week.

Chilton County Is Hit By Second Tornado

ant Grove. Nine persons were in the home at the time the cyclone struck. These persons were G. M. Tubbs, Mrs. McCarty's father; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McCarty, five children, Dalton, Estelle, Austin, Audelle and Clestelle, and Olen Gibbons, nephew of Mr. McCarty. Miss Clestelle McCarty described the approach of the tornado as resembling a whirling black cloud. As it suddenly advanced from the southwest, she said, her father advised the family to remain indoors, as that, he said, was as safe a place as any. The tornado struck suddenly, demolishing the house and blowing members of the family considerable distances. Mr. Tubbs, who was killed, was blown 40 or 50 feet into the yard.

First news of the havoc around Lawley was believed to have been learned by a Maplesville physician who was in the neighborhood to attend a patient suffering fom appendicitis. J. J. Elliott, Selma, national Red Cross representative for Southeast Chilton County, with headquarters in Maplesville, and Pope-Payne, Maplesville Red Cross chairman, were contacted. They took immediate steps to furnish emergency relief, although Lawley was in the adjoining county.

Dies On Train

Mr. Elliott, Mr. Payne, Dr. J. J. DuBose and Dr. C. N. Parnell left for the devastated area. An M. & O. motor train to Montgomery was held in Lawley for a time and Walker Lawrence, Ella Katherine Lawrence and a brother-in-law of the Lawrences, accompanied by Mr. Payne, were put aboard to be sent to Montgomery hospitals. Mr. Lawrence died on the train. His daughter was described as suffering a broken leg and fractured skull and as being in a serious condition at the time the train left for Montgomery.

According to J. J. Elliott, in charge of Red Cross work in the section around Lawley and Maplesville, reported Monday that the homes of the following were demolished: Eugene Adams, Walker Lawrence, Perry Hicks, Willie Head and Dennis Lawley.

Ella Katherine Lawrence was rushed to Montgomery on a train, suffering from a fractured skull.

Eugene Adams, and his wife, Sadie, and two children were brought to the hospital in Clanton in an ambulance. The children are Vera, age 11, and James, age 15 years.

In a statement to a News reporter at the hospital in Clanton shortly after being brought there, Mr. Adams said they saw the twister coming and he gathered his family into the house and "asked the Lord to be with us," and in a few seconds the home was demolished, blowing them some distance from the place. He found his wife unconscious and his children dazed. Mr. Adams also stated that some relatives who had been visiting them had just left, and one man remarked he believed another tornado was coming that day. He said it struck Lawley about one-thirty Sunday afternoon.

The path swept by the twister Sunday afternoon just north of Thorsby, tore down telephone and power company lines, that had been erected last week following the first tornado. It went on into the Union Grove and Collins Chapel communities, two hard-hit places of last week.

Homes in that section as reported destroyed were those of Commie Collins, Wash Heflin, Perry Cleckler, Pete Headley, Phillip Gentry, Dalton Martin and Bud Paschal. Those reported injured there were a son of Perry Cleckler, and others. Many tents in those communities were wrecked.

At Randolph, west of Jemison, the Scott home on the George Freeman place was demolished, and the Ray home on the Cox place was torn down.

In the Macedonia Community, west of Jemison, and in Chilton County, the Ottman home and the homes of Henry Thacker, Carl McCarty, Lige Gore and Green Cofer were torn away. No one was reported injured there.

Reports from headquarters of the Red Cross at Clanton show that over fifty families have been affected by the storm of last Sunday. In these families there are over six hundred children, with the following approximate numbers in the following towns and their surroundings:

Maplesville, 150; Clanton, 140; Jemison, 135; Thorsby, 125; and in Lawley, 15.

A report covering up to last Friday, before the second twister did its damage, there were approximately one thousand people involved, 180 families, almost two hundred injured, over 140 brought to hospitals and over 140 homes destroyed or badly damaged.

The State Agricultural Department estimates the agricultural damage as $2,500,000, this figure embracing farm buildings, homes, livestock, supplies and implements. Chilton County was believed to have suffered the heaviest farm loss at $400,000.

The property damage was believed highest at Sylacauga, where it was estimated at $1,500,000, while Tuscaloosa County's loss was placed at $1,000,000.

INCUMBENTS TO FACE OPPOSIT'N IN MAY PRIMARY

Races Appear Certain In Fourth, Fifth And Sixth Districts

Three Alabama congressmen have opposition in the Democratic primary, according to an official list of names that will appear on the ballot to be voted on May 3. The list was furnished by Chairman Edmund W. Pettus, of the Alabama Democratic Executive Committee and contains the name of Thomas H. Maxwell, of Tuscaloosa, as an opponent of Congressman W. B. Oliver of the Sixth Alabama District.

Congressional races will take place in the fourth, where Lamar Jeffers, incumbent, will be opposed by Hunt Frasier; in the fifth where the contestants are Congressman L. L. Patterson, Miles C. Allgood, H. Burns Parker, of Heflin, and W. M. Rayburn, of Gadsden, and in the sixth where Congressman Oliver will be opposed by Mr. Maxwell.

In only one district in Alabama is there no opposition in the race for delegate to the Democratic national convention and that is the sixth where Emmett Hildreth and Jerome Fuller are the only aspirants. Nine candidates are seeking the two places in the 10th district while there are six candidates each in the third, seventh and ninth congressional districts.

PEDANTS ARE REBUKED

Teachers of English who cling to all ancient rules were given a thorough-going rebuke in a recent lecture by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, one of the greatest living authorities and editor of a leading dictionary.

Among other things, the doctor countenanced ending a sentence with a preposition, approved the split infinitive, testified to the forcefulness of a moderate amount of slang, and otherwise played havoc with many pet traditions of the pedants.

The English language, like all others, is still in the making and will continue to grow. Spelling, pronunciation, grammar and everything pertaining to the language have undergone many modifications through the centuries. The rules and usages sanctioned by the best writers and speakers will always constitute the highest authority in any particular period.

It is important to learn the rules, but it is often as important to know when to break them for the sake of clairty and vigor of speech.

PILING ON THE BURDEN

Whatever form the new Federal tax measure shall finally take, it is a foregone conclusion that it will greatly increase the heavy burden already being borne by a long suffering public. In the meantime the wasteful spending by government departments, bureaus, commissions and other tax-eating agencies continues unabated.

A costly investigation of railroad valuations begun in 1913 is still going on, although the figures obtained during these years are now obsolete and worthless. An investigation of public utilities started more than four year ago is still far from complete, yet not the slightest benefit has come to the public as a result. The tragic waste of hundreds of millions by the Farm Board has brought no relief to the farmer. Millions of public documents containing alleged information and advice which nobody wants or reads have been issued at the expense of the taxpayers. Such examples of useless expenditures might be multiplied to illustrate why the tax burden must be piled higher and higher.

But there is revolt in the air. At last the public is awakening to the situation, and protests are being voiced in no uncertain terms. This applies to state and local costs of government as well as to national expenditures.

When the taxpayers become sufficiently aroused they may take steps to check this orgy of tax-spending by retiring to private life those legislators who are responsible for it. Only by this means can relief from excessive taxation be obtained.

News In Brief Form

In 1902 southern farmers planted 27,114,000 acres of cotton. In 1931 they planted 40,889,000 acres. During these thirty years acreage increases were made 17 times and reductions 13 times.

Grinding of roughages ordinarily fed to livestock is not necessary, and it is very poor economy to do so with feeds at as low prices as they are now, said Dr. R. S. Sugg, of the extension animal husbandry staff at Auburn.

Several state agricultural experiment stations have found that cottonseed meal in limited amount is an excellent feed for hogs. A combination of cottonseed meal and either fish meal or tankage is better than either fish meal or tankage alone.

Investigators have found that there are more than 130,000,000 cases of disabling illness in the United States each year, and about an equal number of cases in which the victims are not disabled. Much of this could be prevented with proper health education and medical care.

The United Fruit Company has lent the Colombian national government $500,000. A report of it says that "The company will retain the national banana export tax of three cents a bunch to amortize the loan, with 6 per cent annual interest. On the basis of the present rate of banana exports, amortization will be complete in four years, it is estimated. . . ."

Alabama women and girls who were members of home demonstration clubs last year canned for winter use 1,903,637 quarts of fruits, vegetables, and meats; saved by home sewing and dry cleaning $57,517.80; consumed vegetables worth $308,098.00, poultry worth $449,881.20, and dairy products worth $396,192.00, and sold farm homes food products for $1,104,646.36.

RUMOR OF THIRD STORM ADDS NEW FEAR TO WOES

Horror Of Impending Doom Spreads Quickly Over Chilton County; Preparations For Another Tornado Made Before Report Proves False

As darkness fell Sunday night, inhabitants of the storm-wracked sections of Chilton County were gripped in a new fear. The horror of an impending and unescapable doom seized them. From somewhere word had been spread that still a third and more violent tornado would strike the community at 1 a.m. Monday.

Less than a week ago the people of this district had gone through a night of terror. A night during which the wind had taken a heavy toll of life. These people had heard the death cries of their kinfolk and neighbors during the first tornado. They had seen the wounded and the dying when day broke last Tuesday. They had lived through the destruction of their homes and barns.

The first scars had been removed, and reconstruction was under way when the second tornado hit them Easter Sunday. They were dazed, shaken. The rumor spread over the countryside almost as swiftly as the tornado itself had done.

Panic-Stricken

The survivors of two tornadoes became panic-stricken. They gathered in frightened groups to discuss the fearful storm that was coming. It was to be worse than any of the others, they had heard. They had better get ready, they said.

In their shaken condition, many of them left the countryside and gathered in Jemison or Thorsby to await destruction there. The thought that they would escape this third death blow, never seemed to occur. It was the end, they said.

Many of these went to whatever churches were left. Impromptu services were started. Soon others gathered, and the churches were filled and prayers were said and resaid while they waited for the wind to strike.

Smaller groups gathered in houses, and they, too, held services.

Dig Shallow Trenches

Still others dug trenches. Men and women with spades or any other implement they could obtain hurriedly dug shallow trenches to lie in when the wind struck.

News of what was going on reached headquarters of the Red Cross in Clanton. Forces were organized quickly, and every member of the organization who was not already on duty was called out and sent into the district.

Red Cross workers went from one group to another reassuring, talking to them, rebuilding morale. Until early Monday the workers of the Red Cross drove over the countryside, hunting out groups and individuals and bringing the relief of assurance that another storm was not coming. Morale was restored.

Practically all over Chilton County there were storm pits being dug into hillsides, or into level ground near homes. This was not only taking place in the areas already suffering from the tornado, but in other sections. In many of the cases, the pits were being dug even before work of reconstructing the homes was started.

The people have been asked to pay little attention to these false reports of coming tornadoes, and wait until some official warning is issued to them.

BEAUTY A TOWN ASSET

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live, it is evident to any observer that the American people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages and in rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

New houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists, and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anywhere near equal.

Therefore, it behooves the authorities of any community as well as each individual citizen, to make the most of their opportunities for improving the appearance of the place in which they live. Beauty and cleanliness are among a town's best assets.

Thorsby Institute News

Thorsby Institute expects to close May 26—earlier than cheduled in the catalog. Instead of having the Annual April 1 picnic the school voted to give the money which would have been used for provisions to the sufferers from the tornado. In order to make up time because of closing school earlier school will be in session April 1 and on Saturdays April 2, 16, 30. The Saturday session will omit chapel and begin at 8:30 and run one session.

Saturday night the Dormitory folks and the Sutlives had an Easter Egg Hunt near the Sutlives' home. After this a picnic supper was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hussey of Elmwood, Illinois called on Miss Jenkins Saturday night. Mrs. Hussey was in the same European party last summer in which Miss Jenkins was.

Miss Weiss and Miss Shaw from the First Presbyterian Church, Montgomery, brought Monday afternoon to the Institute supplies for the sufferers. They kindly took the things to the Relief Office.

The Christian Conference will not be held this year. It was to have been held last week.

April 9 the last open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be given. A play by the Freshman and Sophomore classes will be presented.

Zone Meeting At Methodist Church Here, 29th

The Zone Meeting of the Methodist church, composed of Mill Brook, Speigner, Deatsville, Marbury, Verbena and Clanton, met with the Methodist church in Clanton on Tuesday at 10:30 A. M. Mrs. J. Price Chapman, zone leader, presided and led the conference in its study of Mission needs and plans. A special feature of the morning session was a spiritual life address given by Mrs. Kendrick of Selma and a solo by Mrs. N. B. McLeod of Selma. The three circles of the local society served a delicious dinner at the noon hour. Special numbers were rendered by Mesdames McLeod and Moseley of Selma at the noon hour. About fifty ladies enjoyed the hospitality of the local Society.

In the afternoon session there was a study of the work of the society in its local relation to the congregations, and much information was secured so as to bring each organization up to standard requirements. Mrs. D. W. Haskew was asked to report the work outlined by the conference session held at Enterprise, Ala., the latter part of February.

EARLY CONSERVATION

There has been a great deal of attention given to conservation of natural resources during the past few years, and many may be under the impression that this movement is comparatively new. But such is not the case.

Someone has discovered in the records of the Massachusetts Colony a court order 300 years old, which directed the conservation of timber. This order, dated March 29, 1626, decreed as follows:

"That for the preventing of inconveniences as do and may befall the plantation by the want of timber, that no man of what conditions soever sell or transport any manner of works or frames for howses, planks, boards, shalops, boats, canoes or what so ever may tende to the destruction of timber aforesaid; how little so ever the quantities be; without the consent, approbation, and liking of the Governour and Counsell."

Commenting upon this display of foresight by the early settlers of the Massachusetts Colony, The Atlanta Georgian says: "The early law may seem to have been entirely uncalled for, but the framers were looking ahead decades and centuries. They were right, as time has proved, but their descendants forgot the warning thus uttered by the fathers, and little by little wastage took the place of careful use. Today great stretches of the country lie denuded of their forests. Every year there are felled enough trees to cover an area equal to all of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey combined."

Many government and private agencies are striving to check this depletion of our timber, and every citizen should lend his whole hearted support to the conservation movement. We should emulate the spirit of the pioneers of 300 years ago.

TRAP SHOOTING AT SEA

Officials of steamship companies catering to tourist travel continually tax their ingenuity to provide entertainment for their pasengers on long voyages. Concerts, dancing, theatricals, deck golf and many other amusements have long been commonplace on shipboard.

A recent innovation which has become one of the popular sports for passengers enjoying vacation cruises to Central and South America on Grace Line ships is trap shooting. Double barrel shotguns, clay pigeons and traps have been added to the equipment of the larger vessels of the Santa fleet, and with apparatus rigged up on deck at the ship's stern, passengers may bang away at the clay pigeons as they whirl out over the water. Women voyagers are quite as enthusiastic over the sport as the men, and turn in some excellent scores, it is said.

Cruises to Latin-America have attracted many vacationists this season, and arrangements for these voyages have been facilitated for inland people by making it possible for them to buy round trip tickets from railroad agents in their own home towns.

Some wag has suggested that Christopher Columbus originated the solgan "See America First." However that may be, an increasing number of Americans appear to be adopting the idea.

Can Chilton County Afford To Lose $22,505

Can Chilton County afford to lose $22,505 on her cotton crop? But it would have cost the county at least this much in 1931 if 35% to 40% had been shorter than 7-8 as was the case in 1930 and 1929. At the five-year average discount for 3-4 and 13-16-inch cotton on central cotton markets this loss would reach a total of more than $41,850.

The cotton crop of this county showed much improvement in 1931 over the past two years. The county's reputation for large lots of good staple cotton is being reestablished; 16,000 bushels of good D.P.L. 4-8 seed are available for planting purposes in this county.

Every farmer having short varieties taking full advantage of the present opportunity to get good seed at a very low cost will mean reestablishing this county's reputation for good cotton and save farmers from heavy penalties such as were suffered in 1929 and in 1930 because of 3-4 and 13-16-inch staple.

How To Get Seed

Good seed can be bought at a very low price.

In some instances two to three bushels of ordinary seed can be swapped for a bushel of D.P.L. 4-8.

Others are swapping some surplus corn and hay for D.P.L. 4-8.

Don't take a chance on losing two to five dollars per bale by growing 3-4 and 13-16-inch cotton. Play safe. Buy or swap for D.P.L. 4-8.

"Make Chilton County Famous for Good Cotton."

SINGING AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Though the weather was bad there was a large crowd at the annual singing Sunday. The singing was called to order about 10:30 by Prof. L. T. Grant, who sang one song. Officers were then elected for the day. L. T. Grant was elected chairman, Gladys Wilson secretary and a committee consisting of W. M. Devaughn, W. H. Wilson and J. B. Hammonds was elected for making out the program for the day.

The following directors sang two songs each: Dr. J. B. Williams, Everett Devaughn, J. B. Hammonds, W. M. Devaughn, O. L. Devaughn, C. F. Hull, John M. Dye, and Prof. Shirley from Birmingham. This brought them to the noon hour. A bountiful dinner was spread and everybody enjoyed it.

About one o'clock the singers were called back by the chairman who sang one song. The singers for the afternoon were Lee J. Grant, N. A. Smith, O. L. Devaughn, John M. Dye, J. B. Hammonds, C. F. Hull and W. M. Devaughn. Several quartets were arranged in the afternoon by Prof. W. M. Devaughn, whihc wee greatly enjoyed by all. Pianists for the day were Misses Bertie Grant and Violet Hammonds, Prof. John M. Dye and C. F. Hull.

The singing was fine though there was not as many present as there usually is. Hope everybody enjoyed themselves and we invite you back to all our singings.

GLADYS WILLIAMS.

Mrs. Winifred Smith of Cdapton, Eng., forgave Frederick Curl for throwing acid on her, but was forced to give testimony that sent him to jail for three years.

HIDDEN MONEY POPS OUT

"The Queen of the Hoarders" has stepped down off her throne, according to a news dispatch from Chicago. A woman went into a store there, took a fat roll of money from the deepest corner of her purse, counted off 99 one-dollar bills and ordered a washing machine delivered to her home.

And all of the 99 bills were the old time big ones. So, if she was not the leader of the tin can-coffee pot-mantel clock "depositors" in this country, who was, or is?

The nation wide drive to bring money out of hiding is gaining force everywhere. Families are beginning to realize that hidden money does no one any good. It they can find means to economize by spending, it is wise and helpful to spend, because dollars put into circulation keep moving and make conditions better wherever they go.

As fast as people come to realize that they help no one, not even themselves, by keeping their money to themselves, more and more of them will imitate this Chicago woman, put money into useful labor, time and money-savers like she did.

How To Feed Family At Low Cost Is Told

Auburn, Ala., March 28.—For $8.94 per week a family of five members may be well fed; and, if they have a good garden and fruits this amount may be substantially reduced.

Authority for the above statement is Miss Helen Kennedy, extension nutritionist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. After making it she followed with statements as to how it should be done.

Each member of the family, she continued, should have plenty of milk. The standard is one quart per child and one pint per adult. Add to this 5 servings of vegetables and fruits including a leafy and a raw fruit or vegetable; one or more servings of whole grain cereal or bread; two servings of eggs, meats, cheese or other protein foods; and 6 to 8 glasses of water.

A market sufficient to feed a family of five for a week is given by Miss Kennedy. It includes: 20 to 24 pounds cereals, $.85; 28 quarts milk, $3.22; 6 to 8 pounds meat, fish, eggs or cheese $1.62; 35 to 40 pounds vegetables and fruits, $2.18. (If supplied from home garden this cost may be eliminated.); 3 to 4 pounds fats, $.46; sugar and syrup, $.42; 1 pound coffee, $.19.

A total of $8.94 is sufficient to keep the family in good health. If a choice must be made between fully satisfying the appetite with a one-sided diet, such as bread, meat, and syrup, or using samller amount of well-balanced foods, smaller amount of well-balanced foods, and energy are conserved, Miss Kennedy said.

Because her husband was a "crank," Mrs. Anna Glenning of Chicago was released when arraigned on a charge of attempting to murder her baby.

Words are little seeds we sow,
The garden someone's mind;
If they are to beauty grow,
Oh, then let them be kind.

Words oft' grow to bloom of hate,
Or bring blessings from above,
Before we speak then hesitate
And speak but words of love!

Words like seeds we gently sow,
Will blossom thru the years,
Only good from good will grow,
So let's sow smiles, not tears!

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932 this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed______ per cent for the year (or years)__________, for the purpose or purposes of____________," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed ______per cent for the year (or years)__________, for the purpose or purposes of ____________." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Prop No. 4.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice is of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> "ARTICLE —. The Legislature may form or provide for the formation of Forestry Districts in Alabama for the promotion of reforestation and the development and protection of growing timber and, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining such Districts, may authorize and provide for the collection of an acreage tax not to exceed five cents per acre to be levied and collected on the lands comprising such Districts. This Article shall be retroactive as to legislation in accordance with its provisions enacted by the Legislature of 1931."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Why Grow One Variety Cotton In Community?

The farmers of a community patronizing the same gin will find it profitable over a period of years to cooperate in adopting only one good variety of cotton having a staple length of 15-16 to 1 inch.

1. By cooperating in growing only one good variety, crossing of varieties in the fields by insects is prevented.

2. All farmers growing the same variety prevents mixing of seed at the gins.

3. Farmers growing a better staple variety in a one-variety community do not suffer heavy penalty because their good cotton is plated with 3-4 and 13-16 cotton that is ginned just ahead of their bales.

4. The ginner by having large quantities of the same kind of cotton can adjust his machinery for this particuler kind of cotton and thereby do a more satisfactory job of ginning.

5. A community adopting one variety usually arranges with a few farmers whose lands are isolated from other varieties of cotton to be stock seed breeders. These stock breeders can obtain seed of better varieties which the experiment station finds and multiply these for the entire community at the cost of oil mill seed and enough extra to pay for the extra trouble involved.

Therefore, an entire community can be changed from one variety to another within two years without farmers having to send out of the state for high priced seed.

6. Large quantities of good cotton attracts the trade and gives the community a reputation. If many varieties are grown there is such a great variation in staple length that the cotton trade is forced to discount the cotton heavily.

As farmers of Chilton County why not grow one good variety of cotton. Fifteen to twenty different varieties of cotton being grown in this county means ununiform cotton.

Yours very truly,
C. E. STAPP, County Agent.

Second Tornado In Week Strikes State

ers to tour the new storm area and to set up needed emergency relief work.

The first check in the Jordan Lake section showed that the storm struck several fishing camps and dipped into Jordan Lake, where a geyser-like spray of water spouted into the air and showered over, and area of about 100 yards.

Hail and wind also were reported from Alexander City and Childersburg.

Heavy Winds Reported

Montgomery, Selma, Tuscaloosa, Sylacauga and Marion reported heavy winds in those districts, but the winds were not believed of sufficient intensity to cause appreciable damage.

Tuscaloosa, across the Warrior River from Northport, where 33 persons were killed in Monday's tornado, reported some trees blown down and many plate glass windows shattered.

DR. GRAGG TELLS ABOUT OPENING HOSPITAL HERE

Explains His Views Due To Recent Order To Close Clanton's Hospital

Following is a letter from Dr. V. J. Gragg, of Clanton, who, in the face of the greatest emergency and disaster known to Chilton County, acted upon his own opinion, and reopened the hospital in Clanton, when dead and injured persons were being brought in from the tornado Monday of last week:

March 28, 1932.

Dear Editor:

Please allow me a little space for an explanation to the directors and stockholders of the Central Alabama Hospital regarding opening the hospital for the storm sufferers. As you will recall the hospital was closed March 20th by order of the directors for reasons explained in my statement two weeks ago. Our nurses were gone, our equipment had all been packed up and nothing was ready to receive patients, but in the late afternoon of the following day the worst wind storm that has ever visited this section, so far as we know, swept through this and adjoining counties, leaving many killed and many more wounded.

I felt it my duty to suffering humanity to re-open the hospital, but had no opportunity to communicate with directors or stockholders; so acted on my own initiative and without hope of fee or reward.

More than sixty-five wounded were rushed to the hospital during the night. Citizens and officials came to our assistance with clothing, bedding and food. They spared not anything. All through the night many residents of Clanton and surrounding communities worked with all their might. Cots were brought in, quilts, linens, etc., were supplied from stores and homes. Some laymen even did dressings and with their help and that of a few trained nurses, Dr. Marcus and myself dressed about sixty-five wounded who had been brought in from along the path of the storm from West of Maplesville to Columbiana. In the early morning mai doctors and nurses from Birmingham, Montgomery, Selma and other points came in and began a general clean-up that lasted all day. The wonderful work of our officials and citizens was so sacrificing and so general that it would be useless to undertake mentioning names. However, I will mention that the greater portion of these patients were brought in by the Martin Ambulance service for which, I understand, no charge whatever was made. If the directors or stockholders feel that I did wrong in re-opening for this emergency, only, I would be glad to hear their view in person and explain to them my feeling in the matter.

Sincerely,
V. J. GRAGG, President,
Central Alabama Hospital.

ANNUAL SPRING TOURNAMENT OF GOLF IS HERE

Qualifying Rounds Are Being Played This Week With Much Concentration

Who will be the champion golfer of Clanton this year? That is the question in the minds of the members of the Clanton Golf Club, and golf fans of this section.

Also, that question will soon be answered as the annual spring golf tournament of Clanton will soon be underway and interest is already aroused.

The qualifying rounds of the tournament are being played off this week on the local course, just south of town. The match plays will be held next Sunday, it was stated.

At present it looks like there will be several golfers who will make a sharp run for the place as champion, which was won last year by Dr. Joe Edgar. With days and days of practice, which was needed by some, there are more in line for the first place this time than before. "Dubb" Huddleston has been talked about in golf circles regarding his possibilities of championship, and then Raymond Smith has been doing some good golfing lately it is reported, while the names of Grady Reynolds and Claude Reynolds are being heard mentioned as possible champions. R. J. Sumner, one of the older heads on golf could possibly come out in the limelight for the championship, and Edgar will probably give the possible ones some close figures, unless he has dropped some since winning the championship last time.

Tiffin-Klinner Shows Splendid Spirit Here

Among the many fine acts showing splendid spirit in the work of relief for those families who have been hard hit by the tornadoes sweeping through this county recently, is one from a local concern, the Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company.

In last week's issue of this newspaper this concern advertised that they were making special discounts to storm sufferers on furniture, and that all accounts against those whose homes and furniture were demolished in the storm would be marked off their books. This concern is also working in cooperation with the Red Cross in aiding stricken families to purchase furniture at an extremely low price.

Miss Annie Lou Scarborough of Notasulga, was the guest of her sister, Miss Madge Scarborough, last Sunday.

"THE BIG SHOT" COMING SOON TO WADESONIAN

Picture Next Monday, Tuesday Is Fine For Young As Well As Old

"The Big Shot" Eddie Quillan's latest RKO Pathe starring vehicle which is announced as the next attraction at the Wadesonian Theatre, brings to the talking screen something new in film entertainment ideas, next Monday and Tuesday.

The new idea is that of placing a film story against the colorful background of the great American institution, the auto camp, dear to the hearts of millions who choke the nation's highways in pursuit of business and pleasure.

Against this background revolves Eddie Quillan's latest starring story for RKO Pathe a story chock full of comedy and drama and one which is bound to please every member of the family because of its downright humanness.

Quillan is a small town boy with big ideas. He is also gullible; so much so, in fact, that he attempts to enter the world of Big Business by purchasing an auto camp without first examining the property. There follow troubles galore. And to make matters worse his sweetheart throws him down flat without the benefit of an explanation. How Quillan puts the auto camp on a paying basis and wins his sweetheart, makes for a photoplay which undoubtedly will take its place among the season's best. The climax is exceptionally thrilling.

New Ford Displayed At Ford Place Here

It's here, folks, the new eight cylinder Ford, and is being shown at the showrooms of Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers, who make this announcement in this issue of the News.

The Ford that is on display at Clanton Motors is of the eight cylinder V-Type, the newest thing in Fords. Representatives of Clanton Motors are thoroughly acquainted with the new car and its many outstanding features. They will be on the floor at the showrooms at all times to explain to visitors about this new car, prices of which can be found in the large ad appearing in this issue.

For months, the entire nation has been watching for this new car and Clanton is among the first places to show one.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE TUESDAY

High Schools Of County To End Term Two Weeks Ahead Of Time

The closing date of all elementary schools of Chilton County is set as Tuesday, April 12th, according to information from the office of the superintendent of education this week. This includes the Clanton Grammar School.

This date is approximately one month earlier than the usual closing date of elementary schools in the county, it was stated. Closing exercises are to be held right away.

The high schools of the county will only close two weeks earlier than their regular closing date, it was stated, and this date is set as May 10th.

More Funds Needed In Relief Work Here

Relief Work Well Underway, Red Cross Reports, But Contributions Have Slowed Up And More Is Needed For Rehabilitation

Work of aiding stricken families in the storm areas in Chilton County is going forward, according to the Red Cross Headquarters at Clanton, where reports from the other three stations, Jemison, Thorsby and Maplesville come in.

At present the emergency relief work is almost completed, Mrs. Vasilike Foster, Area Director of the Red Cross, states, and now the work of seeing that the families in the stricken areas are receiving food, clothing and shelter, properly, is being carried on.

During the past week there were quantities of food and clothing sent into this county for this relief work, but there is a shortage of money with which to furnish the people with homes and other necessary household and farm furnishings. A call is sent out for more funds and committees have been appointed to look after this. A list of these committees will be found in another article in this issue.

All monies sent to this relief fund are used in this section and a report from C. E. Stapp, general chairman of Red Cross Relief in Chilton County, stated that at present they have gone over the amount already contributed.

Each case is recorded at headquarters, and thoroughly investigated by case workers, before any action is taken for relief, and these cases are turned over to a committee composed of men who are acquainted with this work, and residents of this county. Through this method, it is assured that cases needing help will receive it, and those not needing it will not be considered. The case workers in this section are as follows: Mrs. C. E. Stapp, Clanton territory; Miss Louella Jones, Maplesville territory; Miss Alta Laird, Thorsby territory and Miss Mildred Wald, Jemison territory.

Mr. Stapp stated that practically all families affected by the storms are farming families and the farming season is now open. Crops should be started and these farmers need help to start their crops and raise food for the coming months.

Many of the families will be given homes that they can make out with, provided their case warrants this ac-

Honored At Recent Meeting Of A. E. A.

EARLE THOMAS

Mr. Thomas was elected president of the Alabama Vocational Agriculture Association for 1932-33, at the recent meeting of the Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham. This is one of the highest honors the fellow workers of Mr. Thomas could bestow upon him. He is vocational agriculture teacher at the Isabella High School, west of Clanton, and was recently elected to succeed himself in that position by the local county board of education.

REPORT OF ARRESTS FROM SHERIFF'S OFFICE HERE

Only five arrests were reported from the sheriff's office here during the past week. One for trespassing, two for violation of the prohibition law and two for assault and battery.

HANCE ALRED CONFINED TO HIS BED AT HIS HOME HERE

A familiar figure in Clanton is being missed this week, and that is J. Hance Alred, of Alred Drug Company. Mr. Alred is confined to his bed at his home with a severe cold.

CHILTON COUNTY IS COMING BACK

(AN EDITORIAL)

As far back as the oldest of the old timers of Chilton County can remember, never has this county been through such a terrible unavoidable experience as befell it on the night of Monday, March 21st, and Sunday afternoon, March 27th, when tornadoes raked through some of its best communities, killing and destroying.

The vastness of this catastrophe was not fully realized immediately after it occurred, but within a few days, it could be seen on the faces of the people of the county. With over fifty persons dead in less than a week, and hundreds thrown without homes, food or clothing, the county was put in a state of serious thoughtfulness.

But, despite all this and the fact that Chilton has never been through anything like it before, the people rose immediately to the emergency, and comments from persons who are in a position to know, this emergency was handled in a most efficient manner in a very short time. This was due, they say, to the willingness of the more fortunate people of the county to help when and where they could, from the first night of horror up to date, and a continuance of this is assured.

It would be very difficult to place credit and praise on those persons who singled themselves out during the emergency calls for aid and in making proper arrangements for the care of the stricken families, as there are many who unselfishly left their daily duties and gave of their time to this cause.

It is this spirit that prompts this newspaper to attempt to speak its praise for the people of Chilton County in handling such an emergency. It is this spirit that is bringing Chilton County back out of the throes of a terrible calamity, and causing it to hold its place as the best county in the State.

However, merely because the situation is well in hand and things are apparently cleared up from the storm, does not mean that no more aid is needed. Quite on the contrary. There are 263 injured people of Chilton County, some of whom may die as a result of their injuries in the storms, and many of whom are maimed for life. There are 274 families in the county affected by the storms, many needing help now. Thee were 151 homes destroyed and many damaged in the county.

These people are going to need help for many months to come and this help will have to come from the more fortunate people. Crops must be made and the time is right at hand for this to be started, and is a sure way of aiding the farmer to aid himself. Heed this call for aid as best you can.

Rumors have it that monies turned into the relief fund of this county do not stay here. That statement is not true, as all monies turned into the relief fund of this county will be used in relief work in this county, every cent of it and then some.

The Red Cross Workers active in this section are not being paid from the local relief funds, according to a statement from headquarters. They are national workers and are being paid from national funds.

Kiwanis Club Hears Splendid Speaker Here

Members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, and their guests were given a rare treat last Thursday at the regular weekly luncheon when Dr. Thomas, a representative of the Commonwealth Southern Co., spoke to them.

Today's program will be in charge of the Membership Committee, according to C. E. Stapp, secretary, and a discussion of the meeting of the Board of Directors which was held last Monday night at the attractive country home of Earle Thomas.

The program of work of the Clanton Kiwanis Club is growing and with the coming of spring weather, much activity is in store for the members.

4-H CLUB BOYS GATHER HERE LAST FRIDAY

Over Four Hundred Future Farmers Of County Get Encouraging Talks

It was a rare privilege to look in upon the meeting of the 4-H club of Chilton county on Friday last. Between four and five hundred boys were crowded into the Court House auditorium, and C. E. Stapp was master of ceremonies. Promptly at 9:30 the meeting was called to order, and the boys sang, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Rev. D. W. Haskew conducted the devotional and spoke to the Club boys on the need of farmers and better farmers.

C. E. Stapp recognized Rev. Jim Nelson, Chilton County' oldest citizen, in

TEACHERS ARE SELECTED FOR COMING TERM

Three Principals And Others Are Named at Meeting of Board Here Friday

The Chilton County Board of Education met in regular session here last Friday and among the many matters attended to was the selection of three school principals and three vocational teachers and elementary supervisor.

The principals named were Prof. W. C. DuBose, Verbena High School; Prof. J. A. Peterson, Jemison High School; and Prof. J. D. Griffin, Isabella High School. All these men will succeed themselves as principals of these schools. Prof. DuBose has served one term at Verbena, while Peterson and Griffin have several years of splendid service behind them at their respective schools. DuBose, since coming to this county as a principal of one of the finest schools in the county, has made many friends and his past term shows his interest.

The vocational teachers at these schools, as selected Friday are Prof. J. P. Montgomery, Jemison High School; Prof. Earle Thomas, Isabella High School, Miss Leacy Newell at Jemison High School and Miss Bertha Dennis at Isabella. All these will succeed themselves and have a fine record of work behind them at these schools.

Miss Madge Scarborough who has served in Chilton County for sometime as elementary supervisor was selected again to serve the coming year in the same capacity, and she too, has built up a splendid record of service and work since coming to this county.

At the next meeting of the county board of education, other teachers are to be selected, it was stated.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH OF FINE BABY BOY LAST SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Duncan, (U. L. Jones) of Birmingham, have announced the arrival of a fine baby boy on last Saturday, April 2nd. The youngster's name will be Lloyd, Jr. This item of news will be of much interest to the people of Clanton, as Mrs. Duncan is well known here.

Clanton had a prominent visitor last Friday in the person of Hugh Comer of Sylacauga. Mr. Comer is a son of the dstinguished B. B. Comer, Governor of Alabama a number of years ago.

MILLER TAKES TORNADO RELIEF PLEA TO PEOPLE

Issues Direct Appeal For The Storm Sufferers; Says U.S. Aid Insufficient

Declaring that Congressional relief, if obtained, would be inadequate for the needs of the State, Gov. Miller issued a direct appeal to the people of Alabama on behalf of storm sufferers. He asked that contributions be sent either to the nearest Red Cross chapter or to C. H. McFarland, Red Cross director for Alabama, with offices at 420 Comer Building, Birmingham

Attached to the Governor's appeal was an estimate of storm damage based on a survey by Mr. McFarland the Red Cross official reported 270 persons killed, 1,807 injured, 2,641 families affected, 988 homes destroyed, 816 other buildings destroyed, 1,446 homes damaged, 935 other buildings damaged, and 6,929 persons being fed.

The report added that 10,218 persons had received emergency aid and estimated that 3,883 would require food during the next two weeks.

Coincident with Gov. Miller's appeal, it was announced by National Red Cross headquarters at Washington that an additional $25,000 had been appropriated for relief work in Alabama, bringing the total sum to be applied here to $50,000. In his memorandum to the Governor, Mr. McFarland estimated voluntary subscriptions at $40,000. He ventured a tentative estimate that $250,000 would be required for

Child Drowns When Family Flees Storm

One of the most touching stories reaching Clanton last week was that of the death of Herschel Bowles, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Bowles, of near the Enterprise Community of this county.

Last Wednesday night when the wind was increasing and the weather had the appearance of another tornado, Mr. Bowles and his family, left their home and sought safety in a nearby ditch, according to the story given this newspaper. After the wind had subsided somewhat, they were making their way back to their home, and missed Herschel. A search was immediately started and his body was found some distance from where the family had been in the ditch. Drowning was said to be the cause of his death.

Funeral services were held Friday at Pleasant Hill, with the Rev. J. H. Limbrick conducting. Martin of Clanton was in charge.

No. 6

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932. this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed______ per cent for the year (or years)________, for the purpose or purposes of__________.' and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed______per cent for the year (or years)________, for the purpose or purposes of__________.' The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

LETTER OF THANKS

Editor, Chilton County News:

Please allow me space in your paper to try to express our thanks to the Red Cross and to all who have helped us in any way since the tornado which came Monday, March 21, and destroyed our home and almost complete furnishings of it. Also all our out buildings were blown down and mostly destroyed. We have received through the Red Cross a pretty fair supply of clothes for which we are more than thankful. Some things were given us by friends for which we are very grateful. We also want to thank the good neighbors for their assistance in helping us to get our buildings back up, of course they are not finished yet, but we have faith to believe they will be finished. And we have practically no furniture, but we are not worrying about that because the Lord told us that if you done His will that we would not suffer, and that He would be with us until the end of the world.

I believe these troubles are sent upon the world because of the sins of the world. I believe they are sent upon the Christians to try our faith, and we are thankful to say that our faith has been increased. The Lord is going to show the world that "He is Lord of Lords and King of Kings." And people must repent or else ignore a fair warning.

Owl's Patrol

Our patrol went to Lay Dam fishing last Tuesday in Sidney's Model "T" Ford. She would coast down hill, but we would push up hill. We fished here and there until 11:30 o'clock, and we started to cook dinner. We were cooking on top of a long hill. While we were cooking someone put a dead fish on Wade Alford and Dan Sanford's hook. Then they called them. They ran all the way down the hill. They nearly had a fit when they saw the dead fish, but after all it was a good joke to see them climb the hill again.

After dinner we went above the dam and borrowed some boats to go fishing, but we did not do much fishing. Sidney and Herbert were rocking the boat and a crazy trout jumped into the boat.

We visited the Lay Dam Scout's patrol room. They have a good many arrow heads. They have a wireless rigged up. We rambled around the power house the rest of the evening and got the lizzie cranked and came home. Owl's patrol signs off till next week.

The Revolt of the Taxpayers

From all over the country we read and hear reports of a rising tide of protest against the high cost of government.

National, State, County, School and Local taxes have grown in the past dozen years until the combined burden is more than most taxpayers can bear even in normal times. And in these times of reduced incomes and poor business the tax burden has become intolerable.

Congress is trying to "balance the budget" by imposing more and higher taxes. Doubtless there will be some show of reducing government expenditures, but so far we have heard very little about those. It seems to us that should be the first point of attack, not the last. This country got along very well for a hundred years and more without trying to regulate everybody's business and teach everybody how to live. We think there are hundreds of millions of dollars literally wasted every year by Federal bureaus which never would be missed if they were abolished entirely.

The same is true of State governments and, to perhaps even a greater degree, of most county governments. It is characteristically American, and something in which we take pride, that as a people we all want the best of everything. We want the best possible roads, the best possible schools, the most mgnificent public buildings, the finest parks, and all that. But haven't we been trying to get these things too fast, without counting the cost, without finding out first where the money is coming from? We think that is the principal trouble with the United States today?

The inevitable result of this orgy of public spending is to stir up widespread discontent, which may easily result in an actual revolt on the part of taxpayers. Too much of the tax burden is laid upon land and its improvements, not enough upon the individuals, groups and enterprises directly benefitted by specific expenditures of public funds.

What this country needs right now is to cut all governmental expenses squarely in half—Federal, State, County and Local. That might cause some temporary embarrassment, but it would be only temporary. Relieved from half of the tax burden, property of all kinds would earn more for its owners, capital would be freer to go into productive enterprises, men and women would get their jobs back, prosperity would return speedily.

We would like to see some real leader arise who would adopt for his political slogan: "Cut taxes in half!" He could be elected to any office to which he might aspire, in the present temper of the American people.

o-o-o-o

Taxes, Taxes, Taxes

What can a fellow do? When time comes for the government to raise more money, the first thing someone suggests is to raise more taxes.

We don't mean to be growling, but just think that there is a waste of money somewhere, and we know that so far as the tax payer is concerned, he is not getting any of it. Must be going somewhere that it is not needed, or at least, it is not going to places where it is needed. Even in times when a community really needs financial relief, the citizens of that community and other places have to dig down into their pockets to help out, and still they say taxes. We wonder where it will end,—or maybe the voters can make a change in office holders who are responsible for this outrage in taxes.

Facts of Railroad Operation

The outstanding features of railroad operation in 1931 were recently summarized by Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, Director, Bureau of Railway Economics. These facts, among others, were produced:

The level of freight movement in 1931 was down to that of 1921.

Total passenger-miles were less than any year since 1904.

Total operating revenues were 21 per cent below 1930, and were lower than in any previous year since 1917.

Net railway operating income was 40 per cent under 1930.

Rate of return on railway investment was 1.98 per cent, as compared with 3.36 per cent and 4.84 per cent in 1930 and 1929, respectively.

The index of railway efficiency was higher than in any year from 1920 to 1929, inclusive, and five factors of railway performance made new records during the year.

To get the full force of these facts, it should be remembered that the railroads were prevented from making an adequate return on investment even during years of inflated prosperity. Thus, they are in a very different position from industries which, while suffering bad times now, made large profits during good years. The relation of railroad taxes to earnings steadily rises and more and more railroad business goes to competing transport agencies, some subsidized by the government, and all either unregulated or half regulated.

Even in the face of adversity the rails were able to make new records in efficiency and service to the public. But unless something is done to relieve the lines of their unfair burdens they will not be able to do this much longer. The inevitable result will be a drop in the standard of service and severe railroad retrenchment—and the public will, in the long run, be the one to suffer when that happens.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"Anybody can cut prices, but it takes brains to make a better article."
—Philip D. Armour.

And with emphasis on the above question, we will start to commence to begin with the proceeding of our tour round town this week.

* * *

We stopped last week at James O. Turner's place, and now, we will just tarry for a minute at the lunch stand of Mr. Esco, where you can get a good sandwich at a low price, and this is a popular place with young fellows too.

* * *

Now we will have to go up to the corner of Second Avenue and Sixth Street, (do you know where that is?) Upstairs in this building on the corner we find the office of the City Clerk, Claudie H. Pipes, and we will just sit down a minute and talk with Mr. Pipes. e tells us of the way they run things. He has a neat office there too.

* * *

Adjoining this office, folks, we come to the law offices of Omar Reynolds and Grady Reynolds, and here we find Miss Lona Thompson, the efficient secretary to these attorneys. These offices are well arranged and neatly kept, as you will notice. There is a splendid view from two sides of this building, from these offices and no doubt you are impressed with the cordial greeting we received.

* * *

Now, back down stairs, and into the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company, where F. Leo Thompson is the head knocker. Folks, this establishment is one of the many assets to the town of Clanton, and a business that the town should be proud of, and I do not hesitate in saying that. Mr. Thompson, with his father, has spent considerable time and money to make this laundry one of the best in this section of the state, and there is hardly anything they can't do when it comes to cleaning things. Mr. Thompson, we find, is a very likable fellow, and shows us through this large plant, and how they filter their water and cleaning fluid. You see, its real modernly equipped, and the employees of this place are up on their jobs too. There is Miss Lillian Thompson, who keeps the books, and Miss Edith Mae Thompson, and Mrs. Leo Thompson, Jack Armstrong and others who make up the personnel of this well conducted business.

Sorry to have to rush on, but we have some territory to cover this week, and we come to the store of Holcombe & Massey, a place where you can find odds and ends of furniture, and things you never dreamed of, all at low prices. Mr. Holcombe is a very obliging fellow, and so is Mr. Frank Massey. This is where Mr. W. W. Fox had his place of business.

* * *

Now here we are at the only exclusive furniture store in Clanton, the Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company, with Mr. J. B. Tiffin as manager, and a good one at that. Folks, Mr. Tiffin just recently engineered a scheme thru that will aid greatly the families in the storm areas of this section. Mr. Tiffin has several assistants here who are always anxious to serve the people when they can. You will notice the ads from this concern in the News real often.

* * *

Now we will stop down on the corner where we find Ed Carlton, one of Clanton's old reliable blacksmiths and mechanics. Mr. Carlton is well known throughout this section, and what he can't fix, just ain't any good anyhow. He ahs most any kind of tool to work with, an dif he hasn't he will make it.

* * *

Across the street there is the widely known Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc., the Chevrolet dealers in this county. This place gets its name from W. M. Polk, Sr., and George C. Polk, two prominent business men of Clanton, and both we find are very obliging in showing us through their show rooms where new Chevrolets are displayed, and also through their repair and parts department, both equipped and arranged in the most modern way. This place always employs good mechanics, and those who have been through the proper school of instruction, and of course they have an efficient office force that is in keeping wth their satisfactory manner of doing business with their customers.

Past the jail and the sheriff's home and to The Union-Banner office, where we are pleasantly greeted by Mack Wyatt, who invites us in and takes us into the printing plant where we meet his brother, Gene Wyatt, both likable fellows. Then there is Courtland Retherford and Hubert Ellison and Chester Mims. These fellows see that The Union-Banner is fixed up each week.

* * *

Next door is the Calloway Garage, where we find Spurgeon Calloway, one of the best known mechanics in Clanton, and he knows his automobiles all right, too.

* * *

Now we are at another of Clanton's cafes, operated by Mrs. Annie Huckabee, who has had several years experience in the cafe business. This is a nice little cafe and neatly kept. And so we come to a place where we have been already, and will walk around to another block, where the Nehi Bottling Company is located, near the News building, and here we run upon Mr. Horsley White, the chief Mogul of the Nehi place. Mr. White very obligingly shows us through this bottling plant and we are well impressed with the orderliness of the place.

* * *

Next door is where this fellow Walker is, the one you hear so much about his ability to fix wrecked automobiles, and paint them. This is H. L. Walker, and he really has a good reputation as an automobile fixer. You no doubt have seen some of his work, and anyone who knows anything about it will tell you it's good. You should know him.

* * *

And here's Joshua's pressing shop. Joshua is one of the old time colored pressing shop operators of Clanton, and ever since I can remember, he has been pressing clothes.

* * *

We reach another corner, and 'tis time to stop this week.

Miller Takes Tornado Relief Plea To People

emergency relief.

Praises Relief Work

Gov. Miller unreservedly praised the spirit with which relief work was undertaken by all agencies, but warned that Federal aid could not be depended upon entirely for rehabilitation. "This relief," he said, "if obtained, will be insufficient. Many will be, for want of security, unable to obtain such relief. Then, in such matters the Government from necessity acts slowly and cautiously."

Text of Gov. Miller's appeal follows:

"Within less than one week two tornadoes passed through Alabama, striking, here and there, death blows to persons and destruction to property. In the first nearly 300 lives were lost, persons injured numbered practically two thousand and the property damage went into the millions. In the second six or seven lives were lost, scores of persons were injured and the property loss went into thousands.

"The response, from all State agencies and departments, combined with individuals and the public, civil and religious organizations and the American Red Cross, was immediate, sympathetic and generous. All temporary necessities were promptly supplied. This assistance was wonderful and produced great and good results.

"This assistance should not stop here. The Federal Government, through our Senators and members of Congress has been requested to aid the owner in rehabilitating the destroyed property, with long loans of money bearing small interest, on approved security. This relief from Congress, if obtained, will be insufficient. Many will be, for want of security, unable to obtain such relief. Then in such matters the Government from necessity acts slowly and cautiously. The injured with or without property destroyed should be cared for and not permitted to suffer.

Up To Alabamians

"The Red Cross will continue its great and good service. It should not bear all of the future burden of the storms. Let those who are able and have subscribed and those who have not subscribed, make one more strong pull and give as you have been blessed to the Red Cross to aid in this time of great need.

"A personal visit to the injured and a view of the destroyed property prompts and persuades me of the necessity for this second call on your generosity.

"All contributions should be sent to the nearest Red Cross Chapter or to Hon. C. H. McFarland, Red Cross Director of Alabama, Room 420, Comer Building, Birmingham. All donations from Alabamians will be used in this State."

Need Put At $250,000

In his note to the Governor, Mr. McFarland said:

"While it is still not possible to accurately state our budgetary requirements for this operation, $250,000 is the closest estimate we are able to give for Alabama's requirements. As indicated in our conversation, National Headquarters has authorized the announcement of an additional $25,000 appropriation to the Relief Fund for release in Monday morning papers. Total contributions of April 4th from the National organization are $50,000. We are still pretty much in the dark as to what the remainder of the State is doing except to know in a general way that financial campaigns are in progress. I should hesitate to estimate the voluntary subscriptions to the Fund at this time at more than $40,000.00."

A Teacher's Meditations

The following was handed in by a teacher:

I do not teach for money
(I'd be a nervous wreck!)
But it'd make life more sunny
If I could get a check.

I don't teach for compensation,
No "mirror statue" I'd erect;
But it would help the situation
If I could get a check.

I teach merely because I want to,
No one drives me there each day;
But "others" 'll be delighted, too
When I get some pay! ! !

ELDER KEATE OF KNOXVILLE NOW RESIDING IN CLANTON

Among the new residents of Clanton is Elder R. I. Keate, of Knoxville, Tenn. who came to Clanton a few weeks ago. Elder Keate is with the local headquarters of the Alabama Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, and succeeds Elder A. B. Russell, who had been here for sometime. He stated that he expects to bring his family to Clanton in the very near future, and they will receive a very warm welcome.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

In traveling over the storm smitten section I found scores of people with pick and shovel, digging storm pits. With the information these people had they were acting the part of wisdom. They knew that a terrific storm had swept over them, and they did not know when another would come. The idea of preparation had seized their minds, and they were using common sense, so that they would be prepared when the next storm came. Wish that I could get people at large to act with the same kind of wisdom in regard to the coming of the judgment day. The fellow was not certain that another storm would ever come, but he was mighty sure to have him a storm pit in case that it did come. We all know that the judgment is coming—there is no uncertainty about it, but as long as we do not know when, we put off the matter of preparation. Better be using common sense and "Prepare to meet thy God."

* * *

A few days ago I heard a woman praising the Red Cross. She said that it was the finest, the best and the most efficient organization in the world. I did not attempt to dispute anything that she said. but deep down in my heart there was a rebellion against such statements. I will admit that the Red Cross is wonderful in handling cases of need. but it only handles what is given to it. The source of supply, the feeding stream, of the Red Cross is none other than the church of the living God, none other than the Christian religion. If our churches did not stand for, and eternally proclaim, the humanitarian idea the Red Cross could not exist. In fact the Red Coss is nothing more than organized Christianity in action. Its very emblem "The Cross" comes to it from the church. The Red Cross is good, but the church of God is better. Never allow your mind to put anything ahead of your church.

* * *

Recently I saw a strange sight in a civilized country. Men and women, boys and girls, congregated at a feeding station and dropped into breadlines. Each one had a plate and they were marching past a table, receiving a food supply. It may have been a bit humiliating to some who were in that line to thus make application for help, but it was far better to do this than it was to stand away on their pride and starve to death. They were hungry and the food was there for them, and why remain out of line and starve. God has established a bread supply table in every church in America. On his table can be found "The Living Bread that comes down from above." It is free, it is abundant and it is easily obtained. When you see a person going to church on Sunday, he is in God's bread line. The foolish and the pride possessed, refuse to step into this line, and they starve their souls. Better see to it that you are in God's bread line every Sabbath. You have got to feed your soul from God's table or it will starve.

* * *

I stood just over the lime line and watched two teams playing ball on the diamond. Soon I discovered that there was no contest, they were playing for entertainment, and not with a passion to win. The side that was on the plate lounged around, drug about and did nothing. The boys in the field made no effort to stop the balls. There was nothing to the game. I see scores of people on the diamond of life acting the same way. They are without a passion to win. They drift about like rubbish on the bosom of a pond. Life is a game, life is a contest, life has in it something to be won or lost. Put yourself into the game and make it interesting. Have a passion to win. Play the part of a real man where you stand.

A lady phoned another lady about a dinner that the church was going to serve, and asked that she accept an assigned task. The lady at the other end of the line was loaded for the occasion and she hastily shot her afflictions back at the one who was making the appeal for help. She wanted to help and was so sorry that she could not, but she thought it was best that she remain quiet at home. On the very day when the dinner was served, that lady was spinning around her home like a top, and in the afternoon she was in her car on the highway. Another lady was asked and the job was done willingly and done well. If you want to find out "What ails" a woman, or what ails a man, just ask them to do something of a public nature. That is one time when we ride our rheumatism, we lean lightly on our sprained ankle, we nourish our splitting headache with great care, but we are ourselves just as soon as we are alone. After all, folks are funny things.

An aged lady said to me the other day, "The reason why I do not want whiskey to come back, is because I have fourteen grandsons." That is reason enough. It really looks strange that men could be so uncivilized as to advocate the return of whiskey. In Montgomery a few nights ago a man was before an audience advocating the return of the saloon, and actually running for office on that platform. Wonder if that man has sons and daughters to be thrown into the greedy maw of the whiskey traffic. If so he is a racketeer of the deepest dye.

DAVE BOYETT IS NOW WITH SPIGENER FUNERAL HOME

Early this week a representative of the News discovered a new face down at the Spigener Funeral Home on Main Street. Upon investigation it was found that the recent addition to the staff of this concern is Dave Boyett, of Montevallo, and a native of Rockford and Coosa County. Mr. Boyett is a genial fellow whom you will like to know. He is a young man who has worked hard to accomplish his objectives. His present work deals with the insurance part of this local concern, and if you have not met him already it will be a mutual pleasure for you to call on him.

He and Mrs. Boyett and young son are residing in the home of Mrs. Bama Cox. We welcome this splendid family to our community.

American Legion Doing Great Work In Storm Relief

Thorsby, Ala., April 5th.—A wonderful response to appeals for help from this storm stricken section has been made by the various American Legion posts throughout the State, who have, almost without exception contributed generously to the storm relief. Whether in the form of money, clothing, or supplies. some aid has been offered by every post in the State, or some of its members.

In addition to appeals by radio and newspapers, personal appeals have been made by legion officers, and several of the State officials have visited Thorsby and vicinity lending assistance and encouragement to the sufferers.

Among Legion officials who have personally visited the stricken area, are Trotter Jones, State Adjutant, who was in Thorsby Tuesday, and W. A. Gayle, Vice Commander in charge of 4th District, who was here Monday.

Several truck loads of furniture and supplies have been sent to Thorsby from Montgomery and the two Birmingham posts; and donations of clothing from Legionnaires and their families arrive daily.

Thorsby people express gratitude to the Legion in no uncertain terms, and are beginning to realize that the boys who served their country in time of war serve none the less in times of peace.

Thorsby Institute News

Thorsby Institute gave up its Annual School picnic in order to give money and provisions for the tornado sufferers. Friends in the Community Congregational Church, Birmingham, sent money to the school to be applied where needed.

Next Saturday night at seven-thirty the play "A Mid Summer Night's Dream" will be given by the Freshman and Sophomore English classes under the direction of Mr. King and under the auspices of the Helen Keller Literary Society. This is the last open meeting of the Society and it is hoped that many will attend. Everyone is invited. Admisison is ten cents.

Last Thursday afternoon the Institute girls and the Home Economics girls of Clanton High School played basketball in Clanton. The score was 6 to 5 in favor of Clanton.

A week from Monday at 2:50 P. M. the Girls' Glee Club will give the Cantata The Culprit Fay. It will be given in the auditorium and everyone in town is invited. Admission is free.

Last Sunday night the Christian Endeavor was led by Carried Smith. A candle light service was held installing the new offices and chairmen of committees. At the Executive committee Sunday afternoon the chairmen of committees selected members for their committees.

Mt. Pisgah News

Last Sunday, April 3, was our regular singing afternoon.

Mr. Jake Henley sang a song. Prayer by G. W. Edwards. Mr. Henley directed while the committee arranged the program. Directors for the afternoon were Messrs. Tom Wells, Cornelius Hand, Eugene Aldridge, G. W. Edwards, Jake Henley, Prof. Emmett Wilson, Rev. L. A. Brown, Rev. Ollie Hayes and Miss Birdie Edwards. Organists were Mrs. Jake Henley, Mrs. Emmett Wilson and Birdie Edwards. A duet was rendered by Prof. Wilson and Birdie Edwards with Mrs. Wilson as organist. Closing prayer by Rev. L. A. Brown. The singing was fine, with a large crowd of attentive hearers. We appreciate the efforts of everyone who helped to make our singing class better.

Plato wrote, "Music should inspire with love for what is good and pure. Bad music is more pernicious than any other evil." We hope the people will keep growing more enthusiastic for good music. That is the only kind we have at our singing society. Truly, music is the language of the soul. And everyone should appreciate good music to the extent to encourage and help in every way possible to improve our singing classes. We hope everyone will come back every first Sunday and bring someone with you. We are very glad to have visitors.

Coosa County Proud Of Albert Goggans

The handsome loving cup won by Albert Goggans, student of the Rockford Elementary School, in the District Spelling Bee at Jacksonville on March 15th, is now on display in the office of the Superintendent of Education.

This cup was presented by Congressman L. L. Patterson and is a trophy that Coosa County should prize very highly because having a student declared champion over seventeen other counties is an honor to be appreciated.

The splendid training this youth received in the Hissop School under the direction of Miss Evie Wade at the beginning of his school career attributes much to this success, as well as the work he has accomplished in the Rockford Elementary School during the past two years.

This cup having been won by a Coosa County boy, should create much interest among all schools in the county and encourage each of them to enter a contestant in the county contest next year.

Information received by L. O. Brackeen, of the State Department of Agriculture and Industries, Montgomery, indicates that over $2,500,000 worth of farm homes, buildings, livestock, feeds, food, poultry, and timber was destroyed by the cyclone of March 21. The estimates were made by county agents. More than 1,700 farm homes and buildings were demolished, and others badly damaged. The majority of people killed were farm people.

Jemison F.F.A. News

Our regular F. F. A. meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. Alton Cobb. The roll was called by the secretary, Mr. Herbert Connaway. A check upon our dues was made by Mr. Wilson Clements, our treasurer, and then the chapter gained headway in its business. First the old business was taken up and discussed thoroughly. The new business likewise had a difinite conclusion.

The chapter plans on a big frolic on a picnic Saturday night, April 12th. Our chapter appointed a program committee with Mr. Joyce Howard, chairman. The program was:

Bible reading by Mr. Charlie Durbin. Our scripture was taken from the first Psalm.

Prayer, by L. Lance Franklin.

A talk on a "Back-Stop" for our baseball diamond, by Mr. Wilson Clements.

A talk on "My Home Project" by Mr. Grant Stockdale.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method to thank our many friends of Mulberry and surrounding communities for their many kind deeds shown us during the illness and death of our dear husband and father, W. J. Cummings. We thank you so much for the beautiful flowers, and they were a choice collection that he loved so much. We also thank Brother Williams and Masons for their kind words. They were helpful to us. May God's richest blessings abide with each of you. With kindness, submitted.
—Mrs. W. J. Cummings and Children.

BENJ. ANDERSON, Prin.

The Chilton County Training School acted as a temporary Red Cross during a part of last week.

It was suggested in one or both of the local papers that each Sunday school in the county take an offering for the storm sufferers. Special persons were sent to all Sunday schools in the community, to make an appeal to the assemblage for the Red Cross. As a result the following churches were represented: Church of God, $7.00; Ben Brown leadin with $5.00; Morning Star Baptist church, $3.00; Hopewell Baptist church, $3.50.

In addition to this the people in the community were asked to give clothing, food, or any think else that could be given for the sufferers. Articles given by the Church of God:

Quilts, spreads, dresses, pants, waists, sheets, pillow cases, shirts, canned fruit, apples, peaches, berries, dried fruit, meal, meat, syrup, chicken, peas, corn.

Others: shirts, sheets, dresses, pants, pillow cases, spreads, quilts, fruits, canned and dried, apples, peaches, berries, meat, meal, corn, etc.

Some names of those contributing: Ben Brown, Jasper Brazil, Ben Looney, Ellen Bethel, Mose Brown, Ralph Oden, Robert Williams, Fate Williams, Geo. Williams, W. B. Bryant, L. H. Campbell, Felton Pierson, Josie Knight, Robert Spence, Ed Cooper, S. Q. Cooper, Edward Jackson, Otho McKinney, Matthew Rutland, Albert Taylor, Ernestine DeRamus, Addell Austin, Edward Campbell, Sallie Jackson, L. M. Anderson, Katie Brown, Naomi Foshee, Samuel Bryant.

Ben Brown is largely responsible for this work. He also took some of the boys from the County Training School and worked a number of days at Lomax, trying to do his bit toward the bringing of order from chaos.

Chilton County Training School Wins In Singing Contest

The Musical Festival conducted at the Bibb County Training School, on Sunday, April 3rd, was a splendid success. The schools that participated in it were Autauga, Chilton, Bibb, Shelby County Training Schools and Nelson School in Bibb County.

The purpose of this contest was to give the pupils of these various schools a bit of contact which is so much needed in our schools and to serve as a tangible effort to find students with ability.

Each school represented with five selections. First, second and third prizes were awarded for the best numbers rendered. Chilton County Training School received first prize, Bibb County Training School second and Autauga third. All schools participating played their parts well.

This project created so much interest until it was unanimously decided that this would be an annual affair. The next meeting will be in Autaugaville, next April.

Miss Dody Wells of Jemison spent last week end with her sister, Miss Nell Wells, here.

Carl Jones, Earl Ellis and Joe VanDerveer spent Thursday in Montgomery last Thursday.

Why Get Up Nights?
Make This 25c Test

This easy bladder physic is needed to drive out impurities and excess acids which cause irritation that results in leg pains, backache, burning and getting up nights. BU-KETS, the bladder physic, containing buchu, juniper oil, etc., works on the bladder pleasantly and effectively as castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box (5 grain size) from your druggist. After four days, if not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. You are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep Locally at Alred Drug Co., and Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton. adv.

Prop No. 4.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice is of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> "ARTICLE —. The Legislature may form or provide for the formation of Forestry Districts in Alabama for the promotion of reforestation and the development and protection of growing timber and, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining such Districts, may authorize and provide for the collection of an acreage tax not to exceed five cents per acre to be levied and collected on the lands comprising such Districts. This Article shall be retroactive as to legislation in accordance with its provisions enacted by the Legislature of 1931."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER OFFERS
Price Guaranty on Wheat, Corn, and Cotton

Many farmers who need new machines for the economical production of their wheat, corn, and cotton have been reluctant to buy them because of uncertainty as to the prices they will receive later in the year for these farm products.

In order to meet this situation the Harvester Company offers farmers purchasing machines after this date, a definite price guaranty on varying quantities of their wheat, corn, and cotton. If market price quotations for these products do not reach the guaranteed prices at the time payment becomes due on notes given and maturing this year, farmers buying machines included in this special offer will receive a credit equal to the difference.

Many of our customers we know will welcome this announcement. Come in and let us explain the details of the Harvester Company's unique guaranty. Let us show you the machines on which it applies and tell you just how to take advantage of it in equipping your farm at once with the new cost-reducing machines that you need.

4-H Club Boys Gather Here For Rally Friday

the audience and requested that he say words of encouragement to the boys. His remarks were of the long ago when he was a boy, telling how farming was done in those days. The old War Horse could not close without warning the boys against the use of liquor and tobacco.

Hugh Comer, son of Ex-Governor Comer, then addressed the club boys on, "The Power of Fear." Mr. Comer is a clear thinker, and had the genius of putting his message into story form, and it went home to the hearts of the boys.

Judge Reynolds, J. C. Page and L. C. Warr, each addressed the Club boys, and gave to them the assurance of their most hearty co-operation, in the program and plans of the Club for the year 1932.

Miss Nell Pickens of Auburn was present to give to the boys the Club instructions, and she did this in a most gracious manner. Charles Foshee was asked to give information on Scout work. He urged that the boys of the county make out of themselves real Scouts, even if they did not belong to a Troop.

After the exercises at the Court house were over, the boys were invited to an Easter egg hunt provided for them by the Kiwanis club in Clanton. The last thing for the day was to have their pictures made in group form in front of the County Agent's office.

The large group of boys from over the county were intelligent, well behaved and showed signs of leadership. The County Agent is doing a great work for the next generation in the training of this representative group of youngsters. They will be heard from twenty-five years from today.

New officers of the 4-H Club of Chilton County were elected at this rally. These are, Clyde Popwell, president; James Dennis, vice president and Jack Jones of Plantersville, secretary.

SHERIFF GETS MAN SUSPECTED IN ROBBERIES

Sixty Gallon Still Is Also Captured By Sheriff's Force Recently

With a description of a man wanted in Birmingham in connection with several robberies, Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies "got their man" last Thursday. He gave his name as Carl Payne, and considerable trouble was had in bringing the man to jail in Clanton after locating him at a home near Clanton where he had been staying for several weeks, it was stated.

Below will be found a story which appeared in The Birmingham News in regard to this arrest:

"Birmingham, Ala.,—Held for investigation in connection with recent Thursday in Clanton. Dynamite, two guns, sections of fuse and a tear gas gun, described by police as safe crack- former convict was to be questioned by police Friday following his arrest safe "jobs" amounting to more than $10,000, a youth said by police to be a ing paraphernalia, were confiscated.

A pistol was identified by William Hickman, paymaster of Republic Iron & Steel Company, as one taken in the robbery of two company safes at Thomas.

The youth, who gave his name as Carl Payne, 21, of Clanton and Ensley, was taken into custody by Chilton County authorities on request of Milton E. McDuff, identification director. He was transferred Thursday afternoon by McDuff and Burgin Hawkins of the sheriff's office and lodged

RECENT FREEZE MAY NOT DAMAGE BERRY CROP MUCH

When the severe freeze came the first of March strawberry growers in Chilton County feared the worst for their berry crop, but it seems now that a fair crop will be produced. The freeze took off all the tender berries and killed the prospective blooms, but since that time the plants have rallied, and now the fields are almost white with blooms. Mr. Diefenderfer, who keeps abreast of the strawberry business, is confident that the freeze will not injure the money part of the crop but very little. He says that the crop will not be so large, but he hopes that the price will be better.

With the coming of the warm days it now seems that the crop will be moving before the last of the month. Arrangements are being made with the railroad for transportation, and new markets are being located.

AUXILIARY OF LEGION ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. R. D. Woodson Elected As President Chilton County Auxiliary

New officers of the American Legion Auxiliary of Chilton County were elected at the regular monthly meeting last Monday night. The new officers, who will serve until October, are as follows:

President, Mrs. R. D. Woodson; first vice president, Mrs. A. L. Robinson; second vice president, Mrs. Kin Vinson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. W. M. Wyatt; historian, Mrs. Oliver Duke; sergeant at arms, Mrs. Neulah Hedgepeth; chaplain, Mrs. George Tippett.

Among the items of business transacted, the Auxiliary at the meeting last Monday night, determined to have a miscellaneous shower of things to be donated to the relief of storm sufferers in Chilton County. All things given through this medium are to be left at the office of Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, in the courthouse at any convenient time. Distribution to the needy will be made by members of the Auxiliary under supervision of the relief committee.

It was stated at the meeting last Monday night that a new charter for the Chilton County Auxiliary will be secured, containing the names of all members who affiliated with the local organization prior to the first of last October.

Mrs. Kin Vinson was designated as chairman of the poppy sale committee. Poppies will be secured by the secretary.

High School P.-T. A. Plants Tree Tuesday

The P.-T. A. of the Chilton County High School met on the campus Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and presented a George Washington tree and planted it in memory of the Father of Our Country. Invocation was made by Rev. D. W. Haskew, the presentation of the tree was made by Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer and words of acceptance and appreciation were spoken by L. C. Warr. The students of the High School sang, "America" while the tree was being rooted into the soil where it is to grow during the coming years.

Wells In Storm Area Are Being Treated

All wells in the section suffering from the tornadoes are being thoroughly cleaned out and treated with chlorine, for purifying purposes, according to Guy M. Tate, of the State Health Department, who has been in this section several days in charge of this work.

Mr. Tate has several crews of workers busy at this and up to Tuesday afternoon had 24 wells cleaned and given treatment. The work was started Monday, and is being done with the cooperation of the Red Cross.

ANOTHER BIG PICTURE FOR LOCAL SHOW

"Carnival Boat" Coming Here Next Monday, Tuesday At Wadesonian

Bill Boyd as a young lumberman and Ginger Rogers as the star of a carnival show-boat troupe form the romantic duo in "Carnival Boat," RKO Pathe's romance of the big trees, which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, April 18 and 19.

Bill made love to the fiery-haired Ginger in "Suicide Fleet," but in "Carnival Boat," his love for the little entertainer plays a much bigger part in the story. His father's opposition to his affection for Ginger brings about some of the biggest dramatic scenes in the picture.

The romance between Boyd and Ginger is set against a fast moving background of action in a big logging camp and a show boat. Thrills are injected with the breaking up of a log-jam, the wrecking of a heavily loaded, runaway logging train and Bill's trip across the mountain peaks on a "high line" with only a log between him and a 250 foot drop to oblivion.

"Carnival Boat," is from an original story by Marion Jackson and Don Ryan. The screen play was written by James Seymour and directed by Albert Rogell.

The cast includes Fred Kohler, Hobart Bosworth, Marie Prevost, Edgar Kennedy, Harry Sweet, Charles Sellon and Walter Percival.

FIDELIS SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS MET AT HOME OF MISS HARRIS

Members of the Fidelis Sunday School Class of the Clanton Baptist church met last Tuesday night at the home of Miss Flora Harris. After matters of business were attended to, refreshments were served to the following: Misses Carrie Foshee, Gladye Williams, Ruth Sessions, Mary Foshee, Marine Harris, Charlsie Pyron, Maggie Rollins, Cleo Broadhead, Annie Mae Foshee, Flora Harris, Mary Welsh, Glennie Mims, Vera Jones, Wilma Harris.

IF YOUR ORCHARD WAS DESTROYED IN STORM SEE T. W. BRYAN, HERE

T. W. Bryan, agent for all kinds of fruit trees, with offices over Robinson Dept. Store, in Clanton, told the News that the company he represents has authorized him to get in touch with those farmers whose commercial orchards were damaged or destroyed in the storms recently.

Those whose orchards purchased from the Concord Nurseries, of Georgia, were destroyed, Mr. Bryan has been authorized to furnish a quantity of fruit trees.

Some Highlights Of Work Being Done Through Red Cross Relief

Cases Must Be Thoroughly Investigated Due To Claims Coming From Pretended Sufferers

None too much emphasis can be placed on the urgent need for funds in Chilton County with which to push forward the work of setting storm stricken families back in position where they will be better equipped to aid themselves, is the report coming from the Red Cross Relief Headquarters in Clanton Tuesday.

Speaking frankly—bills for goods used in this work are being sent in to the relief headquarters and payment is being made as past as possible to the concerns sending the bills, most all of which are local places.

On top of this there are many, many families who have not one item of furniture left from the paths of the storms. These people are being furnished with such items as are considered necessary for comfort. The supply of clothing is good, but the need now is for food, and unless this is donated, it must be bought and given to these families.

Cases Investigated

Before any assistance is being given to families, each case is taken up separately and thoroughly investigated by the case workers who have certain territories to cover. If the man and wife of the family show sufficient reason that they need assistance, then this case is given an award, after being passed on by a committee of local people. This thorough investigation is necessary due to many cases asking for relief and investigation discloses they are pretenders and attempting to secure relief through false statements.

The Red Cross finds this is quite necessary, not only because of the above reason, but that they are handling public funds and must account for each dollar that is turned in.

Many stories are turning up of persons making application for relief, and investigations showing that these persons do not need aid, and were not in the sections struck by the tornadoes. The Red Cross must guard against this, and there is only one way to do this, investigate each case. Although some time may be lost in these cases, it is a more exact way to give aid in the places and to the persons needing it.

Homes Built

At present, considerable work is being done toward repairing and rebuilding homes for families without homes. In some instances the people have been able to salvage enough from the wreckage of their homes to get a start toward rebuilding and were unable to complete it. In cases like that, the Red Cross is aiding them to finish the house, and in some cases complete new homes are being built by the Red Cross funds.

Up to Tuesday morning of this week there had been sixty cases thoroughly investigated, passed on by the local committee, awards made and the cases considered closed, having received sufficient relief.

In these cases there were something like sixteen homes repaired or rebuilt by the Red Cross. In some instances, the farmer is able to do his own work, while in other cases he must have help, or the father in the family is so seriously injured he is unable to work, or is dead.

The approximate total of money expended in the sixty closed cases referred to above is $4,188.18, which included expenditures for house building material, or repairs, furniture, and such items as were absolutely necessary.

Many farmers in the storm areas have already been diligently at work getting this year's crops underway, realizing that they will be able to help themselves greatly by raising food stuffs for their families and livestock! In many cases, livestock is being given the stricken farmers, but cows are only being given to those families where sickness is and there is a need for nourishment of milk.

Pilot Club Meets And Enjoys Talks

Holding their first meeting since the storm struck this county, the members of the Clanton Pilot Club gathered at the home of Mrs. L. C. Warr Tuesday night of last week, and the attendance and opportunity to be together again after considerable relief work, was overwhelmingly pleasing.

This pleasure was added to by a very nicely prepared menu served by the "Ever" Group of the club, and the interesting talk made by Miss Nell Pickens, of Auburn, who is here working in behalf of the storm relief work. Mrs. C. E. Stapp also spoke, telling of the Red Cross and how it is carrying on its work in this county at this time. The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday night, April 16th, a social meeting with Group "Course" furnishing the program and refreshments served by Group "True". The place of meeting is to be announced later.

NOTED MUSICIAN WILL GIVE RECITAL HERE APRIL 19TH

Dr. C. B. Richmond, head of the Music Department of Alabama College will give an organ recital at the Methodist church auditorium, in Clanton, next Tuesday afternoon, April 19, at 3:30 o'clock. This distinctive program is sponsored by the Music Appreciation Club of Clanton, and those in charge extend a cordial invitation to everyone to be present. There will be no admission charges.

Dr. Richmond is noted for his ability and his services are much in demand. Perhaps you have heard him over WAPI or some other place. If so you will want to hear him again. And if you have not heard him, don't miss this opportunity to hear good music.

MRS. M. B. ARANT SERIOUSLY ILL AT HER CLANTON HOME

Friends of Mrs. Miles B. Arant have been saddened to learn of her serious illness at her home here, which has lasted for several days. Latest reports at the time of this writing stated that Mrs. Arant's condition was unchanged.

S. U. TURNIPSEED IS TO DELIVER ISABELLA SERMON

Rev. S. U. Turnipseed, pastor of the Forest Avenue Methodist church in Montgomery, will preach the Commencement sermon for the Isabella High School on the 2nd Sunday morning in May. Dr. Turnipseed is a graduate of the old Southern University at Greensboro, Alabama, and in 1906 was the pastor of the Clanton Methodist church. His many friends in Chilton County will be pleased to hear his message on the Second Sunday.

"MAMMY'S LIL' WILD ROSE" AT THORSBY SAT., APRIL 16

The play, "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose," will be repeated at Thorsby Public School Saturday night, April 16.

Several weeks ago the play, "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose," was given at Thorsby by the public school faculty and several talented people from town. It went over with a big hit, and many requests have been made that it be repeated. It will be given again next Saturday night, April 16. The proceeds will be divided fifty-fifty between the school and the local Red Cross. Admission 10 and 20 cents.

The Selma District Conference will meet at Pineapple on April the 19th. At this Confrence Dr. N. B. McLeod will preside. The local Methodist church in Clanton will be represented by T. C. McSwain, W. M. Polk, J. B. Atkinson, J. D. Armstrong, Mrs. D. W. Haskew, Miss Madge Scarborough and Judge L. H. Reynolds.

Woodmen Planning Big Time April 28th

Thursday, April 28th, will bring to Clanton many visiting members of the Woodmen of the World, when the Central Alabama Log Rolling Association will hold a regular jamboree here. Every camp in Chilton and adjoining counties are to take part in these activities on that date.

A large class is to be initiated into woodcraft, and several speakers are scheduled to be here for addresses. This will be the first time an event of this kind has been held in Clanton and it is expected to be a banner day, according to the committee in charge, which is composed of Hon. J. B. Atkinson, J. A. Maddox and M. C. Jones.

Special Meeting Of Legion Monday Night

A special called meeting of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion has been set for next Monday night, April 18th, according to R. D. Woodson, commander of the local post.

At this meeting there will be an out-of-town speaker and all members of the legion, and legion auxiliary are requested to be present. A cordial invitation is also extended to all ex-service men to come.

CAR OF FLOUR IS SHIPPED TO LOCAL RELIEF

Hundreds of Packages Seeds Are Given To Farmers In Storm Areas

More evidence that the Red Cross is doing active work in Chilton County in aiding the farming families of the county to get in position to "live again" on their farms in the sections struck by tornadoes, came in the form of a carload of flour last week.

This flour was sent to the Red Cross for distribution by the local chapter of the organization, and came in sacks. Mrs. Vasilike Foster, Area Director of Relief in this county stated that a full supply of this flour was being given to each case that called for such assistance from the Red Cross and that they were not attempting to issue it out as the families would need it. This flour came from the National Red Cross Headquarters and was made from wheat stored by the Federal Farm Board, a large quantity of which was released for relief work through a recent bill.

S. L. Gibson, Verbena, and chairman of the local chapter of the Red Cross, stated that they have received several hundred packages of garden and field seeds to be distributed to the stricken families, in order that they may get their crops started as quickly as possible. All assistance possible along this line is being given, although many families are in need of farming tools since the tornadoes.

MATCH PLAYS COMPLETED IN TOURNAMENT

New Champion Assured For Local Golf Club As Matches Close

Tuesday afternoon saw the match plays in the Spring Golf Tournament of the Clanton Golf Club come to a head and the results already show that a new champion is scheduled for the club this year, when R. J. Sumner went over Dr. Joe E. Edgar, last year's champion, in the match plays.

Qualifying rounds were played last week, and the players were matched off as follows: W. E. Huddleston with Raymond Smith; R. D. Woodson with Maurice Lande; J. E. Edgar with R.J. Sumner; Reedie Taylor with H. F. Downs; L. C. Reynolds with "Red" Wagnor; John C. Page with Lester Jones; Grady Reynolds with Claudie Pipes; and N. S. Johnson with John Armstrong.

These match plays were to be completed Wednesday afternoon of this week, while some were played off Tuesday afternoon. One of the best matches on the card is that of Huddleston and Smith.

DR. ARTHUR JOHNSON HAS RETURNED TO HIS OFFICE

Dr. Arthur Johnson returned to Clanton recently from New Orleans, La., where he has been for several days, visiting clinics and where he took a special course in general office work and treatment of children.

Storm Stricken Family Thanks Friends for Aid

Please allow me space in your paper to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the public for their many heartfelt sympathies and kindnesses shown me in the greatest trouble that has ever fell to me to bear. The storm that swept our homes away Monday, March 21, taking from us the most precious of all, our darling wife and mother, has cast a dark shadow on our lives that time alone can fade.

We had just eaten supper when I heard a roaring that sounded like far away thunder. I went to a south window to look at the clouds and just as I neared the window I saw that it was giving in, and that a storm was near. So I started back to my wife and child in the bedroom joining when every window and door crashed and threw me against the floor. The next thing I knew the roof went off, and the house just exploded. Everything was dark as pitch with balls of fire flying thru the air. When I came to my senses I crawled to my wife and put some cotton around her. My baby girl, Myrtle, came to us and helped me the best she could to fix her mother comfortable. My youngest son and his wife lived across the road from us, and their house was in the same condition. We all got together and tried to keep warm, and in about two hours a car made its way to us over trees, rocks and lumber that had the road almost blockaded. The lights of this car was a most precious sight to us. Mr. Zeb Lockhart was the first to us, and rushed us as quickly as possible to the Clanton hospital. May God bless him, and send his richest blessings, and comforts on him. Never can I thank the people for all they have done for us.

The Red Cross, one of the most wonderful organizations known, has aided us in every respect possible. Not only have they supplied us with nice wearing apparel, but nice boxes of groceries have been given us, as well as bedsteads and bed clothes. With all our heart we thank them, but God will reward them most, these good, loving people who have opened up their hearts and given so liberally. We want to thank all who took a part in helping to pick up and save what was left from the wreckage. Because every little item picked up and saved was a golden deed in our sight, for we are at such a stage that we feel lost and ruined. The world holds a host of good people yet, and in a way life seems to have a bright side yet. No one left out anything it seems. Even the veterinarians took it as their part to help, and with a willing hand and mind went around to see to the stock. Even though my mules died, I thank the doctors just the same, and everybody else that did anything for them. Our relatives in Clanton did a wonderful part—such a part that I can hardly describe. My nephew Arthur Willis, and wife did everything that lay in their power to help, and comfort us. My baby girl, 17 years old, was carried to their home on Tuesday p.m. and all the care and attention was given her that anyone needs. May God bless these two true, loving free-hearted people, and never can I thank them enough.

Not only these but all the relations did everything to make us comfortable and greatly do I appreciate it. The doctors and nurses will be rewarded for their special services and attention and especially do we thank them. Nearest and dearest of all to my heart was my precious children, who so faithfully have cared for us and done everything in their power to comfort me. Their never failing attention has shown their love and affection for me.

My true loving wife was laid to rest at Collins Chapel while Dr. Ezell spoke true and comforting words to this bereft family. We thank Dr. Ezell for his service. We also thank Mr. Mell Martin, and all who took any part in helping us in any way, great or small. Then after all we realize that "life is uncertain, and death is sure," and that God in all his divine wisdom saw best, and that we must submit to his will, and that in heaven we all hope to meet again where everything is love, peace and happiness, and no dark clouds of sorrow can reach us. Our family has an interest in heaven, a greater interest than ever, and let us live in a way to be happily reunited again.

—Carter Willis and Family.

Nothing Much!

The farmers of the strawberry line have an encouraging prospect of a nice crop of berries. Some of our noted berry growers say they will be better after the freeze than they were going to be before it. Let us all hope that it will come on and be for the very best after all.

Notice!

Let us watch and listen at the debate on whether to trade with Russia or not.

We guarantee Gold Dust and Ca-Mi-Co Flours to be Equal to, or Better than any other Flours sold in America, regardless of price who has never used Cadick's Gold Dust (It's White!) or Cadick's Ca-Mi-Co (It's White!) is naturally, unaware of the super quality of these two fine flours.

The HOUSEWIFE

Make this test, order a bag from your grocer and make up a batch of biscuits or a cake; if the results aren't as fine as any you ever had, your money will be refunded. GOLD DUST is plain, Ca-Mi-Co is self-rising.

Saving in shortening will more than save difference in price.
